Answer: If you know her well enough, do it.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My son, twenty-three years of age, does not seem fit for any occupation for the simple reason he walks in his sleep. What can I do with him?

Yours truly,
N. SOMNIA.

Answer: Make him a policeman.

Only the Lonely Hearted Know

By ANNE CAMPBELL

ONLY the lonely hearted know
How dark the midnight hour,
When heavy lies their weight of woe,
And closed is Hope's bedraggled flower.

Only the lonely hearted thrill
To dawn's awakening,
Watching the sun upon the hill,
Hearing the birds of morning sing.

Only the lonely hearted find
In painful pathways trod,
A poised and well-contented mind,
A kinship with the living God.

What Duke Did With Its $40,000,000

TEN years ago people asked: "What will Duke college do as the main beneficiary of the $40,000,000 James B. Duke endowment?" This excellent air panorama gives the answer. On the edge of Durham township in North Carolina is Duke university, surrounded by a 5,000-acre campus; one of the most compact and beautiful in America. The unit was first occupied in 1930 after the completion of a $20,000,000 building program. In the foreground is the stadium, seating 35,000 persons. Also shown are the various athletic fields, baseball diamonds and tennis courts. The building unit is 4,156 feet long and is dominated by the 210-foot chapel tower which contains a carillon of 50 bells. The unit includes a medical school with a hospital of 456 beds with a separate $6,000,000 endowment. All of the buildings are of Gothic architecture. Physical development has been paralleled by academic growth. The Duke library has nearly 400,000 volumes and the faculty includes many internationally known scholars and scientists.

Housewife's Idea Box

To Remove Rust

If you have had difficulty in removing rust from steel, this hint may help you: Take an emery board and dip it into turpentine. Rub it carefully over the rust. This should remove the rust if it is not too deep. Several applications may be required. Polish with a clean cloth or chamois. THE HOUSEWIFE.

GERMAN PIGEON, WAR CAPTIVE, IS ENJOYING LIFE

Sixteen years ago, just before the end of the World war, writes Helen C. Loomis in the Detroit News, American soldiers participating in the St. Mihiel drive in France found two homing pigeons, Rheingold and Helene, in a dugout that had been occupied by German soldiers. Both birds were taken captive and Rheingold, since rechristened Wilhelm, is still alive and enjoying good health at the pigeon lofts of the U. S. A. signal corps at Fort Monmouth, N. J., Capt. Edgar L. Clewell, public relations officer of the signal corps, reports.

A number of other pigeons were captured by American forces during the war, but Wilhelm is the sole survivor of them all and likewise holds the distinction of being the only one of all of them to claim the Royal Bavarian lofts as his first home. He still wears with pride the band bearing the imprint of the German royal crown and crest, proof of his former associations with royalty.

Like that other Wilhelm, who was destined to spend so many years of his life on alien soil, and for whom he was named by his American captors when it was discovered through his leg band that he had been bred in the Royal Bavarian lofts, the pigeon Wilhelm carries his years well. For at seventeen, an age at which most homing pigeons have long since passed on, he appears as hale and hearty as many much younger birds, nor has he lost his excellent homing instincts.

SCHOOL IN THE SKY

The headmaster of a Dutch school has conceived the brilliant idea of using an air liner to teach geography. Instead of trooping dolefully into their classroom, the children now eagerly take their seats in the airplane, each with a map beside him and a pair of earphones. While the flight is in progress, the geography master, sitting before a microphone in the fore part of the cabin, points out and explains the features of the countryside below, and the pupils check his remarks on their maps. A prearranged section of the Netherlands is taken with each flight. The children, it is found, absorb their lessons with 20 times the enthusiasm shown on the ground.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right dose of a liquid laxative brings a more natural movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

A properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brings safe relief from constipation. It gently helps the average person's bowels until nature restores them to regularity. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering impurities from the blood stream. But kidneys get functionally disturbed—lag in their work—fail to remove the poisonous body wastes.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, attacks of dizziness, burning, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains; feel "all worn out."

Don't delay! For the quicker you get rid of these poisons, the better your chances of good health.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They tend to promote normal functioning of the kidneys; should help them pass off the irritating poisons. Doan's are recommended by users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

New Silhouette on Style Horizon

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WATCH silhouettes! Startling changes are taking place in the "lines" of the newer fashions. The lovely creature centered in the group pictured is wearing a dress which tells at a glance what is happening in the way of a radical depature from the sleek, suave and beguiling mermaid type of formal gowns which have been gracing the evening scene this many a season.

Not that the glamorous form-fitting effects have entirely gone into oblivion, on the contrary fashion is highlighting any number of slender gowns for the winter social season, although even these are undergoing certain subtle changes which add greatly to their fascination. Perhaps the most outstanding innovation in connection with the sheathlike frocks now worn is their slit hemlines. It is with baffling ingenuity that designers are maneuvering these slits and splits and slashes that ease up the hemline to allow freedom of movement for the wearer.

At one of its recent monthly fashion clinics and style exhibits the Chicago wholesale market council displayed among scores of equally as fetching numbers the three ultra smart costumes in the illustration. They clearly demonstrate new trends in present and coming silhouettes.

The entracing gown centered in the picture bears a twofold message. At the same time that it tells of the revival of quaint and picturesque full-skirted evening dresses, it bears tidings of the return of stiff grandiose stand-alone types of silks such as in days of yore were the pride and joy of fashion's elite. Not for decades have our eyes beheld such silks as these—crisp, rustling taffetas, high-grade moires, many of which are richly metal-shot, and satins of superior quality together with regal velvets, likewise an imposing array of glittering, sumptuous lame weaves which add yet more glamor to the pageantry of gala fabrics.

It is very important to remember about the new full-gored skirts that the flare widens after it leaves the waistline thus, as you will note in the picture, avoiding destroying the slender hipline which women so covet. The high-standing Medici collar made of quilted silver lame is as radical as is fullness of the skirt.

The narrow straight lines of the stunning supper-club gown to the left directly contrasts the new fullness just described. The very voguish fashion of slashing taut hemlines almost to the knee is frankly declared in this model. This velvet costume is superbly colorful. It combines black tulip (in Paris they call it tulip noir) for the dress and cape with a bright fuchsia tone for the lining, the gloves and the flowers at the throat.

A suave sheathlike styling is given to the distinguished restaurant gown to the right. This is the type of dress which calls for a dressy little dinner hat to be worn with it. Ultra sophisticated it is in fabric as well as line. The material is the new ribbed cire. Lacquer-finished weaves of this sort are in high-style this season. The slit or, rather, opening in the hemline is adroitly concealed under the panel streamline train. Rhinestone buttons fasten the bodice above at the back and the sleeves almost halfway to the elbow. A gorgeous rhinestone ornament defines the waistline at the top of the panel back.

This story of new silhouettes would not be complete were we to fail to at least mention that in direct contrast to the robe de style and other full-skirted effects, there is a movement toward introducing empire high-waist lines topping skirts of tall sheathlike stature. Then, too, there are many form-fitting princess dresses with stream-line fullness let in at the back via shirred, pleated and deftly cut flares. Of course, you should know of the new bloused backs and the Russian influence as reflected in the Cossack tunics now the rage, also in the recent tall turbans and the smart high necks, and especially the trend to things Tyrolean. The adoption of monk-like drapes together with cord and tassel fastenings for simple woolen daytime frocks, is another recent gesture.

© Western Newspaper Union.

TURN DINNER DRESS INTO EVENING GOWN

A dinner costume developed in black crepe and silver lame, the crepe the skirt, the lame the blouse, can be used for a complete new evening dress by simply removing the jacket-blouse and there you stand in a low decolletage back.

Many cocktail frocks and dinner dresses introduce beaded accents, just on the bodice or the tunic, with jet beads, sequins and rhinestones. All employed at once.

Your shirtwaist type of dress is still good—it seems to be having a long and popular day, remaining good for daytime or dinner wear.

Don't forget that daytime necklines are high at will, figure or select your neckline so that it can be worn up or low and open.

Pink and brown are a grand combination for evening. We saw a pink crepe satin with brown accents in the girdle and flower trimming.

Glossy Type Leather Is the Vogue in Shoe Wear

Smooth shoe leathers assume renewed importance, according to models seen at the recent leather show. Of unusual prominence are the smooth, very glossy types which have almost the luster of silk.

Combinations of different types of texture in like color in one shoe is another noticeable feature. Patent leather is combined with calf, for example, or calf with suede.

Heavy grain leathers, prominently embossed, are of secondary importance in the spring showings, but are still to be seen in many lines, especially in sport shoes.

PLAID NECKWEAR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

First we would call attention to the smart "lines" of the youthful velvet gown. It is the new bellless princess form-fitting effect which is the latest vogue going. This simple silhouette is exactly what women who know fashion are seeking. The big collar and wide cuffs are of metal-woven taffeta silk. The smartest accessory sets worn this season are made of metal-shot fabrics or perhaps quilted lame in gold or silver.

STRING HOLDER SUNBONNET GIRL

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Attractive String Holder

A ball of string is just as important in a kitchen as a pot holder or a fly swatter. String is used for many purposes, but where is it when you want it? This attractive string holder is always ready to serve you when hanging in its place somewhere on the kitchen wall. It is to be made up, and when finished looks like the picture shown above. Sunbonnet is made of bright colored prints. The face is painted. The ball of string is in the bonnet. String is used passing through a hole in mouth. A very catchy, useful, inexpensive gift.

Package No. A-7 contains percale in pretty patterns, lines stamped for cutting, painted face and foundation ready to be made up, also directions just how to do it.

Why All Blame on "the Woman"?

Age-Old Plaint, Revived, Is Distasteful to Real Intelligence.

The former prime minister of one of the smaller European countries recently made a spectacular public announcement in which he blamed all the country's ills on a woman.

And of ills there are many—as in how many other European countries today! Unemployment, poor harvests, political unrest—all the evils of these hard times the ex-premier enumerated, and then—blamed them on one woman!

The woman has for years been known throughout the world as the mistress of the king, who long ago gave up his crown and his loveless marriage to live with her in exile and seclusion. A few years ago he was restored to his throne, and it developed that their separation was less permanent than the king's supporters had hoped it would be. She is back in the country, again the king's close companion. And now all the nation's troubles, from the fall of thirteen cabinets down to everything but drouth, is laid at her door.

"As long as Mme. —— remains in the country," says the former prime minister, "nobody will be able to accomplish anything. She is responsible for all our evils. I suggest we should hold party meetings all over our country to clear up this scandal."

Far be it from this column to hold any brief for the king's mistress. Whatever her real nature, or the circumstances that brought her into the picture, her existence must be distasteful to us. But in throwing upon this woman the blame for all the ills afflicting a nation there is something no less distasteful to our intelligence, unless it happens to strike first our sense of humor.

How easy it is always to blame things on "the woman in the case!" Women, especially the "woman in the case," can cause a good deal of trouble. But if we look deep enough into these cases where everything is heaped upon a woman, we will usually find some man who is not entirely blameless. Not minimizing the devastating powers of many of our sex, it must be pointed out that most men know very well what they want, and very few allow themselves to be used by a woman. To blame the ills of a nation on a woman, in this day and age, will strike most of us as just a bit funny.

Home Economics

The foods I class in home economics are beginning plans for a faculty luncheon which will be served shortly after the Thanksgiving vacation.

The Thanksgiving dinner which the advanced foods class has planned for their mothers, will be postponed, due to the fact that several members now have the measles.

Alice Hart was entertained at dinner by the Foods II class last Thursday.

Girls in home economics have purchased two new plants to make their department more attractive.

Last week Marjorie Hollabaugh Jones visited the home economics department. Mrs. Jones was the former teacher of that department.

Typing

The typing class has been a great help to the school and teachers, because it has been typing cheers, B. B. schedules, and tests for the teachers.

The typing class has been having five minute accuracy drills, using for their records, accuracy targets.

Each person typing a perfect copy gets his name in the "bull's eye. One error places his name in the next circle and two errors in the outside circle. The afternoon class has, so far, been the most accurate.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The pupils of the 5th and 6th grades are planning to have a Thanksgiving Day dinner Wednesday and in the afternoon a program.

ST. JOE HIGH SCHOOL IN CONTEST

The sub-district One-Act Play contest was held Wednesday eve, Nov. 21 in the H. S. Auditorium at Angola, Indiana. Four counties were represented: Lagrange, Noble, DeKalb, and Steuben. Schools participating were: Topeka, St. Joe, Cromwell, and Pleasant Lake.

All the plays were well given and each school is to be highly commended on its production. The play, "Dust of the Road," given by the cast from Pleasant Lake High School, under the direction of Miss Margaret Chasey, was chosen to represent these counties in the District contest.

The District contest was held in Fort Wayne, Tuesday, Nov. 27, at the Central H. S. Auditorium at 7:30. Prof. Gough, head of the Speech Dept. at Depauw University acted as judge.

First and Second Grades

Tne first grade is building a playhouse, furnishing and decorating it during free activity period each day.

The second grade have completed an intersting "Farm Life" exhibit.

A large head of lettuce was presented The News by Sam Armstrong. It contained root and all so we are trying to keep it fresh by putting the root in water. We thank you Sam.

A good one for the "Believe it or not" is reported by Frank Loftus. The family cat has taken to mothering a small chicken at night and the cat will bring the chicken in when time to go to bed and if it tries to fly out of the basket, the cat will place its paw on the chick and hold it down.

Mrs. Pearl Williams reports an intruder in her home last week one day, and he helped himself to roast beef and other eatables. When she returned home she discovered what had happened. She had noticed a fellow eating on the street so she set out to find him. He made an apology for doing so, stating that he was looking for Bender Kinsey and thot he would play a joke on him. She reports that the fellow was not himself, due to excess liquor.

J. O. Winger, of North Manchester, was in town Friday a guest in the Bruce Gerdes home.

Delvin Armstrong and family of Auburn visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong, Sunday.

Scott Scholes and son, Bobbie, of Fort Wayne, spent several days here last week at the J. N. Scholes home.

Sunday guests at the W. L. Hamilton home were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Tustison, of Defiance and Cecil Wisler and wife.

The Century of Progress shows a profit of $344,029 for the two years after more than one million has been spent in demolishing the buildings. A total of 39 million people attended.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hamilton and daughter, Mrs. Cecil Wisler, were in West Unity, Ohio, Saturday visiting the Knitting Mills. Enroute home they stopped in Bryan to make a brief call at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Nye. Mr. Nye suffered a stroke of paralysis recently.

Postmasters everywhere thru out the United States will cash the interest bearing coupons of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds, according to advice received by the Farm Credit Administration of Louisville from the Post Office Department. No charge is made for this service. Individuals holding the bonds may present them in reasonable quantities at any post office and receive cash.

In Brooklyn an automobile was "kidnapped." After thieves had taken Aaron Fishman's car they sent him a note promising to return the car upon payment of $150.

In Pennsylvania a new old-age pension law will go into effect December first. The fir tsaged member of a family will receive $30 per month and each additional old person half that amount.

In the recent election in Schuyley County, Illinois, the candidates for county judge received a tie vote. Both agreed to decide the election by a flin of a half dollar. The Republican candidate, John P. Crandall, won on "tails."

Another of the unique features of the recent election was the contest for county attorney in Baggett County, Utah. Ken Olson, Democrat, defeated his father, Charles Olson, Republican.

The Townsend old age pension plan is to give each man and woman past the age of 60 a pension of $200 per month, with the understanding that it must all be spent within the month. Each of the eight or ten million people past the age of 60 would be required to quit work and make room for the unemployed. This plan would cost about 20 billion dollars per year, but it is rapidly gaining popularity.

THANKSGIVING DAY

By GEORGE ERWIN BOWEN
in Chicago Post

FOR all the gifts of treasure
That brighten memory
Make now my heart an altar,
O, Lord, where faith shall be.
A little while I fretted
When shadows hid the light,
But now I find your kindness
Was patient with my plight.

To all the loving sources
Of blessings sweet I share,
A grateful song uplifted
O'er gentle paths I bear.
For where my heart was baffled
And bitter loss I knew.
This finer faith was gathered
From tempests battled thru.

For all dear thought of mercy
I've learned from cruelty,
O, Lord, a kind apostle
To broken souls I'd be.
As to the blind a leader,
I'd teach the sight I found
When patience gave me gardens
In bleak and barren ground.

For more than life can measure . . .
Dear Lord, how shall I heap
A sweet or shining portion
While those unnourished weep?
Whenever Dawn comes smiling—
O give me grace to know
Its promise and be worthy
As with a song I go.

If LINCOLN HAD OWNED A LAMP like this

New Study Lamp is first study lamp specifically designed to safeguard eyesight

Abraham Lincoln, studying at the log fire, was handicapped by poor light. His tasks were made infinitely harder by the fatigue that comes from eye abuse. But Lincoln had no other choice. He had to use the light his times and his means provided.

If Lincoln had lived today, his struggle for advancement would have been made infinitely easier by the New Study lamp—the first lamp specifically designed to safeguard eyes as they read or study.

WHAT STUDY LAMP DOES

The New Study lamp gives a soft, well diffused and glareless light for reading with greatest eye comfort. It reduces eyestrain, fatigue and nervous muscular tension. It makes it easy to see quickly and to read quickly.

HOW STUDY LAMP WAS CREATED

The New Study lamp is not the product of any single manufacturer. It is the joint creation of lamp designers, eyesight specialists, research men, MAZDA lamp manufacturers, physicians, scientists, and others concerned with the conservation of human vision. It has the sanction of the leading lighting authorities of the world.

Specifications by: The Illuminating Engineering Society.

Certified by: The Electrical Testing Laboratories.

Endorsed for Lighting Effectiveness by: The Lighting Committee of the Edison Electric Institute, and by the National Better Light-Better Sight Bureau.

THE NEW STUDY LAMP

The New Study lamp is 23 inches high—the height prescribed by science for delivering the proper light on table or desk. Equipped with a white glass diffuser—which throws the light downward and upward. Shade is lined with pure white pigment. It uses 100-watt MAZDA lamp, or a 150-watt MAZDA Daylight lamp. See your dealer today.

The approved Study lamp bears this tag

VOL. XLIX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, DEC. 6. 1934 NUMBER 48

ASK LANDOWNER F O R PERMISSION TO HUNT, SPORTSMEN ARE TOLD

Hoosier sportsmen were urged to show every consideration for the rights of the landowner on whose ground they hunt. Asking permission to hunt is but a common courtesy and when it is granted should never be abused.

The farmer whose property is invaded by hunters who leave a trail of damaged fences, open gates and injured stock can not be expected to look favorably on his uninvited guests or to willingly cooperate with any movement to increase the wildlife on his land. Hunters who disregard the rights of the landowner are destroying their future enjoyment of this sport more surely than by the killing of game for they are destroying the source of cooperation that makes the wildlife possible.

Indiana is fortunate in having thousands of real sportsmen who appreciate the position of the landowner and the value of his cooperation but they are being penalized by the attitude of a small minority. The education of this minority group is one of the chief tasks facing the more than five hundred conservation and sportsmen's clubs which are cooperating with the Department of Conservation to improve hunting and fishing in Indiana.

BROTHERHOOD MEETING

The Wittenberg Brotherhood meeting will be held in the Church of Christ in Hamilton, Wednesday evening, Dec. 12 at 7:30. They are preparing a good program with Rev. Basil Hold, pastor of the First Church of Christ, Angola, Ind., as speaker of the evening. He will give his lecture on Africa with slides of views. The ladies of the church will serve the dinner. We are expecting a good meeting.

All men are invited.

MISS AGNES DUNN NOW IN INDIA

The following letter has just reached The News, written by Miss Agnes Dunn, well known here and in this vicinity, under date of August 31, before she left for India. Because of delays in the letter being sent to other friends, we were not able to print earlier, nevertheless it will contain much of interest due to her local acquaintance.

The letter follows:

"Because there just aren't enough hours in the day to do all that must be done before sailing I'm going to have part of this typed. The sister of one of my missionary friends is doing it for me.

"I wish I might write a long letter but guess you'll have to wait until I get to India for that.

"First I'll give you the sailing date and ship address:

A. Dunn,
Passenger, S. S. "Taiyo Maru,"
%N. Y. K. Line
605 So. Grand Ave.,
Los Angeles, California.

Arrive San Francisco, Oct. 14.
Arrive Honolulu, Oct. 21.
Arrive Yokahama, Nov. 1.
Arrive Kobe, Nov. 3.
Arrive Hongkong, Nov. 11.
Arrive Singapore, Nov. 17.
Arrive Penang, Nov. 20.
Arrive Columbo, Nov. 26.
Arrive Bombay, Nov. 29.

"Mary Gordon, R. N. from my hospital is sailing with me. "My" hospital was the Deaconess hospital in Great Falls, Montana, where she took her nurse training. It will be her first term in India. At first I thought I'd have her help me in my schools, but it has been decided that she will be a resident school nurse for a self-supporting school. You see the missionary society feels that it cannot send her (lack of funds) so she was going on faith. I had part of her salary pledged, but now I only have to get together enough for her fare, and most of it is on hand.

"Then in Los Angeles I found a splendid Dr. Freda Haffner, who is doing school health work and would just fit in our school health program out there. I think the missionary society is going to send her to us after Christmas. Wouldn't that be just splendid?

"Almost all the time up to about two weeks ago I have spoken every few days, so that even yet there are many Garden Grove friends unseen. Also there are many others in towns all around whom I'd love to visit.

"It has been a pleasure to speak although it is strenuous because I want people to know of the work, and it is nice to meet so many devoted workers in the home field. Our work out there could not go on were it not for you faithful ones at home who 'stay by the stuff' and give us the privilege of going. We do appreciate and love you for it.

"Dolls and pictures and pencils and toys, and pieces of print, etc., etc., are piling up at Ma Reyburn's house so that she thinks I'll have to charter a boat for myself and things for my little brown friends over there.

"Sept. 13th, my birthday, is our regular missionary meeting and its to be sort of a special for me, I guess. The Garden Grove folks are so good to me always, as well as many others.

"My 'Ma' Reyburn had a major operation a few days ago so I am with her in the hosptal in Long Beach. She is getting along splendidly.

"The India address will be the same as before:

Tilaunia, Rajputana,
Via Kiscangarh, India.

FREEMAN STILL HOLDS MAJORITY OF THREE

A recount of the votes cast for township trustee in Jackson township at the recent election was made Monday morning at the office of County Clerk Carl Walter and resulted in no change being reported as compared with the count made by the precinct election officials.

The returns filed by the precinct election boards gave Lewis E. Freeman, Republican candidate, 274 votes and Artie R. McNamara, Democrat, 271 votes. Mr. McNamara filed a petition for a recount, claiming the precinct officials erred. Judge Endicott thereupon named Frank Hilkey, Philip S. Carper and Christ Lamle to make the recount and they made no change in the totals.

SPORTS

The St. Joe Valley Pickles will make their first appearance at the local gym, Saturday evening, taking on the fast Fort Wayne Box Co. team, who defeated us in the first game last season.

The Pickles will have one of the fastest line-ups in northern Indiana. The line-up follows: Quance, Williams, Wade, Shultless, Collins, Voorhees, with four local ex-high school players to make the two teams.

The team and manager wish to thank Ralph Sechler for donating the classy suits that the team will don this season. The prices for each game: 5 and 15 cents. Let's fill that gym Saturday evening.

RYAN—SHEEHAN

Mr. and Mrs. William Sheehan of Monroeville, wish to announce the marriage of their daughter, Bertha, to Mr. Leonard Ryan, of New Haven. The marriage took place at the rectory of the St. Louis Catholic Church of Bascanson on Thanksgiving Day. Zella Sheehan, sister of the bride, and Lawrence Ryan, brother of the groom, were the only attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sheehan were former residents of this place and the bride attended school here.

A new Dodge truck was put into service by the Triangle Food Co. of St. Joe, Wm. Strouse, manager. It will be used to haul in the goods in bulk and after the repacking has been done, the smaller trucks are used on the routes wholesaling. The Triangle business is growing steadily.

DEKALB HAS THE CORN KING

Breaking all previous official records of corn yields in Indiana, produced on a field basis, Harold Pankop, 20-year-old corn grower of Corunna, DeKalb county, produced 182.6 bushels of corn per acre on a five acre tract of muck land. This record yield also entities young Pankop to a claim on the 1934 national corn growing championship. His yield together with all others was corrected to a basis of No. 3 corn, containing 17.5 per cent moisture.

Young Pankop, who was also a close runner-up in last year's contest, was declared winner in the five-acre corn growing contest for 1934 and will be suitably crowned as corn king at the Indiana Corn Growers' annual banquet held at Purdue during conference week in January.

Since 1930, Karl Pankop, the father, or his sons, Herman and Harold, have won first place four times, and second place once. The average yield produced by them on their five-acre plots has been 154.5 bushels per acre, a record unexcelled in Indiana if not in the entire country. These yields have all been made on muck soil. These yields are all the more remarkable considering the unusually dry weather of 1930, '31, '33 and '34, coupled with the abnormal heat of the past summer. The muck soil holds moisture exceptionally well, thus minimizing drouth damage.

The aim of the five-acre corn club is to improve the efficiency of corn growing in Indiana through the use of better practices—not more acres in corn, but more corn per acre of high quality grown at the lowest possible cost per bushel.

CLASSES TONIGHT

The Thursday evening classes at the high school building for the Tri-Township, will be held at 7:30. Last week was the first session and an additional attendance is expected this week.

SOME LOCAL BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Reasoner and daughter, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reasoner.

For Thanksgiving 6:00 o'clock dinner guests in the Wm. Hamilton home were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hollobaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wisler.

O. L. Widney, of Hicksville, died Wednesday morning of heart attack, after a continued illness. This word was received just as we were closing the forms of this issue.

A truck from South Dakota was in town Tuesday bringing to Indiana a load of government cattle. On his return he was taking apples from the Widney orchard. The driver was a brother of Ray Antrup, of Auburn. This will be another advertisement for St. Joe Vailley products.

There were twenty deaths in DeKalb county in September of this year, the monthly bulletin of the Indiana Board of Health, just issued at Indianapolis, reports now on file at the local health office. Of the number 14 were persons 65 years or more of age and two were under one year. Cancer claimed two of the lives. During the same month there were 28 births.

Saturday, December 8th, marks the close of the duck and migratory bird hunting season for Hoosier sportsmen unless they venture forth into other states when the open season is still in effect. Kentucky's open season extends until January 6 and that of Illinois until Jan. 13. In Ohio the open season corresponded to that of Indiana while the Michigan season ended in November. This was the first year that the three-day-a-week open season on migratory birds had been tried in Indiana, the 30-day season permitted by the federal government having been spread over a ten-week period with hunting authorized on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

When you're in trouble with your car, call St. Joe Filling Station. 48t1.

Mr. Donald McCann, son of Mr. and Mrs. George McCann, and Miss Effiebel Freeburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Freeburn, of Fort Wayne, were married at Auburn on Wednesday afternoon. They will make their home for the present with Donald's grandmother, Mrs. Frank Sebert.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Graman and son Bernard, Mrs. Violet Copp and two daughters, Vernell and Joan of New Haven spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cochran. Afternoon callers were the son Stanley and daughter Martha of West Unity, O, and Wm. Holtzberg of Butler and evening callers were Harry Hursh, Glen Wineland and Marsh Andress and wives.

Appointment of Miss Virginia Ginther, as teacher of English and social science was announced Saturday by J. W. Fleming, of Auburn, county supervisor of emergency education. Miss Ginther taught her first class in English at McIntosh high school in Auburn Monday evening from 7 to 10. The corps of teachers supervised by Mr. Fleming now contains ten instructors.

Accoring to unofficial returns up to November 17, the Republican party on November 6 polled 13,533,975 votes. That was 45.3% of the total vote cast and 85.8% of the Republican vote cast for President in 1932. The Democratic vote was only 71.3% of the Roosevelt of 1932. The Democratic vote was 6,536,000 less than two years ago, while the Republican vote was only 2,238,000 less.

Donald Musser, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Musser, of north of town, who has been a student in the state school for deaf at Indianapolis, was brought home Friday by his parents and remained with them until Sunday. When a small child Donald became ill with scarlet fever, and was left deaf. When 7 years of age, thru the efforts of Judge W. P. Enicott, he was admitted to this school, and here he will receive a complete grade and high school education.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wineland had for Thanksgiving dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Freeburn and sons, Richard Glen, Jr. and Charles, of Fort Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. Derwood Ridgway, son Kenneth and daughter, Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wineland and son, Walter Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Baker and sons, Bobby and Jerry, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dorsey and baby, Jane, Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCann and Miss Mary Stewart, all of St. Joe, and Bobb Rugman, of Auburn.

TWO AGED RESIDENTS DIE HERE IN WEEK

SECHLER

Another life has gone from among us, and another voice was stilled, when Susanna Sechler, passed from this life on November 30, 1934, at the age of 79 years and 17 days. She was the last surviving member of a family of twelve children who were born to Levi and Mary Barbara Sechler.

She was born and reared on the old homestead in Concord Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, and lived practically all of her life on or near this old home.

She was a devout christian from her youth up and many years ago united with the Methodist Protestant Church in St. Joe and remained an active member to the time of her death.

She had a kindly word for everyone and was always ready to lend a helping hand to any one in need of her services.

When her health failed and she could no longer live alone in her own home, she went to live with a well loved niece, Mrs. Grace Dilley at whose home she quietly passed away to join her father, mother, sisters and brothers in a happy reunion where pain and sorrow are known no more.

In her last illness she was tenderly cared for by her nieces and nephews of whom there are nineteen remaining, together with three sisters-inlaw and one brother-in-law and a host of friends who will mourn the loss of so kind an earthly friend as was Aunt Susan.

The funeral services were held from the M. P. Church, Sunday at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Wm. Koehnlein, with burial at Newville. Mayola Kinsey & Son had charge of the burial.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their sympathy and acts of kindness shown during the illness and death of "Aunt Susan."

Nieces and Nephews.

SMITH

Slena Jane Darling-Smith was born to William and Elizabeth Darling, November 30, 1854 at Perrysville, O., and departed this life December 3, 1934, aged 80 years and 3 days. She was the second of six children.

She was united in marriage to John D. Smith on November 27, 1876, who preceded her in death, and to this union two children were born: Anna, who has also preceded her in death, and Harry at home. Three granddaughters, Ruth Van Zile of Selma, California, Frances Van Zile and Betty Smith, and one grandson, Richard Smith.

She was a member of the Fairview Church until 1918 when her membership was transferred to the Concord Church.

The funeral was held from the Concord Church, Thursday morning, Rev. Wm. Koehnlein, pastor, officiating assisted by Sam Hara, of Detroit, Mich., with burial in Auburn mosleum.

MORTONS SUGAR-CURING SMOKE SALT
TRIPLE ACTION
1—SALT. 2—SUGAR-CURE. 3—SMOKE.

This one product does the entire job while the meat is in the cure. It salts, sugar-cures and puts the appetizing flavor of wood smoke into your hams and bacon. That is what we mean when we say "TRIPLE-ACTION CURE."

Morton's SMOKE-SALT is the blending together into one convenient product of the highest grade meat salt, a marvelously balanced sugar-cure, and refined, condensed wood-smoke, so that the whole job is done while the meat is in the cure. This TRIPLE-ACTION CURE is the modern method used by modern farmers from coast to coast, because it is so much easier, quicker and better. Besides it adds a richer, finer flavor to the meat and improves its keeping quality.

Be sure to get a box of Morton's Sausage Seasoning. You will like it not only in sausage, but also in soups, meat loaf and dressing. It gives a wonderful flavor.

EGYPT'S ATTRACTIONS

The tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen is now visited by nearly all Mediterranean cruisers, as are the temple of Karnak and the other great relics of ancient Egypt. The huge columns and still mighty ruins of the temple are subtly pleasing to feminists. One of Egypt's strong queens, Hatshepsut, played a leading part in directing the building of this temple.

When her brother succeeded her he jealously had all her inscriptions chiseled away and covered her great obelisks with a wall of masonry. With the centuries the masonry has crumbled away and Hatshepsut's obelisk was disclosed, unchanged despite the vindictiveness of kings.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER GOSSIPS WITH HONKER

PETER RABBIT could hardly wait for the coming of the Black Shadows, and just as soon as they had crept out over the Green Meadows he started for the Big River. He knew just where to go. He knew that Honker and his friends would remain out in the middle of the Big River until the Black Shadows had made it quite safe for them to swim in. He reached the bank of the Big River just as sweet Mistress Moon was beginning to throw her silvery light over the Great World. At this point there was a sandy bar in the Big River and right where this sandy bar started out from the bank, Peter squatted.

"Hello, Peter," Said He. "It Is Good to Have An Old Friend Greet Me."

It seemed to him that he had sat there half the night, but really it was only a short time, before he heard a low signal out in the Black Shadows which covered the middle of the Big River. It was the voice of Honker. Then Peter saw little silvery lines moving on the water, and presently a dozen great shapes appeared in the moonlight. Slowly they drew near, Honker in the lead. They were a picture of perfect caution.

When they reached the sandy bar they remained quiet for some time, looking and listening. Then, sure that all was safe, Honker gave a low signal, and at once a low, contented gabbling began as the birds relaxed their watchfulness and came out on the sandy bar.

"Oh, Honker!" cried Peter. "I'm so glad you're back here safe and sound."

Honker gave a little start but, instantly recognizing Peter, came close to him. As he stood there in the moonlight he was truly handsome. His throat and a large patch on each side of his head were white. The remainder of his head and his long slim neck were black. His short tail was also black. His back, wings, breast, and sides were a soft grayish brown. He was white around the base of his tail, and he also wore a white collar.

"Hello, Peter!" said he. "It is good to have an old friend greet me. I certainly am glad to be back safe and sound, for the hunters with terrible guns have been at almost every one of our resting places, and it is hard work to get enough to eat."

"Have you come far?" asked Peter.

"Very far, Peter, very far," replied Honker. "And we still have far to go."

"Will winter soon be here?" Peter asked eagerly.

"It is only a little way behind us," replied Honker. "We shall have to hurry lest it catch us, and that would never do."

Mother Shipton

Mother Shipton was a so-called prophetess who was first heard of in a tract of 1641, in which she is said to have lived in the reign of Henry VIII, and to have foretold the death of Wolsey, Cromwell, Lord Percy, etc. In 1677 the pamphleteering publisher, Richard Head, brought out a new edition, in which she is credited with having predicted steam engines, the telegraph and other modern inventions, as well as the end of the world in 1881.

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I hear five policemen had a criminal cornered at the railroad station. Yet he escaped. How did he do it?

Yours truly,
D. TECTIVE.

Answer: He probably jumped on a scale and got a "weigh."

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am engaged to a young lady and we wanted to get married next July. My employer is an old grouch, and I'm afraid to ask him to give me a week off ro I can get married. What shall I do?

Truly yours,
BENNY DICK.

Answer: Go to your boss and tell him you want a week off, but tell him you want that week away from work so you can get married; then he won't think you want it just for a vacation or to have some fun.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Why is it that traveling salesmen never want to take an upper berth when they're traveling on a train.

Truly yours,
L. M. A. SALTSELLER.

Answer: Very simple. If they did that, they would have to get up before they went to bed.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I read the lives of five of the richest men in the world, and, if what I read is true, they all started life as barefooted boys. Do you believe that?

Yours truly,
IKE ANTBELIEVIT.

Answer: Sure, it's true. In fact no one is born with shoes on.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My husband works as a night watchman, so I am home alone and without protection. Last Wednesday a tramp came to my door and to get rid of him I gave him a whole pie I had baked myself. Friday night he showed up again. What do you make of that?

Truly yours,
IMA FRADE.

Answer: Very simple. He probably did not eat the pie.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I want to write a letter to an aunt of mine; she is despondent because she is very deaf. What shall I do?

Truly yours,
SOL. OOTION.

Answer: Write your words in great big letters.

Do YOU Know—

That the violet is the emblem of faithfulness. Back in the days when Napoleon was banished to the Island of Elba, his followers said that he would return when the violets bloomed again and they wore rings and watch-ribbons of violet as a secret symbol of recognition to each other.

Mother's Cook Book

COOL WEATHER IDEAS

NOW that chill winds blow and children's parties must be given, especially on birthdays, a candy pull will be a delightful thing to give if there is enough room for the children to move about and enjoy it. Here is one of the good candies that may be pulled:

Velvet Molasses Candy.

Put one cupful of molasses, three cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of boiling water and three tablespoonfuls of vinegar in a saucepan over the heat. As soon as the boiling point is reached, add one-half teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Boil until when tried in cold water the mixture will become brittle. Stir constantly during the last of the cooking. When nearly done, add one-half cupful of melted butter and one-fourth teaspoonful of soda, pour out, and when cold, pull. Flavor to taste.

Party Cheese Salad.

Take two packages of cream cheese, roll into small balls, making twelve. Toast—or tint any color desired. Arrange in nests of lettuce and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Apple Sauce Pudding.

Season one cupful of apple sauce with cinnamon or nutmeg, divide it among six dessert glasses. Prepare a junket tablet with a pint of lukewarm milk, three tablespoonfuls of sugar (dissolve the tablet in a tablespoonful of water), flavoring the junket mixture with a few drops of almond. Pour over the apple sauce and let stand to become firm in a warm room. Chill and serve.

Buttercups.

Those of us who have crunched the creamy buttercup will never forget their deliciousness. Shall we make a few at home?

Boil two cupfuls of molasses with one cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of boiling water, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-third of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, not stirring until the last few minutes of the cooking. When a firm ball is made when a drop is placed in cold water pour out, cool and pull. Make a long roll of fondant, cover with buttercup mixture, pull in a long strip and cut into small pieces with shears.

PATTY'S CURLS

By ANNE CAMPBELL

WE CANNOT bear to cut her curls,
And every week or two
The loveliest of little girls
Is photographed anew.
"So we'll remember," we all say,
"The curls she used to wear."
And then we set another day
To cut our Patty's hair.

But Patty's ringlets still adorn
Her pretty little head,
And still we plan to have them shorn,
Postponing it instead.
And I am sure the coming years
Can joyously be faced,
As long as little Pat appears
With ringlets to her waist!

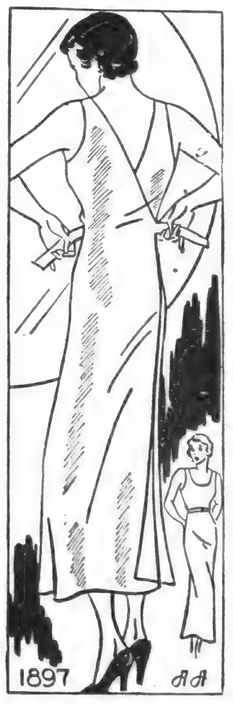
Here's Slip That Fits the Figure

PATTERN 1897



You will like this slip when you make it, when you wear it—and when you tub and iron it. What more could you ask of any bit of lingerie? It is a wrap-around model that crosses in the back and is both shadow-proof and adjustable. Our figures do change a bit from time to time, and with all this talk of "streamline silhouettes" and what not, it is a nice thing to know that one's slip will fit exactly right, come what may. It takes next to no time to make, as you will find to your joy, and irons flat like the proverbial handkerchief. Lovely in wash satin, crepe or unshrinkable rayon.

Pattern 1897 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3¼ yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins and stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

Give the Little Folks Hand Crochet

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MAYBE you will and maybe you won't have time to crochet one or the other of the cunning garments here pictured before Christmas, but where there is a will to do and dare why not "get busy" and find a way? Really, can you think of anything to hang on the Christmas tree that will bring greater joy to the heart of a child than either of these cunning hand-crochet frocks or the gay coatee with it's jaunty matching beret?

Anyway what if you do not see your way clear to finish before the holidays, a gift as adorable as this will be hailed with delight any day on the calender. Being done in sturdy mercerized crochet cotton, apparel like this is an all-year-round proposition so far as timely wearableness is concerned. Either little dress will be charming to wear to parties this winter, made in a dark or a pastel color, and being washable they will emerge from their tubbing all ready to wear when spring and summer comes.

To "brighten the corner where you are" is no task for a little girl dressed for a party in the hand-crochet dress of bright yellow pearl cotton (centered in the group). The skirt is a series of crochet-lace ruffles done in shell mesh stitch, matching the round collar and slightly puff sleeves. Each ruffle, and about the neck and sleeves, is tipped with white. There is no wear-out to a dress of this mercerized cotton.

The simple little slip of a frock on the lovable child seated is easier to make and takes less time to complete than the one just described. Any little girl would be proud of this Sunday-go-to-meeting dress of mercerized crochet cotton. There will never be any trouble in persuading a young lady to hurry and get dressed if she can tumble into this pretty little frock. Make it in any color you choose, for mercerized crochet cotton comes in dozens and dozens of delectable tones and tints from dark to light.

Perhaps you think a gift of jacket-sweater with matching beret would be more apropos for the youngster you have in mind. The two-piece ensemble in the picture is easily made of knitting and crochet cotton. It is a question whether it is more effective in navy, brown or wine-red. The embroidery which adds so vastly to its attractiveness is done in a lazy-daisy stitch—the easiest, quickest decorative stitch known in needle artcraft. Don't forget the cluster of lazy-daisies which tops the crown of the beret.

There now! We have told you about crochet for little folks but have you seen the stunning triangle scarfs crocheted or knitted of mercerized cotton in the color you like best, which make such acceptable gifts for grown-ups? They are bordered on two sides with hand-tied fringe just as are the silk fabric or velvet ones which are making such a hit in neckwear displays this year.

Superior Guy

By ARCHEY C. NEW

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

GUSSIE's eyes roved over the dining room, appraising her fellow diners discontentedly. She hardly heard the harangue of her dinner partner.

"I'm getting fed up, see?" he snarled at her. "Y' can't even pick 'em any more."

"No?" she sneered, listlessly.

"No!" he sneered back. "Look at th' last twice. A shoe salesman without a dime, and then that tough cattle man who sez 'Go ahead and shoot.'"

"Can you beat that?" she exclaimed, nudging him excitedly. His gaze followed hers to a clean-cut young man, with a calm, detached air, then entering the room.

The new arrival coolly ignored the hat-check girl's arresting greeting, and left the waiter captain standing open-mouthed, as he deliberately wended his way among the tables and sat down at one near the orchestra.

"Oh, boy!" Gussie giggled, appreciatively. "Wish you had that kid's guts!"

An obsequious waiter was bending over the young man's table. His lips moved, but he straightened up with a hurt expression. The guest, his undivided attention on the menu-card, read off several items incisively, then turned his attention to a letter.

Gussie laughed aloud. "That's a bird I'd love ta get. Class, all over! Used to good things; servants don't scare him any."

"Aw, catfish!" jeered Joe. "Cut th' moonin', and get down t' bizness. Yeh couldn't even intrust a swell like him with a fan dance."

"Stick around, Joe," she advised, "we're going badger huntin' tonight."

Timing her exit with the stranger's, she followed him later into the lobby. Pausing before the locked door of the public stenographer's office, he glanced irritably at a small card on the door. "Back at 8:30. Leave name and room number on this pad." In a flash, Gussie was at his side, and with a possessive grip on the door-knob, turned to face him brightly.

"Had to come back for something," she lied, glibly. "Did you want me?"

Ah, the stenographer! He stared at her fixedly. "Are you permitted to come to guests' rooms? I have some letters . . ."

"Oh, yes," she assured him, with a quick nod. A brilliant thought flashed on her, and she reached for the pad. "Leave your name and room number, I—I have to check it."

"Oh, boy!" she gloated to Joe a minute later, gleefully exhibiting a stenographer's pad and pencil. "Now, we're all set. Gimme twenty minutes' start!"

"Are you nuts?" hissed Joe. "You're no—"

"Dumb cluck, you mean?" She smiled at him derisively. "Correct!"

The door to 808 was ajar, but Gussie rapped, demurely. The guest, John Burns, crossing the room with some collars, saw her in the doorway.

"Come in!" he invited, politely. "You are very prompt."

He waved her to a low easy chair. "Sit down here. You'll find it very comfortable." Leisurely, he drew up a larger arm-chair, between her and the door, facing her. Taking a sheaf of papers from his pocket, he said, matter-of-factly, "Take a letter!"

He paid little attention to her as he droned ahead. Better so. The meaningless curlicues on her pad might have given him quite a shock. As he finished, and turned his attention to a file at his elbow, Gussie rose, stretched herself sensuously, and with pad in hand, perched on the arm of his chair. He glanced up with some surprise as one slender, silk-clad leg dangled uncomfortably close to him, and with elaborate carelessness, her arm stole around the back of his chair.

"So-o?" came a snarling voice at his back, "that's the way you double-cross me, hey?" Joe, with gun leveled, entered the room, closing the door carefully behind him. "Well, you big mutt, talk up. Whatcha doin' in here, with my wife?"

Burns was fumbling with his file, and Gussie, leaning closer, threw both arms around him convulsively, meanwhile eyeing the newcomer with convincing terror. Quite slowly and deliberately, and showing pained surprise, he disentangled himself from her embrace, wriggled out of his chair, and his gaze met that of the "outraged husband."

"What are you doing in here?" he demanded, ominously. "Get out!"

"Well, I'll be d—d!" screeched Joe, hysterically, and flourishing his gun threateningly. "It's gonna cost you plenty, see? And I ain't goin' until—"

Burns, with one rapid leap, brought his open hand to the rat's face with a resounding slap, sending him reeling. Following up the slap, he grabbed the gun, thrust it into his own pocket, and, then, grasping Joe firmly by the scruff of his neck, dragged him to the door, and hurled him into the hall. Dusting his hands contemptuously, he closed the door and turned to face the now truly terrified girl.

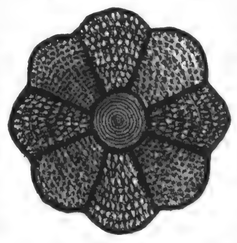
"Sorry you had to witness that," he told her, apologetically. "But I certainly owe you a debt of gratitude." She stared at him. "Sure was game of you, throwing your arms around me to protect me from that hold-up man. But, then, I wasn't afraid of him."

"And—and you're not sore at me?" gasped Gussie, eyeing him half in admiration, half in stark disbelief. "You—you're not gonna turn me in?" She trembled, violently.

"How much do I owe you?" he asked, seemingly ignoring her questions good-naturedly. "Here," he fumbled with her writing pad, "write it down here. You see," he smiled wistfully, "I'm totally deaf."

"DRESDEN PLATE" CROCHETED RUG

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



In Colonial days patchwork quilts and rag rugs were very popular. During the past 3 or 4 years patchwork quilts have been the leading item of interest for home art needleworkers. In 1933, when the crocheted rag rug in quilt design appeared, women all over the country took great interest in this new and beautiful way of making rag rugs. The old rugs were either round or oval, crocheted row after row until desired size was obtained. Changing of colors was the only variation. In quilt design rugs many beautiful combinations are possible and the work is really interesting.

Illustration above shows the "Dresden Plate" rug, named after the Dresden Plate or Friendship quilt, a pattern that every woman knows. This rug is another popular pattern, measures 34 inches and can be made from 40 oz. of Grandmother Clark's rag rug strips or 32 oz. of "Linkraft," the new woven material for rag rugs.

Send 15c to our Rug Department and get our book No. 24 showing 20 different crocheted rugs in quilt design in colors with illustrations.

COLOR BLIND NOT ALIKE IN THEIR IDEAS OF LIGHT

At the Indiana State Medical association's exhibit at the Indiana state fair, free examinations for color blindness were offered. Tests were made of 4,442 men, women and children—2,079 males and 2,363 females. Of the males, 156, or 7.5 per cent, were color blind to some degree, and only ten of the females, or .423 per cent.

Of 166 persons who had some impairment, 61 were completely red-green blind, 43 incompletely red-green blind, 25 blind to the lighter shades of green, 22 incompletely green blind, eight completely green blind and incompletely red blind; two completely red blind and two completely red blind and incompletely green blind. Of the ten women, four were completely red-green blind, four incompletely green blind and two incompletely red-green blind. Eight were blonds and two brunettes. Only two knew they were color blind. Three were sisters that had a brother who was incompletely green blind.

Only 66 of the 166 knew that they could not tell the difference between red and green. Some who lived on farms said that they could not tell ripe tomatoes or strawberries from green ones and could not see red apples in orchards. All the color blind who were old enough to drive automobiles did so. A report published in the Journal of the Indiana State Medical association says: "Only 22 of the 166 confessed any trouble with the stop lights, although a large number stated that they could not tell the difference until they got much closer to the lights than was necessary for other members of the family. Still others stated that they had a little trouble with traffic lights at twilight or when they came upon them before they changed." Two stated that they could not tell the difference at all, and drove their cars either by the "stop" and "go" lettering on the signs or by observing the other traffic.—Indianapolis News.

Appetite gone?

BIAS-CUT CLOTHES POPULAR IN PARIS

There is much more give and take in our new clothes judging from the numbers of things brought out on the bias.

Sleeves are set into shoulders biasly, or very often sleeves and yoke, coming down in a design back and front, appear on short jackets as well as three-quarter and full-length coats, and on dresses themselves.

Another 1934 winter notion is the use of solid color in two and three-piece suits with the splash of color coming in a short scarf about one yard long and six to ten inches wide. This is knotted rather close at the throat and the ends are sometimes tucked in or else they are tucked through tabs that button or fasten on the back of the lapels of the jacket or coat.

Long Slender Tunics in Latest Afternoon Models

Elaborate afternoon models this season show long, slender tunics, almost following in style the three-quarter or seven-eighth coat. These tunics are always in contrasting material and tone. They are noted in faconne rayon crepe, lame, and rayon, ottoman and faille, to accompany dull velvet costumes. Marcel Rochas shows elaborate tunics in lame, chenille material, tufted fabrics, quilted crepe and in beaded or spangled fabrics, to accompany his smart ensembles combining a mixture of wool and slit cellulose film.

Dresses, Tight to Knees, Now Develop Into Train

Lucien Lelong shows evening dresses extremely close-fitted in front and at back down to the knees, where, through a clever cut, it develops into a long graceful train. Molyneux obtains train effects by adding at the back of his evening dresses a sort of second hem, which is sewn under the edge of the long skirt and allowed to fall on the ground. Some of these trains in hem effect are entirely covered with plastic sequins, forming a contrasting appearance with the dull rayon satins or crepe of the dress.

SWISH OF TAFFETA

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Again the swish of taffeta resounds in fashion's realm. Especially during the romantic evening hours does the murmuring of its rustle make music in the air. What's more "they say" that taffeta will be a very important fabric both in winter resort and early spring modes. The dance frock pictured is of deep blue celanese taffeta. A huge bow of self-taffeta at the neck and a pronounced flare of fullness from the knee carry this lovely and youthful gown to a point of high distinction.

Snappy Buttons

This is a year of snappy buttons as seen in new collections. Some dressmakers show no other fastening or buttoning than large plastic clips.

Household Hints
(Home Economics Dept.)
Removing Stains

Coffee: Soak in boiling water.
Egg: Soak in cold water.
Grease: Warm water and soap —gasoline for very heavy stains.
Ink: Dilute oxalic acid followed immediately by a thorough rinsing.
Medicine: Soak in cold water. If it does not respond, soak in alcohol.
Iron Rust: Soak in lemon juice, sprinkle generously with salt and let stand in the sun.
Blood: Soak in tepid water. Soaking in cold water will remove blood.
Paint: Gasoline or turpentine.
Fruit: Soak in boiling water.
Tea: Soak in cold water.
Chocolate or Cocoa: Soak in cold water and soap.
Mildew: For a fresh stain wash with soap and water and dry in sun. An older stain will sometimes respond to a soaking in javelle water followed by a thorough rinsing.
Soot: When soot is spilled on a carpet or rug cover it with dry salt. It can then be swept away without making a smear.

To make egg whites beat quickly add a pinch of salt to them.

A pinch of soda added to wild meats will remove the strong odor and wild taste.

A little baking powder added to mashed potatoes will make them fluffy.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Calvin Mansfield, Jean Longbrake, Robert Dunn, Lucille Bice, Paul Crothers, Robert Burns, and Betty Shockley are absent from school because of illness.

Third and Fourth Grades

Thirteen were absent from the third and fourth grades due to cold and measles.

The Thanksgiving dinner last week was very much enjoyed by all.

First and Second Grades

This week we are going to make a Christmas picture for our calendar.

The following are absent because of the measles: Wayne Ayers, Athalene Hensley, Johnie Peppler, Roland Shockley, Imogene Allen, Betty Bice, Richard Francis, and Billie Mansfield.

An interesting program for the Parent Teachers meeting was held at the school house Tuesday evening followed by pot luck supper.

ST. JOE PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The Junior Class reports net receipts of $12.42 for their special Thanksgiving luncheon served on last Wednesday noon. The class and sponsor wish to thank all who assisted in this project.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week Rev. Moore of Newville Circuit brought his evangelistic helper, Rev. W. N. Sherrill, to our school auditorium and conducted a chapel exercise.

Concord Township teachers will attend the county teachers institute at Auburn on Saturday of this week. Mrs. Simanton, Mr. Noffsinger, and Mr. Gerdes will speak to the high school section on "Study and Teaching of Mathematics, Biology, and Commerce." Mr. Munn is chairman of this section and Prin. Paschen, Spencerville is the secretary.

The last few days have been "picture days." The seniors received proofs of their class pictures and group and individual pictures taken at the local school by E. A. Marx of South Bend are also receiving their share of attention.

Red Cross Quota Reached

On last Wednesday afternoon local teachers filed their report for the 1934 Red Cross Annual Roll Call with the DeKalb County Red Cross Chapter. The quota which had been set for Concord Township and St. Joe was $35.00. The teachers are pleased to report that they exceeded that mark.

Red Cross nurses recently tested the eyesight of all pupils enrolled in our schools. They advised twenty-four pupils from the upper four grades to consult an optician.

The Class of 1930 through one of its members, Virginia Lee Ginther, is turning over to the local school a small balance left in its treasury to be used for library books. The school appreciates the gifts coming from the classes of 1928 and 1930.

Basketball

In our last two evenings of basketball we have had an even break with the opposing teams. Friday evening, November 23 our girls team lost to the Hamilton girls by a small score; the local boys team defeated Hamilton boys by a score of 24 to 18. On November 27th our second team boys won over the Spencerville seconds by a score of 26 to 16 but Spencerville's first team quickly avenged that defeat by a score of 28 to 15 over our first boys team. Gombert of Fort Wayne was the referee for the Hamilton games. Coar of Auburn was the official for the Spencerville games.

LaOtto Plays Here Friday Evening

The last home games before the holiday vacation will be played on Friday evening of this week. Teams from LaOtto High School will furnish the opposition. Admission for the games this week will be ten and fifteen cents.

November School Attendance

First and second grades: pupils enrolled, 39; number neither absent nor tardy, 25; average daily atendance, 38.6; per cent attendtendance, 96.71.

Third and fourth grades: enrollment, 40; number neither absent nor tardy, 30; average daily attendance, 38.6; per cent attendance, 99.03.

New Library Books

The following named books were placed on the shelves of the local school library as a gift of the class of '28: Mrs. Wiggs of theCabbage Patch, Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, Tom Sawyer, Hans Brinker, Hoosier Scholoboy, Nelly's Silver Mine, Black Arrow, Biography of A Grizzly, and Story of A Bad Boy. These books bear the individual names of the class of 1928. They are now on the Junior High School required reading list.

Third and Fourth Grades

Mrs. Kees was a visitor in our room on Wednesday afternoon before Thanksgiving. The same afternoon we wrote letters and drew pictures about Thanksgiving and sent them to a friend of James Kees, who had the misfortune to break his leg.

We are having a campaign against "ain't" and "hain't." We buried them several days ago, but once in a while one of us forgets and has to bury the word over.

Those who made 100 in spelling last week were Walter Fetters, Dale Keeler, Donald Kinsey, Roscoe Moore, Betty Nicholls, Francer Reidenbach, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude, Gladys Stewart, Marilyn Zonker and William Smith.

TOWNSEND $200 A MONTH REVOLVING PENSION BILL

The Old Age Revolving Pension, a National Plan for Recovery and Permanent Prosperity, is described below:

The bill as written is:

FIRST: A bill obligating the government of the United States to pay every citizen of said government whose record is free of criminality and who has attained the age of sixty years, a monthly pension of $200 until the end of their life, upon the sole condition that they agree, under oath, to spend the entire amount of the pension within the confines of the United States during the current month in which it is received.

SECOND: A bill creating a Nation-wide Federal Retail Sales Tax calculated at a rate sufficiently high to produce the revenue necessary to meet the requirements of Bill No. 1.

It is obvious that the passage of these acts and the beginning of their operation will discharge the Nation's obligations to a class of her citizens deserving this award for past services and at the same time place immediate buying power in the hands of the general public, thus stimulating every avenue of commerce and trade. A quick sure cure for this depression and a sure prevention of recurring ones.

The Townsend plan demands that the National Government request all citizens of sixty years and over, who can do so, to retire from salaried positions and accept the important task of circulating $200 per month for the remainder of their lives. This money is to be spent within the confines of the United States for commodities or for hired help. The money so spent (estimated at between one and one half billion monthly) will immediately stimulate every type of industry to full activity. It will go into every nook and corner of the land. It will restore absolute confidence in the permanence of a restored prosperity.

The plan asserts that since wealth is now so easily and plentifully produced by ingenious machines it becomes imperative that a more just and equitable distribution of wealth shall be had in order that a market may be maintained for the goods so produced, so that all the people may be usefully employed.

To distribute the money liberally throughout the nation by retirement of the old folks, upon the rest of us the task of supplying them with that money entails. This must be done by a system which will permit no one to evade his just share in the cost of that task. Hence, since the pensions roll must be met by the government monthly, it becomes necessary for the retail establishments of the nation to supply the government with the money for the pensions through the medium of a sales tax which all of us shall be compelled to pay as we make our daily purchases. None can escape this tax, since we must buy or die. None will be over-taxed or under-taxed. We will pay in accordance with our ability to spend. The retail establishments will pay in full at the end of every month the amount needed by the government, through a slight advance in the prices of commodities, which the purchasing public will be compelled to pay and will be glad to pay, because everyone who desires to work will have steady employment.

Then it will not be necessary to add a single person to the already overflowing list of officials to collect and disperse the vast amount of retail tax. The same can be collected through regular taxing channels and paid out through the banking facilities of the nation, likewise present public officers such as the group of the city council, township trustees, or similar bodies, could approve applications of pensioners, while the banks would be in a position to know if the pension fund was disposed of properly and lawfully.

Through the retire of the aged from the job-seeking field with plenty of money and ability to hire help for themselves, a balance may be obtained at all times between the number of workers needed in industry and those needed in the equally important task of spending money for the government. The burden of charity and the restrictions of poverty may both be removed by this simple plan, and an ever-advancing prosperity assured our country.

It is estimated that a ten per cent advance in the cost of commodities and the tremendously increased buying power of the public through this plan will not only pay the entire cost of the pensions roll, but will, in addition, pay off in a decade or two the entire public debt.

COUNTY AGENT MYERS MAKES ANNUAL REPORT

T. E. Myers, County Agricultural Agent, has completed his annual report for submission to the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, to Purdue University and to the DeKalb County Board of Education.

This report lists 309 farm visits, 5781 office calls, 3375 telephone calls, 192 days spent in office, 114 days spent in field, 2 days vacation taken, 91 news articles published, 955 individual letters written, 184 different circular letters written with a total of 23,577 letters, 1239 bulletins distributed and traveled 6414 miles in line of duty.

In the Government Reduction Program which includes reduction in wheat acreage and corn and hogs, the County Agent spent 172½ days, held 86 meetings, published 42 news articles, sent 36 different circular letters, made 65 farm visits and had 2958 office calls. The total paid to farmers in benefit payments to December 1, was $144,000.00.

Other important projects carried were: 5 acre Corn Contest in which 19 members checked their yields and one member, Harold Pankop became State Champion and probably National Champion with a yield of 122.6 bushels per acre. Nine other members produced over 100 bushels of corn per acre. This project was sponsored by the Auburn Chamber of Commerce.

In the 400 bushel Potato Project, sixteen members checked their yields and eleven medals were won. The N. V. Potash Co. sponsored this club. In the 1000 Bushel Onion Club eleven members checked yields and ten won medals. In this club a member, Howard Emme, won State Championship with a yield of 931 bushels of onions per acre. This project was sponsored by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

In the Farm Management Project twenty-three members summarized their records. The highest rate earned on investment was 22.6%, the lowest was 2.8%, the average was 5.2%. In the Government Crop Loan 43 applications were received and 30 loans made with a total of $1720.00. The Production Credit Association, located at Albion, made 68 loans in this county, totalling $21,788.00.

There are several other projects being carried a s dairy, sheep, swine, rabbit, poultry, home management, etc.

In the 4-H Club work, there were 217 boys and 335 girls enrolled, of whom 174 boys and 304 girls completed, carrying a total of 647 projects. 509 of these members were in school and 43 out. There was 86.6% completion. There were 353 projects carried for the first year and 284 members in club work for the first year, thirty-nine o f these members being ten years of age.

The Girls 4-H Club work was sponsored by the Home Bureau. Thirteen townships had club work. An adult leader was appointed in each township and one or more Junior Leaders. Mrs. Frances Clark was the County Leader and to her much credit is given for the success of Girls Club work in the county.

The Boys 4-H Club work was carried on by the Vocational Teachers and all credit for the success of Boys Club work is given to C. G. Hornaday, Auburn, Paul Bateman, Garrett, A. J. Smith, Waterloo and Joe Clark, Ashley.

The County Council, by making a county appropriation has helped to expand 4-H Club work and make it possible to reach every boy and girl in the county. The Home Bureau and Farm Bureau have also done their share in stimulating club work in the county.

HOME BUREAU

Members of the Ladies Home Bureau will please take notice that the December meeting is to be held the 2nd Friday instead of the 3rd Friday, in order to avoid the usual last minute rush before Christmas. The meeting which is the Home Bureau annual Christmas party will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Mary Krise. Ladies are requested to bring their own table service.

ASKING $15,000 IN MALPRACTICE SUIT

Geo. B. Hart Charges That Dr. B. O. Shook, of Spencerville, Failed to Set Arm Properly

A complaint charging malpractice and demanding $15,000 damages has been filed in the DeKalb circuit ciurt by Geo. B. Hart against Dr. B. O. Shook of Spencerville.

The plaintiff says that he suffered the fracture of both bones in his forearm Dec. 6, 1932, and was treated by Dr. Shook, but that the bones did not heal and unite. On or about Jan. 1, 1933, the plaintiff states that Dr. Shook again attempted to set the bones, but that his arm became stiff and deformed, preventing its proper functioning and causing constant and excruciating pain.

It is claimed by the plaintiff that he spent $1,000 in having his arm treated at the Lutheran hospital in Fort Wayne and the University hospital at Grand Rapids, Mich., but that it remains permanently injured and deformed. He says that the defendant did not use proper care and skill.—Evening Star.

ELECTION COSTS GREATLY REDUCED

A marked reduction in election costs this year is disclosed by figures compiled in the office of County Auditor Frank E. Lyon.

The investment per vote was only 52 cents, as compared with 70 cents in 1932 and 94 cents in 1930. This is accounted for by the lower pay for members of precinct election boards and other personal services, by decreased cost of supplies and by the elimination of six precincts in the county. In an order made last spring, the county commissioners consolidated the fifty-one precincts into forty-five.

The claims allowed for the general election this fall totalled $3,-100. To this must be added $3,-200, the expense of the primary last spring, making a total of $6,-300, as compared with $8,865 in 1932. The number of votes cast this fall was approximately 12,-000.

Each precinct inspector was allowed $8, judges and clerks each $5 and sheriffs $3. A maximum of 40 cents was allowed for meals and $8 for rental of polling places.

HEALTH EXAMINATIONS

Just now when the annual sale of Christmas Seals through the state of Indiana as well as the nation is being organized, it is well to call attention again of Hoosiers everywhere to the fact that the tuberculosis associations of the state have for the past several years emphasized the necessity for periodic health examinations. This one phase of education in right living has done much to focus the public mind on better health. Many other phases of the public health are being studied constantly and brought to the attention of citizens by the tuberculosis associations of the country. All of this work is financed by the Christmas Seal Sale. The death rate from tuberculosis has been more than cut in half throughout the nation in the last twenty years. Is this not complete justification for the amount being contributed by our citizens at this holiday season for the little Christmas Seals which finance the entire anti-tuberculosis program?

Be ready to purchase some seals at least when the solicitor calls on you. Or you can purchase them at the business places. Use them on your letters and Christmas mail from now on the balance of the year.

If you only want one Christmas Seal, you can get it at News office.

A million women released... through ELECTRIC COOKERY

Buy an Electric Range and make this Christmas last throughout the years.

READ me a Christmas story, Mother!

The pleas of children for more of mother's companionship will not be denied if she cooks electrically. A million women have solved the problem of greater leisure through electric cookery.

With old-fashioned cooking methods, the conscientious mother often had to neglect everything excepting the necessary housework duties. She spent endless hours in the kitchen preparing meals for her family. Now with electric cookery, she may be assured of the most healthful and palatable food for growing bodies, yet have leisure for herself and for her family.

What better Christmas gift than this? An Electric Range brings countless blessings to the whole family.

HAPPINESS

Throughout the ages, people have sought to be happy. People of today are still in that illusive quest for happiness which has attracted so many. Some have found it, but others never will find it for they do not know the secret of happiness.

What is happiness? We might say, happiness is a state of pleasurable content with one's condition in life. Selfishness, greediness, and material things can not make a person happy. Happiness does not apply to the superficial conditions of life, but to something deeper, something more permanent. Superficial joy or gaiety may come and go, but happiness once attained, remains with us forever unless we deliberately deprive ourselves of its benefits. Happiness comes through service for others. Only as we help others, and love our neighbors as ourselves, can we hope to be happy.

A great deal of unhappiness is due to a habit of dreaming regretfully about the past. We dream of marvelous opportunities we missed. We wonder why we did this, or didn't do that. If the past can help us today, let us remember it, but if we can not use the past as a tool with which to shape the present, let us forget it, for its only power is to take happiness away.

True happiness concerns our innermost beings—our souls. With it, not only is one's own life benefited but the lives of those with whom one comes in contact, are also helped.

"There is no duty we so underrate as the duty of being happy. By being happy we sow benefits upon the world which remain unknown even to ourselves."

"If you have sunshine in your heart,
Don't keep it—pass it round;
To those who need it give a part,
Don't keep it—pass it round!
It wasn't made alone for you
It's yours of course, but still it's true
It's meant for other people, too
Don't keep it—pass it round!"

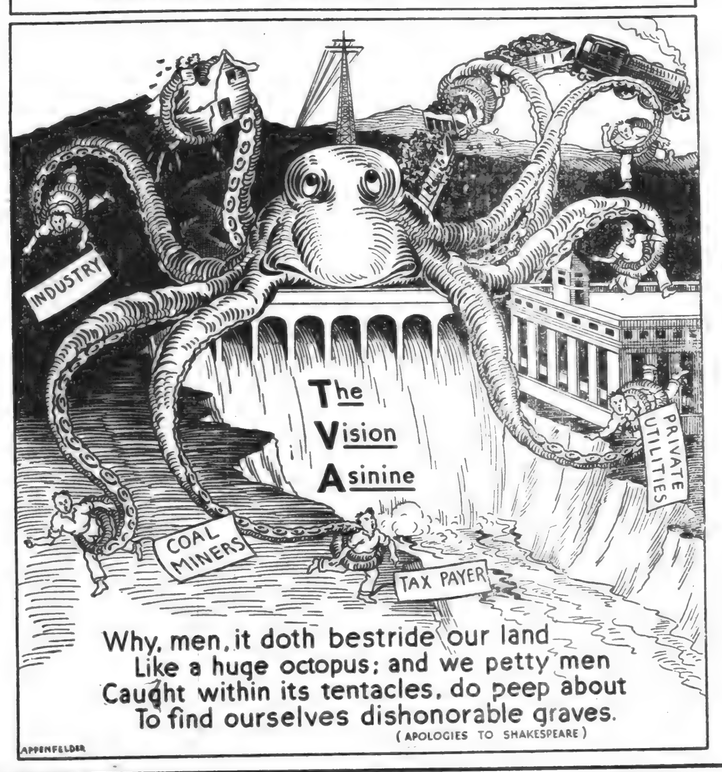
DEBUNKING FEDERAL HYDRO POWER



Why, men, it doth bestride our land
Like a huge octopus; and we petty men
Caught within its tentacles, do peep about
To find ourselves dishonorable graves.
(APOLOGIES TO SHAKESPEARE)

The average sentence served in his country by criminals given a life sentence for murder but released on parole is only about nine years.

"There are 40,000,000 men under arms in Europe today," says Major-General Smedley D. Butler, retired United States Marine officer, "and they are not there for parade purposes."

"Somebody did a golden deed;
Somebody proved a friend in need;
Somebody sang a beautiful song;
Somebody smiled the whole day long;
Somebody said 'I'm glad to give;'
Somebody thought 'Tis sweet to live;'
Somebody fought a valiant fight;
Was that 'somebody' you?"

In 1935 the signers of the Hog-Corn Reduction Contracts will agree to keep corn acreage from 10 to 30 per cent under that of 1932-33. Also to keep the hog production as much as 10 per cent under that of 1932-33. In return the government agrees to pay the reducing farmer 35 cents per bushel on all corn land not planted to corn. To permit the "rented" acres to be planted to anything but corn. To allow the signer to share in the corn loan program for the fall of 1935. The government also agrees to pay $15.00 per head for each hog represented by the 10 per cent adjustment. Half of the benefits are to be paid at the time the contract has been accepted by the AAA and the remainder, less the expense, is to be paid on January 1, 1935. The farmer may receive about the same for his corn reduction but only two-fifths as much for his hog reduction as he did this year. The processing taxes on corn and hogs will remain the same.

"If each man's secret unguessed care
Were written on his brow,
How many would our pity share
Who have our envy now!
And if the promptings of each heart
No artifice concealed,
How many trusting friends would part
At what they saw revealed!"

RING OUT, WILD BELLS

RING out, wild bells, to the wild sky,
The dying cloud, the frosty light;
The year is dying in the night;
Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.

Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring, happy bells, across the snow;
The year is going, let him go;
Ring out the false, ring in the true.

Ring out the grief that saps the mind
For those that here we see no more;
Ring out the feud of rich and poor,
Ring in redress to all mankind.

Ring out a slowly dying cause,
And ancient forms of party strife;
Ring in nobler modes of life,
With sweeter manners, purer laws.

Ring out false pride in place and blood,
The civic slander and the spite;
Ring in the love of truth and right,
Ring in the common love of good.

Ring out old shapes of foul disease,
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold;
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace.

Ring in the valiant man and free
The larger heart, the kindlier hand;
Ring out the darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be.
—LORD TENNYSON.

SPORTING NEWS

The St. Joe Valley Pickles put their first game in the victory brine, by defeating the unbeaten Concordia A C's by a score of 28–22 last Saturday evening.

Dill Pickle Williams, Sweet Pickle Quance, Salt Pickle Troyinger, Sour Pickle Wade and Mixed (Up) Pickle Collins, blended Swell in their team work and the crowd "relished" their activities.

Concordia came near catching up (catsup) in one stage of the game but the Pickles put on more mustard and saved the day.

The Pickles take on the fast Indian Oil Co. team this week, Friday night at the local gym. We wish to thank you fans for the dandy turn out last Saturday eve, and hope we may merit a continuance of same.

High School Notes

ST. JOE

The girls of the Home Economics department and their instructor, Miss Roula, are planning a party for this evening—six to eight o'clock.

Due to a gift from the Class of 1930 a copy of "Anne of Green Gables" was placed on the library shelves on Monday of this week.

Semester examinations will be held on Wednesday of next week in most of the elementary grades and seventh and eighth years. The upper four grades will have their examinations on the next two days—Thursday and Friday. Indiana New Type Tests will be used in grades up to and including the eighth grade. Objective or high school achievement tests will be used in grades nine to twelve.

Harold Liken, senior, is the first of our pupils to get the "measles." For several weeks measles have greatly interrupted school work in other sections of DeKalb and in adjoining counties.

Lewis Walter and Otto Kaellner have been on the sick list for several days.

Basketball

LaOtto H. S. sent two strong teams to St. Joe on last Friday evening and captured both games. Our school team was defeated by a score of 17 to 24. The first team game was far more interesting. The LaOtto team scored the first basket but the boys soon took the lead and held it till the last minute of play when LaOtto scored a field goal which gave them a lead of 19 to 18.

Ashley Teams on Play Here Saturday Night

The local girls and boys teams will play the Ashley girls and boys on the local floor on Saturday evening of this week. These games were scheduled on last Saturday at the request of Ashley. The Ashley teams have won most of the games they have played this year and will offer very strong opposition. Attend these games and boost our local girls and boys teams. Admission will be ten and fifteen cents.

OTTO L. WIDNEY TAKEN BY DEATH

Otto L. Widney, 61, one of the founders of The Hart-Hood-Widney Company, merchantile firm, and chorister for 20 years of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School, of Hicksville, died at his home on West Smith Street at 9 A. M. Wednesday. He had been in ill health for four years with heart trouble and had been bedfast for ten days.

Mr. Widney was a native of St. Joe and a graduate of St. Joe high school. He attended Adrian college, Adrian, Mich., and the University of Indiana. He served for several years as principal of the St. Joe high school before going to Hicksville in 1898 and affiliated himself with A. E. Hart in the formation of the Hart-Hood-Widney Co. He remained a member of that firm for 27 years.

Following his retirement from the merchantile firm, Mr. Widney went on the road as a traveling salesman and continued at that work for five years before being forced to retire because of ill health.

He was a active member of the Hicksville Masonic lodge.

Funeral services were held Friday at 2 P. M. from the home with Dr. D. F. Helms, of Lima, former pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, officiating. He was assisted by Rev. Ernest L. Carter, present pastor. Burial was made in Forest Home cemetery.

He is susvived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Murphy, Dubuque, Iowa, and Mrs. Ruth Mohr, Hicksville, Ohio.

The will of the late Susan Sechler of St. Joe, was admitted to probate in the DeKalb circuit court Saturday. It was executed July 18, 1932, with H. C. Springer and Charles W. Campbell as witnesses.

Miss Sechler devised $100 to the Methodist Protestant Church of St. Joe, and made bequests of personal household articles and other personal property to Jennie Moffet, Frank Baltz, Ralph Sechler, Wm. Sechler, Edith Cole, Leon Sechler, John Sechler, Cora Curie, Nora Blue, Agnes Monroe, Harlow Sechler, Grace Dilley, Roscoe Sechler, Jessie Sommer, Avis Staman, Grace Curie, Argyl Sechler, Frances Cooper, Flossie Mavis, Merritt Sechler.

The residue of the estate was devised to the following nieces and nephews in equal share: Frances Cooper, Nora Blue, William, Harlow, Roscoe, Argyl, Merritt, Leon, John and Ralph Sechler, Jennie Moffet, Jessie Sommer, Frank Baltz, Cora Curie, Flossie Mavis, Edith Cole, Grace Dilley, Avis Staman and Agnes Monroe. Grace Dilley was nominated in the will for executrix.

On April 10, 1933, Miss Sechler executed a codicil, with Fred B. and Lora E. Leighty as witnesses, in which she stipulated that personal property not listed in the will should be divided by the executrix among the nieces and nephews as she in her opinion may deem best.

Indiana Celebrates 118th Anniversary Of Sovereign Statehood Status

December 11th Recalls Stirring Days of Early Frontier Settlements

By WILLIAM ATHERTON DuPUY

On December 11th Indiana will be 118 years old—a towering figure among the states which make up the Union. It is an anniversary which will tempt the reader, I hope, to join me in a quick and vivid survey of the events which combined to make the wilderness of 1784 the commonwealth of 1934. In her history, we find a hint of the difficulties which other territories met—and are still meeting—in their arduous climb toward statehood. We discover that the march toward political maturity is through a maze of conflicting forces and divergent ideals.

The French have not been great colonizers, but they have won world wide distinction as daring explorers. The first Europeans to visit Indiana in the 17th century were the Jesuit missionaries. La Salle explored the Mississippi River in 1669, and French trading posts, primarily interested in the fur traffic, were well established throughout what is now Indiana when the restless Anglo-Saxons from the Atlantic Coast began one of the greatest migrations of modern history.

Of those gay French voyageurs, traders and destitute grandees of Versailles, who made the woods ring with their ribalt songs, today nothing remains. Their last trace vanished with the dying echo. The voiceless solitude swallowed them up.

French First Settlers

About 1720 a French post was established at Ouiatenon (about five miles southwest of the present city of Lafayette). The military post of Vincennes was founded about 1731 by Francois Margane. Vincennes was occupied by several French families and became the first and only white settlement in Indiana until the War of Independence. After the fall of Quebec, the British took possession of the other French forts, and so it happened that Vincennes was in British hands when George Rogers Clark made his memorable excursion that is the joint historical heritage of both Indiana and Illinois.

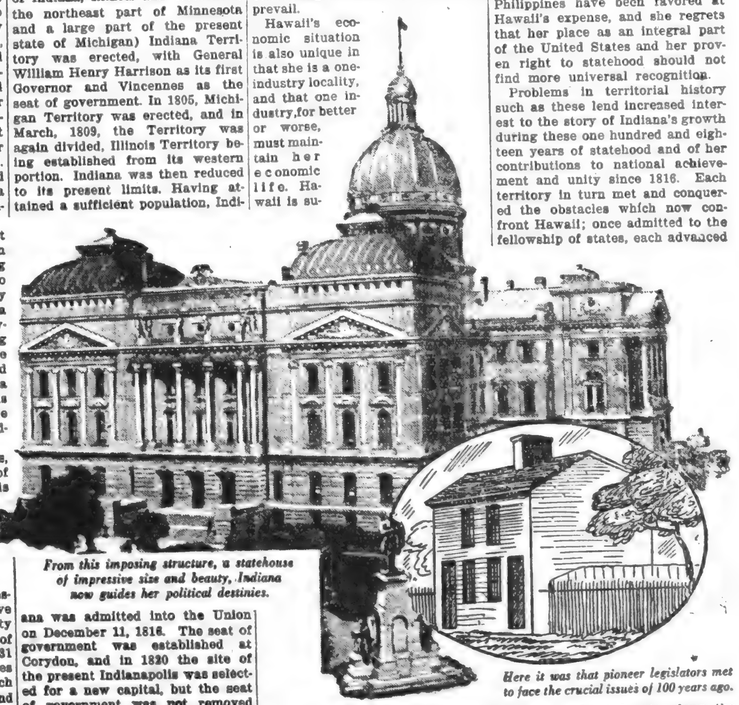
The figure of Clark is one of the most stately and pathetic in American history. A man of brilliance, courage and resourcefulness, possessing a striking resemblance in appearance to George Washington but lacking the balance that transformed Washington's genius to the granite of integrity.

In December, 1777, Clark obtained the consent of Governor Patrick Henry of Virginia to his scheme of conquest. In the dead of winter with a little band of 175 rifles, he struck out from Louisville, to the British fort at Kaskasia. He captured the fort. Fort Vincennes, some distance away, surrendered to Clark's emissaries. The British Governor Hamilton, from Detroit, launched a counter attack against Vincennes, and the inhabitants in their terror of the "Hair Buyer", surrendered without resistance. Hamilton now waited for settled weather, to recapture Kaskasia and Cahokia in the same way.

Clark Captures Vincennes

He reckoned without the dauntless courage of Clark. Collecting what was left of his Virginia forces, Clark set out for Vincennes across the swollen rivers and flooded bottom lands of an Indiana winter. Those who have read Churchill's "The Crossing" will always remember the harrowing ordeals of that "blue-nose winter", and the figure of the little drummer boy, riding on the shoulders of a stalwart frontiersman. Surprising the fort, Clark besieged Hamilton and took him and his forces prisoners. This was the zenith of Clark's career, and it is well to draw the curtain here.

In 1800, the Northwest Territory was divided and from its western part (including the present states of Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, the northeast part of Minnesota and a large part of the present state of Michigan) Indiana Territory was erected, with General William Henry Harrison as its first Governor and Vincennes as the seat of government. In 1805, Michigan Territory was erected, and in March, 1809, the Territory was again divided, Illinois Territory being established from its western portion. Indiana was then reduced to its present limits. Having attained a sufficient population, Indiana was admitted into the Union on December 11, 1816. The seat of government was established at Corydon, and in 1820 the site of the present Indianapolis was selected for a new capital, but the seat of government was not removed there until 1825.



From this imposing structure, a statehouse of impressive size and beauty, Indiana now guides her political destinies.

Here it was that pioneer legislators met to face the crucial issues of 100 years ago.

Indiana Twentieth State

Thus it was that Indiana became the 20th star in the American flag, on December 11th, 1816. As state after state followed her into the Union, they studied her struggle up the ladder of political maturity; they compared their own status to hers prior to 1816. They found strength in the precedents which she established.

One after another they came flocking into the Union, with Arizona, the last thus far, contributing her star in 1912. Today there is only one candidate for statehood, one political entity which is a logical aspirant for a position of equality among sister commonwealths.

Out in the Pacific—within airplane flight of the California coastline, the Territory of Hawaii wants the honor of adding the forty-ninth star to our national flag. The history of Hawaii is so unusual, her development so interesting, and her economic status so significant that her claim to statehood status is well worth a quick survey.

Superficially, Hawaii seems entirely different from mainland states. But underneath this superficial difference is a basic similarity which is all the more impressive because it has evolved in a period of only one hundred and fourteen years.

Coming of Missionaries

In 1820 the brig "Thaddeus" carried a group of New England missionaries to Hawaii, landing them there after a stormy one hundred fifty seven day voyage around the Horn. They brought with them New England ideals of religion and a staunch Americanism which flourished and expanded in the new soil. For eighty years these missionaries and their descendants were loyal subjects of the Hawaiian monarchy. Only when that monarchy became hopelessly out of step with the democratic life of the people did they aid in its overthrow, establishing a Republic, only to an orderly evolution which will bring her to a position of equality within the Union.

The situation is particularly acute at this time, because the quotas set up under the Jones-Costigan Act are crippling in their effect on the Hawaiian sugar industry, and therefore are a grave economic menace to the whole Territory. Under these quotas Hawaii will have left on her hands, this year and next year alone, 400,000,000 pounds of sugar which she will be unable to ship to the mainland. She believes that Cuba and the Philippines have been favored at Hawaii's expense, and she regrets that her place as an integral part of the United States and her proven right to statehood should not find more universal recognition.

Problems in territorial history such as these lend increased interest to the story of Indiana's growth during these one hundred and eighteen years of statehood and of her contributions to national achievement and unity since 1816. Each territory in turn met and conquered the obstacles which now confront Hawaii; once admitted to the fellowship of states, each advanced at an accelerated rate along the paths of progress.

Hawaii's economic situation is also unique in that she is a one-industry locality, and that one industry, for better or worse, must maintain her economic life. Hawaii is sugar, and sugar dollars provide 70 per cent of the money spent in the maintenance of her 380,000 people. In no other part of the United States is there a situation anywhere like this. The greatest mainland industries are relatively small in proportion to the whole. But after years of most careful experimentation and trial, Hawaii has discovered that she is ideally situated to produce sugar efficiently, and in consequence the raising and milling of sugar cane dwarfs all her other activities.

Sugar Vastly Important

Anything that affects the production and sale of this crop is of pocket-book importance to every citizen of the Territory. The hazard of insect pests is constantly threatening the growing cane like an invisible sword of Damocles. Individual planters were helpless in meeting this menace, so they grouped themselves into a voluntary league, the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association, and by cooperative action have conquered every threat to the growing cane that has invaded the Islands.

Hawaii pays more taxes to the Federal Government than any one of sixteen states; its population is larger than that of Delaware, Nevada, Vermont or Wyoming. It is eager to prove that politically, economically and socially, it meets every requirement of statehood. Its labor is better paid and better cared for than agricultural labor on the mainland, the percentage of unemployment is far less than elsewhere in the United States, and there is for the worker an unusually high degree of personal security—a new deal ideal which was in operation in Hawaii long before the New Deal was thought of.

Hawaii Asks Equality

There is on the Islands today a spirit very much like that in the original colonies when "taxation without representation" was the slogan which brought on the Revolutionary War. Hawaii, however, looks forward to no revolution, but

Indiana Shows Patriotism

Even as the thirteen original states shed their blood in creating the nation, so Indiana joined them and the other new states in preserving it during the Civil War. From first to last, Indiana provided more than her share of the officers and men for the Union armies, and in addition a home guard of 50,000 men was organized to protect the State against invasion. The efficiency of this civil and military organization was due in a large measure to the superb leadership of Governor Oliver P. Morton. The Hoosier state, with 246,000 voters, provided more than 259,000 troops.

Following the Civil War, Indiana embarked upon a career of steady development, but until the latter part of the 19th century, when the industrial boom began, the state was predominantly agricultural. Today, the farms are still the backbone of its economic life. Of the 23,000,000 acres making up the state, 19,600,000 are included in the farm area.

With the revival of normal industrial life, Indiana ore, steel products, hardwood from Evansville, products from mills or 5,000 manufacturing establishments, are leaving the state by canals, the Wabash, the Lake, or over the great trunk lines which link this center of population of the United States with the farthest community.

Future is Bright

The future of Indiana on this present birthday is brighter than at any time since 1929. The steady improvement already begun will find Indiana ready to assume the leadership in commerce and industry which is the heritage of pioneers who saw that this was a good land worth fighting for, or dying for. Indiana's birthday recalls these things and suggests that for what we have received we be duly thankful and resolve that the birthday of this state celebrated by our grandchildren shall be a worthy improvement on the advantages enjoyed today.

Down through the ages has come to us the beautiful story of the Wise Men who sought the Star almost two thousand years ago. You know the story of how they set out on the long, hard journey across the desert sands. You know how they stuck to their task—come what might, come night or storm, come beast or bandit, they kept on until at last they reached their goal.

Whether you think it is just a beautiful story or whether it holds a deeper significance for you, there's something timely in it for all of us at this holiday season.

The events of the past few years have caused us to realize as individuals and as groups, that we are not the sole reason for the existence of the universe. Today there is a new spirit in the land—a greater consideration for the other fellow and his problems.

And so, with this new feeling of understanding and cooperation uniting us, the old, old Story of the Star takes on a truer and finer meaning as we wish each other a "MERRY CHRISTMAS and HAPPY NEW YEAR."

FIRST TUBEUCULOSIS PATIENT IN COTTAGE IS STILL LIVING

The little red cottage on the Christmas Seal has a nostalgic appeal for Mrs. Carolyn P. Lindsay, of Albany, the first tuberculosis patient to emerge from that Saranac lake retreat cured of the malady.

Mrs. Lindsay, a well-known temperance advocate, said that she and her sister were the first patients quartered by Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau in the red cottage, a picture of which was selected to adorn the Christmas Seal this year.

NEW POSTOFFICE TO BE READY BY JAN. 15

The new federal building in Auburn will be ready for occupancy about January 15th. Postmaster C. O. Krise has received instructions that the furniture will soon be shipped and when it is installed the major part of the work will have been completed. A few minor details remain to be done, which it is thought will not delay going into the new building.

Mr. Krise received a letter from the postoffice department at Washington stating that the applications for custodian of the new building have been examined.

Mr. Krise's time as postmaster will expire on January 22nd. Three democrats are being mentioned for the appointment, Stanley P. Nelson, Fred Knott and H. Van Showers. Mr. Nelson is understood to have received the support of a majority of the township precinct committeemen. The appointment will be made by Congressman J. I. Farley.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

This week ends the first semester of the school year. Semester examinations were held in grades up to and including the eighth on Wednesday and Thursday. The upper four grades had examinations on Thursday and Friday.

The seniors received their class pictures on Wednesday morning. Their work this year was done by the Crone Studio of Fort Wayne.

Both junior and senior classes are expecting to receive class jewelry this week. Rings are promised them before Christmas.

Earl Kinsey and Lorrain Likens have been on the sick list this week.

The December meeting of the P. T. A. was held Monday evening of this week. Introductory numbers on the program were provided by the first and second grades, Miss Violet May, teacher. Mrs. Wm. Koehnlein played a piano solo. The address of the evening was made by Prof. J. O. Winger, of Manchester College. The P. T. A, president, Mr. H. K. Schondelmayer, promises something special again for the January meeting. Watch this column for further information.

Local girls and boys basketball teams play at Hamilton on Friday evening of this week. The next home games with another high school will occur on Friday evening, January 11th. Pleasant Lake plays here on that date.

Third and Fourth Grades

We have been very busy reviewing for our examination.

On Friday afternoon the pupils from the first and second and fifth and sixth grade rooms will join us for our Christmas program. Each room will contribute part of the program. We have had word from our friend, Santa Claus, and he promises to be here for the program. We are inviting our parents and friends.

Our spelling honor roll for the fourth grade includes Walter Fetters, Hubert Bleeks, Lewis Freeburn, Patricia Maxwell, Betty Nicholls, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude, Irene Sechler, and Marilyn Zonker. The third grade honor roll includes Betty Rudolph, Beverly Wade and Patricia Carpenter.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Frank Curie, Jr. is spending several days at home, entertaining the measles.

The following pupils were on the spelling honor roll last week: Mary Close, DeWayne Cook, James Hatch, Betty Keesler, Jack Goodwin, Leila Hurni, Myra Keesler, Ruth Keesler, Howard Rickett and Sylvia Washler.

YOUNG BUSINESS MAN DIES AT BUTLER

The death of Harold L. Bracy of the Bracy-West Ford Sales and one of the prominent young business men of Butler occurred at 1:50 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the age of 37 years. Mr. Bracy had been sick since last Monday and his condition was considered serious. He was driving alone to Edgerton, Ohio, last Monday when he was suddenly seized with an attack. He lost control of his car which caromed off a tree and struck a building. He apparently was not hurt and little damage was done to the car. He was able to drive home. The attending physician said that death was caused from a cerebral hemorrhage due to hypertention or high blood pressure.

SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

By Rev. Alan Pressley Wilson

(©, 1934, Western Newspaper Union.)

AT CHRISTMAS be merry, and withal,
And feast thy poor neighbors, the great with the small.

So wrote the poet Tusser many years ago, but the suggestion is just as pertinent today as it was then. If anything, we need to be reminded of our duty to our fellowman more today than our fathers did—more today, indeed, than ever before. This is true because the need for brotherhood is even more patent than at any other period of the history of the world.

We live in an age when we think solely of ourselves and our immediate families and we should have brought to our attention the fact that we owe a debt to our neighbor and that that debt must be paid. The story is told of a rich man who prayed—

Oh, Lord! bless me and my wife,
My son, John, and his wife;
Us four
And no more!

We blush for shame that there could be found one who is so narrow, yet I am assured that such people exist today. There are those who, when they have satisfied the needs of their own, assume a self-satisfied air and say that they have done their whole duty. Approach such a person and remind him of the need of a friend or a neighbor and he will ask the time-worn question: "Am I my brother's keeper? Haven't I enough to do to look after my own family?" The teachings of Jesus Christ answer the first question in the affirmative (and the latter in the negative) with even more emphasis than God answered Cain when he originated the selfish inquiry. Jesus taught that the Decalogue is summed up in the greater commandment—"Thou shalt love they neighbor as thyself," and His definition of "neighbor" is any one who needs our help. Territorial or other limitations do not apply when the case of one in need is before us.

There is no geographical limitation when we are extending the hand of assistance to one who needs our help; wherever there is found one or more whom we can (and should) assist there neighborliness must begin.

The Spirit of Christmas.

A minister once approached one of his parishioners with the request for a contribution for the purpose of doing Christian work abroad. The particular field he had in mind was China. The man replied that he was willing to help his neighbors but did not think he was called upon to help those as far away as China.

"Whom do you consider your neighbor?" asked the minister. "The man whose farm adjoins me," was the prompt reply. "How far down into the earth does your land extend?" was the next question and the farmer just as promptly answered: "To the center!" "Very well," said the minister quickly, "There is a man down in China whose land joins yours at the center of the earth; he is therefore your neighbor and needs your help." This was a new thought to the slow-going church member. He learned his lesson and we need to learn the same. Only as we do so will we be able to broaden our lives into the fullness of the life of Jesus the Christ.

The application of the teaching of Jesus to business and society would produce a perpetual Christmas season; a time of peace and joy and happiness lasting throughout the year.

The giving of cheap presents or money, however, does not constitute Christmas; as well expect a bouquet of flowers (however lovely) to constitute summer! The Christmas spirit, rather than the Christmas show, honors Him whose birth, no less than His life, was the greatest Christmas gift the world has ever received. The Christmas spirit brings us into closer touch with Him whose very life was an exemplification of the precept: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

As we celebrate the anniversary of the birth of Jesus let not the going down of the sun mark the decline of the Christmas spirit but, as the days come and go, and we enter the new year; let us each one reach out the loving had to the sick, the unfortunate and the outcast, remembering that Jesus the Christ said: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of one of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto Me!"

ST. JOE VALLEY PICKLES WIN

The St. Joe Valley Pickle Basket Ball team won their second start of the season last Friday night by turning back the Indian Oil Co. team of Fort Wayne by the score of 55 to 17.

Williams, the high powered attack of locals led the scoring with his usual amount of scoring by tallying 20 points. Scott was next best with 11 points. Scott being a new man in the local lineup certainly proved his ability in sinking long shots as 10 of his 11 points were from somewhere around the center of the floor. Vorries our 6 foot 3 inch center saw action in only part of the game but proved his worth scoring 4 points.

Wade showed up best on the defense holding his man scoreless the whole game. Trovinger, Collins, Walter, and Quance each came through with several baskets and all played a good defensive game.

The St. Joe Merchants won the preliminary from the Oilers second team by a 21 to 11 score.

The Pickles have won their first two games in easy fashion and now they are ready to get down to business and give the fans something to talk about. Starting this week we are going to schedule nothing but the best and well known teams of Northern Indiana and Western Ohio.

Saturday night of this week we are bringing the Fort Wayne Y. M. C. A. all stars, rated one of the fastest Semi Pro Teams in Northern Indiana and the fans can rest assured that they will see plenty of high class basket ball in this game. The St. Joe Merchants will tangle with another fast team in the preliminary at 7:30.

WORDS

To be careful with fire is a good advice.

But to be careful with words is ten times doubly so.

Boys flying kites, can haul in their winged birds.

But you can not do that when you are flying words.

Thoughts unexpressed ofttimes fall back dead.

But God himself can not forgive them when they are once said.

Ten Commandments to Success

I Hard Work (is the best investment a man can make.)

II Study Hard (knowledge enables a man to work more effectively.)

III Have Initiative (ruts often deepen into graves.)

IV Love your Work.

V Be Exact. (Slip shod methods bring slip shod results.)

VI Have the spirit of conquest. (Thus you can successfully battle and overcome difficulties.)

VII Cultivate Personality. (Personality is to the man what perfume is to the flower.)

VIII Help and share with others. (The real test of business, greatness lies in giving opportunity to others.)

IX Be Democratic. (Unless you can feel right toward your fellow men, you can not be a successful leader.)

X In all things do your best. (The man who has done his best, has done everything; and the man who has done less, has done nothing.)

VOL. XLIX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, DEC. 27, 1934 NUMBER 52

CENTRAL OFFICE IN AUBURN PLANNED

Liquidation of Ashley, St. Joe and Hudson Banks to be Consolidated Jan. 1

Frank M. Brandon, special representative of the Department of Financial Institutions for the State of Indiana, announced last Thursday that the liquidations of the St. Joe Valley bank, St. Joe, Ashley State bank, Ashley, and the Farmers State bank, Hudson, will be consolidated as of January 1, 1935, in an office in Auburn and quarters have been leased of the Auburn Hotel company, with an entrance on Ninth street.

This move is in harmony with the desires of the department to further reduce the expenses of the liquidations by consolidating the office work at one place, thereby eliminating present office expenses in three different towns and a large part of the travel expenses, now necessary on the part of special representative.

Since the enactment of the Indiana Financial Institutions act of 1933, all state banks now being liquidated are controlled exclusively by the Department of Financial Instutions and this makes for considerable economy under the old method of bank receivers and places the whole responsibility upon the state. Special representatives, bank examiners and employes, exclusive of attorneys and stenographers are now required to pass a civil service test as to their fitness and by the consolidation of several liquidations under one head, the former receivership expenses has been reduced about 75%.

Mr. Brandon will continue an office for the Knisely Bros. & Co. liquidation at Butler, where he is assisted by Ora T. Knisely. However, this liquidation will probably later be transferred to the Auburn office. Capt. W. D. Stump is the department attorney for the liquidation of the Ashley, Hudson and St. Joe banks and Capt. H. C. Springer is the department attorney for the Knisely bank. The Butler, Ashley and St. Joe banks are liquidating under the jurisdiction of the DeKalb circuit court and the Hudson bank under the jurisdiction of the Steuben circuit court.

SANTA CLAUS GETS ST. JOE BOY'S LETTER

A letter printed in The News last week addressed to Santa Claus, and written by Calvin Hull, brought a cheerful reply Saturday morning, when Santa sent a card to Calvin being mailed at his Indiana headquarters, Santaclaus, Ind., stating, of course, that his message was received in good time and Calvin expected his requests to be fulfilled, and Santa made good on Tuesday, Christmas Day.

The acknowledgment brought a thrill to Calvin and he rushed his card to The News office so that we could enjoy the thrill of a card direct from Santa.

CULTURE CLUB ENJOYS YULETIDE

Twenty-one members and two guests, Mrs. Gayle Rugman, of Auburn, and Mrs. Jennie Andress attended the Christmas party of the Culture Club last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Neva Hursh. A beautiful Christmas tree and colorful yuletide decorations were used throughout the rooms. After a short business meeting, various games, and contests were enjoyed, and prizes awarded to Mrs. Anne Sechler, Mrs. Floy Smith and Mrs. Winifred Hart.

Mrs. Santa Claus, who is helping this year, was present and each received a gift. Later a pot luck lunch was served at a long table in the dining room, which was centered with a small Christmas tree, candle lighted and prettily appointed in motifs suggestive of the Christmas season. They were then seated at the small tables which were attractively appointed in keeping with the Christmas season and were centered with bud vases of flowers, the club colors, purple and gold. Boxes of candy marked the place of each one.

GAME CLUB PLANS ANIMAL PEST HUNT

At a recent meeting of the Fish and Game Club, the pest hunt was scheduled for next week and closing on Saturday night with a fox hunt. A membership drive will end the week with a supper following. No sides were chosen this year.

A quarter makes you a member for the year.

DAVID HOGG HERE SUNDAY

At the Methodist Sunday School Sunday morning, David Hogg, of Fort Wayne, will bring the morning talk, reviewing the quarter's lessons. The public is invited to hear him, and all members of the school urged to be in their classes.

NO CHANGE IN DEADLINE FOR AUTOMOBILE LICENSES

There will be no extensions of the period to obtain 1935 automobile licenses and December 31 will be the "deadline," Frank Finney, head of the state automobile license department, has announced. "Persons driving with 1934 plates will be arrested after the first of the year, he stated.

ALUMNI ATTENTION

The St. Joe High School Alumni members are requested to meet with Miss Eloise Bowman, Saturday evening at 7 o'clock.

R. H. C.

Twenty-four members and their guests attended the Christmas party of the Rural Housewife Club last Tuesday, Dec. 18 at the home of Leona Mason. Colorful yuletide decorations were used throughout the rooms and at the noon hour a bountiful pot luck and roast chicken dinner was served, Mrs. Mason being assisted by Mrs. Minnie Gee and Mrs. Edna Jenkins.

The club meeting was called to order by the president, Mildred Curie, all singing Jingle Bells. Prayer by Minnie Gee, roll call response Christmas; business, reports, followed by Christmas program in charge of Inez Hadsell and Minnie Gee. Song, Silent Night; contest, Christmas game going to see Santa, some decided not to go along, preferred staying at home, eh? Reading composed and given by Minnie Gee, entitled "Why We Turned Down St. Nick" was very much enjoyed. The Christmas gifts were given out and there were gifts for all. All returned to their homes thanking Mrs. Mason for a most enjoyable day. Club meets Jan. 2 with Emily Hallabaugh.

The road will be straightened and the dump will disappear thus making the approach to the burial grounds more pleasant.

J. C. Hull and wife and F. B. Leighty and wife attended the Quance family Christmas dinner which was held this year at the Wm. Quance home in Auburn. Mr. and Mrs. Arta Parrish, of Benton Harbor, Mich., Wayne Quance and Chas. Quance and family, of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Vina Quance and Fred Quance and wife were also guests.

Local Briefs

Master Calvin Hull is on the sick list.

Mrs. W. S. Sible and son were Thursday guests at Churubusco.

Paul Martin has been called back to work at the Auburn Auto.

After December 31, checking accounts will be free of federal tax.

Hamilton ministers have passed a resolution asking that all business houses in that town be closed on Sundays.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Johnson and two children, of Waterloo, took Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Loftus and family.

For those friends you failed to remember with a Christmas card, send them a New Year greeting. A nice selection at News office.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Turnbull, of Dayton, Ohio, arrived Saturday and were guests of their two sons and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Koch, over Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gee, of Hicksville spent Wednesday night in the Foster Gee home, and Mrs. Gee assisted them in moving on Thursday.

W. S. Sible is about his home after being laid up for several weeks with injuries received while shredding corn at Floyd Weikel's home. Mr. Sible was hit on the head.

Darrel Carpenter, residing on the Hallett farm, west of Butler, has purchased the Reynolds farm, just outside the city limits, east of Butler, and expects to occupy the same in the near future.

E. W. Johnson was in town Friday after being laid up for several weeks with rheumatism. Mrs. Johnson has been on the sick list also having suffered an attack of gall stones a week ago.

R. Earl Peters' name has been added to the rapidly growing list of Kentucky "colonels" he having received his honorary commission from Gov. Ruby Laffoon, of Kentucky, as a Christmas gift.

A raid on slot machines will be made by the state police and you may not know when they will arrive. County sheriffs and prosecutors have been notified that the state will cooperate with them if they so desire.

Sarah Jane Randall, administratrix of the Wm. H. Randall estate, Friday sued John and Lula Varner in the DeKalb circuit court on a note for $72.25 executed Sept. 8, 1932. The demand is for $115. C. E. McClintock is the plaintiff's attorney.

A bag of home made candy was presented The News Saturday by Harry Kees, but of course Mrs. Kees was responsible for its making. Thirteen different kinds were made by Mrs. Kees for her holiday treats to her family and friends. We fully appreciate being among their group of friends and for this "sweet" remembrance. Our verdict is that Mrs. Kees knows how to make candy.

Christmas Trees

By MARJORIE HAYES in Boston Herald

NEARLY every one has a Christmas tree nowadays, but if you had been a child in America a hundred years ago the chances are that you might never have seen one. The custom was universal in England many years before it was very common here, except in communities of German or Scandinavian settlers. For it was in Germany that the Christmas tree had its origin. There are several different legends in regard to it. Here is one which dates from the Twelfth century:

An English monk named Winfred who had gone as a missionary into Germany, came upon some priests about to sacrifice the young prince Asulf to the god Thor beneath the "blood oak." He stopped their ceremonies and ordered them to cut down the oak, whereupon a young fir tree appeared in its place which Winfred told them signified the tree of life, or of Christly living. From that time Germans who became Christians made the fir a part of the Christmas festival, decorating it with gilded nuts and apples to shine like stars.

The two trees most commonly used for Christmas trees are the spruce and fir. They look very much alike, but the spruce is likely to shed its needles after two or three days in the house, while the fir remains in good condition much longer. There are several ways in which you may distinguish them, first the cones. Those of the spruce hang downward while the cones of the fir are held erect. This will not be much help to you in selecting a Christmas tree, however, as they are usually not old enough to bear cones. But if you examine a twig of the spruce you will find it covered with little horny projections in which the needles are set.

The spruce tree is pyramidal in shape, the long cones hanging from the branches near the top. The needles are arranged in spiral rows around the stem, those at the top pointing sharply upward. They have three or four distinctly angled sides. Some common varieties are the red, black, white and Norway spruce. Spruce timber has been used a great deal of late years for wood pulp.

Fir trees in various sections of the country are the balsam firs which grow abundantly in the mountains and which we find displayed in our markets at Christmas time. The fir is shaped much like the spruce, but the needles are flat and blunt, and usually spread feather-wise from two sides of the stem only. They are dark green above and silvery beneath. The dark purple cones stand erect glistening with balsam near the top. Balsam also exudes from the trunk, and is used for medicine. The fresh needles are used as a stuffing for sweet-smelling balsam pillows.

Another evergreen sometimes used as a Christmas tree is the hemlock. It is more slender than the spruce, with feathery waving branches which grow very close to the ground. The needles are arranged in two flat rows on the twigs, and have tiny stems. They are soft, and silvery underneath. The cones are tiny, growing at the ends of the twigs. The bark is used in tanning leather. Wreaths made of branches with little cones on them are very lovely.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have just been convicted and sentenced to jail for twenty years. I understand a prisoner has his choice of jobs when he is sent to prison. Twenty years is a long time. Can you tell me what position I should pick out?

Yours truly,
A. ITZTUFF.

Answer: When the warden asks you what you want to do tell him you want to be a sailor.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am troubled with insomnia. I can't seem to sleep at night. It worries me very much. What remedy do you suggest to stop me worrying?

Sincerely,
IKE ANTSLEEP.

Answer: Jump on a train and go to Virginia, get some of that corn whisky they make down there, take 3 drinks of it and you won't care a rap if you sleep or not.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Can you tell me why a giraffe's neck is so long?

Yours truly,
ARCH OLOGIST.

Answer: My dear chap, the reason a giraffe's neck is so long is merely because its head is so far away from its body.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

A friend of mine whom I haven't seen for three years came into my office yesterday. I always thought he was tall, but yesterday he looked short to me. He told me he had just gotten married. Could that have anything to do with him looking shorter than before?

Sincerely,
I. GLASS.

Answer: That is the whole story in a nutshell. He used to be tall, but since he married he probably settled down.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I own a cafe which only does a small business. I can't afford a cabaret and do not know how to entertain my customers. Can you suggest any way of me giving my customers some enjoyment while dining?

Yours truly,
E. TINGPLACE.

Answer: Serve them some waffles and alphabet soup and they can make up their own cross word puzzles.

Barbados Has Clean Record

Of all the land in the western hemisphere, no part of it has a cleaner early history than Barbados, observes a writer in the Detroit News. The island was uninhabited when the crew of the Olive Blossom took possession of it in 1603, and it was still without inhabitants when it was settled by Englishmen in 1627. Thus no one was dispossessed in Barbados, and the island has had a peaceful record under the British flag ever since it was first unfolded.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

A WONDERFUL SWIMMER

IN THE moonlight on the bank of the Big River Peter Rabbit sat gossiping with Honker the Goose. Suddenly they were interrupted by a wild, strange cry from the middle of the Big River. It was like crazy laughter. Peter jumped at the sound, but Honker merely chuckled.

"It's Dippy the Loon," said Honker. "He spends the summer in the Far North not far from us and started south just before we did."

"I wish he would come in here so that I could get a good look at him and make his acquaintance," said Peter.

"He may, but I doubt it," replied Honker. "You know Dippy practically lives on the water and rarely comes ashore. He's about the most awkward fellow on land of anyone I know of."

"Why should he be any more awkward on land than you?" asked Peter.

"Because," replied Honker, "Old Mother Nature has given him very short legs and has placed them so far back on his body that he can't keep his balance to walk and has to use his wings and bill to help him over the ground. On shore he is about the most helpless thing you ever have seen. On water he is altogether another fellow. He's just as much at home under water as on top. My, how that fellow can dive! When he sees the flash of a gun he will get under water before the shot can reach him. That's where he has the advantage of us geese. You know, we can't dive. He could swim clear across this river if he wanted to. And he can swim so fast under water that he can catch fish. It is because his legs have been placed so far back that he can swim so fast. His feet are nothing but big paddles. Another funny thing is that he can sink right down in the water when he wants to, with nothing but his head out. I envy him that. It would be a lot easier for us geese to escape the hunters if we could sink down that way."

"Has he got a bill like yours?" asked Peter innocently.

"How do you suppose he would hold on to a slippery fish if he had a bill like mine?" demanded Honker. "His bill is stout, straight and sharp-pointed. He is pretty nearly as big as I and his back, wings, tail and neck are black, with bluish or greenish appearance in the sun. His back and wings are spotted with white and there are streaks of white on his throat and on the sides of his neck. On his breast and below he is all white. You certainly ought to get acquainted with Dippy, Peter."

"I'd like to," replied Peter, "but I guess I'll have to be content to know him just by his voice. It's about as crazy sounding as the voice of Old Man Coyote and that is saying a great deal."

Seeing that Honker was very tired, Peter bade him good night and left him in peace on the sandy bar in the Big River.

SCARS LEFT BY COMET

In a joint paper Dr. F. A. Melton and Dr. William Schriever of the University of Oklahoma, reported to to the American Association for the Advancement of Science in convention at Atlantic City their discovery that a giant comet apparently hit the earth in what is now South Carolina a million years or more ago.

Scars of this meeting between the earth and a comet about 400 miles in diameter were first observed on an airplane mosaic map made by Doctor Melton in 1930. The two scientists have since recorded more than 1,500 of these scars, which are elliptical craters, formed in the earth in that portion of South Carolina forming the coastal plain bounded on the south by the Savannah river and on the north by Cape Lookout.

While some of the craters are two miles long, they all average more than half a mile. The Oklahomans claim they were unmistakably made by meteors, a whole flock of meteors such as only a comet's head could carry.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Through A WOMAN'S EYES

by JEAN NEWTON

VANITY, THY NAME IS—?

"VANITY, thy name is woman!"

There are men the author of that quotation did not know. One of them, a motion picture actor, killed himself the other day because he had got too old to play romantic parts.

There were other circumstances contributing to his despondency, of course. There had been illness and financial loss. But the man's best friend at the time of his death said it was the prospect of playing "bit" parts with others in the romantic roles that was the real cause of his giving up. "His chief pride," it was said, "was his unswerving faith in himself as 'the perfect lover'"—and when he could no longer be that he did not care to live.

It is a tragedy that we used to connect with women, that desperate battle with the years, that inability to grow old gracefully. Particularly women on the stage, whose survival in their profession was thought to depend on their physical charms, were assumed to live in dread of the creeping up of inevitable time. And yet today we see more and more popular actresses outwitting that enemy. They do it by the simple process of going along with time, instead of trying to fight it. Mary Pickford gives up sweet sixteen parts and grows up in pictures; such a still glamorously beautiful actress as Judith Anderson plays the modern mother of a grown son. Even on the stage a woman can be forty-five and still beautiful; she can be sixty and still interesting; but she cannot, as a former generation allowed Sarah Bernhardt, play acceptably a part that is half her age. And she has discovered that her alternative need not be oblivion.

It may be the modern demand for realism that has led actresses—as well as women in private life—to adapt themselves more frankly to the dictates of the years, to try to use them for whatever their advantages, rather than be defeated by them. Whatever the reason, it is uncommon today to find a woman who does not know when to leave the ingenue role for one in character. So we are spared many of the ghastly exhibitions that were familiar when women thought they had to remain young or die.

And if these were tragic on the part of women, how much more pitiable to find a man who tries to hang on to youth and physical glamour, how much more—at the risk of sounding hard—inexcusable! In every day life, of course, most of us find it distasteful for a man to put much weight on his physical attractiveness. And on the stage there are so many character parts that a man can play, it should be far easier than for a woman to make the transition from romantic roles before he finds himself dropped, with no recourse but the poor "bits" which naturally fall to the lot of a "has been."

If Vanity's name is woman, it is becoming hyphenated with Common Sense. And men who are going to adopt it had better follow suit with the latter, too.

THE DAYS THAT USED TO BE

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE happy days that used to be
Trail green paths of allure.
The little home that sheltered me—
A nest warm and secure—
Sends up its smoke against the sky
Of memory. . . . Once more
I see the golden sun climb high
Above my cottage door.

There never were such dawns as those—
So fragrant and so clean;
The dew that sparkled on the rose,
The morning's silver sheen,
Shed over all of us the grace
Of the beginning day . . .
It was the early morning face
Of God that turned our way.

So simple were the hours we spent,
So tranquil were our days,
It is small wonder that content
Adorned our humble ways.
And something of that beauty clings
To bless us still, and bind
The present to the happy Springs
That we have left behind.

RED FEATHER

By R. H. WILKINSON

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

EVERY fall during the past ten years I have been driving up to Orion Oldway's place in Littlebrook to spend a week gunning for upland game.

Orion is a friend of long standing. He lives on a farm, alone, the place is a mile or two out of the village, and there are no habitations nearby.

The bounds of Orion's farm are widely extended, and there is considerable cover for birds.

The hunting is good, and Orion is a congenial companion. And he serves equally well as a guide, for during the summer months he acquaints himself with the feeding grounds of the birds which the law permits us to kill, and there is no delay in finding the largest coveys.

Orion is now an old man.

Two years ago he laid aside his gun and said he would hunt no more, complaining that his sight was poor and his hand trembly. Yet he still accompanies me on my expeditions into the woods, and seems to share my delight in the business.

This fall I arrived as usual at Orion's place on the eve of the opening day, and spent a pleasant evening with the old man before his open fire.

With me as usual was Chris, my English setter, a well-broken and well-educated bird dog, companion of many a hunt, a true and loyal friend.

It was cozy sitting there in the tiny living room.

The fire burned cheerily and gave off a welcoming warmth; the night outside had a bite in it.

Chris lay full length on the hearth, stirring now and then with fitful dreams.

Orion and I swapped yarns of former days, and I questioned him regarding the prospects of tomorrow's hunt.

"You'll not be disappointed," he told me. "There's plenty of partridge about, and a flock or two of quail. And there's pheasant, too."

He was silent a moment.

"Yep, there's pheasant. They're a tame lot, them birds. Been coming up to the dooryard and eatin' with the hens. Up to a month ago, that is. Seems like they know when it's nearin' time for the law to come off. There's one big cock, especially. Old Red Feather, I call him. He's tamer than the rest. Most eats out o' my hand. Biggest pheasant I ever see."

"I'd like to get a crack at him," I grinned. "Pheasants are scarce this year, in most places."

Orion was up ahead of me the next morning.

He had bacon and eggs on frying and coffee boiling when I came into the kitchen.

Chris was there, too, rapping his tail on the floor, looking at me with glad eagerness in his eyes.

We were on our way within a half hour's time.

The morning was beautiful with a bracing quality in the air, a sharpness that sent the blood tingling through your veins.

Orion led the way down the cart path behind the barn, presently turning off and cutting across a frost-white field.

The sun had burned its way through the early morning clouds; red lances from it streamed across the fields, transforming the frost-locked world into a fairyland of dancing crystals.

Chris ranged and quartered ahead of us, joyful for the liberty that was his. I filled my lungs with that biting air, and was glad to be a part of it all.

Presently Chris slowed in his mad galloping, darted quickly to the right and into a patch of dead grass.

I came up on him rapidly, saw that he was crouched, moving cautiously ahead with belly almost to the ground, perceived that the wagging of his tail was suddenly stilled, that the dog himself had stopped, frozen into a point.

I spoke to him quietly, came up behind him, and there was suddenly the whir of wings, and a covey of quail rose into the air and flung themselves against the sun.

The double-gun leaped to my shoulder; there was the report of it, and a bird came tumbling down end over end.

First kill of the day! First miss, too! Orion grinned and nodded. "Good work," he said. "The sun was in your eye. Them birds is knowin' critters."

We hunted till noon; paused on the banks of Little Brook itself to eat our lunch.

There were three quail and a grouse in my pockets. It had been a glorious hunt; the thrill of it was still in my blood. I looked at Orion.

"I'd think you'd still like to hunt; carry a gun, anyway. Might bring down a bird."

Orion wagged his head.

"Got kinda fed up on killing them birds," he admitted, with a hint of guilt in his tones.

"They're knowin' critters. Sort o' like to know they're around. Be kinda lonesome, too. Guess you won't kill 'em all."

I laughed. "Well, I won't kill them all on you, Orion," I said chidingly. "Leave a few for company."

"Sure," the old man agreed.

"Sure. You do all the shootin' you've a mind to. Guess you won't kill 'em all."

That afternoon netted us another grouse. On the day following I shot a brace of quail, and on the third day added a squirrel to my score.

But the week was going fast, and the hunting seemed not so good as Orion had promised.

I was anxious to do some pheasant shooting, and spoke to Orion about the matter.

"Why, sure," he said. "Sure thing. We'll go after them pheasant tomorrow and get some, too."

"Maybe," I smiled, "you can get me a shot at old Red Feather. Say, I'd like to bring back a big fellow like that."

And so, on the next day, Orion took us down to the pheasant cover, and it wasn't long before Chris had struck a trail and pointed.

A pair of birds broke from the thick underbrush and I swung on the cock and brought him down.

"Good work," Orion applauded. "Good shootin'."

"Should have got 'em both," I said ruefully.

Orion had marked down the second bird and we turned in that direction, but failed to flush him again.

Nor did I get another shot on that day or the next, and was somewhat disappointed.

Orion seemed aggrieved that the gunning had proved poorer than he anticipated; promised that on the last day he'd take me to a spot he knew where birds were sure to be.

And surprisingly enough he did this. Before noon on that day I had added three more quail and another partridge to my kill.

We started home about mid-afternoon. I was satisfied with the day's work but still had in mind to bring down another pheasant.

We were passing then over the crest of the hill. To the right of us I saw a swale that seemed to hold good promise, and turned that way with a view of sending Chris inside of it, myself skirting the edge where the walking was less difficult.

But Orion, sensing my purpose, made hasty protest. "There's nothing there," he said. "Feed's played out! you'll find no birds down there."

I glanced at him doubtfully, would have followed along over the hill, taking heed of his words, had not Chris suddenly frozen to a point on the very edge of this swale, in plain view.

"Look there!" I said, and started hurriedly down the hill.

Orion followed close on my heels; we came upon the dog together, and I spoke a low command and waited. Chris lifted a forefoot and set it down as if treading on eggs. He repeated the movement, and suddenly there was a roar.

A huge cock pheasant rose above the swale, fighting with madly beating wings to gain speed and altitude. It was a perfect shot.

The double gun leaped to my shoulder. And in the moment I would have pressed the trigger something jostled my arm and the shot went wild.

The pheasant soared out of range before I could regain my balance.

It was Orion. He had fallen against me. There was on his face a rueful expression.

"Sho!" he said. "Sho. I'm right sorry, about that. I musta tripped. You'd o' got that bird. Big one he was, too."

I saw his look of dismay, and my flash of anger cooled.

"Forget it," I said. "I'd probably have missed anyhow."

And then suddenly a thought flashed into my mind. "Say," I asked, "was that old Red Feather?"

Orion nodded and turned away, and started up the hill. And after a moment I followed, grinning behind his back, remembering his remark that day as we lunched by the brook: "You do all the shootin' you're a mind to. Guess you won't kill 'em all." And I wondered, too, if the gunning was really as poor this fall on Orion's farm as it appeared to be.

Speech Development Last Split of Man From Ape

Essential turning points in the evolution of man from lower animals were outlined in recent lectures in London by the distinguished anthropologist, Prof. G. Elliot Smith, who quoted some of his material from a book by Dr. S. Zuckerman, of the London Zoological society.

One step in human evolution was when the whole group of animals now including the apes, monkeys, lemurs and man separated from the rest of the insect-eating, tree-living animals by abandoning the habit of a fixed breeding season at one time of the year in favor of ability to breed at any time.

The next great separation distinguished man, the apes and the monkeys from most of the lemurs by the habit of drinking water by sucking it into their mouths instead of lapping it up with their tongues as is almost universal among animals.

Third was the separation of man and the apes from the monkeys, placed by Doctor Zuckerman at the time when both ape blood and human blood evolved the four chemical blood groups now observed in all human races and in gorillas, chimpansees and other apes, but not in monkeys.

Finally, Professor Smith believes that man's final distinction from all living kinds of apes was marked by the development of precise and accurate nerve connections and muscular control which made it possible for man to learn to speak. This last step in human evolution probably happened in Africa at least three million or four million years ago, possibly even earlier.

Smartly Veiled Midwinter Brides

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS FAR as being smartly, charmingly and distinctively veiled, the outlook for midwinter brides-to-be was never more propitious. And why? Because more and more designers are specializing in wedding veil-craft. Wherefore it is the good fortune of the modern bride to have had made available to her an array of wedding veils and bridal party finery the likes of which never could have been evolved by other than master artists.

The reaction to this spectacular gesture on the part of designers to create accessory ensembles for bride and bridesmaids which omit no detail of beauty and finesse is that the custom is growing among those who are planning a wedding cortege which shall be a "perfect picture" to patronize specialty shops that carry these lovely ensembles rather than to rely on the services of the novice or the kindly endeavors of home talent.

An outstanding choice among fashionable brides this season is the little closefitting cap made either of exquisite lace or all of tulle which features the new and extremely becoming Joan Crawford eyebrow line. See the bride seated to the left in the picture. She is wearing a charming cap of this description. In this instance the cap is made entirely of tulle with wee ruches of self-tulle for trimming. The absence of lace on the headpiece makes the beauty of the lace sleeve all the more apparent, which is a stroke of absolute genius on the part of the designer.

The stately bride centered in the picture is also wearing one of the voguish eyebrow-line caps. This one is fashioned of a treasured bit of lace instead of tulle. Look close and you will see medallions of the lace scattered here and there on the long veil. The particular thing to call attention to is that the longer part of this veil is detachable. This is for the convenience of the bride when she mingles with her friends after the ceremony. After the long trailing veil is removed the shorter veil is thrown back from the face, forming a popular cape fashion enveloping the shoulders. The gown is of lusterless heavy white satin.

For the youthful bride could anything be lovelier than a quaint little Dutch bonnet effect as shown to the right in the group? The veil is lace-bordered in harmony with the picturesque lace flanges which fold back on the bonnet away from the face. Her girlish frock is of tree-bark white crepe.

In this story of wedding veils for the midwinter bride we have saved the biggest thrill to the last—a vision of ice-blue tulle over satin in the same blue. The veil is finger-tip length falling from a cunning bonnetlike headpiece which has a flaring cuff brim. The entire ensemble is elaborated with wee rose plaitings of the tulle making it very flattery and pretty, but here's the big sensation—the announcer at the style showing tells the spellbound audience that this ensemble is designed for the young divorcee who is to wed again. Thus does fashion indeed go modern! The same lovely ensemble follows in the procession repeated in blush pink for the young widow who re-weds. We might add that the designer tells us that in Mexico the short veil for a second plunge into matrimony has been in vogue for some time.

GOLD JEWELRY

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Yes, indeed, we agree with you the twisted gold chain necklace and bracelets which this stylishly hatted young woman is wearing, is perfectly stunning—enough to excite to envy. It is quite the proper thing to wear massive gold jewelry this season and the shops are showing the most fascinating array of clips and bracelets and pins and necklaces and novel ornaments in gold that fancy can picture. It is a master stroke to wear this gold costume jewelry with classically simple frocks. The sophisticated and severe black cloaky dress here pictured is all that it should be to wear with gold jewelry.

Blouses for Morning

For morning wear tunics appear in blouses of brightly colored wool generally no longer than the hip-bones. Burnt orange tunics are worn with brown tweed suits and green with gray.

RAGE FOR METAL IS SPREADING RAPIDLY

Girls as well as skyscrapers are chromium trimmed this season, and the rage for metal is growing by leaps and bounds.

It's true that a glint of shining metal cloth dresses up any costume no end, and so we see neckerchiefs and collars and cuffs presented in sparkling gold and silver lames and, for more formal occasion, even in sequins.

A gold cloth turban with a matching scarf, for instance, makes the most striking complement to one of the slithery new black dinner gowns, adding festivity to the picture.

Or you may wear a bandanna of striped or checked silver lame with your most severe suit, and enjoy the touch of gay frivolity.

There are Peter Pan collars and cuffs in shining metal fabrics and brocades, jabots of silver and gold ribbon, belts of seemingly precious metals, all of which brighten up the winter scene.

Popularity of Feathers for Coiffures Spreading

For years feathers have adorned the heads of women when they were presented at the Court of St. James. This season feathers are being tucked into the coiffures of social leaders at other than court affairs.

At a recent formal function three fashionably attired guests wore green feathers. One attracted admiring glances as she held the center of an animated group. Her white gown of deceptive simplicity was accompanied by green satin shoulder length gloves, emerald green slippers and then, for contrast, her jeweled cigarette holder was a brilliant lacquer red.

New Handbag

There is a new handbag which is shaped like a case for field-glasses. It has a shorter strap than the field-glass case, but this permits it to be carried more easily in the hand.

CAP AND BELLS

IGNORANCE IS BLISS

At one golf course there had been some talk of standardizing tips to caddies, and one day the secretary explained his ideas to a group of members.

"We feel," he said, "that a caddie should not receive a tip of more than one shilling and sixpence per round. You'll agree that's reasonable."

They did agree, all except one Aberdonian, who, looking up with an expression of innocence, said, "Excuse me, Mr. Secretary, but what is a tip?"—Tid-Bits.

Sweeping

Full of enthusiasm, she had gone in for politics and was out of the house most of the day. The other night she returned at nine o'clock and sank into an armchair.

"Everything's grand," she said. "We're going to sweep the country."

Her husband looked around wearily and said: "Why not start with the dining room?"

AN INDOOR RINK

"Come on, the skating's fine!"

Daddy's Cranium

The young hopeful of a suburban family objected strenuously to having his hair washed. He argued it was unnecessary and a great nuisance to his mother as well as himself. It was pointed out by his elders that grown-ups as well as children were subjected to the inconvenience.

"Daddy isn't," was the quick retort. "He has no hair, only head."—New York Sun.

Value Received

"Politics causes a great deal of debate," said the plain citizen.

"Of course," answered Senator Sorghum. "There has to be a certain amount of brilliant oratory so as to make the campaign contributors feel that they're getting something for their money."

Important Item

Chauffeur—Why, ma'am, the axel is sprung, the mud guards bent, and your husband's neck is broke!

Woman (a bit interested)—And how about those brand-new lamps?

Ouch!

Pompous Man—They told me that if I didn't quit reading dime novels I wouldn't amount to anything.

Cheerful Puncturer—Well, why didn't you quit?

Going to Extremes

"Our cook is terribly temperamental."

"So's ours. We never know whether it'll be angel cake or devil's food."

War Signal

Usher at wedding, to cold, dignified lady—Are you a friend of the groom?

The Lady—Indeed, no, I am the bride's mother.

Consideration

"Has your horse a good disposition?"

"Yep," answered Farmer Corntossel. "But he wouldn't have if I worried him as much as he does me."

Hasn't Paid Yet

Neighbor—How is that new incubator doing which you bought?

Mrs. Newbride—I suppose it's all right, but I'm a little worried about it. It hasn't laid a single egg yet.

Continued Story

"What did your wife say when you stayed out late the other night?"

"She hasn't finished telling it all to me yet."

So Sorry

Traffic Officer—What's the matter with you?

Driver—I'm well, thanks; but my engine's dead.

TWO CHIC APRONS IN ONE PATTERN

Pattern 9171

The young housewife who is tired of her stock of aprons will certainly perk up at the sight of the novel aprons sketched here. See the cunning halter neck which ties in the back. It's certainly a new and becoming idea in aprons. Or if you feel a little more conservative, choose the well-tailored model below. Both come in the one pattern, have bodices coming down to a flattering point below the nicely molded waistline, and chic triangular skirts, with conveniently large patch pockets. Both will give ample protection to your pretty house frocks.

Pattern 9171 may be ordered only in sizes small, medium and large. Apron A, small size, requires 1¾ yards 36 inch fabric; apron B, small size, requires 1⅝ yards 36 inch fabric.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

HOMESICK

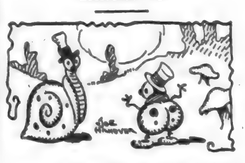
"Shut that door! Where were you brought up—in a barn?"

The man addressed complied meekly and silently. The first speaker observed that he was in tears, and going over to the man, he apologized.

"Oh, come," he said, soothingly, 'you shouldn't take it to heart because I asked if you were raised in a barn."

"That's it, that's it," sobbed the other. "I was brought up in a barn, and it makes me homesick every time I hear an ass bray."—Tit-Bits.

SARCASTIC



Snail—We snails are going to have a race for a distance of one foot.

Bug—You'll all die of old age before you finish!

Considerate Hospitality

"Is it considerate for a lady who has sent out invitations to remain absent from her own reception?"

"Perfectly proper," answered Miss Cayenne. "It prevents any embarrassment if the guests feel like criticising the furniture and the housekeeping."

From Theory to Practice

"Weren't you once what they called a parlor socialist?"

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "but food expense has driven socialists out of the parlor. They are now discussing the kitchen, and even the bath room."

Lutheran Sunday School attendance, 82; offering, $3.12.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bailey had as Christmas guests Everett Mavis and family, Quentin Mavis and daughter, Bruce Mavis and family all of Auburn, Loren Mavis and family of Grover Hill, O., Harold Bouton and family of Defiance, Ohio, Clyde Mavis of York, North Dakota, Barbara Mavis and Fern Bailey, Mrs. Donna Arrants and dughters of Lima, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Mavis and son of Garcured, they will be distributed to their proper recipients. The party is expected to take place Dec. 23.

At home Christmas means being able to exchange gifts and tidings in the immediate presence of kinsfolk and friends. But in our camp, a long ways from home and surrounded by vast expanses of woody territory, a large portion of the boys are experiencing something decidedly novel—celebrating this paramount holiday with fellows whom they never saw or heard of prior to enrolling in the Civilian Conservation Corps.

No matter where a person spends Chirstmas—in his own home or in some remote part of the country, it does not necessarily mean that he should fail to observe the real significance of this sublimest of holidays. Christmas marks the birth of the greatest leader of men—Jesus Christ.

The true spirit of Christmas should radiate the warmth of Christ's love and unselfishness. As Christ desired it for us, so let there be "Peace on earth, Good will towards men."

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Scholes, of North Vernon, Ind., were home over Christmas.

J. E. Foltz and J. P. Buckingham, accompanied by their wives, spent Christmas with Ohio relatives.

Master Glen Epler shows marks of his vacation, when he was hurt about the face, in falling from his sled while sliding down hill.

Louis Wasson and family, of Shelby Jc., Ohio, were home over Christmas night, and they with Miles Oberlin and family and Harvey Hull and family, were supper guests in the Wall Wasson home, east of Butler.

A DUTCH CHRISTMAS PARTY IN C. C. C.

CCC-Co. 561, Camp F-17
Glenburn, California.

Dear Mr. Leighty:—

I have been receiving The News for nearly a month. It certainly is very thoughtful of you to send me the copies. When a fellow is 3,000 miles from home, nothing serves best to keep him informed of the goings-on, than a newspaper from his home town.

Big Springs Camp is preparing to hold what is known as a "Dutch" Christmas Party. Every boy has to draw from a box a strip of paper on which is typed the name of another boy. Every member who draws a name must buy a small inexpensive gift for the person represented by the strip of paper.

When all the presents are secured, they will be distributed to their proper recipients. The party is expected to take place Dec. 23.

REGARDING INTANGIBLES TAX STAMPS

The state board of tax commissioners writes Chas. E. Miser, county assessor of DeKalb county as follows:

"We urge that you make a last call through the press to all taxpayers who own taxable intangibles asking that they do not delay payment of the tax for 1934 later than the first of January, 1935. The 1934 stamps will be available at the treasurer's office until January 10th of 1935 but this is to take care of intangibles which are executed after December 20th of 1934, and prior to January 1, 1935.

"The public should be further advised that all old stamps which are on hands and not used must be left with the county treasurer not later than January 20th of 1935. Applications for exchange dated later than January 20th cannot be accepted."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cochran are visiting relatives this week at Chesterton, Ind.

Mrs. Bert Bachtel and daughter, Miss Virginia, of Waterloo, called at the Rolla Wiers home, Sunday afternoon.

Fox Drive Next Saturday

The first attempt at a fox drive will be made here Saturday forenoon at 9:30, headed by the local Fish and Game Club, and taking in a territory from the Spencerville river bridge, east to the Place Corners and north to the St. Joe River, taking in all territory south of the river.

Captains have been chosen to handle and instruct the crowd of men that are asked to cooperate in this drive. No DOGS or GUNS are used, bring your CLUBS.

Several hundred men will be needed to handle this territory, and all the surrounding towns, are asked to send in men to participate in this drive.

Plans are being made to systematically handle the situation and Ed Storer and Hollis Akins are in a position to give out information.

FARMERS INSTITUTE NEXT WEEK

Friday, January 11, one day only, will be the Tri-Township Farmers Institute, held at the St. Joe Gym, as announced by Merritt Sechler, the chairman.

"Cindy," a story of the Kentucky hills, presented by the St. Joe Dramatic Club, for the benefit of the Tri-Township Farmer's Institute, will be presented Saturday night, Jan. 12, 1935 in the Concord Twp. H. S. and Community Building. Curtain at 8:00 o'clock.

Child Thrown Thru Window

Harry Kees, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kees, had a thrill Monday night, when he fell a distance of 14 feet. He was sent to bed, and like children, was playing and jumping on the bed. He lost his balance, was thrown into the window, and fell to the ground outside, landing in some bushes and the snow, and fortunately he was not injured, but was frightened terribly.

Earl Smith is home with his family, after many weeks absence.

L. L. C.

The annual Christmas party of the Ladies Literary Club was held at the home of Grace Dilley, December 21, 1934. The rooms were tastefully decorated in keeping with the holiday season.

After a short business period conducted by the president, Belle Woodcox, the meeting was in charge of the committee composed of: Parlia Hull, Violet May, Mary Gerdes, and Hazel Storer.

The members joined in singing Christmas carols after which the following program was given:

"Christmas Feast All American" ..... Violet May

Trio, composed of Agnes Leighty, Avis Staman and Lora Leighty, accompanied by Cora Curie at the organ, sang two numbers "Up On the House Top" and "Silent Night."

Humorous Reading, "Shopping" ..... Mary Gerdes

Playlet, "The News" Hazel Storer and Parlia Hull.

The gift exchange was in charge of Grace Dilley and the program closed with a contest conducted by Parlia Hull.

All were then invited to the dining room where covers were laid for sixteen. The table was beautifully decorated with tall red tapers, the centerpiece being a tiny Christmas tree. At each cover was a tiny chocolate Santa Claus favor.

A delicious two course luncheon was served. The first course consisted of escalloped chicken, cranberry salad, potato chips, and hot rolls; the second course, individual cakes, heavenly hash, mints and coffee.

Between courses ninteen members and two guests, Mrs. Edith Cole and Mrs. Mary Schondelmayer responded to roll call with "My First Christmas."

George Kinsey is in the Lutheran hospital in Fort Wayne, where he has had two blood transfusions, being in an enemic condition. It is hoped that this will assist in his recovery.

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau met at the home of Mrs. Mary Krise for an all day meeting. At noon all partook of a bountiful pot luck dinner. At 1:30 the meeting was called to order by the president, Mary Krise. Carols were led by Beulah Coburn and Gertrude Borthwick. The Lord's prayer was prayed by all. Secretary's report was read and approved. Roll call was answered by thirty-four members telling what they wanted for Christmas. A Christmas reading, "At Christmas" was read by Hazel Baltz. A poem by Anna Rickett and a play, entitled "Boss by Stragety" was given by Hazel Balez, Grace Shaffer and Doris Yeiser.

An exchange of gifts was conducted by Carrie Morr after which the meeting was adjourned.

RABBIT HUNTERS HAVE WEEK OF SPORT LEFT

Hunters who have been combing the fields for the elusive cottontail have one week of sport before the close of the open season in Indiana. Thursday, Jan. 10, is the last day on which rabbits can be hunted legally in the state.

It has been a successful season for a majority of the hunters, according to reports from various parts of the state, with some sections reporting rabbits more plentiful than in recent years. A further increase in rabbits before the next open season may be anticipated with the Division of Fish and Game establishing a "rabbit ranch" at the Jasper-Pulaski state game farm, to propagate cottontails for stocking areas where a shortage is reported.

INCOME TAX DUE

The 1935 general assembly will be asked to pass a law permitting the state to collect gross income taxes, says Clarence A. Jackson, director of the state tax.

Jackson warned that final payments on 1934 income were due Jan. 1 and the deadline is Jan. 31.

All individuals and business firms must pay one per cent tax on all income above $1,000 during the year. Manufacturers, processors, and farmers are taxed one fourth of one per cent on all income over $1,000. Blanks are now here for your convenience at The News office.

NINETY NEW MAYORS TOOK OFFICE JAN. 1

At high noon Tuesday—New Year's Day—ninety new Indiana mayors took office, victors in the November election.

For the first time in five years Republicans hold the majority of mayorships—at least 53 of them, possibly 55. The election of Republican mayors at Linton and Vincennes has been contested.

The Democrats, who held a 51-39 edge prior to the election, seated 35 mayors Tuesday.

While the Democrats managed to elect their entire state ticket in November, the G. O. P. made heavy inroads into Democratic majorities in local offices. It was a comeback that seemed remote after the landslide of 1932 when the state went 200,000 for Roosevelt and McNutt.

Republicans won mayoralty election in 33 cities where Democrats were in power. In contrast they lost but 17 to the Democrats.

Republicans were continued in power in 22 cities while the Democrats held their own in but 18. In addition, due to the 1933 act reclassifying civil cities, the G. O. P. incumbents at Montpelier, Dunkirk and Angola continued in office. The Democrats profited by a similar instance at Loogootee.

All told, the net gain of the G. O. P. in the election was 16 mayorships.

Including the four cities which did not hold mayoralty elections and assuming that the contests at Linton and Vincennes do not unseat the apparent victors in the election, the political complexion of Indiana's 94 mayoralty seats is now 58 Republicans, 36 Democrats.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

School reopened on Monday after one week of vacation.

Several pupils were absent on Monday and Tuesday of this week due to illness.

A class in third semester algebra started on Monday of this week with Mrs. Simanton as teacher.

Several of the alumni and also pupils from other high schools visited in the local schools this week.

Grade cards were issued on Wednesday evening of this week. We wish parents to give the first semester reports a very careful inspection.

Basketball

The Pleasant Lake first and second boys teams play on our floor on Friday evening, January 11th. We have only one more home game scheduled after that date.

Juniors and Seniors received their class rings last week. Now the Juniors are beginning to think about the annual class play. Watch this column for a later and definite announcement.

Third and Fourth Grades

Betty Nicholls is entertaining the measles.

Irene Sechler, Earl Keller, Betty Rudolph, were absent Tuesday.

On New Year's Day we made a New Year's Resolution booklet in our English period.

Miss Martha Lay was a visitor in our room on Tuesday.

The boys and girls are all interested in our Attendance Chart. For each month's perfect attendance, a candle is added to their holder. They are all striving for candles.

Leaves Emergency Office

A county supervisor of emergency education to take the place of Jesse W. Fleming, of Auburn, had not been appointed yet Monday.

Mr. Fleming on Wednesday took his new place as manager of the Auburn municipal utilities plant. He had held the position of county supervisor since the emergency education program was undertaken in the fall.

Mayor Kelly of Chicago offers a definite plan for a "1985 World's Fair in Chicago."

Robert Wiers has returned to camp after having spent a few days here with his parents.

Mrs. Mae Hough, son, Glen and wife, of Auburn, M. Chas. Crouse and daughter, Juanita, of Trail City, S. D., were recent guests in the Art Guilford home.

"Come, read to me some poem,
Some simple and heartfelt lay,
That shall soothe this restless feeling,

FROM CCC BOYS

Interesting Letters received from our Home Boys now far from the Home Town.

Hayfork, California.
December 23, 1934.

Dear Fred:

This being Sunday afternoon will try and make up for lost time and drop you a line. I received The News this week and was glad to get it, we are really away from civilization here, about seventy miles from a railroad and thirty-five from any town. A radio and news from home is a luxury here, we are lucky to have a radio in our barracks.

I will try and describe some of the things that have happened since July sixth. We left Fort Knox the twelfth of July for Naples, Idaho and arrived there the sixteenth. After going through a few hard knocks for a week as rookies we finally got settled.

After working about three weeks on the road, the first forest fire of the season broke out and I was on this three days. From then on that's about all we got done, was to fight fire, and took some long trips and saw some swell country. The largest fire we were on, was the Pack River fire, which covered ten thousand acres and had a fifty mile front. We had to move camp on account of this, but managed to get it checked before it burned the buildings in camp. The fire season ended the tenth of September and everybody was glad of it.

We then received another surprise the sixteenth of September, we had a snow storm and the weather began to get cold and the tents uncomfortable. We then started wishing for Sunny California, and as our time wasn't up to leave, they ordered us to Fort George Wright at Spokane, Washington. Here we camped in the Spokane Valley about a half mile from the Fort, and a thirty minute walk from Spokane, a swell town.

The tenth of October we were ordered to leave for Redding, Calif., and was on the road two days. We then had a ride of seventy miles on truck to camp, which was a cold ride. This camp is in the northern part and the climate is something like Indiana only not as cold. There has been no snow here yet, only up in the mountains but can expect it any time.

We have a nice camp here, located in a valley, and on level ground, and that is quite an advantage to our other camp. We have a fine foot ball field and basket ball court, the first ones we have had.

I am now working on a telephone gang, we are building about fifty miles of line, and everything has to be cleared for it. We are also building roads, and working around ranger stations.

Well I think I had better close for this time, wishing you a Happy New Year.

Your Friend,
Marion Dermott.

Farm Census Started

Approximately 25,000 federal census employes Wednesday begun the huge task of enumerating the more than six million farm and ranches of the United States in what is probably the most important agricultural census in the nation's history, according to a statement released by Director William L. Austin, Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. Plans call for the completion of the canvass before the end of January.

TRIM SLIP HAS SPECIAL POINTS

PATTERN 2053

Even under the sheerest frock this slip should prove sufficient unto itself, for it's designed with two full, back skirts so as to be absolutely shadow-proof. The shoulder straps are cut in one piece with the bodice to prevent them from slipping at the shoulders. The darts under the arms give comfortable fullness over the bust. And with the skirt opening from below the hips to the hem at the back there should be no split seams to trouble you after a few weeks' wear. It's a lovely design for satin or heavy crepe, and if you would like something a little more feminine, why not add lace edging at the hem and the neckline?

Pattern 2053 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48. Size 34 takes 3⅝ yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

Fur, Flowers and Velvet for Winter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

TAKE velvet for the coat, top it with one of the swanky fur capes such as every woman listed in the blue book of fashion is wearing this winter, give it a glamorous touch via a cluster of hot-house orchids—for the answer see the costume centered in the group of high-style costumes here pictured. Which goes to show that fashion is indulging in habiliment of the most luxurious type this season. Who said "depression"? Well, anyway, sumptuous furs and magnificent coats (rich cloaking velvet a favorite) with boutonniere or corsage of exotic flowers (preferably orchids) is the new deal which fashion's followers are having dealt to them.

By the way this vogue for flower adornment is increasingly apparent. For tailored daytime clothes, one lady-slipper orchid in a gold and silver tube pin on the lapel of one's coat (see thumb-nail sketch in the left lower corner) is in excellent form. Jewels and orchids form a regal alliance for evening. With the new low-front necklines it is smart to wear a necklace, with orchids in the center instead of on the shoulder, as sketched in the right hand corner below. Recently at a debutante party a dress of white billowy tulle with nosegays of waxy-white camelias snuggled here and there was the loveliest sight evening lights ere shone upon. The flower vogue also extends to dinner gowns, the flowers in this instance are usually hand made to match or contrast the color of the velvet or other material which fashions the dress.

Returning to a style analysis of the handsome models in the picture, it is plain to be seen, judging from the perfectly stunning outfit shown to the right, that fashion has recognized Russia in no uncertain manner. Cossack turban, high collar, belted waistline, deep cuffs and an abundance of fur, each speaks eloquently in terms a la Russe. It is a stunning ensemble. To our way of thinking you couldn't find anything smarter in the way of a winter outfit. The fur is nutria, which is of outstanding favor this season. The cloth, which combines with the fur, is a diagonal ribbed beige wool. This model would be very effective in black suede cloth made up with seal or black caracul, or in gray or brown-dyed kidskin with a color-matched velvety wool weave.

The black seal bolero to the left might easily be taken for one of the new separate fur pieces which are so smartly in fashion this winter. In reality it is made as an actual part of the coat. The fur merely tops the cloth sleeves. It would, however, be a most practical idea and thoroughly in keeping with present style trends if this bolero had been one of the detachable sort.

This idea of separate fur capes and stole collars and gilets which look almost like sleeveless jackets with their two long stole ends belted in at the waistline, has much to commend it. With accessory fur novelties including perhaps a high-turban hat and a muff-bag to match, any cloth suit or coat takes on an air of distinction. Many women of a practical turn of mind are taking advantage of this new vogue in that they are having their out-of-style fur coats of past seasons remodeled into stylish boleros or capes or gilets which impart any amount of chic to their appearance without an extravagant outlay of money. However, unless the fur you have is of real value, it is almost as thrifty to invest in ready-mades, for the shops and departments are showing intriguing fur pieces of voguish peltry which are not at all beyond the average budget.

The vogue for big flat fur pockets on cloth coats is also worthy of note. Just to give their cloth coats a "new" look quite a few women are ordering their fur cuffs made into huge pockets which are ornamental as well as useful.

SHINING BLOUSE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

For restaurant or informal wear, this shining lame blouse in pale gold with a dropped shoulder treatment is ideal. The full sleeves are styled according to the latest. The tie-collar is new, too, and very flattering. It is worn with a floor-length skirt of black crepe. For evening with glittering blouse or tunic floor length, the slightly trailing black crepe skirts are latest.

FINE FURS USED AS LINING FOR COATS

Some of the finest furs this winter have taken to cover. Time was when the cheapest, ugliest furs were underneath cloth coats for linings. It made them cost less, of course, even though we were a bit ashamed to let the hems flap out so that the lining could be seen.

All that is past now and we are proud now if the fur lining of a coat displays itself to the most critical gaze. Instead of rabbit under a nice broadcloth coat, there is real ermine, mink, even sable. Some of these fur-lined coats are reversible.

Practically all lavish fur collars are detachable. This permits a change of effect that seems to meet with the approval of smart society, as well as of the thrifty minded.

Evening Gown Has Pockets Like Miniature Panniers

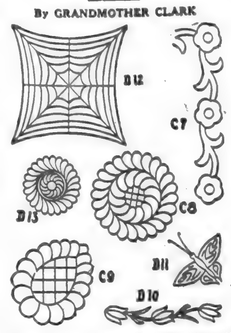
The evening gown with pockets! It was Mme. Elsa Schiaparelli who first concocted this idea. Now, however, Mme. Georgette Renal has elaborated on the pocket situation for evening and produced a most remarkable and practical result.

The Renal evening pocket is a delight to the woman's heart who always is wishing she had her hands free to wrap her coat closely about her without having to clutch a handbag. The evening pocket also routs the nightmare of a purse clattering to the floor amid a shower of lipstick, powder and small change.

Renal pockets are stitched and cut so they stand out like miniature panniers.

Get Perfect Quilt With This Design

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



The quilting on a patchwork quilt may make or ruin the entire work, if the design and work is not done neatly. Beauty in the design is necessary, but the needlework and evenness of the stitches bring out the design, and if done right the result will be perfect and always admired. Needleworkers know the best way to transfer a design to cloth is through a perforated pattern. The design is perfectly drawn and perforated so that each stamping is alike and requires very little time. The stamping powder can be brushed off when work is finished, leaving no lines or marks.

Package No. 33B shown above contains seven actual size patterns, perforated on bond paper, also blue powder for stamping and full instructions just how to do it.

Pattern D 12—10 inch Spider Web is suitable for the center of the Wedding Ring Quilt. The outer lines may be omitted if a smaller size is wanted. D 11 is a 4 inch Butterfly Motif suitable for corners. D 10 is a 1½ inch Tulip Border. D 13—5 inch Feather Circle. C 7 a 2½ inch Floral border and corner. C 8—7½ inch Feather Circle. C 9—6½ by 8 inch Pineapple motif. These patterns can be used singly or in combination, and can be used many times. If they interest you, send 15c to our Quilting department, and these seven patterns will be sent you by return mail.

AZTEC MONARCH PIONEER IN THE ART OF GLIDING

Constantly they are discovering new things about the ancient Aztecs. Just the other day it was learned by student research that the early inhabitants of Mexico had invented a very modernized form of football; but even later comes, via Madrid, news of the Aztecs some five hundred years ago.

Discovery of this extraordinary fact was made by a Polish archeologist while delving into ancient records of the Franciscan missionaries. The Pole, Tenenbaum by name, had spent nine years in research in Mexico and, among the monkish documents there, found a description of what might be called an aviation school conducted five centuries ago by King Netza. Bird worship existed in Mexico as well as in Guatemala and also in the Mayan regions of Yucatan. An interest in flight quite naturally followed and flight, in the native thoughts, connoted feathered wings.

Unable to create power artificially, King Netza and his assistants fell back upon wind power in combination with gravitation. According to the Franciscan manuscripts, Netza insisted that his people should become more like their feathered gods so he began equipping them, and himself, with widespreading wings fabricated from storks' feathers. And the monarch, personally showing the way, "used to glide from the heights of the mountains into the deep valleys."

An engraved stone, said to have been discovered by Professor Tenebaum himself, shows the gliders in action and, most striking fact of all, the Aztec aviators are seen wearing goggles "not greatly unlike those worn today." Professor Tenenbaum recently exhibited his proofs to a scientific body in Madrid, but no doubt further research will follow this opening lead.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Soviet Bees Scorn Cold

Bees are humming in the hotbeds and hothouses of three state farms situated north of the Polar circle, reports a recent issue of the Moscow News. Oblivious of the sub-Arctic temperature, the bees gathered 16 kilograms of honey per hive in six days, and at the same time, through their activity, eliminated the need of hand pollination of cucumbers. The yield of cucumbers was consequently increased by 50 per cent in the hothouses and 200 per cent in the hotbeds. The successful introduction of bee culture to the Far North came on the initiative of Demidenko, director of the beekeeping station of Timiryazef Agricultural academy, who spent three years working on the problem.

Time

Most of us think of Time as the fleeting present, plus the days and years that are to come. This is the reason we lose out. Time is now. It makes little difference what we are going to do some time, but it does matter what we are doing now. —Grit.

"ISN'T IT amazing how coffee can affect a man like Jack?"

"Why, no . . . the caffein in coffee affects lots of grown-ups just as it does all children. It can give 'em indigestion, upset their nerves and keep 'em awake."

If you suspect that coffee disagrees with you . . . try Postum for 30 days. Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. Easy to make, and costs less than ½ cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too . . . and may prove of real value in helping your system throw off the ill effects of caffein. A product of General Foods.

Housewife's Idea Box

Substitute for Oranges

If you want to make a delicious marmalade but find that oranges are too expensive, substitute carrots. Grate the carrots and use the pulp the same as the orange pulp. Any good marmalade recipe can be used. There is only one thing to remember: If a large proportion of carrots is used, use a little less sugar.

Value of Kindergarten Shown in After Years

Education is a lifelong process. The better the beginning, the better the life. Elmer Ellsworth Brown, chancellor emeritus of New York university, once said: "From the kindergarten to manhood is so long a span that it is hard for many people to realize the full significance of kindergarten training for the adult life of our people. But there are certain ways—not altogether obvious though long recognized by the friends of the kindergarten—in which this foster-parent of our child-citizenship is vitally related to our citizen-life in its entirety." And Prof. W. H. Lancelot of Iowa State college writes: "Our great mistake in the past has been to throw away in many cases the years in which the life and character of the child are most easily shaped. We now know that habit formation is at its height in the pre-school years and that this is one of the most critical stages of child life."

The child who goes to a good kindergarten usually enjoys his later school days, and whatever his adult occupation may be he still continues interested in the world about him and in the accomplishments of his fellow men, just as long as he lives. Be sure there is a class, conducted by a properly trained kindergartner, for the boys and girls of your community. If you need help write to the National Kindergarten association, 8 West Fortieth street, New York city. There is no charge for any service rendered.

They Grew Them in Alaskan Waters

WHEN the United States coast guard cutter Northland returned the other day to Oakland, Calif., after seven months in Alaskan waters, the wives, sisters and sweethearts of members of the crew had some difficulty in recognizing their men, for all of them wore luxurious beards. The cutter was on its annual medical cruise among the Eskimos and seemingly carried no razors, though nearly every kind of surgical instrument was in its equipment. It gave medical and dental aid to 2,000 Eskimos in various ports, and also put ashore a force to help in the rehabilitation of Nome after the big fire.

Bedtime Story for Children

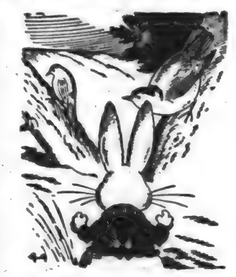
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER LEARNS SOMETHING ABOUT SEEP SEEP

"HELLO! There's Seep Seep! I haven't seen him since we were together up north, where his home was not far from mine," exclaimed Yank Yank the Nuthatch.

As he spoke a little brown bird alighted at the foot of the very next tree. He was just a trifle bigger than Jenny Wren but not at all like Jenny, for while Jenny's tail usually is cocked up in the sauciest way, Seep Seep's tail is never cocked up at all. In fact, it bends down, for Seep Seep uses his tail in climbing just as the members of the Woodpecker family use theirs. He was dressed in grayish-brown above and grayish-white beneath. Across each wing was a little band of buffy-white and his bill was curved down just a little.

When he alighted at the foot of that tree, Seep Seep didn't stop an instant but started up, going round and round it as he climbed and picking out things to eat under the bark. His way of climbing that tree was very like creeping and Peter thought that Seep Seep was well named the Brown Creeper. He would have liked to gossip with Seep Seep, but he knew that Seep Seep would waste no time that way.



"Hello! There's Seep Seep."

Round and round up the trunk of that tree went Seep Seep and, when he reached the top, at once flew down to the bottom of the next tree and without a pause, started up that. He wasted no time exploring the branches, but kept to the trunk. Once in a while he would cry in a thin little wiry voice, "Seep! Seep!" but never paused to rest or look around. If he had felt that on him alone depended the job of getting all the insect eggs and grubs on those trees, he could not have been more industrious.

"Does he build his nest in a hole in a tree?" asked Peter of Yank Yank the Nuthatch.

Yank Yank shook his head. "No," he replied. "He hunts for a tree or an old stub with a piece of loose bark hanging to it. In behind this he tucks his nest made of twigs, strips of bark and moss. He's a funny little fellow and I don't know of anyone in all the Great World who more strictly attends to his own business than does Seep Seep the Brown Creeper. He's little but he is mighty useful. Farmer Brown ought to be glad every time he sees him. By the way, Peter, have you seen anything of Dotty the Tree Sparrow?"

"Not yet," replied Peter, "but I think he must be here. I'm glad you reminded me of him. I'll go look for him."

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

WINTRY SUGGESTIONS

NOW is the season, while citrus fruits are plentiful, to prepare marmalades. As tastes differ as to bitterness in the marmalade, one has to be guided as to the amount of the rind used in the mixture. For those who like a mild and still flavorful marmalade use one each of lemon, orange and grapefruit.

Apple [illegible]

One of the most [illegible]tory salads for winter is the one of apples—small-sized Baldwins, or any good apple; peel carefully after coring and use apples of uniform size. Cook in sugar sirup with a small handful of the little cinnamon candies, which add flavor as well as color. When cool serve on lettuce stuffed with cream or cottage cheese and garnish the top with a sprig of parsley.

Grapefruit and Almond Salad.

Cut the pulp of two grapefruit into dice, add two ounces of blanched and chopped almonds to the drained pulp. Dissolve one package of lemon gelatin with boiling water and the juice from the fruit to make two cupfuls, using one cupful of grapefruit juice and one of water. When the mixture begins to thicken add the almonds and a tablespoonful of sugar. Pour into a mold and set away to harden. Serve with mayonnaise as a salad or with whipped cream as a dessert.

Casserole of Cauliflower.

Soak a head of cauliflower in salt water for half an hour, head down, so if there are any insects lodged in it they will come out. Break into sprigs of flowerets and cook in very little boiling water 20 minutes. Take one and one-half cupfuls of cooked macaroni, one and one-half cupfuls of strained tomatoes, one-half cupful of grated cheese, salt, pepper and buttered cracker crumbs. Add the cheese to the tomatoes and cook until the cheese is melted. Season with salt and pepper and pour over the layers of cauliflower and macaroni. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake about 20 minutes. Serve hot.

QUESTION BOX
By ED WYNN . . .
The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I went into a very fine cafe and ordered a cup of coffee, but I refused to drink it. It looked just like "mud." Can you tell me how or why a reputable cafe could serve coffee that looked like "mud"?

Truly yours,
VIC SALVE.

Answer: In all good eating places you will find the coffee looks like "mud" for the simple reason that the coffee is always GROUND right before it is cooked.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have been in ten drug stores but have been unable to get any bunion plasters. The druggists all say they wouldn't have them in the place. Can you tell me why?

Sincerely,
I. M. A. HEEL.

Answer: The reason the drug stores haven't any bunion plasters in their places is because the druggists are afraid of the law. There is a law against harboring FOOT-PADS.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Can you tell me the worst penalty imposed on a bigamist? In other words, what would be the severest penalty for a man marrying three women?

Truly yours,
UNO AWL.

Answer: His penalty is having three mothers-in-law.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Where does the goods go when you get a hole in your stocking?

Yours truly,
ANA POLOGY.

Answer: The same place your fist goes to when you open your hand.

MY BOY COMES HOME

By ANNE CAMPBELL

I THINK I know what heaven is like now—
A little yard where grass is growing green;
A robin chirping on an apple bough,
As from the fence the crimson roses lean.

It is late afternoon, and suddenly
I hear the gate click . . . the familiar sound
Of youthful footsteps coming close to me.
A shadow throws its length across the ground.

I think I know what heaven is—the strong
Young arms that I have waited for in vain;
An eager voice that I have missed too long,
And heaven breaks! My boy is home again!

CANADIAN STONEHENGE

Indications of similarity in primitive religious cults have been discovered in every continent, and it is now accepted that what is called the New world contains some of the world's most ancient relics of dead civilizations. A recent archeological find is reported from Canada. A museum curator was on a canoe trip with a friend in the Whitesheet forest preserve 100 miles east of Winnipeg, when they stumbled on a sacred area which they compare with Stonehenge. They found a number of large upright stones and monuments in weird formation, covering an area of several acres, which are thought to have been erected by members of a snake cult of Cree or Chipewayan Indians many centuries ago.—London Tit-Bits.

Little Girl's Face Inflamed by Psoriasis
Healed by Cuticura

"My little girl's face was so inflamed that her eyes were swollen almost shut. The trouble was diagnosed as psoriasis. She scratched night and day and was not able to obtain rest. The scratching aggravated the trouble and each finger tip was red and swollen with infection. She became so emaciated that she was very pathetic looking.

"After three months' suffering I recalled the Cuticura treatment used by my mother. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and used them according to directions. The first treatment brought relief and she is now healed." (Signed) Mrs. Marie I. Johnson, 4720 Ames Ave., Omaha, Neb., March 14, 1934.

Perhaps, the most mourned death in the United States in 1934 was that of Marie Dressler, movie actress, on July 28th.

The five awarded the most space in American newspapers in 1934 were as follows: President Roosevelt, Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini, Upton Sinclair, and the Dionne Quintuplets Only two of them live in the United States.

By paying a few cents per month Lloyd's of London will insure any woman in the world against quintuplets. The chances of quintuplets is only 1 to 57,289,761.

The Dionne quintuplets, Ontario, Canada, are six months old and in normal health. Each of the five has better than the average life expectancy of any normal child.

The law in North Dakota requires that the Governor must have resided in the state at least five years preceding election. However, Governor-elect T. H. Many countries have introduced a program for health insurance and medical care. Records show that none of these countries have ever abandoned such a plan. Some day our government will have health insurance in this country.

The Old Testament furnishes the instance of a man in the street who, maybe during a crop failure or on the verge of bankruptcy, called out of the darkness to the watchman on the tower, and received as an answer to his questioning hail, the assurance that "the morning cometh." In every neighborhood, in every store or factory, in every home, there is a tower of optimism. The person who ascends it at the New Year season will find that the east indeed is alight, and that the morning cometh.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JAN. 10, 1934 NUMBER 2

FOX DRIVE DREW LARGE CROWD SATURDAY

St. Joe was full of men, boys and automobiles Saturday morning, when they were preparing for the big fox drive across the river.

The territory was assigned the men and they then drove to the sections and started forming the lines. With those who went direct to the territory, 500 was the number estimated taking part.

When the lines began to pull in and the final roundup made, three foxes were enclosed but made their successful escape.

So enthused were the fellows, that next Saturday a second drive will take place, and we hope with many more men, and they are sure of a catch this time.

Bill Thompson, representative of the Prairie Farmer, was on the scene snapping the foxes and the men in action, and he has promised the films for the pest hunt dinner to be held soon.

Bills are being sent broadcast over the surrounding towns, in an effort to enlist a large crowd of sportsmen for the hunt Saturday.

No guns, no dogs, no license needed, just come with a club, and in the meantime find out just how to wield a club when it becomes necessary.

AUDITOR LYON CRASHES INTO TREE SUNDAY

Mrs. Frank E. Lyon, wife of the DeKalb county auditor, suffered a severe cut on her head and also shock Sunday afternoon in an automobile accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyon were on their way on Road 8 to their farm in Wilmington township. Lewis Schmidt, of Route 10, Ft. Wayne, ignored a stop sign at the intersection of roads 1 and 8, three miles north of St. Joe, at the Joe Hull Corners. He started across road 8 and Mr. Lyon, to avoid a collision, applied his brakes. His car swerved on the ice, turned around and struck a tree. The machine was badly damaged.

Mrs. Lyon was removed to the hospital in another car and her condition is not considered serious.

C. H. Sailor, son, Zay, and Merle Guilford, spent Sunday at Rome City, fishing through the ice, but with no luck.

COMMISSIONERS BOARD ALL DEMOCRATIC

The new board of county commissioners organized Monday by the election of Cleve H. Grube of Stafford township, as president, Arthur Grube of Keyser township, as vice president and Wm. H. Brecbill of Smithfield township, as secretary.

Mr. Brecbill succeeded Chas. G. Potter of Franklin township, and the board is now solidly democratic for the first time in a number of years. The new president takes the place of Arthur Grube in that capacity.

The board appointed Edgar W. Atkinson, of Auburn, as county attorney, succeeding W. W. Sharpless, of Garrett. The salary is $400 a year. Mr. Atkinson previously served as county attorney for several years.

Dr. M. C. Klingler, of Garrett, was reappointed county physician.

The reappointment of Mrs. Madge Robinson, of Waterloo, as court reporter was approved by the board.

Mrs. Ella Johnson, of Auburn, was reappointed court house matron.

BIG FIRE LOSS LAST WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The W. L. Hallabaugh residence, erected in 1880, was destroyed by fire at 10:00 o'clock last Wednesday night, the cause not really known. It was discovered by Rev. Wm. Koehnlein and wife as they were coming from the south, and by the time help arrived, only the lower rooms could be cleared of the furniture.

Mr. Hallabaugh, 93, could not understand that his house was on fire.

The property was insured by the Farmers Mutual and this is the first fire ever experienced by Mr. Hallabaugh.

In talking with Mr. Hallabaugh he stated that the brick was made in St. Joe at the Hart yards, and was laid up by Vice & Kaellner. The lime and plaster and such other materials were hauled from Fort Wayne and the lumber was all native, being sawed at the water mill at Spencerville and then dried before using.

The doors were butternut thru out and were made from one tree and the finishing lumber was poplar. Before building, he lived on the farm east of Dills bridge for ten years.

The loss is deeply felt by the town as this house was one of the land marks and was an imposing structure.

At present Mr. Hallabaugh is living with his children.

INTANGIBLES STAMPS READY FOR 1935

County Treasurer Claude P. Fitch has received a supply of intangibles tax stamps in the amount of $7,750 for 1935. Last year the sales of stamps here amounted to $7,585.

The 1935 intangibles tax will not be due until Feb. 28, that date being used for determining the value of intangibles. This is a duty performed by County Assessor Chas. E. Miser. All 1934 intangibles taxes must be paid by January 10.

Mr. Miser returned Saturday from Indianapolis, where he attended the annual conference of county assessors of Indiana. A new schedule for the assessment of personal property was adopted. Mr. Miser acted as chairman of the automobile committee. It was decided to place a $10 minimum assessment on automobiles and the valuations range up to 85 per cent of the cost of 1935 models.

The annual assessment of property will be started March 1. This year the work in each township will be in charge of the township trustees, excepting in Union and Keyser townships, which still have officers bearing the single title of assessor.

INCOME DISTRIBUTION NOW BEING MADE

Gross income tax receipts totalling $4,023,000 is being distributed among Indiana counties by Laurence F. Sullivan, state auditor.

The money will be used to pay $200 toward the salary of each public school teacher in the state. The last distribution was made July 1, 1934, when the total sent to counties was $4,007,200.

Amounts distributed by counties include the following:

Adams, $26,800; Allen, $142,000; DeKalb, $33,800; LaGrange, $25,800; Noble, $29,800; Steuben, $20,400; Wells, $26,200 and Whitley, $23,600.

Mrs. Strite Has Stroke

Mrs. Strite, who has lived just north of St. Joe for years, but was at Butler this winter staying with Mrs. Keller, mother of Roy Keller and Mrs. L. G. Fetters, suffered a stroke last Wednesday. Sunday when the Fetter family called, they found it necessary to call Sollie Shank, the son, and Mrs. Strite was taken to his home in a Butler ambulance. Her left side is affected.

LATER: As we go to press we learned that Mrs. Strite passed away and that the funeral was held Wednesday afternoon.

ST. JOE VALLEY BOYS WIN IN RURAL AMUSEMENT CONTEST

DeKalb county's rural stage celebrities competed in an amusement contest Friday night at the Court theatre in Auburn. Dramatic, musical and vaudeville acts, cleverly carried out held the crowd interested for two hours.

The St. Joe Valley Boys, a musical quartet from Spencer township, won first in the contest. As a result they will be given a trip to Purdue University on January 15th to compete in the state contest. The young men in the quartet were John Dermott, Loyal Hart, Kenneth Coburn and James Hart. They gave a concert of popular numbers on stringed instruments. Three judges from Noble county were unanimous in awarding this group first place.

Miss Hazel Stimman, of Jackson township, was given first place for the single entry. She gave two readings. In one of her readings Miss Stimman took the part of a male character and in the other a juvenile part. She will represent DeKalb county in the single event in the state meet.

Clyde Hart, of Spencer township gave a reading on "Recollections of Former Days," representing an old man who still had the love for his old native town, even though it had a delapidated appearance. Mr. Hart can imitate an old man to perfection and his reading went over big.

Grace Sheffer, Doris Yeiser and Hazel Baltz comprised the Concord township group in a playlet entitled "Boss by Strategy." How to manage a husband, the boast of the wife, was knocked into a cocked hat after the hen-pecked husband hired a good looking girl from an employment agency who posed as his former sweatheart and called at the home. The wife heard a conversation between her spouse and his fair visitor which caused her pain and surprise. The upshot of the matter was, that instead of going to the sea shore for a vacation as the wife had planned against her husband's wishes, the Mrs. decided they had better go to the mountains which the Mr. preferred, especially since the husband and the supposedly onetime sweetheart talked of the good time they would have at the sea shore.

Out of the eleven townships appearing in this contest, Spencer and Jackson took all honors.

MEETINGS TO BEGIN SUNDAY EVENING

Revival meetings will begin at the St. Joe Church of Christ next Sunday evening, Jan. 13 and continue until January 27.

J. Marion Small, of VanWert, Ohio, will show a reel of pictures and preach the sermon on Sunday evening (Jan. 13) in the absence of the minister.

H. K. Schondelmayer will close the revival in Newville the same evening and will be in charge of the St. Joe Meeting beginning Mon. evening, Jan. 14.

The St. Joe Methodist Protestant Church will be our guests on Thursday evening and Wm. D. Koehnlein, pastor of the M. P. Church, will preach that evening.

Mark Williams will have charge of the music during the meeting.

All are cordially invited to attend these services.

Thirty seven members of the St. Joe Church attended the Newville meeting on Monday evening. A bus load and individual cars made up the number.

SEEKING DIVORCE

Areitta Wilcox, of Fort Wayne, has started divorce proceedings against her husband, Wyllis Wilcox, also of Fort Wayne. They were married Sept. 12, 1920, and have one daughter, age 13. Mrs. Wilcox avers that she has no means to support herself or the child, but that her husband is director of a dance orchestra and earns $40 a week. She asks that the court require him to pay her $20 a week during the pendency of the divorce action. She also asks that she be granted the legal custody of the child.

MRS. NELLIE MASON DIES MONDAY

The death of Mrs. Nellie Mason, wife of Abraham R. Mason, occurred Monday morning at 9:10 o'clock at her home at 110 E. 10th St., Auburn, as the result of a complication of ailments. A week ago on Sunday she took sick with a severe cold which turned into influenza and pneumonia. Sunday she appeared improved. The pneumonia condition cleared up temporarily but she went into a coma. Her kidneys and heart became affected and she grew steadily worse. Mrs. Mason had been in poor health for eleven years from sugar diabetes.

She was 50 years of age on August 10th and her birthplace was Lapaz, Ind., the daughter of Geo. and Belle Ridgway. The family moved to St. Joe and eventually to Auburn Junction and for the last twenty two years Mr. and Mrs. Mason have resided in Auburn.

There survive besides the husband and the mother, three children, Emmitt D. Mason, Mrs. Mabel Morr and Mrs. Georgia Van Wagner, all of Auburn; three brothers, George Ridgway, of Valparaiso, Floyd and Derwood Ridgway, of St. Joe; three sisters, Mrs. Eva Chandler and Mrs. Olive Frye, of Hobart, Ind., and Mrs. Deama Curie, of Kendallville, and four grandchildren.

Mrs. Mason was a member of Crescent Rebekah Lodge No. 254, the W. B. A. and W. R. C. Her church membership was with the Progressive Brethren.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The W. B. A. members were in charge of the ritualistic service.

Thieves Enter Church

When the Sawdust U. B. Church five miles north of St. Joe, was opened for services Sunday morning, it was discovered that it had been visited by thieves. Forcing open a basement window, the intruders stole six dozen knives, forks and spoons, three or four dozen plates, cups and saucers, some soup bowls and three stew kettles. Sheriff Herbert Grimm made an investigation of the burblary Sunday.

Hope He Gets It

John P. Hoff, of Auburn, who retired as sheriff of DeKalb county Dec. 31, is slated for appointment as chief doorkeeper of the state senate when the organization is formed at a democratic caucus at Indianapolis Wednesday night.

WEDDING BELLS

On Thursday, January 3, 1935, occurred the marriage of Miss Beatrice Woodcox to Mr. Harold Miller, at Auburn, Rev. Keller performing the ceremony.

The bride is the esteemed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Woodcox and was graduated from the St. Joe High School with the class of 1928 and later from the Madam Blaker School of Indianapolis. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Miller, of Defiance. The young couple will make their home on a farm 1½ miles south of Defiance.

Smartness This Pajama Keynote

PATTERN 2045

There is no reason why pajamas should not be as smart as anything else a woman wears—and every reason why they should. Here are some that are as carefully designed as a suit. Look at the way that girdle business mounts in a becoming V in the front and ties in a clever bow in the back, emphasizing the slender lines of the waist. Those tiny revers are exactly the finish it needs at the neck, and the well-cut trousers are both comfortable and good looking. It is, of course, a two-piece model, nice to make in a neatly patterned cotton or a plain or figured flannel or challis.

Pattern 2045 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 takes 4⅜ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

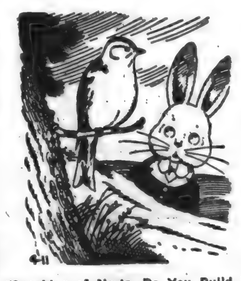
PETER FINDS DOTTY THE TREE SPARROW

HAVING been reminded of Dotty the Tree Sparrow, Peter Rabbit was eager to find him and learn how he had fared through the summer. He was at a loss just where to look for Dotty until he remembered a certain weedy field, along one edge of which the bushes had been left growing.

So Peter hurried over to the weedy field and there, sure enough, he found Dotty and a lot of his friends. They were very busy getting their breakfast. Some were clinging to the weed stalks picking the seeds out of the tops, while others were picking up seeds from the ground. It was cold; Rough Brother North Wind was doing his best to blow up a snow storm. It wasn't at all the kind of a day when anybody would expect to find anyone in high spirits, but Dotty was. He was even singing as Peter came up, and all about Dotty's friends and relatives were twittering as merrily as if it were the beginning of spring instead of winter.

Dotty was very nearly the size of



"Speaking of Nests, Do You Build in a Tree?" inquired Peter.

Little Friend the Song Sparrow, and looked somewhat like him save that his breast was clear ashy-gray, all but a little dark spot in the middle, the little dot from which he has been named. He wore a chestnut cap, almost exactly like that of Chippy the Chipping Sparrow. It reminded Peter that Dotty is often called the Winter Chippy.

"Welcome back," cried Peter. "It does my heart good to see you!"

"Thank you, Peter," twittered Dotty happily. "In a way, it is good to be back. Certainly it is good to know an old friend is glad to see me."

"Well, it IS good," declared Peter very emphatically. "At best there are few enough folks about in winter, and I don't know of anyone I enjoy having for a neighbor more than I do you."

"Thank you again," cried Dotty, "and please let me return the compliment. I like cold weather. I like winter when there isn't too much ice and stormy weather. I always feel good when it is cold. That is one reason I go north to nest."

"Speaking of nests, do you build in a tree?" inquired Peter.

"Usually on or near the ground," replied Dotty. "Really I am a ground bird, although I am called a tree sparrow. Most of us sparrows spend our time on or near the ground."

"I know," replied Peter. "I'm very fond of the Sparrow family. I just love your cousin, Chippy. I wish he would stay all winter."

Dotty laughed a tinkling little laugh, good to hear. "Cousin Chippy would starve to death," she declared. "He eats worms and bugs and has to go where he can get them. I eat seeds and can get plenty here, so I stay."

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

A young man invited me to the Metropolitan opera house where they were singing the opera "Aida." I went with him, but the minute we got in the theater he started talking to me and never stopped the entire evening. I couldn't tell you what the opera was about, as he talked so much I only heard him. He has invited me again to go next week to the opera "Il Trovatore." Shall I accept?

Sincerely,
I. LOVEJOY.

Answer: By all means accept and go with him, especially if you have never heard HIM in "Il Trovatore."

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have 17 children and I am the father of these 17 children and I want to take my 17 children to the circus to look at the animals, but I cannot afford to buy 17 tickets for my 17 children to look at the animals. What shall I do?

Yours truly,
I. M. SIMPLE.

Answer: Take your 17 children to the circus and ask for the manager. When he finds out that the 17 children are your children and that you are the father of the 17 children you won't have to buy tickets to go in and take a look at the animals. He'll bring the animals out to take a look at you.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

While on my vacation, at the seashore, I saw something shaking and about a mile out in the ocean. As I did not have my field glasses I could not make out exactly what it was that was shaking so in the water. My curiosity is aroused. Can you tell me what it was that kept shaking and shaking, all the time, in the ocean? I beg to remain,

Sincerely,
ALMA MOTHER.

Answer: From your description, of the way the thing you saw shaking so much and the fact that it was in the ocean, it must have been a Nervous Wreck.

Do YOU Know—

That the custom of strewing flowers on the graves of soldiers originated among Southern women during the Civil war. This beautiful custom gradually spread over the country and in 1868-69 Gen. John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., appointed the 30th of May as Decoration Day.

THE BURDEN OF TOMORROW

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE future may be dark with certain sorrow,
But I will walk a valiant way.
I will not take the burden of tomorrow
Upon my heart today.

I will not lift a sack of phantom troubles
From a remembered year,
And bear their bogus weight. Like silver bubbles
They soon would disappear.

I am content today! Why should I borrow
From Fate I cannot stay?
I will not take the burden of tomorrow
Upon my heart today.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

COLORFUL DISHES

THIS is the time of the year when entertaining is done for the young folks, when colorful and interesting dishes are more appreciated.

Chrysanthemum Salad.

Take bright thin-skinned oranges, wash, cut the skins from the blossom end to the stem end, but not quite through, leaving a small portion to hold the petals in shape. Cut into points to resemble a flower. Carefully remove the pulp, not to break the flower. Cut the pulp into small pieces, draining off the juices to add to the dressing. To eight oranges take one apple finely diced, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice poured over it to keep it from discoloring, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of diced celery and one-half cupful of broken nutmeats. Arrange the cups on lettuce, fill with the salad mixture, adding mayonnaise and seasoning to taste, using the orange juice instead of cream to add to the mayonnaise.

Cranberry Orange Salad.

Prepare molds of cranberry sauce. Arrange in the center of a nest of lettuce and place thin slices of orange around the mold. Top the cranberry with a rose of mayonnaise and place a candied cranberry on each slice of orange.

Roast Turkey.

Cut strips of fat salt pork and cover the breast of a firm, plump turkey or other fowl. After stuffing place in roaster and brown. During the baking baste every fifteen minutes with orange juice and lemon juice. Add two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice to a cupful of orange juice while basting. Use the liquid in the pan also for basting. The fruit juice enhances the flavor, making it more tender.

Prepare and bake a plain sponge cake in a square tin. When cool cut into rounds with a cookie cutter and cover with any creamy frosting. Roll in tinted coconut. Decorate with halves of nuts, sliced dates arranged in design or with bits of maraschino cherries or candied fruit.

Dome for a New Planetarium

WHEN the Hayden planetarium of the American Museum of Natural History in New York is completed it will have architectural features never before used. The workmen are seen here putting the outer covering on the dome.

Housewife's Idea Box

To Prevent Mildew.

If your closets are not dry enough to prevent mildew and that musty smell, try this: Place a bowl of quicklime in your wardrobe. The lime will also help to keep rats and mice away and for this reason it is well to keep some in the cellar.

Paris Acclaims the Beauty of Lace

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FOR sheer loveliness whenever, wherever, if ever has eye beheld a more entrancing array of lace evening gowns than those which are now gracing the midwinter social scene? When we say sheer loveliness we mean just that—sheer and lovely as the smart new laces and nets, chiffons and marquisettes can make the party frocks and evening formals now so voguish.

The importance of lace and net and various beauteous sheers of similar character cannot be over emphasized. Reports pour in from Paris in regard to the enthusiasm shown for gowns that are that thin and fluttery and diaphanous they needs must be made over foundational slips of silk, or satin, crepe or lame.

In describing the group of distinguished lace fashions pictured, we are so enthusiastic about the superbly lovely lace frock to the right in the trio we are going to tell about it first. It is a wedding gown which is real style news, gives it an added touch of glamor and romance, too. More and more brides are intrigued with the idea of lace for the all-important nuptial event. One of the reasons, perhaps, is that lace is so luxurious and beautiful in itself, it needs no furbelows and intricate cutting to enhance it. Silver lace is particularly sumptuous and it makes a really thrilling wedding gown. Ardanse of Paris, whose creations are ever strikingly original, creates this exquisite bridal costume of this silver lace. It has a square court train which may be draped as a wrap, as here shown, which makes it practical for the bride to wear as an evening gown later. A white satin godet is inserted at the side-front. The same satin borders the train, also the long sleeves.

In the charming black lace dress centered in the picture, Patou has very ingeniously contrived to coax a youthful little peplum to circle the hips and go ruffling down the back. From the picture one might easily fancy that net of large open mesh fashioned this dress instead of lace. However, it is really a rather heavy lace, smartly patterned in a conventional design which is younger looking than the more formal and ornate orals. There is just enough sophistication about this dainty frock to appeal to the bud "just out" in society who aspires to poise and dignity.

Speaking of the new net frocks, likewise the now-so-voguish marquisettes, they are going in for color for all they are worth, unusual tones such as raspberry, violet (said to be the coming big color), Marina blue, rust and dark red.

In regard to the gown illustrated to the left in the group, color adds to the enchantment of the lace which fashions it. For this gown of classic simplicity Callot uses a gorgeous copper-colored lame lace, posing it over a white crepy silk slip. The collar of white coq feathers is a grand climax.

A word should be spoken in regard to the tendency this season to employ laces of a flimy texture both in colors and black. The newer black lace dresses hold one almost spellbound in their fragile beauty. Then, too, among recent showings are stunning lace modes which display a riot of fine knife pleatings which form wide ounces and bertha off-shoulder decolettes and shoulder capes and other captivating details.

CONTRAST SLEEVES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The idea of sleeves contrasting the rest of the dress is holding good in midseason styling. Advance spring fashions and resort modes also emphasize this feature. Not only are sleeves in direct contrast but the matter of cutting sleeves and yoke in one is important, according to reports in regard to advance fashions. The dinner dress pictured is of dull black velvet with cut-in-one sleeves and yoke of sheer ribbed velvet which makes this dress practical for late-into-the-spring wear. A delicate rhinestone necklace, just the right length for the neckline, adds formality. The wide rhinestone bracelet also sounds the glittering note which fashion demands for evening. In reality this dress is part of a suit, having a simple, fitted hip-length jacket fastened at the small turnover collar with two handsome silver fox tails.

Feathers on Gowns

Evening gowns trimmed with pheasant feathers are seen in London.

NEW WRINKLES IN SPRING SHOWINGS

Peplums and pleats are the new wrinkles in advance style showings for spring, and in last-word touches for mid-winter costumes.

Pleats are cropping out all over the place—in evening gowns and daytime frocks, used to give skirt fullness in back or front, or to add character to a peplum flare.

They are showing up even in hat-brims and in scarfs, in bustle effects on evening gowns and in whole skirts for formal costumes of the naughty nineties school.

The tiered cape in starched net gains distinction if the net is pleated.

Sheer evening gowns are knockouts with voluminous skirts knife-pleated from waist to floor, with an additional pleated peplum flare on the fitted waist-length jacket.

Wide Belts and Princess Lines Are Now Emphasized

Two fashion specifications—wide belts and princess lines—are emphasized to a degree that makes it seem certain that there's to be no fooling about women keeping their waistlines well corseted and smooth.

In either case, it must be carefully and thoroughly digested that it is not a pulled-in or nipped waistline. Wide belts are now shaped so that they have a curved profile to coincide with the natural waistline, and thus putting a stop once and for all to the abrupt cut at top and bottom that has been the big drawback in wide belts in the past.

Turtle Neck Collar

The turtle neck collar is a feature of many sweaters and a novelty is the posing of this collar in a dark color on a light sweater, such as wine red on a creamy off-white.

Tucked Gloves

This season gloves entirely streaked with parallel lines of pin tucking will be worn by the Parisienne with her pin-tucked kidskin shoes.

Expect Census to Show Changes in Population

The census of agriculture, which will be taken early this year, may be expected to reveal many and important changes in land tenure in the United States and even show a violent disturbance in the balance between rural and urban population. Signs of the times that have been persisting since the last farm census point the way. The 1930 census was taken in the twilight of an industrial prosperity that has had few rivals and well along in the depths of farm despondency that also stands out in history. The backward march from population centers to the farm had not started in force. So the population count of 1930 was made at what was very close to the peak of the ascendency of urban population over rural.

A similar count for the forthcoming census will reveal a great difference in rural urban population, with a larger number of rural folk living if not working on fewer acres, many of them no doubt on a subsistence basis. Belief is that millions of former city workers who came from the farm have gone back there. To this factor must be added the unquestioned fact that rural births have more than balanced rural deaths, while the birth rate in cities in steady decline supports the thought that the 1935 count of populations will serve to change the ratio by which 56 per cent of the population of continental United States is urban and only 44 per cent rural. It is doubtful, of course, if we ever recross the line that was crossed between 1910 and 1920, when urban population exceeded rural for the first time, but there are many reasons to be found in support of belief that the 1935 count will be nearer balance. What will come to pass when industry is back on its feet and the business of urban centers is humming, as it has hummed before, is another matter. But we must in all fairness consider the happy time to come when the farming industry is back on its feet and humming and renews itself as a drawing card.

There are before us many schemes leading to the country, some of them good and some not so good. We are looking forward to the rehabilitation of the farm and farm life and, in natural sequence, revival of the smaller centers of business and industry that are classed rural and will probably always remain rural in the separation established by the census department. Decentralization of industry has its advocates who view industrial workers in the character of part-time farm workers on their own subsistence acres. Great areas of submarginal land are to be withdrawn and the land that is left worked to better advantage, with more workers on the fewer acres. Unemployables will be farmed out on their own small holdings, and the country made attractive to persons who are unhappy in the cities.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Crocheted Edges and Insertions

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

There are so many articles in the home that require an edging that needleworkers always want books on the subject so they can refer to them when looking for a dainty narrow edge for handkerchiefs or a wide edge for spreads, scarfs, etc. The edges shown here are narrow for handkerchiefs and give you an idea of the beauty in handsome edgings.

Book No. 26 on Crocheted Edgings and Insertions contains 72 patterns from which to select when an edging is wanted. A few motifs are also included for corners in napkins or tablecloths. The designs are old and new and illustrated in full size, with instructions.

Send 15c to our Crochet Department for this book No. 26, if you crochet and appreciate beautiful edgings.

WHY EAST WIND HAS ILL EFFECT ON SOME CROPS

Although science has been the "giant-killer" of superstition and folklore, in some cases it has proved rather than disproved seemingly unfounded beliefs. An interesting example of the proof of an old adage was announced recently at the Department of Agriculture.

Scientists at the department at first dismissed as an "old wives' tale" the statement of truck growers in some parts of Florida that "the east wind poisons crops." But F. L. Wellman heard it so often he decided there must be some basis for the idea.

The facts he tracked down bear out the folk idea that the east winds do injure many of the truck crops, although the poison explanation has no real basis.

In the so-called "celery delta area," 35 to 50 miles from the Atlantic coast, truck growers always have to fight a variety of pests—fungus and insects. They often suffer loss from "burning" of foliage by wind and sun.

It so happens that the east wind, in crossing the Gulf Stream, is warmed and takes up a large quantity of water. When the warm and moist wind reaches the truck area it deposits moisture as dew, which favors the growth of the plant pests.

The warmth and moisture develop fungus diseases. Some of the diseases are carried by aphids, which are waked by the warmth of the east wind. The aphid spread is aided by the wind so that growers can easily see that the eastern part of fields is affected first and most seriously.

Again it may happen that the tender green foliage will not be able to withstand the rise of 30 degrees accompanying an east wind, and it may "burn." So there is a real reason to dread the effects of the east wind, although its poisoning of crops is indirect.—Washington Post.

Spare the Spinach!

The main value of spinach lies in its good content of iron, its alkali-forming mineral, and its vitamin A, B, and C content. All these elements, however, are present in other vegetables. Naturally no two green vegetables are exactly alike in composition, but there is an advantage in this fact in that it provides release from monotony. Try serving some of the other green vegetables to your children and find out what they like; then you can gauge the amounts of these to provide exactly the same things for which you are using spinach.—Dr. Walter H. Eddy in Good Housekeeping.

Almost No Limit to Entre Dishes

Many Substantial Enough to Be Served as Chief on Menu Bill.

The French word entre has become almost Americanized from its constant use on formal menus, and on hotel bills of fare. It signifies side dishes that belong to a hearty group. They are not main dishes, such as roasts, joints, etc., but comprise such dishes as chicken a la king, broiled mushrooms, croquettes, escalloped sweetbreads and other escalloped dishes of meat, fish, fowl, vegetables, etc. In fact, many entrees are substantial enough for main dishes, although they would not be listed as such on menus. However, at hotels, clubs, etc., they are served on a la carte orders at patrons' wishes, instead of the heavier meats, fish, fowl, and bird orders. In the United States entres include an amazing assortment of foods, even broiled lamb chops, and veal cutlets.

However, it is the preparation of the foods which relegates them to the entre class, almost as much as the foods themselves. Sauces are of great importance; and fancy preparations of dishes. An unusual and yet a simple entre is sauted filet of fish with cabbage tartare.

Sole, flounder, or any filets, or even slices of fish such as halibut, salmon or cod, are lightly fried in a little butter or bacon fat. These are arranged around the outside of the platter or serving dish, which has in the center the cabbage tartare.

This is made by scooping out the heart of a young cabbage, chopping the heart fine, mixing it with tartare sauce and returning the cabbage preparation to the cabbage shell. This container is cut even around the top, making it closely resemble a delicate green bowl.

The foundation for tartare sauce is mayonnaise. To 1 cupful is added 2 tablespoonfuls each of chopped olives and gherkins, 1 tablespoonful chopped sweet pepper, ½ teaspoonful chopped onion, 1 tablespoonful capers and 1 tablespoonful minced parsley.

A more delicate cabbage tartare is made by using ¼ chopped celery to ¾ chopped cabbage, and the other ingredients as given. Should the homemaker not have all the other ingredients, some may be omitted. For instance, olives, sweet pepper, or gherkins, any one of which can be left out, but there must be diversity enough to change the mayonnaise into a tartare. Zest is necessary. Lemon slices should dress the fish about the platter, and it is attractive to have radishes interspersed.

RICKER

Waldo Edward Rickerd, only son of Edward and Letha Rickerd, was born February 4, 1920 at Albion, Michigan. At the age of two years, he with his parents moved to Newville, Indiana, where he has since resided.

At the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital in Indianapolis he passed from this earthly tabernacle to his heavenly home in the morning hours of Thursday, January 3, 1935, at the age of 14 years and 11 months. When only eight days old his little twin sister, Helen Mae, passed on before into that happy home, of which Jesus said, "of such is the kingdom of Heaven."

Due to his physical infirmities, Waldo was a constant companion in the home. The unfailing and abiding devotion and care that was so graciously and lovingly lavished upon him was always reflected by him to those around him.

Waldo greatly appreciated the fact that all that loving hands and hearts could do for him was being done. His disappointments in this life, his sorrows and pains have now been surely and permanently replaced in the happy home above. There he patiently awaits the coming of those who so devotedly and lovingly cared for him during his short sojourn upon this earth.

Waldo leaves to mourn his early departure, his grief-stricken parents, his two devoted sisters, Norma and Joan, and a host of relatives and friends.

Let us not sorrow unduly as those who have no hope but trust in God who knows and understands.

The English 11 and 12 classes are now studying "American Writers."

Early in February the Junior class plans to give a class play entitled "Path Across the Hill."

Mr. Franz Robuck, of Butler, county supervisor of adult emergency education, called at the school on Tuesday of this week and gave an outline of the work which is offered in the classes held in our South school building each Thursday evening. These courses art open to all people over sixteen years of age who reside in Concord, Newville and Spencer Townships. There is no tuition charge. Why not attend these classes?

Returns received from the Manchester College Achievement Tests as indicated by a large number of pupils from several high schools show that pupils in the local high school made scores which compare very favorably. We used these tests fourteen of the high school subjects.

Pupils on the sick list this week are Wilmer Osmun, Wayne Nicholls, Willis Reinhart, and Harold Baker.

Basketball

The Pleasant Lake first and second boys teams play on our floor on Friday evening of this week. The preliminary game will start at 7:30.

On January 18th our girls and boys teams go to Farmer, Ohio, to play return games with that high school.

Third and Fourth Grades

Betty Nicholls, Ned Keller, Zelma Donley, Estella Hart, and James Kees have been absent this week because of illness.

In our Arithmetic period each Friday we are having tests in Arithmetic The tests are copied for us by the typewriting classes.

We had a pleasant surprise on last Friday afternoon. A small friend of ours, Maynard Pugh, who lives at Pleasant Lake, Indiana, fell and broke his leg several weeks ago. We wrote "cheer-up" letters to him. Since he wasn't able to answer each of our letters, he sent each of us a stick of candy. That same afteroon we sent him our art pictures we had drawn last week.

Our spelling Honor Roll this week includes Virginia George, Jean Hurni, George Harris, and James Kees for the third grade, and for the fourth, Walter Fetters, Lewis Freeburn, Estella Hart, Loren Inlow, Dale Keeler, Earl Keller, Donald Kinsey, Patricia Maxwell, Frances Reidenbach, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude, Irene Sechler, Gladys Stewart, Alice Strong, Harold Wilmot, and Marilyn Zonker.

No more hunting of rabbits, Wednesday, Jan. 10 being the last day.

John Smith left St. Joe last week to make his home in the Guy Friend home at Angola.

Mrs. Lloyd Miller, of Detroit, was here the first of the week a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Andress.

Master Jimmie Koch brought his parents to St. Joe Sunday, to spend the day with grandpa and grandma Koch. The little fellow had not been here since Christmas week.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. P. Church will meet this afternoon (Thursday) with Mrs. J. C. Hull. Come early, as there will be special business to be taken care of besides the sewing.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hull and F. B. Leighty and wife attended the funeral of Minnie Faith Hawk at Churubusco, last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Hawk was a niece of Mr. Hull.

Jay Hart and family, John Varner, wife and grandson, and Mrs. Ada Mann were Sunday guests in the Curtis Hursey home. They enjoyed the birthday dinner in honor of Mr. Hursey's 59th milestone..

The Agricultural Conference at Purdue Universtiy next week will be represented from Concord township by Mary Krise and Emily Hallabaugh; Newville township by Mrs. Blen Moore and Spencer township by Thelma Hart and Zona Abel.

The new trustee, Abner Trostel, has opened up an office in the west room of the old hotel, now occupied by the Harley Like family, and will be in his office on Friday of each week, for the acommodation of the public. Due to the Farmers' Institute being held on Friday of this week, Mr. Trostel will be in his office on Thursday. See his ad elsewhere in this issue.

The towns benefiting by the volunteer petition for reduction in electric rates now served by the Indiana & Michagan Electric Co., are all those in Indiana now served by said company and will effect 23,700 customers, found in South Bend, Elkhart, Mishawaka, Lakeville, Lapaz, Osceola, Roseland, Ligonier, Butler, Grabill, St. Joe and Woodburn. The reductions allowed will be given later.

STRIKES LIQUID GOLD ON FARM

A copy of "The Sun" under date of January 3, 1935, Yukon, Oklahome, has reached our desk, and it contains a cut of an oil well derrick and standing by is Mr. H. G. Provines, a former St. Joe resident. We reproduce the article with the exception of the cut, as follows:

"Standing at the base of the 136-foot derrick erected by the Kerr Drilling Co. for an oil test by R. Carl Larkins et al No. 1 Provines in 33-13-5 4½ miles northeast of Yukon. The big aluminum painted derrick may be seen from Yukon.

"While we are all elated that a deep test for oil will be made in the immediate future the man in the picture, Mr. Provines, deserves special mention for having had the vision and determination to get the job done. When Provines started taking leases for a block north of Yukon, he encountered obstacles that seemed unsurmountable, but with the assistance of Frank Pazoureck, John L. Summers, Bernard Phillips, O. F. Frisbie, and others, he has been able to assemble a block of 9,160 acres for an oil test that if all signs do not fail, will determine a real oil field.

"Mr. Provines was not selfish enough to manipulate the deal to get the first well on his own place but by a strange irony of fate and the result of seismograph tests it was decided his farm is the most probable location of liquid gold, and thereby hangs the tale.

"It goes without saying we are glad of the success of Mr. Provines and his associates and while he was just taking a vacation from his duties as an instructor in the Oklahoma City schools, he is to be commended for his fine work in bringing to this community a real test for oil."

FOX DRIVE SATURDAY WAS WATER HAUL

The fox drive in the St. Joe Valley went over bigger than ever, but without success as far as catching foxes was concerned.

The crowd was double that of a week ago, and everything went off fine for those in charge, but when the closing in came, there were no foxes in the ring.

The drive of a week ago revealed three foxes, and possibly they were frightened from their haunts, as none were sighted. Next season drives will be scheduled earlier.

Those in charge were well pleased with the response of the public.

FARMER'S INSTITUTE ELECT OFFICERS

The closing session of the Tri-Township Farmer's Institute here on Friday afternoon selected Geo. Baams as the 1936 Chairman; Ed Pfaumer, vice chairman, and Louis Washler as secretary and treasurer, the institute to be held at Spencerville. They also voted to have a full display of grain and farm products and this is headed by John Ulm as chairman, with two assistants from each of the three townships.

The one day session this year only afforded a place for state workers, and this was deemed best due to local conditions, and everyone was well pleased with the day's session.

The play on Saturday drew the customary crowd, assuring the institute for next year with over three hundred adult members.

The play "Cindy" put on by the St. Joe Dramatic Club, maintained the high standard of play productions staged in past years and the ability of each player was demonstrated as being equal to their parts.

The production was lengthy and everyone seemed intensely interested throughout. The school orchestra furnished music between the second and third acts and preceding the play, while a girl's sextette from the Spencerville High School appeared in three numbers between the first and second acts.

BARTLETT

Sarah A. Bartlett, daughter of Silas and Almira Bartlett, was born near Maysville, Allen County, Indiana, March 7, 1854, and died in Chicago at the home of a niece, Ethel Hoffman, Jan. 13, 1935, aged 80 years, 10 months and 8 days.

Her parents soon moved to Newville, DeKalb County, Indiana where her girlhood was spent.

She never married but was always ministering to others. She was a milliner for many years, having had stores at St. Joe, Auburn, Bremen and Waterloo. At the last named town her health failed and she has made her home since with Mrs. Hoffman in Chicago, and Mrs. Harry Kees, of St. Joe, at whose home the funeral was held January 15th.

She leaves to mourn her death one brother, George Bartlett, of Fort Wayne, two nephews and four nieces.

She united with the Church of Christ at Newville in her girlhood days and remained a consistant Christian to the end.

Burial in Newville cemetery, Tuesday, services conducted by Rev. H. K. Schondelmayer.

TRI - TOWNSHIP EDUCATIONAL CLASSES

"What is the value of a library to the home" "What is the value of recreational guidance to youth and the community?" "Current events and present day problems." "The psychology of hypnotism." (Demonstrated.) These and many other questions are being presented and discussed each Thursday evening in the DeKalb County Rural Education classes, meeting in the St. Joe school building from 7:30 to 10:30. All adults over sixteen are invited to attend and take part in the discussion and the recreational program.

These classes are meeting in five centers in DeKalb County, as follows: North Keyser school, each Monday evening; Assembly Room, Courthouse at Auburn, each Tuesday evening; Butler High School, each Wednesday evening; St. Joe High School building each Thursday evening; and Ashley High School, each Friday evening. In each place the classes meet at 7:30 P. M. and close at 10:30 P. M. These classes are part of the Federal Emergency Educational Program for DeKalb County under the Emergency Education Division of the State of Indiana.

SPENCERVILLE HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Honor Roll for upstairs the 4th month includes the following pupils:

Seventh and eighth grades, none.

Ninth grade, Robert McInturf, and Hilda McNamara.

Tenth grade, Wm. Erick and Anna Mae Leavell.

Eleventh grade, Alice Baker, Lee Chapman, Carol Gerig, Warren Rectenwall, Fred Steward, Agnes Walker, Margaret Walter.

Twelfth grade, Fern Wright.

Those on the Honor Roll all four months of the first semester include: Robert McInturf, Lee Chapman, Carol Gerig, Warren Rectenwall, Fred Steward, Margaret Walter.

In order for a pupil to appear on the Honor Roll means that no grade dare be below a B, or 90% average.

5th and 6th Honor Roll First Semester

Marion Walter, Donna Mae Washler and Marcille Harper.

3rd and 4th Honor Roll

For December—Doris Chapman, Evelyn Kline, Evelyn Shook.

For entire semester, Evelyn Kline.

1st and 2nd Honor Roll

For December—Rachel Chapman, Maurice Woodring, Lorraine Rhodes, Marian Coles, LaVon Hart, Joyce Dean, Athalene Hensley, Rose Marie Crothers.

For entire semester—LaVon Hart, Joyce Dean, Athalene Hensley, Rose Marie Crothers, Maurice Woodring, Lorraine Rhodes, and Marian Coles.

The upper grades boast a record attendance for December with an average of 99.8%. The juniors led with a 99.95% attendance; the sophomores were next with 99.779 per cent; the seventh grade next with 99.772%; freshmen with 99.75%; seniors with 99.7%, and eighth grade last with a 99.6% average. For the entire four month period, the Seniors lead with a 99.1% average, followed by the juniors with a 98.7% average. The averages were cut down by the measles epidemic during the month of November.

The second semester is well on its way in the Spencerville schools, and we find exactly the same enrollment as the first semester. A few new courses appear and are pursued with much interest. Commercial Law is new in our school and should be a very useful and practical course. Shorthand is also a new course and is designed only for those wishing to major in the Commercial department. Two semesters is hardly sufficient time to enable one to use shorthand efficiently, but with one semester this year and two more next year, the pupils will be equipped to make use of their skill. Junior Business Training is designed to give practice in keping books and understanding accounts. To accommodate the needs of a rural community, farm records are being studied this semester. United States Gov't. is another semester course and displaces Health offered the first semester. In accordance with State regulations, Literature is taught the second semester, displacing grammar and composition of the first semester.

We are happy to report that Dallas Zimmerman and Josephine Chapman are anxiously awaiting the doctor's permission to be back in school.

Have you a cold?

Is your head stopped up, does your back and legs ache, do your eyes burn, is there a tickling or soreness in the throat, have you been sneezing?

If so:

1 Go to bed immediately.
2 Take a laxative.
3 Drink plenty of cold water.
4 Eat lightly of simple, nourishing food.
5 Before going to bed take a hot bath or at least a "hot" foot bath.
6 Use extra blankets so you can sweat the cold out of your system.
7 A hot drink, such as hot lemonade, will help you perspire.
8 Take cold medicine only when ordered by a doctor.
9 Stay away from other members of the household as the cold is very contagious.
10 Cough and sneeze into a handkerchief.
11 Keep dishes used by a cold patient away from those used by the rest of the family.

But why have a cold when you can prevent it?—

1 Stay away from people with colds.
2 Keep your body built up by eating "nourishing" food, sleeping eight hours, exercising outdoors and drinking at least eight glasses of water daily.
3 Train your skin to stand changes in temperature by frequent bathing.
4 Wear sensible clothing.
5 Breathe through your nose.
6 Have diseased tonsils, adenoids, or bad teeth removed.
7 Wash your hands often, always before eating.
8 Live and work in a well-ventilated room.
9 Sleep with open windows winter and summer.
10 Keep your feet dry.
11 If you are perspiring cool off gradually.
12 See a doctor if you keep on taking cold in spite of taking care of yourself.

SPORTS

The St. Joe Valley Pickles and the St. Joe Merchants split a double header at Hamilton last Wednesday evening.

The Merchants (are they hot?) won the game 34-25, while the Pickles lost 20-19.

The Pickles had two new players in the line-up, Irons and Prentice, who had not even practiced with the rest of the team. So Hamilton's lake water finally weakened the Pickles brine in the last stages of the curing.

The Pickles and Merchants play the Hicksville A C's and Merchants next Saturday evening, Jan. 19. Indications are that a large bunch of fans are coming with them. So get set to see the basket ball feature of the Pickles schedule.

First game, 7:30 prompt.
Admission, 10 and 15 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Goodwin, of Warsaw, Ind., spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Goodwin and family.

Sunday guests in the John Hart home were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Caskey and family, of Fostoria, Ohio, and Ben Jones and wife, of Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Donald Hart called on Mrs. George Geddes at Butler, Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Hart was nurse for Mrs. Geddes during her recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Ora Baker, of Bluffton, were here Saturday night, attending the play given for support of the Farmer's Institute. They are always glad to get back to St. Joe.

Mrs. Joe Knisely and family returned home Sunday after about four weeks visit in the George Knisely home at Auburn Junction. George has been on the sick list for some time but the doctor has stated that he will recover with the proper care.

Because of the chimney flue being closed with soot, a fire scare was the result Friday night at the Mrs. Adam Shilling home. The department soon arrived, finding out the trouble, they soon corrected it, and smoke was soon cleared out of the house.

A record in feeding hogs was reported this week by Frank Leighty, when he reported a gain of 124 pounds in 37 days, or an average of 3½ pounds per day. The second hog shows a gain of 104 pounds in 37 days, an average of 3 pounds a day less 7 pounds. They were different type hogs and different litters.

Mrs. Ed Storer caught her right hand in the electric wringer Monday forenoon. The flesh was torn up to the wrist. She was rushed to the doctor at once and it is thought no bones were broken, but due to the swollen condition it was difficult to determine. Her daughter, Beatrice was standing near by and witnessed the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shilling and two sons were Sunday dinner and afternoon guests of Mrs Shilling's mother, Mrs. Wm. Barrows, at Hicksville.

A bill providing for one year extension of moratorium on delinquent tax sale was passed by the State legislature, setting the sale date to February, 1936.

Mrs. Dan Shull, Mrs. O. K. Shull and J. S. Shull called at the J. R. Shilling home Saturday afternoon, and also called at the Mrs. Adam Shilling and Carlton Shull homes.

Hicksville plays the Valley Pickles here Saturday night in a fast game, and the public will want to see this game. A charge of 10 and 15 cents will be made. The Merchants will play a preliminary.

Jim Steward, who has served his allotted time in the CCC camps is now home with his parents, having received an honorable discharge from the service and giving him a splendid record of service.

NOTICE OF FINAL SETTLEMENT OF ESTATE

Cause No. 3894

Notice Is Hereby Given to all persons interested in the estate of Eliza R. Kinsey, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 16th day of February, 1935, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said deceased should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, My name, this 14th day of January, 1935.

MAYOLA KINSEY, Administratrix.

H. C. Springer, Atty. 3t3.

Fred A. Jenkins, by Attorney Edgar W. Atkinson, Saturday filed a complaint in the DeKalb circuit court against Anga Haner and Clara Sible on a note for $2,000 executed April 7, 1931, and for foreclosure of a mortgage against 79.69 acres of land in Concord township.

Culverts and small structures on over 500 miles of state highways in Indiana were widened during 1934 as one phase of the State Highway Commission's safety program. The work was chiefly on state highways where wider rights-of-way had been obtained and the shoulders widened. The widening of culverts and small structures is to be continued during 1936 with many miles of this type of work already tentatively approved. Collisions involving narrow culverts and small structures have played a major part in accidents on the state highways during past years, emphasizing the increased safety for motorists to be gained by the widening of these necessary parts of the highways.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

We reret to report that sickness has caused several pupils to be absent in the upper six grades during the past week.

Our new trustee, A. W. Trostel, called at the school on Tuesday of this week.

The Junior Class will present "Path Across the Hill' early in February. Watch this column for further announcement of the exact date.

Our girls and boys basketball teams go to Farmer, Ohio for games on Friday evening of this week. On Friday evening of next week our first and second boys teams play at Spencerville.

Two Games Won

On last Friday evening the local school entertained the boys basketball teams from the Pleasant Lake High School. In the preliminary Storer, Woodcox, Wiers, Curie, Goodwin and Davis outpassed their P. L. opponents and ended the game with a count of 31 to 5 in our favor. Our first team enjoyed a comfortable lead in the main game of the evening until in the closing minutes of the final quarter. At that time the P. L. boys braced and started a rally which tied the score and then sent them into a two point lead. At this point Coach Noffsinger made a substitution sending Kaellner into the game. Almost instantly Kaellner had a chance at the basket and made good thus again tying the score as time of the game ended. After one minute of rest the local boys came back in the overtime period and scored one basket and twice on attempts from the free throw line. Thus the game ended St. Joe, 32; Pleasant Lake, 28. The attendance at this game was disappointing as there was a deficit of $4.55 after expenses were met.

Third and Fourth Grades

On Tuesday of this week we wrote Roman Numerals in the fourth grade. We had a race to see who could write to the largest number, counting by 10's after counting by ones to 100. Hubert Bleeks and Walter Fetters were the winners for the boys, and Candace Loftus and Frances Reidenbach for the girls.

Our spelling honor roll this week includes Patricia Carpenter, Loren Inlow, Dale Keeler, Candace Loftus, Frances Reidenbach, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude, Alice Strong, Harold Wilmot and Marilyn Zonker.

The third grade have just received their new Seatwork books. We are going to enjoy them very much.

Boys and girls absent from our room last week were Betty Nicholls, Ned Keller, James Kees, Zelma Donley, Estella Hart, and Jean Hurni.

Mrs. Albert Moore and Mrs. Roy Reidenbach visited our room last week.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

A large safety poster was made in our room last week to stress looking both ways before we cross the street.

The Spelling honor roll for the week of Dec. 31 to Jan. 4th consisted of Mary Close, Franklin Sechler, Frank Curie, Ruth Donley, Evelyn George, James Hamilton, Ruth Keesler, Chalmer Shuff and Sylvia Washler.

Those on the honor roll for last week were DeWayne Cook, James Hatch, Burnadine Wade, Harold Yeiser, Ruth Donley, Evelyn George, Paul Keller, Myra Keesler and Sylvia Washler.

Recent visitors of our room were Mrs. Ralph Sechler, Miss Cecil Shull and Miss Dorothy Close.

REVIVAL IN PROGRESS

The Revival Meeting at the Church of Christ is under way with a fine interest and cooperation. Special features and music are presented each evening.

On Thursday evening of this week, the members of the local Methodist Protestant Church will be our guests and Bro. Koehnlein will bring the message.

We extend a cordial invitation to all, to attend these meetings.

Every one present enjoyed the fine service given by Bro. J. Marion Small last Sunday evening. We hope he will come again.

FIRE MIGHT EXACT!

IF the woodshed roof suddenly blazed up, so much dry tinder on fire . . . it's not likely that you could extinguish it with a bucketful of water and, certainly, you could not wait for the fire department to arrive.

Building, cattle, your family, to say nothing of stored grains and other provisions might be imperiled by fire any moment. Isn't it worth while to know that on instant demand, pressured-water is always ready to furnish an invincible stream of water ready to fight—and win—your battle with destruction?

Running water under pressure is a necessity on the modern farm. If your farm isn't equipped with electrically pumped water, don't delay until it is too late. Ask us today for full details.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JAN. 24, 1935 NUMBER 1

FISH AND GAME CLUB FEED A HUNDRED

The culmination of the pest hunt activities of the local Fish and Game Club, resulted in the winners being treated to a dinner at the gym last Wednesday evening. One hundred men and boys braved the rain and ice to enjoy this annual event. The dinner was served by the M. P. Ladies Aid Society and the men who were defeated served the tables.

The program was in charge of E. Storer and F. A. Jenkins was chairman of the program committee. Each year a paper will be read by the losing side, setting forth the amusing incidents connected with the week's hunt, and John Crothers, captain of the defeated pests was called to read the paper prepared by the committee. It is as follows:

Bingville Bugle

The widely advertised St. Joe Valley's famous Pest Hunt and Fox Chase season has come to a close.

To the public eye everything seemed to be serene and above board, but to those on the inside, who were discernig enough, many things were evident that could not very well stand light of day.

It is not our intention to find fault with the way things were run by the numerous, "In fact too numerous," Captains, Lieutenants, Sergeants, Corporals, and just plain pests, but many things have come to light which we think the membership should be made acquainted.

In the first place there was the matter of choosing sides for the Pest Hunt. This formality was conducted by our Hon. Secretary, who was not a paid up member at the time, but who promptly aligned himself with the side that won the hunt.

Can the Hon. Secretary tell us just how he knew which side was going to win if there was not some conniving before hand.

We cannot state positively that preference was shown to the Captain of the winning team in the matter of members for his team, but we do state positively that he had a preferred list of 21 names of men that were given him before the drawing took place. How come?

The losing Captain let him get away with this, simply because he was a big hearted, easy going guy, and because he figured he was getting the pick of the big game hunters, with proven skill in the art of hunting mice and sparrows. But what a disappointment. He will know better than to trust any one from his neighboring city or any of its suburbs hereafter.

Then there was the incident of the reputable farmer from west of town, who raises melons and rats in large quantities. This gentleman whole heartedly gave his permission for members of either side to go to his place and catch all the rats they could, and when a group of members from the losing team did go and kill off about a thousand rats, this scoundriy double crosser sneaked in, as those men were counting the kill and stole a good half of the tails and turned them over to the opposing team. Could anything be more revolting to the sense of fair play than such a dastardly trick as that?

Why didn't he, like a man, say that he was a member of the opposite side, and I am sure that the men who killed his rats would never have gone near his place at all.

Why! We know that one member of the losing side, in the goodness of his soul actually signed up a member and gave him to the opposing side just to cheer them up and give them some encouragement, and then to think that the winning team actually stooped to such low tactics to win. They are gradually coming to light and the whole truth will some time be known.

We know of a party of pest hunters that were just scouting around the country on a stormy afternoon to see if they could pick up a crow or a hawk. They happened to catch up with the Captain of the opposite side walking along the road and big heartedly offered him a ride right to his own front yard which he accepted. As he alighted from the car his demeanor changed instantly and he practically ordered the gu-up out of his territory saying they had no business there. That's gratitude for you.

The writer of this article happens to be one who makes frequent visits to the General Store at Concord which evidently was headquarters for the schemers and planners of the dirty tricks and methods used by the winning team and at my entrance to the store a very loud silence ensued. It was quite apparent that they had no desire to have their plans become public. Now I am asking you! Why should such secrecy be kept in such a simple and wholesome pastime as pest hunting, if there were not some foul schemes afoot which would disgrace the group that perpetrated them?

But we let that all pass.

The pest hunt was over to the satisfaction of the winners at least. The losers taking their defeat very graciously, immediately started plans for the entertainment of the winners, hoping secretly that they all choked.

Meanwhile during the week plans were being laid for what was hoped to be a very successful fox chase. The details had been discussed pro and con, "mostly con." Boy! What arguments took place.

If there were as many fox in the country as there were claimed to have been seen by different men, they would be as numerous as sparrows. But finally order was brought from chaos and then began the task of naming different captains for different points of attack. Naturally there were many volunteers to take over captaincies. Two men in particular were very insistent that they be given the post nearest to Spencerville to begin their activities. Incidentally they saw the greatest number of foxes.

One of our town's most brilliant young men had been chosen to supervise the obtaining the permission of land owners to cross their lands and to boss the hunt in general which he did with his usual success and lack of exertion.

The big day arrived and the men from far and near began to congregate in our fair city and were soon taken to the scene of the hunt and the drive was on. Reports flew thick and fast. The circle began to tighten. Foxes were seen here and there skulking in the brush, a green one was reported from the Spencerville side of the circle. Men began to shout and whack the brushes, and the circle became smaller and smaller. We had the foxes in there, plenty, but where was the captain of the winning pest hunt team? Absent. What was he up to now? It finally came out.

As the circle closed in on the fox it became apparent that we had but one monster fox to cope with and "boy what a fox," at least six feet long not counting the tail, and was he a scrapper?

Round and round he went in the circle's tightening coils, just a few seconds left to the old chicken thief. His tongue was out, his sides heaved with his hard breathing and tears filled his eyes for he knew his number was up. But was it? There! Right there was a gap in the circle and with a mad dash he was through after a tussel with a club in the hands of a hunter and Bro. Fox was on his way. But now fellow hunters who left that gap in our circle?

I must tell the truth if its the last thing I do. If. Mind you I say, if. If my friendly enemy the captain of the winning pest hunt team had been where he should have been that day, the fox would never have left the circle.

A sad, but wiser gang decided thus and there to try once more to catch the foxes they knew were in the vicinity and a date was set for the following Saturday.

The Prairie Farmer man that then took our pictuers, moving and still, seemed to be quite enthused with the spirit of the chase and in his enthusiasm and a lot of agility managed to tear down about 40 rods of fence for a land owner and the land owner brought his wrath and a threat of a law suit down upon our heads.

After the disappointment of the first fox chase had worn off, plans were completed for a more successful second one. It was taken for granted by all that this fox chase was to be so perfect, that a field mouse could consider himself a strategist if he succeeded in getting through the lines without being detected.

Everything has been thought of and it was just simply a matter of time until the boys would be counting their foxes.

A larger crowd of men were there than attended the first

ST. JOE VALLEY HAS MANY PRIZE WINNERS

D. N. Roberts was in town Tuesday, representing the Prairie Farmer's mass meeting and entertainment to be held at Auburn next Saturday with free moving picture at the High School gym at 2, 6 and 8 P. M., and while here he gave us a list of the successful nominees from the Valley who were awarded valuable prizes in their particular class, as follows:

Freckled Face Boy, Carl Goodwin, awarded a base ball glove by Auburn Hardware.

Old Time Fiddler, D. D. Burley, born 1845 and will be 90 years old Nov. 4, was awarded an electric lantern by Mutzfeld Hardware.

Oldest Farmer, Wm. L. Hallabaugh, 93, awarded a 5 pound box of candy by Russell's Confectionery, Auburn.

Smallest Feet, Mazie Brown, 17, sophomore in St. Joe High School, awarded a pair of shoes by J. C. Penny Co.

Freckled Face Girl, Esther Richards, 17, Senior in St. Joe High School, awarded box of stationery and calling cards by Modern Account System, Auburn.

Oldest Mother-in-law, Florence Wilmot, 82, awarded a sack of flour and sack of sugar, by Oberlin Grocery Co., Butler.

Besides these many others from over the county will be shown in moving pictures as the successful nominees in their respective classes.

NEW TUBERCULOSIS CLINIC IN AUBURN TO OPEN SOON

The DeKalb county branch hospital of the Irene Byron sanatorium at Huntertown which is being established in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Campbell at 325 East Ninth Street, Auburn, will soon be ready for patients.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Soloday, the orderly and nurse who will be in charge, are here and are getting the house in shape and it will not be long, possibly this week, when patients will be moved into the hospital.

Eight beds are up, equipment is being installed, three local people who have made applications to be cooks and housekeepers will be tried out and before many days the hospital will be in full operation.

SPORTING NEWS

The St. Joe Valley defeated the Hicksville Merchants last Saturday eve in one of the fastest and most interesting games seen here in a long time. There were no individual stars as the Pickles were clicking in every degree. Score 34-22.

The Pickles have an outfit now that is worthy of the products they represent, namely Sechler's pickles.

The Merchants with a patched up line up were befeated by the Hicksville Independents with a score of 41-31. They were minus their big center Variees and that hurt. Watch these Merchants do their stuff, they are plenty good.

The Pickles take on the Fast Linco team Saturday eve, Feb. 9, while the Merchants play the Westminster Church the same night.

The team wishes to thank all you fans for the splendid turn-out Saturday eve.

Both teams will go to Hicksville Friday night for a return game and ought to have a large following of fans.

Paul Curie, Mgr.

Poorly Again

Mrs. George Milliman is reported not so well again, suffering with high blood pressure and is under the care of her physician.

To Move to Farm

Leonard Jarrett will move from the Lysher property in two weeks to begin work for Mrs. Mildred Curie on the farm. They will live in the home east of the Curie farm now occupied by Wayne Trostel and wife.

On Primary Law

"I don't think a bill to repeal the primary law will be passed and it's likely that none will be introduced," said State Senator Larry Brandon of north of Auburn Saturday in commenting upon the opening of the legislative session at Indianapolis. "I believe it would be a mistake to repeal the law."

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

In Knox county, Missouri, there are, on an average, twenty-nine sheep to every farm.

Max Wayne, the ninth child of Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Wiers, was born Wednesday, Jan. 16.

Frank Rainey and Paul Kissinger, of the Higley Printing Co., made The News a social call Saturday afternoon.

Russell Tustison is home from Butler, Pa., where he spent several weeks with Forster Ferrell, and of course looking for work. He reports things in the east rather slow in general, although a number of plants are working good hours.

Elgin Curie was laid up for a few days last week from injuries received in a fall, Wednesday afternoon at Auburn. Coming out of the court house, his feet slipped on the ice covered steps and he fell several feet very nearly breaking his hip. He is walking almost normal again.

No other disease is as dangerous to children under the age of five as is pneumonia. Protection from pneumonia depends upon protecting a child against exposure to colds, measles, whooping cough and upon the proper nutrition.

Threatened defeat of administration plans to enact a state NRA law during the present session of the legislature may necessitate a special sesion next summer. The entire republican minority and nearly half the democratic majority in the legislature will refuse to legislate against business so long as congress can take the "heat," it was learned. Opponents of the bill want to await congressional action on the NRA before taking the matter in their own hands.

High School Notes

SPENCERVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Our post-graduate, Hazel Stiman, had the honor of being represented in the contest at Purdue.

We have been informed that the Biology class is having a pest hunt. I'm sure they won't have to hunt far, as we have a big pest right in our high school assembly. As to who—we'll let you come to S. H. S. and find out.

The talk of the Senior class seems to consist mostly about their class play. Pick a good one seniors! ! They are also having salesmen call the first week in February to show them announcements and name cards.

The typing classes had a foot ball game Jan. 16. The teams for the first class were Dorothy Markie, Paul Hensley, Edith Sylvester, and Lois Gerig, Captain.

Anna Ruth Haupt, Dorothy Brattain, Margaret Walter and Fern Wright, Captain. The former team won with a score of 48 to 84. Dorothy Markle and Fern Wright were the high players having 21 points each. The second typing class had a tie game with a score of 33. The teams were Isabel Chapman, George Blondell, Dola Hurni, Margaret Kimes, Captain.

Merle Dean Furnish, Arthur Hamn, Pauline Furnish, Margaret Cormany, Captain. Pauline and Isabel were the high players. Each having 14 poinas.

So far the seniors have been leading the attendance. Hurrah for you Seniors! !

Stop, Look and Listen

The Blind Tourney was held at Leo Saturday afternoon and evening. The four teams that played were Harlan, Concordia, Leo and Spencerville. The teams that played in the afternoon were Harlan and Leo, Concordia and Spencerville. Leo won over Harlan with a score of 23 to 21. Spencerville won over Concordia with a score of 20 to 17.

In the evening games the two winners played and the two losers played. Leo won over Spencerville with a score of 28 to 20. Harlan won over Concordia with a score of 10 to 16. We are glad that, if we were not able to take the tourney, Leo was.

Due to the improvements being made in our gym, we were unable to hold B. B. practice in it for one week. We want to thank Leo and St. Joe for letting us use their gyms.

Although the gym is not yet finished, there was a game Friday evening. LaOtto's first and second teams played. LaOtto won over Spencerville with a score of 27 to 25.

Our first and second teams went to Ashley Saturday evening. Ashley won over Spencerville with a score of 23 to 21.

Our next game will be with St. Joe, Friday evening, Jan. 25, here.

Home Economics Notes

The classes in clothing are altering patterns and selecting materials for making spring dresses. A brief study of line and color enabled each girl to select a a pattern and material that is especially becoming to her individual type and personality.

The home nursing class is learning to make a bed properly. Members of the class act as patients and there has been real practice for the girls in the laboratory.

Lillian Kling and Loa Laux (members of the department last year,) were recent visitors.

Music

The girls glee club sang at the Farm Bureau Jan. 8th. The girls sextet sang Sat. evening Jan. 12 at the Farmers Institute play. Loren Dale Laub and Virginia Poper sang a duet Friday afternoon at Institute, the seventh and eighth grades sang also.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Helen May Coles, Lavern Furnish, Merle Goldsmith, Donna Mae Washler, Marion Walter, Betty Shockley, Lavon Furnish, Paul Crothers, Carol Reed and Billy Baker received 100% in Spelling this week.

Third and Fourth Grades

There has been several pupils absent due to illness.

First and Second Grades

Marion Coburn, Athalene Hensley, and Carl Ankney received 100 on our Arithmetic test this week.

The following second graders received 100 in Spelling this week, Hazel Ankney, Betty Bice, Marion Coles, Richard Francies, Charlotte Graves, LaVon Kline, Lorraine Rhodes, Richard Shilling, Maurice Woodring and Bill Mansfield.

Notice

There will be a Carnival held in the gym just as soon as it is finished.

ST. JOE PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

County superintendent Stallman and Trustee Trostel made an inspection of the school buildings on Tuesday of this week. They also visited some of the classes.

Influenza and measles have caused the absence of several pupils during the past week.

The eighth grade is beginning the study of civics after completing the study of Indiana History.

County tests in arithmetic, geography and history will be given in the junior high school grades on Friday of this week.

P. T. A. Monday Evening

Due to the fact that evangelistic meetings have been in progress in one of the local churches the January Parent-Teachers meeting has been deferred until next Monday evening. County superintendent Stallman will make the address of the evening. We understand that the Vocational Home Economics Department of the school will serve refreshments on that evening in order to procure some funds needed in the department's work.

Basketball

Garrett High School will send boys basketball teams to St. Joe on Saturday evening of this week to play our boys teams. This may be the last home high school game of the season and we would be pleased to have a good attendance on that occasion. Remember that our first boys team has won the last three games played.

On Friday evening the local boys teams play at Spencerville. The later school is planning to make Friday evening a special occasion in as much as their basketball hall has been remodeled and will accommodate a larger crowd than formerly.

Won and Lost

Last Friday evening the boys first team and the local girls team journeyed to Farmer, Ohio where the boys won by a score of 52 to 15 and the girls lost by a margin of 33 to 13.

For the boys Simanton and Monroe did the basket shooting. Simanton is credited with 18 points and Monroe scored 16. Watch our boys team in action against the Garrett teams on Saturday evening.

First and Second Grades

We are making "Farm Booklets" and "Winter Booklets" in the first grade.

For art work last week the second grade made individual wall clocks, this week we are making a grandfather clock as a class project.

Pupils absent from our room this week are Helen Ricketts, Helen Wiers, Opal Kinsey, Harold Curie, Glen Epler, Samuel Kees, Ima Lee Wade, Maxine Nicholls, Mary Louise Woodcox, and Walter Stewart.

Recent visitors in our room were Mrs. Helen Wade and Mrs. Mildred Curie.

Third and Fourth Grades

We have heard the last chapter of Tom Sawyer. We were sorry the book was so short, because we were greatly interested in all the characters and their queer experiences.

Walter Fetters is at home this week entertaining the measles.

Our spelling honor roll for this week includes Patricia Carpenter, Jean Hurni, James Kees, Betty Rudolph, Maurice Shuff, Walter Fetters, Estella Hart, Loren Inlow, Dale Keeler, Roscoe Moore, Patricia Maxwell, Mary Ellen Rude, Irene Sechler, Harry Strong and Marilyn Zonker.

Several from our room were absent last week because of the icy roads.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Howard Rickett and Rose Ayers have returned to school after several days absence on account of measles.

Franklyn Sechler was absent all last week because of sickness.

Those on the honor roll in spelling last week were Frank Curie, Jr., Ruth Donley, Evelyn George, Jack Goodwin, Harold Inlow, Paul Keller, Myra Keesler, Alice Richmond, Dorothy Stewart and Sylvia Washler.

Mary Likes proved to be the champion story-teller in the fifth grade language class last Thursday.

LUTHERAN CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENT

Sunday morning, Jan. 27, at 10:30 o'clock, will be Rev. A. H. Fabianske's farewell sermon at the St. Joe Lutheran Church. There will be a congregational meeting immediately afterward, followed by a pot luck dinner in the basement as a farewell reception to our Pastor. All members and friends of the congregation are urged to be present at these services.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

HOME BUREAU

The January meeting of the Concord Township Home Bureau met at the home of Ethel Wineland. The meeting was called to order by the president, Gertrude Borthwick. Opening songs were led by Laura Washler after which the Club Creed was read by all. Bills were presented and allowed. After which the secretary's report was read and approved. Twenty-five members responded to roll call with "What I Want the Officers to do This Year," or "Imitate some Barn Yard Fowl."

Bird Nicholls then presented each new officer and Arline Koch told of her good qualities after which each officer gave a response. "Tired Hands" was then read by Violet Moore, followed by a reading by Bird Nichols followed by several "One Minute Dramas" by Doris Yeiser, Gertrude Borthwick and Violet Moore. Mrs. Borthwick then explained her contest, "Most for Three Cents" which is to end in December.

The meeting was then adjourned to be served a repast of fruit salad, cake, sandwiches, cheese and coffee.

Machines in which balls are shot at holes for the purpose of determining a score were declared by the attorney-general at Indianapolis Monday to be gaming devices, if the players are rewarded on the basis of their score, and as such are illegal. An opinion was sent by Philip Lutz, Jr., attorney-general, to Al G. Feeney, state director of public safety. "In my opinion there is no question but that such a game is a game of chance," the opinion said, "and the device when so used therein and in such manner is an illegal gaming device. It is idle to assume that the person putting his five cents into the machine may be doing so merely as a means of entertainment. It is idle to deny that the impelling motive is the hope of scoring in order that the player may be rewarded financially. If the machine did not afford that chance its operation would not be profitable nor the use thereof extensive. The element of chance is the soul of the transaction. The operator hopes by chance to receive something for nothing. The dealer hopes chance will save him from giving something for nothing."

chase and so great was the attraction that quite a few women and girls had donned overalls and were determined to be in at the kill.

The circle was to converge on the back forty of our fellow member Clyde Hart, who had practically guaranteed us at least four foxes, and had went to the back forty earlier in the A. M. and plugged all fox den entrances to be sure they would not hole up.

Twas a swell day for the drive and everything seemed to be clicking. The lines closed in gradually beating out all thickets and swamps and every one was feeling gay and sure of seeing a fox before long, there wasn't a hitch any where, those wonderful plans were sure clicking.

At last the crowd had circled solidly the last line of march and waited for the word to close in on the fox which must surely be inside that circle, although no one could be found who would swear that they had actually seen one. The final drive was then ordered and with a lot of noise and activity the crowd closed in and prepared to do battle to anything that moved inside those ranks and something did move, and fast too. One badly scared rabbit made a mad dash to escape but in his haste and fright dumped himself in the creek and was caught by some boy.

So ended one of the most elaboratly planned and executed fox drives in the annals of fox chase history.

Officers were elected for the new year as follows:

Chairman, John Crothers.
Vice Chairman, Roy Wade.
Secretary, Hollis Akins.
Treasurer, Roy Reidenbach.

Directors, Geo. Walter, Walter Morr, Geo. Simanton, Irvin Chubb.

Member of County Council, F. B. Leighty, with Fred Jenkins as alternate.

Custodian of Equipment, Lestes Coburn.

The picture reel of the fox hunt taken by Dave Thompson, for Prairie Farmer, were shown for the first time and they were excellent. W. E. Renshaw and D. N. Roberts were here and participated in the program.

The first regular meeting of the association will be held at the Town Hall on Thursday evening, Jan. 31, and a good turn out of the 1935 membership is urged.

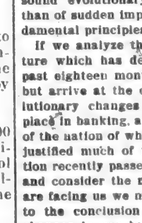
BANKING EVOLUTION

By R. S HECHT
President American Bankers Association



R. S. HECHT

BANKING at one time was a private business, but more recently has developed into a profession—a semi-public profession. This change has not come suddenly but is the result of an evolutionary process. Banking has grown and changed with the growth and change of our country.

The banker who has survived the trials and tribulations of the past few years has proven himself a man of courage and ability, and we may well expect him to meet the problems that lie before him with resolution and sound judgment.

Changes of momentous importance have occurred in our economic structures and bankers have had a difficult road to travel. Some will argue that all of these changes were evolutionary and inevitable, while others look upon many of them as revolutionary and unnecessary. It is extremely difficult to trace with any degree of accuracy the real causes for many of our troubles and it is not always easy in judging these developments to distinguish properly between cause and effect.

Unfortunately it has become the fashion to blame on our banking system all the troubles which the depression has brought. As a consequence we hear much of needed reform of banking by law. No one will deny that certain defects have developed in our existing banking laws which need correction, and that certain abuses were committed which no one wishes to defend or have remain possible in the future. Never before were bankers more determined than they are today to bring about whatever changes in our banking system are called for by the public welfare.

The best results can and will be accomplished by normal processes and gradual adjustments of our present private banking structure—suitably supervised by proper authority—rather than by the passage of still more drastic laws, offering panaceas in the form of more government-owned or government-controlled financial organizations.

The Basis of Good Laws

Lasting laws relating to any phase of human need are formed and modelled in the rough school of practical human experience and are usually the result of sound evolutionary processes rather than of sudden impulses to change fundamental principles.

If we analyze the new banking picture which has developed during the past eighteen months, we cannot help but arrive at the conclusion that evolutionary changes which have taken place in banking, and the economic life of the nation of which it is a part, have justified much of the banking legislation recently passed. As we look ahead and consider the new problems which are facing us we must inevitably come to the conclusion that some further changes in our banking laws will become necessary.

It is not enough that bankers merely acquiesce in banking imposed by law. Zeal for evolutionary banking reform must be more aggressive than that. Banking practice itself, without compulsion of law, can and should reflect the changes and lessons of the times and difficulties through which the nation has passed and, even to a greater extent than law, render banking more truly a good public servant by voluntary self-reform. In no small measure is this accomplished by the better training of the members of the banking fraternity and by instilling constantly higher ideals in those who are ultimately responsible for bank management.

As we march on into the world of tomorrow the banker has a greater opportunity for usefulness than ever before, and I hope that the service he will render to society will be so conscientious, so constructive and so satisfactory as to merit general approval and assure him his logical high place and leadership.

NATIONAL SAVINGS MARK INCREASES

NEW YORK.—The annual savings compilation of the American Bankers Association for the year ending June 30, 1934, shows that for the first time since 1930 total savings in all American banks recorded an annual increase.

A statement by W. Espey Albig, Deputy Manager of the association in charge of its Savings Division, in the organization's monthly magazine "Banking," says that savings deposited in banks as of June 30, 1934, gained 3.5 per cent as compared with a year earlier.

"The aggregate is an increase over last year of $742,132,000, the first since the year which closed June 30, 1930," he says. "This is a notable achievement, for the decline since 1930 had been precipitate and all-embracing. In that year savings had reached the all-time high of $28,473,631,000. A year ago the amount was $21,135,534,000, a loss in three years of $7,353,097,000. This year the figure stands at $21,877,666,000.

"Depositors, too, have gained in number, going from 39,362,443 on June 30, 1933, to 39,582,174 on June 30 this year, a gain of 220,732. Four years ago there were 42,739,423 depositors, or one depositor for each 2.3 persons in the country. Now there is one account for each 2.3 persons."

LESS TAX MONEY IS TO BE COLLECTED

Total of $630,763 Shown on Abstract in DeKalb County—Big Increase in Delinquent Amount

The 1934 tax charged for collection by County Treasurer Claude P. Fitch is only $630,763, the January abstract prepared in the office of Couty Auditor Frank E. Lyon shows. This is a reduction from $707,098 charged on the duplicates a year ago, or a decrease of more than 10 per cent.

However, delinquent tax on the books jumped more than 50 per cent in the last year, from $151,720 to $230,184. The total of delinquent and current tax for payment this year is $860,947, as compared with $858,363 at the beginning of 1934.

The total net value of taxables on the new abstract is $27,009,540, a reduction from $23,291,010. Real estate is assessed at $15,765,080, after deducting $1,888,520 in mortgage and soldiers' exemptions. A year ago the net real estate assessments were $16,696,240. Personal property this year is assessed at $10,794,160, as compared with $11,594,770 in 1934.

Mortgage and soldiers' exemptions are $1,388,620, a reduction from $1,464,570.

The tax charged for collection, including delinquent, from each unit in 1935 as compared with 1934 follows:

Auburn $172,526.71, reduced from $181,599.71.

Butler city $44,490.30, reduced from $46,218.99.

ADS. WILL TELL BANKERS' STORY

American Bankers Association President Announces Move to Stimulate Newspaper Advertising

NEW YORK.—Plans for stimulating wider use of informative newspaper advertising by banks in promoting public understanding and confidence in regard to existing banking conditions and methods have been announced by H. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, as a part of his organization's activities in aid of business recovery.

"A general groundwork was prepared through a nationwide survey of advertising by banks relative to their willingness to extend justifiable loans to industry and trade. This, he said, revealed that a large number in all parts of the country are pursuing aggressive policies along this line and encouraging their customers to develop forward-looking business plans. "It is our aim to aid in fostering this constructive attitude wherever possible," he said.

The Theme of New Advertising

The association's Advertising Department, under the direct supervision of the general executive officers, has prepared, at the headquarters in New York City, an informative advertising series for the use of member banks in the association to aid them in developing in their own communities better general public understanding regarding banking, Mr. Hecht said.

"The underlying theme of this advertising is that sound banking is based on helpful human relations and that it has a unity of interest with the people of its community which binds them together with a common purpose," he said.

"We are confident that if a clear understanding of this is brought home to the people in all our banking communities, it will go far in restoring the public confidence which good banking deserves. A bank in which people deservedly believe is doubly safe. It is to the public interest for the people to have confidence in their banks.

The Place of Advertising

"We feel that bank advertising has a special public duty to perform in this connection under existing conditions. The copy which will be supplied in the service we have developed will not only aid the individual bank in promoting the use of its own facilities but is also aimed to bring about with the aid of newspaper advertising a clearer public viewpoint regarding the essential part it occupies in the life of its community."

Mr. Hecht emphasized in regard to the new advertising facilities being offered to the members of the association that they are not a profit making venture and that there is no intention to disturb existing advertising arrangements, the idea being that these institutional services shall supplement rather than replace present plans, or that they will give assistance to member banks now lacking satisfactory arrangements.

MANY BANKS LONG LIVED

In the United States—
168 Banks over 100 years old.
2,472 Banks over 50 years old.
10,391 Banks over 25 years old.

There are in the United States 168 banks that have been in continuous existence for more than one hundred years. There are 2,472 banks over fifty years old, while 64% of all the banks in this country, or 10,391, are twenty-five years old or older.

In other words, practically two-thirds of the banks in this country have come through several successive periods of depression and panic, including 1907, 1914, 1920 and 1929-33.

The Oldest Bank

The oldest bank in the country, which is in Boston, was chartered February 17, 1784.

In the 64% of banks that are twenty-five years old or older is lodged a major portion of the banking resources of the nation. In commenting recently upon the stability of a great majority of the banks in the United States, Dr. Harold Stonier, Educational Director of the American Bankers Association, said:

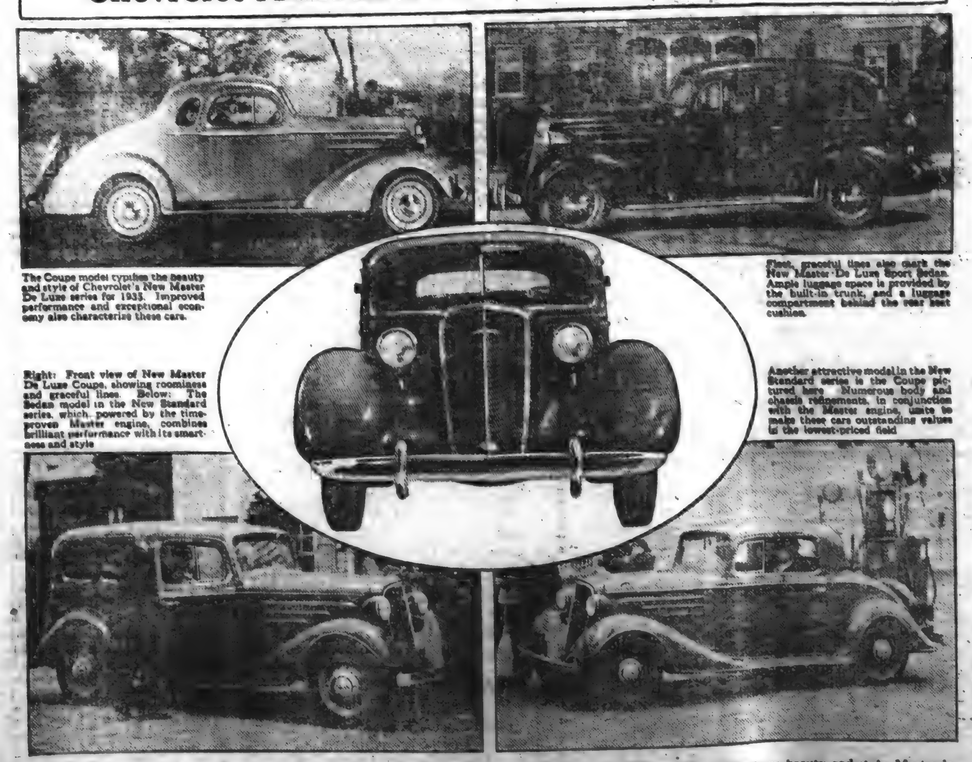
"The fact that we have so many banks that have been in existence a long period of years is an eloquent tribute to the genius of American managerial ability, for no other country has experienced such wild gambling eras and resultant periods of business stagnation as those through which our country has passed at frequent intervals during the past century."

NEW WEALTH FROM SOIL

New wealth which comes from the soil is of special interest to those to whom falls the responsibility of maintaining our credit structure.

Unless agriculture is successful farm borrowers cannot ultimately succeed, neither can the banks they serve. Foreclosure sales are not a sound basis for good farming or good banking. Bankers, therefore, are as much interested in the permanent success of the agricultural industry as are the farmers, whether the deposits come directly from farm patrons, or indirectly through the ordinary channels of business.—D. H. Otis, Director of Agriculture, American Bankers Association.

Chevrolet Announces Two New Lines for 1935



The Coupe model typifies the beauty and style of Chevrolet's New Master De Luxe series for 1935. Improved performance and exceptional economy also characterize these cars.

Fleet, graceful lines also mark the New Master De Luxe Sport Sedan. Ample luggage space is provided by the built-in trunk, and a luggage compartment behind the rear seat cushion.

Another attractive model in the New Standard series is the Coupe pictured here. Numerous body and chassis refinements, in conjunction with the Master engine, unite to make these cars outstanding values in the lowest-priced field

Typical of Chevrolet's two new lines of cars are the models illustrated here. The Master De Luxe series reveals strong emphasis on beauty and style. Mechanically, the Master De Luxe series and the New Standard series have much in common, including the Master engine, in which numerous refinements have been made to enhance performance, durability and economy. As these pictures reveal, the New Master De Luxe departs distinctly from previous Chevrolets in the striking advance which has been made in body design and trim.

FARM CENSUS TAKERS FOR DeKALB ANNOUNCED

Ten farm census takers, who are taking the United States agriculture enumeration in DeKalb county, were named by Kirt Boswell of Peru, supervisor of the Ft. Wayne area, during a meeting held in Auburn last week on Wednesday afternoon.

The men are: William Huett, Fairfield township; Winn Bowers, Smithfield township; Philip Brown, Franklin township; Fred Gengnagel, Newville, Troy and Stafford townships; A. J. Moore, Wilmington township; Paul Miller, Grant and Union townships; Jay DeWitt, Richland and Keyser townships; Ralph Rowley, Butler township; Philip Cool, Jackson township; Otto Ginther, Concord and Spencer townships.

Boswell after giving the enumerators their instructions and supplies ordered them to start work Thursday morning of last week.

PIKE COUNTY IS SITE OF NEW STATE FOREST

Acquisition of nearly two thousand acres of land in Marion township, Pike county, for the establishment of a new state forest, was announced by Virgil M. Simmons, Commissioner of the Department of Conservation. More than three hundred acres of this was donated to the state for forestry purposes and additional gifts of land are expected.

Practically all of the area acquired had been tax delinquent for a period of years or had been taken over by the county on old school fund mortgage loans and was transferred to the state by Pike county officials at a cost to the state of $1 per acre. The major part of this land had been abandoned by the former owners and but one or two families are now residing on the land involved.

Originally the land in this tract was purchased with the expectation of mining coal but the hopes of the purchasers were lost when the overlying soil was considered too deep for stripping to uncover the coal.

NEW SECRETARY FOR FARMERS' MUTUAL

The annual meeting of the DeKalb County Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company was held in Auburn on Saturday in the court house assembly room. Officers and three members on the board of directors were elected.

Frank Shook of Grant township was re-elected president and Frank Lyon of Auburn, vice president.

There was a contest for the office of secretary. Lester Boger of Union township was named to take the place of Philip Carper of Jackson township. Mr. Carper served 32 years as secretary. Three candidates were placed in nomination. Mr. Boger received 76 ballots, Mr. Carper 59 and A. J. Moore of Wilmington township 15.

Perry Foote of Richland township, was re-elected treasurer.

There was another contest for the office of actuary and two ballots were necessary before the candidate was elected. Charles Bangs of Richland township, who had served 29 years will be succeeded by Lloyd Yeiser of Newville township. A. J. Moore of Wilmington township, withdrew after the first ballot.

Charles Mutzfeld, Charles Potter and Albert Thrush were elected to two year terms on the board of directors. In addition to those elected Noah Lung, Charles Miller and Philip Carper had been placed in nomination for membership on the board. The three whose terms expired as directors were Claude Fitch, Albert Thrush and William Potter.

The amount of insurance in force at the present time is $9,257,330. The company was organized 57 years ago.

AN APPRECIATION

The splendid cooperation given us during our evangelistic meetings in Newville and St. Joe is greatly appreciated.

We wish to acknowledge the unusual support given by the sister churches of our community and the fine spirit of service shown by Pastor Koehnlein of the Methodist Protestant in the rearrangement of his schedule to conform to our meeting.

To the members of our own congregation we give a heartfelt thanks for their excellent support.

To Mark Williams and Mrs. Lena Meek we owe a debt of gratitude for their loyal work in song and music.

KINSEY

Mr. George August Kinsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Kinsey, born September 22, 1872 in DeKalb County, passed away to meet his Creator on January 27, 1935 at the Lutheran Hospital at the age of 62 years, 4 months and 5 days.

Mr. Kinsey was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church and of the Odd Fellows Lodge.

In 1892, Mr. Kinsey was married to Aleathea Jenkins, and to this union were born six daughters and two sons. Two of the daughters preceded him in death.

He leaves to mourn his death, his wife, Aleathea, two sons, Walter of Jackson, Mich., and Harry of Hamilton, four daughters, Mrs. Roy Bowser, of St. Joe, Mrs. John Willitt, of Hicksville, Ohio, Mrs. A. W. Mahoney, of New Philadelphia, Ohio, and Inez Kinsey at home; eleven grandchildren; a brother, Charles, of Auburn; a sister, Mrs. Mabel Quinn, of Fort Wayne, and a half-sister, Mrs. Violet Chapman, of Spencerville; and a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services for Mr. Kinsey were held Tuesday afternoon from the M. P. Church at 2 o'clock in charge of Rev. Wm. Koehnlein with Mentor Lodge, No. 591, of Auburn, conducting the ritualistic ceremony. Burial was made in the K. of P. Cemetery with DuWayne Kinsey as funeral director.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

There were about sixty parents and teachers in attendance at the P. T. A. meeting held on Monday evening of this week. The program opened with two songs led by C. A. Woodcox; Rev. H. K. Schondelmayer gave the invocation. Mrs. Grace Dilley then discussed the topic, "Should Parents Help with Home Work?" A general discussion followed. A vocal trio was given by Mrs. F. B. Leighty and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Koch, accompanied by Earl Kinsey. The address of the evening was then given by county superintendent Stallman. His topic was the "Universal Brotherhood of Man." In his discussion he showed that much of the real progress man has made toward a higher and better civilization has been stimulated through some great movement such as war. A business meeting followed. The P. T. A. is desirous of promoting improvement plans for the school ground additional play ground equipment. More will be heard about this movement in the next few weeks. After the business session a social hour was spent at which time the vocational home economics department served light refreshments under the supervision of Miss Roula.

Per cent attendance in the upper six grades was cut to 91.74% in January due to a few cases of measles, influenza and icy roads.

Edward and Margaret Sechler, who have been attending the Butler Schools enrolled in our school on Monday. Edward is a junior and Margaret is a freshman.

Won and Lost

On last Friday evening our boys teams played at Spencerville. The second team lost by a score of 25 to 23. The first team went down to a defeat by a score of 23 to 15.

Saturday evening our boys came back strong and the second team defeated a Garrett H. S. team by a score of 25 to 9. In the main game of the evening the local first team ran up a score of 38 points to Garrett's 18. Coach Hubert Davis of Leo H. S. was the referee in Saturday evening's games.

Our boys teams go to Leo for games on Friday evening of this week.

First and Second Grades

Last Friday we had a spelling match in both grades. The winner for the first grade was Russell Ridgway; the second Leora Wilmot.

The second grade is making "Clothing" booklets.

The honor roll this month is as follows: first grade, Marcia Guilford, Beccy Inlow, Helen Ricketts and Russell Ridgway. Second grade, April Bowser, June Strong, Mary L. Woodcox, Leora Wilmot, Gloria Zonker.

Our spelling honor roll this week includes, Patricia Carpenter, James Kees, Betty Rudolph, Beverly Wade, Lewis Freeburn, Loren Inlow, Patricia Maxwell, Betty Nicholls, Frances Reidenbach, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude and Gladys Stewart.

We were presented with a fine new bulletin board by our new Trustee this week. We like our gift.

William Smith's mother and his aunt visited our room last Friday afternoon.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The sixth grade spelling honor roll for last week consisted of Sylvia Washler, Harold Inlow, Evelyn George and Frank Curie.

We are sorry to have so many absent from school due to illness and hope they will all be back with us soon.

SPENCERVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Sports

The game last Friday evening went off with a bang. A large crowd was present. St. Joe's second team played a very fast game, they were in the lead at the third quarter. During the last quarter our boys really played basket ball, winning by a score of 25 to 23. The first team played a good game but it was not as interesting as the second team game because the boys were ahead of St. Joe all through the game. They won with a score of 25 to 15.

The next home game will be with Huntertown on Friday, Feb. the first.

The biology class is still on their pest hunt but they haven't found the pest in our school yet. We think they aren't looking very good or aren't looking in the right place. Let's hope they find the pest soon.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Billy Baker received 100% in spelling last month.

Helen May Coles, Roger Laub, Marjorie Brown, and Donna Mae Washler, were winners in a spelling contest that was given last Friday in the fifth grade. The winners in the sixth grade in a spelling contest were Billy Baker and Carol Reed.

Those in the fifth and sixth grades that were on the honor roll last month were Dickie Reed, Donna Mae Washler, Marion Walter, Paul Crothers and Carol Reed.

Aprons That Are Chic and Useful

PATTERN 2060

The housewife who takes pride in her kitchen usually takes great interest in a goodly supply of chic aprons, and where could you find two lovelier models than those shown today. Both are included in the one pattern and both have slenderizing front panels and that fashionable half-belted waistline. The upper design gives fine opportunity for using rick-rack braid to set off the lines of its smart V neck and spacious pockets. The lower sketch boasts a youthfully rounded neckline and jaunty capelike shoulders, and would be as pretty as can be made up in a dainty dotted swiss, edged with embroidery.

Pattern 2060 is available in sizes small, medium and large. Medium size, each apron takes one and a half yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

THE PORK PROBLEM

"Did you kill off your pigs?"

"I did," answered Farmer Corntossel.

"And you got paid for doing so?"

"Yes, but not enough to buy all the pork the family's going to need this winter."

Death in Good Cause

"Mother, papa wouldn't murder anybody, would he?"

"Why, certainly not, child! What makes you think so?"

"Well, I just heard him down in the cellar saying, 'Let's kill the other two, George'."

Bedtime Story for Children

HORNS THAT ARE REALLY NOT HORNS

"IF YOU are so fond of the cold, I don't see what you leave the Far North at all for," said Peter Rabbit to Snowflake the Snow Bunting.

"Because, Peter," replied Snowflake, twittering merrily, "like everybody else I have to eat in order to live. When you see me down here you may know that the snow up North is so deep that it has covered all the seeds. I hope I will not have to go any farther south than this, but if some morning you wake up and find the snow so deep that all the weeds are buried, don't expect to find me."

"That's what I'd call good, sound common sense," said another voice, and a bird very near Snowflake's size, and who at first glance seemed to be dressed almost wholly in soft chocolate brown, alighted on the snow and began to run around in search of seeds. It was Wanderer the Horned Lark. Peter had known him ever since his first winter, yet did not feel really acquainted, for Wanderer seldom stayed long enough for a real acquaintance.

Now, as Wanderer reached up to pick seeds from a weed top, Peter had a good look at him. The first thing he noticed was what looked like two little horns above and behind the eyes. It is from these that Wanderer gets the name of Horned Lark. Of course, they are not really horns at all, but little tufts of black feathers. His forehead, a line over each eye, and his throat were yellow. There was a black mark from each corner of his bill curving downward and almost joining a black crescent shaped band across the breast. Beneath this he was solid white with dusty spots showing here and there. His back was brown in places, having almost a pinkish tinge. His tail was black, showing a little white along the edges when he flew. Altogether he was a handsome little fellow.

"Do all your family have those funny little horns?" asked Peter.

"No," replied Wanderer promptly, "Mrs. Lark does not have them."

"I think they are very becoming," said Peter, politely.

"Thank you," replied Wanderer, "I am inclined to agree with you."

Just then Peter discovered something that he hadn't noticed before. "My goodness," he exclaimed, "what a long claw you have on each hind toe!"

It was true. Each hind claw was about twice as long as any other claw. Peter couldn't see any special use for these, and was just about to ask more about them when Wanderer suddenly spied a flock of his relatives some distance away and flew over to join them. Probably this saved him some embarrassment, for it was doubtful if he himself knew why Old Mother Nature had given him those long hind claws.

Through A WOMAN'S EYES

by JEAN NEWTON

MORE EMPHASIS ON FACE

BECAUSE he shared responsibility for the emperor's party taking a wrong turn in their trip through a city which received a royal visit, a police inspector in Japan attempted to commit suicide.

Death was preferable to the disgrace that would descend upon the unfortunate blunderer and his family and all his relatives. For by his mistake this man had "lost face." And in Japan to lose face is a far worse thing than to lose material possessions.

In China, too, it is a not uncommon occurrence for people to take their own lives for reasons of far less importance than causing the car of the emperor to take a wrong turn. However, they are mistakes which cause the person to lose face—that is the important thing. To lose face is to lose dignity and the respect of others. And what then, say these sons of an ancient culture, is there left?

"A good bank account," would be the rejoinder of some American politicians—"and everything that will buy, which includes about all one wants."

It seems to me that the onus there is not alone on the man or woman who exemplifies that philosophy—as for instance a well known New York mayor who with honor and reputation besmirched still has a very good time on the surviving bank account—that the onus is on the viewpoint of the vast numbers of people who make possible that good time. For no one can enjoy life who is ostracized by his fellows. And in China and Japan a man or woman who had lost reputation, honor, dignity, would be ostracized, regardless of how much of the world's goods remained with them.

The western slogan that "money is power," and the penchant for winking an eye where an offender has that power, is important not only in such matters as discredited officials and the absconding rich. It is significant all the way down the line to the daily actions of average people. There is that emphasis on getting what one wants, without too much thought on how one gets it. In social as well as business matters, women are guilty of little tricks to attain their ends, so they undoubtedly "lose face," but they seem indifferent to this as long as their end is attained.

I am not promoting the idea of suicide for lost dignity. But I believe our standards of life would be very much improved by placing more value on what in the East is called "face" and less on getting the things we want.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a girl nineteen years of age. There is a young man who seems to be madly in love with me, but I am not sure I love him; he has proposed to me. He swears that if I marry him he will treat me like an "angel." What shall I do?

Yours truly,

I. M. KICKIDE.

Answer: Always beware of the man who calls you an "angel," or the man who says he will treat you like an "angel." Go to any art gallery and look at a painting of an "angel." You will immediately see all the clothes he intends buying you.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I live in an apartment house and there is a rumor about a married couple, in the same building. The rumor is that the husband beats his wife up every morning. Do you believe this?

Yours truly,

I. WONDER.

Answer: I know the people you refer to and it is a fact that the husband beats his wife up every morning. He gets up at 6:00 a. m. and she doesn't get up till 7:00.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a scientist. At present I am experimenting with "flies." I am trying to solve the big problem of the century; that is: "Should Flies Marry?"

This is my sixth year on the subject, and my greatest difficulty is to keep the flies over the winter months. Last winter I put a fly in a cuckoo clock to rest, but it woke the fly up every hour and the poor thing died from the lack of sleep.

Can you tell me the best place to keep a fly so it can rest peacefully?

Yours truly,

WILL U. HELPMEE.

Answer: Nothing in the world, excepting the discovery of the North pole, will be of greater benefit to humanity than the solution of the problem, "Should Flies Marry?" I find that the importance of flies is a subject to think about. Some folks like flies, others don't. I know one man, who owns a candy store and he likes flies so much that he has just engaged a blacksmith for his store. This blacksmith is supposed to "shoo the flies." On the other hand, I hear, every day, of a man named Babe Ruth who doesn't like flies. At least, it appears so, as he keeps hitting flies over the fence. Now I would like very much to help you, so after years of research work I find the best place to keep a fly, if you do not want it disturbed at all, is in a Scotchman's pocketbook.

The House Awakes!

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE house awakes with Dickie, whose bare feet
Come pattering across the sunny hall,
And then the other children's voices fall
Across the quiet rooms; and on our street
A dozen houses, filled with children, rise
And dust the sleep out of their drowsy eyes.

When off to school the happy children go,
The house sinks in a sleep as deep as Death,
And does not wake till the returning breath
Of children make its staring windows glow,
And down our street a dozen houses shout,
And wake to happiness when school is out!

Britain Planting Trees

About 50,000,000 trees are to be planted in the United Kingdom by the forestry commissioners this winter, providing employment for about 3,500 men.

The total area is 21,000 acres, of which 13,000 are in England and Wales and 8,000 in Scotland. About 750 acres are to be added to the New forest, called "New" because it was planted by William the Conqueror in the Eleventh century, and 600 acres to the forest of Dean. The largest forests, totaling 3,400 acres, will be planted in the northeastern counties.

"My son," said the old father sending his boy out into the world, "never get into an argument with a man who pronounces words the way they are spelled."

"Why not, father?" asked the youth.

"Because," replied the old man, "a fellow who pronounces words the way they are spelled has dug out his knowledge by himself. He really knows what he is saying."

There is tremendous attendance these days on extra classes. Men and women with much idle time on their hands are seeking to turn the hours to good account. And the home work given out to them is done with amazing faithfulness. Those who have been subjected to such discipline can reasonably expect success when jobs are to be had.

Quite as important are those who are struggling to master subjects by themselves. A young man who recently completed his course for a degree made up his mind that there were several subjects he would like to learn. He started on stenography, typewriting and accounting, on his own. Rising early, he devotes at least eight hours daily to such study. His example has stimulated others. Two have joined him. It is a home-made extension course. The graduate of such a school has no certificate, but he should have sufficient power to do without one—Boston Globe.

A sympathizing heart is a spring of pure water bursting forth from the mountain side; ever pure and sweet in itself, it carries gladness and joy on every ripple of its sparkling current.

If You Eat Starches Meats, Sweets Read This

They're All Necessary Foods — But All Acid-Forming. Hence Most of Us Have "Acid Stomach" At Times. Easy Now to Relieve.

Doctors say that much of the so-called "indigestion," from which so many of us suffer, is really acid indigestion . . . brought about by too many acid-forming foods in our modern diet. And that there is now a way to relieve this . . . often in minutes!

Simply take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals. Almost immediately this acts to neutralize the stomach acidity that brings on your trouble. You "forget you have a stomach!"

Try this just once! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or, now the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. But be sure you get Genuine "PHILLIPS'".

Also in Tablet Form:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Lace, an Ideal Choice for the Matron

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

YES, the fashions paraded in style shows and pictured in newspapers and magazines are attractive enough, but they are only for slim and svelte young creatures, why don't they ever consider the needs of women who have reached forty and plus! It's a complaint, and only too often a just one, which those older are continually voicing.

Just to prove to mothers and matrons that they are not left out in the scheme of things, look what's here in the picture—two of the loveliest flattering lace gowns imaginable, for women of stately grace be they young or not so young. In spite of all the frenzied excitement over sumptuous gowns for the budding debutante, when it comes to beautiful appearance, smoothly groomed self-confident and slim-of-silhouette, daughters better look to their laurels when it comes to competing with mothers and matrons in the art of dress these days.

The fact that lace is scheduled to play so important a part in fashions coming and here, is a good omen for matrons who appreciate the magic which flattering apparel yields in erasing the years, and as every woman knows, there is nothing more flattering, more exquisitely feminizing than beautiful lace. The stately matron to the left in the picture is wearing a lace gown of high distinction. It is particularly ideal for the woman who has a limited wardrobe, for it is a rich black lace, which will give grand service the year round, winter and summer. With an eye to being practical, the designer has created a short matching jacket, making the gown as happily apropos for informal dining as for formal dancing.

The other gracious lace gown which is here pictured is charmingly tuned to a very youthful matron's dress-up needs. Bands of green moire at the back enliven it. This lovely dress is a Lucille Paray model.

Lace is also being worked into chiffon dresses very cleverly, the lace and the chiffon going fifty-fifty. A very winsome gown has a deep flounce of the lace with the same lace intricately set into the bodice and sleeves.

There are legions of novelty laces being shown in the advance displays. Most interesting are the laces which have cellophane and metal accents. Beaded laces and embroidered laces of every imaginable type are also among the showings.

Interesting news about laces includes the shirtwaist dresses which are being fashioned for resort wear and which will be good for summer wear later on. Midseason afternoon frocks in dark or bright crepes or light woolens are also trimmed with lace dyed a perfect match.

Tailored lace is also being smartly featured for afternoon wear. The laces are of a somewhat sturdy character and the ensemble idea is carried out in that there is always an accompanying jacket.

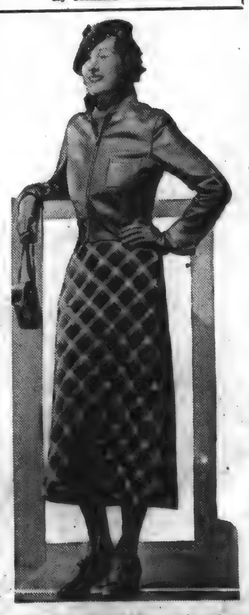
SMART SPORTWEAR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



For fun and right smart jauntiness, look to the leather hiplength jacket. It is easy to slip into, comfy, free with action back, and inside it has a Johnny collar to keep out wintry blasts. The Scotch plaid skirt has as its predominating color, the same color of the jacket, as do the calfskin kiltie tongues that are excellent for walking. The beret adds yet another note of jauntiness.

A New Velvet

A new velvet with a pile of shiny cellophane on a silk back is recommended for making accessories, such as hats, bags, capes and evening jackets.

FASHIONS INSPIRED BY PEASANT THEMES

Peasant themes, with their lovely colorfulness and freshness, are inspiring the season's fashions. In virtually every branch of apparel there are innumerable details that bear the unmistakable imprint of peasant inspiration.

Materials, with the new fringed edges in rustic fabrics, the peasant print cottons in sports frocks, and the combinations of gay colors, like red and green, purple and pink, are distinct changes from the modern trends.

Bloused bodices and gathered skirts, belts embroidered in peasant colors and motifs, raffia, cord-tied details and heavy linen and cotton laces in accessories further establish the pre-eminence of this influence.

Trains Are Short for the Evening, Gowns Are Slit

Most likely your new evening frock will have a slit skirt to show an alluring few inches of silk-clad leg, but if it has a train, the train will be short. And it is quite likely that it may have a tunic and it may be trimmed with fur. All these points mark a lovely gown which is of dull rose taffeta with slanting shoulder straps of brown kolinsky that continue down the back to the waist. Delightful for the more mature woman is a tunic dress of plum colored Chantilly type lace with a long slim tunic and a trained skirt. There is a sash of plum-colored satin. Another tunic dress has a tunic that is pointed at the back to form an overtrim. It is of red sequins over a dull red crepe skirt.

Patou Uses Moderate Slit in His New Dress Designs

Patou has surpassed himself with the simplicity and elegance of his "little season" collection. He probably never before has designed such completely lovely things.

The lines which were felt to be a bit over-severe in his August collection have been modified into the most graceful of curves and angles, and the slits have become shorter for daytime and smartly moderate for evening.

Father of Modern "Photo"

Man Who Had First Idea of Process of Photography Revealed Secret to Daguerre, and Died Poor, Unknown, and Forgotten by World.

The romantic story of the man who invented the process of photography which gave pictures that were subsequently unaffected by light, is recalled by the celebration of the centenary of the Fox-Talbot process of photography, held at Lacock abbey, England, the historic home of the Fox-Talbots.

Joseph Nicephore Niepce had been compelled to resign his commission in the French army through illness and failing eyesight, and, returning to his native town of Chalons-sur Saone, he settled down on a small estate which provided him with a living and gave him leisure to study philosophy. Although neither he nor his brother Claude had had any scientific education, both were interested in science. They fitted up a workshop in the farmhouse.

Among other things, they constructed a new locomotive machine in which rapidly heated air was substituted for steam, and one of the first bicycles ever made with a movable wheel—called the "celeripede"—which Joseph himself rode in Paris.

In 1811, Joseph Niepce turned his fertile brain to lithography, which had been recently invented by Alois Senefelder, and, struck with the idea of substituting polished metal for stone, he tried to reproduce sketches drawn on a metallic plate with lithographic chalk.

He was experimenting one day, when a broad beam of sunlight streaming through the open door threw a reflection of his face on the polished plate over which he was poring. As he gazed on the reflection, he suddenly thought that if he could imprint such images by the mere action of the sun's rays, he would have invented something far superior to lithography. From that hour Niepce was wholly absorbed in the task of imprinting images by sunlight.

Success began to attend his efforts early in 1814, when he learned of the action of sunlight on silver chloride, a discovery made by K W. Scheele in 1742. After many experiments he produced a faithful reproduction of a design in which lights and shadows preserved their natural position. When he plunged the metal leaf in a preparation of essence of lavender, he found to his delight that the portions of the bitumen not affected by the light had dissolved, disclosing the image protected from the ulterior action of the rays.

It is certain that Niepce was the real inventor of the Daguerreotype. Louis Jacques Mande Daguerre, a clever painter and the inventor of the diorama, had also been experimenting with processes for fixing the pictures on his diorama, but no success had attended his efforts.

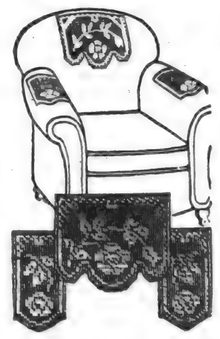
He sought an interview with Niepce, and they entered into a partnership which was successful to the advance of photography, though Niepce did all the inventing while Daguerre got the credit. In all fairness it must be said that, having discovered Niepce's secret, Daguerre set himself to improve it.

Two great difficulties remained. Seven or eight hours' exposure was still necessary, and at the end of a certain time the picture became partly effaced. Both difficulties were ultimately surmounted, and success at last crowned twenty years of tireless research.

Unfortunately, Niepce did not live to see the consummation of his life's work. He died at Chalons July 5, 1833, poor and unknown, and forgotten by his fellow citizens.

HERE'S CHAIR SET EASY TO CROCHET

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



Since crochet work is again interesting the art needleworkers, why not pick up your No. 8 or 9 steel crochet hook and thread about size 15 and crochet this attractive three-piece set for your living room chair, or for a gift? It will surely be appreciated and admired. Chair backs and arm rests are old decorations but now growing in popularity and are modern. This set is worked in the large filet stitch, works up rapidly and is simple work even for the inexperienced. The center piece measures 14x11 inches, the arm rests 6x11 inches, with about size 15 thread. By using a larger hook and crocheting looser, the finished pieces will be larger, if desired.

In the large filet an open mesh equals 1 triple crochet (thread twice over hook). Chain 3, skip 3. A solid mesh equals 5 triple crochet. Add 4 triple crochet for each additional solid mesh.

Send 10 cents to our Crochet department for directions and working diagram for this No. 805, or if you have no material you can get the entire outfit for 40c, namely, instructions, diagram, crochet hook, and sufficient cream color thread to complete the three pieces.

Doctors Know!

. . . and they use liquid laxatives

You'd use a liquid, too, if you knew how much better it makes you feel.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Just ask your own doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help—and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without aid.

People who have experienced this comfort, never return to any form of help that can't be regulated! The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit. It relieves a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset.

To relieve your occasional upsets safely and comfortably, try Syrup Pepsin. The druggist has it.

AUTO FAILS TO MAKE THE TURN

Failin gto heed the road signs, also being on a strange road, resulted in two St. Joe girls being badly banged up Friday night at the end of the pavement east of St. Joe. Harriett Yeiser suffered a broken nose and Beatrice Storer a badly injured arm. Marv Stewart escaped without injury other than a sprained ankle.

The girls, with three New Haven boys, were enroute to the Yeiser home following the basket ball game here. After the accident they came back to town and were then rushed to Butelr, where their injuries were dressed.

The aoccupants of thecar are all very fortunate to escape without more serious trouble.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the neighbors and friends for their kindness and loving deeds during our hour of sorrow.

Mrs. G. A. Kinsey an Children.

A CENTURY AGO, 1935

What was going on a century ago, in the year of 1835? As to politics, the fiery and determined Andrew Jackson was President. An insane man took a shot at him in the capitol and a senator was charged with complicity but was exonerated. The Democratic National Convention nominated Martin Van Buren, who followed Mr. Jackson into the White House in 1836, after a close race with Gen. Wm. Henry Harrison. In 1835, Richard R. Bland, champion of free silver, was born. James K. Polk, destined for the Presidency, was Speaker of the House. Financial problems did not annoy the government greatly in those days, the national debt being less than forty thousand dollars. Likely enough, the three new mints established that year could have wiped out the deficit in short order. Samuel Colt invented the revolver and Morse the telegraph. A fire raged for two days in New York City, left damage to the extent of two million dollars in its wake. A man domiciled in Texas was not within the boundaries of the United States, since it was in 1835 that Texas proclaimed her independence from Mexico, becoming later the Lone Star State and thereby adding to the federal union an area approximately equal to that of Germany. The people living in those days no doubt had their excitements, annoyances and woes, but we have to go to the books to find out what they were. All may not be rosy during 1935; at its close we may regard it as one of the greatest years of American history; but its shame or its glory will pass. Those to whom the date 2035 does not appear odd will say that the old timers of the present day had it easy, with nothing but small money matters of some kind to pester them.

SPORTS

The St. Joe Valley Pickles were defeated by the New Haven Merchants last Friday eve, score 27-25.

The Pickles take on both of Hicksville's teams this Saturday evening, Feb. 9. The teams have one game each to their credit, this game Saturday night will be the so-called rub-off, and one of those hard fought battles is expected.

First game 7:30 prompt. Admission 10 and 15 cents this game only.

NOTICE

To Home Bureau Ladies: The February 15th meeting of the Home Bureau will be held at the school gymnasium. 6t2

Improving School Grounds

The public school grounds are now being worked on by the FER A workers. Trustee Trostel has been allowed a project calling for $2,350 to be used in payment of labor. He has his plans all made for the work to be done, and it is to be hoped that the property will be greatly benefitted by the labor.

Mrs. Paul Martin suffered a gall stone attack Sunday but is better at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hart returned home Sunday after a week's visit with relatives at Paulding, Ohio.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The Junior Class expect to give their class play "The Path Across the Hill" on Friday evening, Feb. 15th. Please keep this event in mind.

According to present plans the special dinner for the Senior Class will be given on February 14th or Valentine Day.

On Friday evening of this week the local girls basket ball team will play a return game at Ashley. The boys first team will play at Garrett on Saturday evening.

Attendance in the upper six grades has been much better this week. Much less sickness from "flu" and measles.

One of the ninth grade girls has a broken nose. Several reports occurred on last Friday evening. occured on last Friday evening. Ask Harriett Yeiser for the truth about the broken member.

Grade cards for the upper six grades were issued on Wednesday evening. Soon the Seniors will know who have won honors as class valedictorian and salutatorian.

Third and Fourth Grades

Ned Keller and Loren Inlow are entertaining the measles.

The visiting nurse visited us last Friday and gave us a health talk.

Our spelling honor roll this week includes George Harris, Jean Hurni, James Kees, Betty Rudolph, Beverly Wade, Loren Inlow, Dale Keeler, Donald Kinsey, Patricia Maxwell, Betty Nicholls, Frances Reidenbach, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude and Marilyn Zonker.

We have put up our Lincoln decorations. We are collecting Lincoln and Washington pictures for our bulletin board.

In our art class last Friday we made a Health-Game chart.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Miss Elam, the assistant county nurse, called on our room Friday afternon and gave some very helpful remarks regarding health.

The spelling honor roll consists of the following: DeWayne Cook, James Hatch, Betty Keesler, Nelda Kees, James Hamilton, Harold Inlow, Ruth Keesler, Marcel Pugsley and Barbara Stroh.

First and Second Grades

The second grade boys are making an airplane in connection with a "Transportation Unit."

We have interesting charts on which to record our daily progress in our studies. They are made in keeping with the Valentine season.

Mrs. Albert Moore visited our room last week.

Children absent from our room include Betty Inlow, Beecy Inlow, Franklyn Shuff, Arlene Baughman, Russell Ridgway and Samuel Kees.

SPENCERVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The game last Friday evening was the best home game of the season. We played the Huntertown Wildcats. The boys played a very peppy game. Both teams kept the fans on the edge of their seats all the time. The second team won with a score of 19 to 18 and the first team with a score of 27 to 25.

Our next home game will not be until February 15. Pleasant Mills first and second teams challenge our first and second teams. From the reports this will be a peppy game also.

Home Economics

The class in Home Economics is learning to apply first aid remedies for all common emergencies that arise in the home.

A few garments have been finished in the sewing classes but are being kept for the spring style show.

Those on the honor roll for last month were, Glenn Haines, Robert McIntuff, Hilda McNamara Freshmen; Alice Baker, Lee Chapman, Carol Gerig, Fred Steward, Warren Rectenwall, Agnes Walker, Margaret Walter, Juniors; Dorothy Markle and Fern Wright, Seniors. The Juniors have lead all five months. Hurrah Juniors! !

P. T. A. was held Tuesday evening, and a large crowd was present. The program was as follows: Music, school orchestra; reading, Donna Mae Washler; vocal duet, Virginia Poper and Loren Laub; reading, Martha Hart; violin duet, Charles Washler and Merle Coburn; Talk on Birds, Clyde Hart; music, Junior high chorus; question box; dismissal.

Social News

The freshmen are planning to have a class party at the home of Miss Vera Wappes, six miles west of Spencerville. They are inviting guests.

The Juniors report that the candy and popcorn sales are steadily increasing, at the home games. They wish to thank the many customers, who have helped to make this project a success.

This is a very busy week for the seniors. Salesmen are calling to show them invitations and name cards.

Third and Fourth Grades

We had a spelling contest last week. James Crothers was the winner. Hurrah for James!

Notice

The carnival will be held in the community gym this Saturday evening, Feb. 9. A good program has been planned. Every one come.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Roger Laub was absent last Wednesday because of illness.

Marcile Harper was absent last Monday because of a bad cold.

Lucile Bice was absent four days last week because of sore throat.

Those that received 100% in spelling last week in the fifth grade were: Glen Kimes, Lavern Furnish, Billy Chapman, Helen May Coles, Dick Reed, Merle Goldsmith, Marceille Harper, and Donna Mae Washler.

Carol Reed, Billy Baker, Victor Kelley, and Marion Walter received 100% in spelling in the sixth grade.

(Home Economics Dept.)

To remove rust from a sewing machine wheel rub lightly with an glass use a piece of dampened rub with a cloth wet with a good machine oil.

To pick up small pieces of broken glass use a piece eof dampened absorbent cotton. The glass will stick to the cotton.

Never rub soaps on flannels or woolens. Wash them in soapy water and rinse in luke warm water if you wish to preserve their softness and fine texture.

If you bring sausages to a boil before frying they will not burst open. Put them into a pan of cold water, bring to a boil, then brown them.

If bacon fat is rubbd over skin of potatoes before they are put into the oven to bake, skins will not break and crumble and will have a delicious flavor.

For cleaning an electric toaster a small new paint brush is most efficient.

To clean cut glass wash it in soap suds, then pack it in sawdust. The sawdust absorbs the moisture. Remove the sawdust with soft brush.

If you like cinnamon, try rolling doughnuts in cinnamon and sugar.

Rubber gloves will slip on more easily if sprinkled on the inside with cornstarch or powder.

The flavor of coffee is improved if a little salt is sprinkled on the bottom of the coffee pot before the coffe is put in.

BROTHERHOOD MEETING

The Wittenberg Brotherhood will hold their meeting in the United Brethren Church at Butler Wednesday evening, Feb. 13, at 7 P. M. This is the annual family meeting. All members are to bring their folks for a good time. There is a good program being prepared. Mr. Leo A. Caro, of Grand Rapids, Mich., will be the guest speaker of the evening.

Mr. Caro formerly was comptroler of Grand Rapids and is a lecturer and traveler. His subject wil be, "Are We Witnessing the Downfall of Another Civilization?"

The dinner will be served by the ladies of the church. A good turnout is expected.

Bruce Koch is at Dayton, Ohio.

Gerald Gee spent Saturday night in the Walter Gee home.

Mrs. Bruce Koch is spending a few days at Hicksville with her grandmother, Mrs. Geo. Krontz.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cook spent a coupel days this week with Foster Gee and family. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gee, of near Hicksville, visited in the same home Sunday.

HARDY PLANTS
READY FOR EARLY, PROFITABLE
MARKETING....

WITH an electric hotbed, any practical temperature can be selected and maintained. Experiments have proved that electric hotbeds are economical even when manure is available, as quicker and more uniform growth results from the use of electric heat.

Tomatoes, peppers, and other plants, including flowers, are started before their regular season and sturdy plants are ready for early marketing at good prices.

The cost of converting your present hotbeds into electric hotbeds is small and so also is the cost of heating them. In figuring current used, it is necessary to consider several factors such as the locality, season, weather, construction of the bed and the like, but a fair average cost is 8 cents per 24-hour day for the standard size frame of three feet by six feet.

We will be very glad to work with you on any installation you may be considering and to estimate YOUR heating cost.

CHARITY

Charity is not a plan of giving! charity is the luxury of doing good.

WHEN YOU TAKE A LAXATIVE

...use a spoon

It isn't what brand of laxative you take that's so important—it's the form. A liquid laxative can be taken in any required amount. If only a little is needed, you need never take a bit too much.

Doctors favor the easily measured liquid laxatives. Instead of any form that does not encourage variation from the fixed dose. A fixed dose may be an overdose for you—or your child.

Always remember this one thing about constipation: the secret of any real relief is reduced dosage.

Give the bowels only as much help as may be needed, and less help as the need grows less. You will find Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin an excellent aid in regulating the bowels. It contains senna and cascara (natural laxatives) and it will clear-up any bilious, sluggish condition without upset. Delightful taste, and pleasant action. Your druggist has it.

Pimples on Face Never Could Shave

Healed by Cuticura

"Three years ago my face and arms broke out with a skin eruption that was followed by large, red pimples. They festered and went all over my face and arms. They itched and burned and I could never shave. I lost much rest at night with them.

"Nothing I tried helped very much. Then I saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased them. I used about four cakes of Cuticura Soap and one and a half boxes of Cuticura Ointment and now I feel like a new man. I am completely healed." (Signed) Harry R. Congress Keeps the Printing Presses Busy

OUR congressmen are a loquacious lot, and their speeches, delivered on the floor and "extended" in the Record, together with the thousands of bills they introduce, keep the great government printing office exceedingly busy. The men in this picture are working on the Congressional Record, and as the session proceeds their labor grows heavier.

"Little Stories for Bedtime" by Thornton W. Burgess

FARMER BROWN FOOLS PETER RABBIT

WHEN the snow is deep Peter Rabbit really has to work for a living. Perhaps this is a good thing. If he didn't he might grow too fat to keep out of the way of Reddy Fox. There are times when Peter has to eat whatever he can, and very often there isn't much of anything for him but the bark of young trees. It is at such times that Peter gets into mischief, for there is no bark he likes better than that of young fruit trees.

Now you know what happens when the bark is taken off all the way around the trunk of a tree. That tree dies. It dies for the simple reason that it is up the inner layer of bark that the life-giving sap travels in the spring and summer. Of course when a strip of bark has been taken off all the way around near the base of a tree, the sap cannot go up and the tree must die.

Not far from the Old Orchard Farmer Brown had set out a young orchard. Peter knew all about that young orchard, for he had visited it many times in summer. Then there had been plenty of green clover and other green things to eat, and Peter had never been so much as tempted to sample the bark of these young trees. But now things were very different, and it was seldom that Peter knew what it was to have a full stomach. He kept thinking of that young orchard. He knew that if he were wise he would keep away from there. But the more he thought of it the more it seemed to him that he just must have some of that tender young bark. So just at dusk one evening Peter started for the young orchard.

He got there in safety and his eyes sparkled as he hopped over to the nearest young tree. But when he reached it Peter had a dreadful disappointment. All around the trunk of that young tree was wire netting. Peter couldn't get even a nibble of that bark. He tried the next tree with no better results. Then he hurried from tree to tree, but not a taste of bark could he get. You see, Farmer Brown knew all about Peter's liking for the bark of young trees, and he had been wise enough to protect his young fruit trees.

Peter didn't give up until he had visited every tree. Then, too disappointed for words, he turned and hopped lipperty-lipperty-lip over to the Old Orchard. As he passed a certain big apple tree he was startled by a voice.

"What's the matter, Peter," said the voice. "You don't look happy."

All Around the Trunk of That Young Tree Was Wire Netting.

HIS MOTHER

By ANNE CAMPBELL

ONCE, just as if she knew the years ran fast,
His mother took his baby hand in hers,
And in the attic way, where paint was fresh,
She laid his hand. . . . Now, stealing through the firs
The vagrant sunbeams come, and on the wall
They trace that print of childhood first of all.

He is a man, and seldom does he go
Back to the home his father's father planned;
But once he told me, in a quiet way,
Of that remembered imprint of his hand.
"To think it is still there, and mother dead!
And yet her love surrounds me still," he said.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a young man but am always in ill health. It may be the climate here in New York. I will go to any town you may suggest that is very healthful.

Yours truly,
D. PRESSED.

Answer: The healthiest town I know of is Crum City, Wyo. This town is so healthy they had to kill two people last week, just to start a cemetery.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a young man eighteen years of age. Because of my health I have to quit work a great deal thereby losing a lot of money. I am out of employment at present but have two positions offered to me. One job is for $12 a week and one for $17.50 a week. Which job shall I take?

Yours truly,
P. KULIER.

Answer: By all means take the job for $12.00 a week because when you are sick and have to quit your job you will not be losing as much money as you would if you were getting $17.50 a week.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have been going with a young girl for about one year. We were always together until she graduated from high school about six months ago and secured a position. Now she passes me right by. If I talk to her she won't answer me. What can the answer be?

Sincerely,
G. OGRAPHY.

Answer: You say she was all right when you went to school together but now that she is working she won't answer you. Quite simple. She must be employed as a telegraph operator.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

A friend of mine told me that he saw a man "run over himself." I told him he was crazy. Now he will not speak to me. Do you think it possible for a man to "run over himself"?

Truly yours,
I. BALL.

Answer: Sure it is possible. I know of such a case. A friend of mine was driving a car. He stopped it in front of a candy store, jumped out, went into the candy store and asked for a pack of cigarettes. There was only one clerk in the store and he told my friend that if he wanted cigarettes he would have to go across the street to the cigar store for them. My friend then asked the clerk if he would not run over to the cigar store for him, and the clerk told my friend that he could not leave the candy store alone and run over to the cigar store for the cigarettes; so my friend "ran over himself."

DESIGN HAS ALL THE BEST POINTS OF HOUSE DRESS

PATTERN 9083

Believe it or not, there's a four-point plan of convenience and flattery included in this neatly styled house dress. Let's add them up. First: the bodice may be worn with the contrasting rever, as shown in the larger sketch, or it may button all the way up to a smart point. Second: the sleeves boast little inverted pleats, jaunty to look at and very comfortable when working. Third: the slenderizing line sweeping down the middle front of the frock ends in another inverted pleat to give the slim skirt adequate fullness. And finally, the patch pockets with their important buttons are both useful and chic!

Pattern 9083 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards 36 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

Peasant Influence in Modern Dress

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

BIG sleeves, bloused bodices, drawstring necklines, cord and tassel fastenings, colorful sashes girdling the waistline, rustic linens and cottons bizarre with color and design, ornate embroideries and hosts of other details equally as fascinating and picturesque, all proclaim the romantic, quaint, peasant fashions of mid-Europe as the source from which modern designers are gathering inspiration.

The prologue to this peasant-inspired style program was written months ago when millinery, as we all remember, went so spectacularly and so picturesquely Tyrolean. The movement grew and grew until this season. Throughout all costume design one sees modern interpretation given to peasant themes gleaned from many lands.

To peasant sources may be traced the primitive reds and greens and yellows in beach and sports wear as a change from the subtle pastels, the nautical blues and the softly modulated "faded" tones and tints we loved so well. Peasant-shawl prints enliven the new evening gowns. Self-fringe finishes the edges of rustic fabrics. Raffia accessories is the new note sounded in connection with sports costumes. Starched laces flare about throat and on sleeves. Belts gaily embroidered in peasant colors make costumes look pictorially gypsylike—and so on and so on the story of peasant lore unfolds in modernized version.

Perhaps the most significant reaction to peasant influence is the silhouette which introduces softly bloused bodices and big generous sleeves. The dress on the seated figure in the illustration speaks more eloquently than words of this new movement. Gray jersey fashions this gown, which is a Paris model. Gray, by the way, is accounted as ultra-voguish for both day and evening wear by stylists both here and abroad. The huge pleated sleeves are set very high. These, with the gathered-neckline and fullness given to the blouse which is confined at the waistline with a massive silver belt, give that "different" look which insures a new-this-season styling.

The dress on the standing figure to the right also features the very new and smart bloused bodice, but in a more conservative way. It is fashioned of a handsome fuchsia colored crepe. There is a bit of smocking slightly suggesting a yoke which gives the required blouse fullness. The big sleeves are gathered in at the wrist in traditional peasant fashion. The frill at the neck also reflects peasant styling.

Bloused bodice backs are made a special point of interest in many of the new dresses. The model pictured above to the left in the group illustrates "lines" that are considered the last word in chic.

Speaking of influences reflected in the newer fashions there is another movement under way which is quite as outstanding and important as that of peasant trends. We are referring to the "Regency" period fashions which flourished in the early Nineteenth century (from 1812 to 1820). The Regency influences in dress versus peasant trends inject a versatility to this season's styling which insures against the possibility of a dull or monotonous moment in realms of fashion the whole spring and summer through.

The former bespeaks a formality and sophistication which is quite foreign to the naive rustic beauty of the latter. The characteristic features in either are easily recognizable. Reminiscent of the Regency period modes are the high waistlines which certain French couturiers are introducing, the long skirts often with decorative hemlines and that which you will see displayed in millinery showings this spring—bonnets, real poke bonnets which of course will interest the ingenue and debutante clientele, far more than women of more mature years.

Haircut

By ELSIE F. WILSON

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

CLARIBEL BRUNKE'S chauffeur eased to the curb in front of the most famous of Fifth avenue's beauty temples. Claribel's gracious entrance into the salon was greeted by a careful bow from the wax-mustached manager himself.

"Ah, Mademoiselle Brunke—good afternoon. We shall be pleased—"

"I'd like to have you personally do my hair, Seixas," she smiled. "It's rather important today."

"But yes, Mademoiselle."

"I'm going to put myself in your hands, Seixas," she said. "I want a haircut entirely different from anything I've ever had. Something suited to my type and personality. You know what I mean?"

"But yes, mademoiselle." Seixas draped a snowy sheet around Claribel's shoulders.

"For you, mademoiselle, the smooth close cut is the best. Then to bring out the natural piquancy of your face, a fluffy bang across the forehead—yes?"

"I'll leave it to you, Seixas," she smiled. "Only make me as beautiful as you can."

Claribel hoped that tonight Rick Hollimore would ask her to marry him. She had known Rick for a year. Lately she had fancied that there had been something new in his eyes; something more personal when he looked at her.

"There, mademoiselle!"

"Perfect, Seixas," she sighed. "You couldn't have done better."

"Now a shampoo and wave, mademoiselle?"

"Please."

Seixas proudly combed out the finished coiffure. It was a masterpiece. But then Seixas was patronized because he produced masterpieces.

"It is lovely, Seixas. And it is important that I be particularly nice tonight."

Claribel sat opposite Rick Hollimore in the dim dining room of the Cafe Brun. She was faintly disappointed. Rick who invariably noticed the details of her costume, had not yet commented on her changed headdress. She sipped her cocktail and tried to recapture the intimacy of the past few meetings.

"You're quiet tonight Rick," she said. "Tired?"

"A little," admitted Hollimore. "This business of casting for a new play gets me every time. I think I have my finger on a type I want and then—pouff! She drops her aitches or bites her finger nails!"

"Poor boy." But Hollimore did not react to her sympathy. Claribel felt chilled. At the moment she knew that she meant no more to Rick than the centerpiece of crystal tulips. If he didn't soon see her as an individual Claribel knew that she would always be just so much atmosphere in his life. He was becoming too accustomed to her beauty.

Suddenly his eyes lit up. She followed his glance.

"Do you see her?" he exclaimed tensely. "The girl with the hair red and crisp looking. I want her for the beggar girl in Scarlet Slippers. Can't you just picture her?" Hollimore's voice was eager.

"She probably stutters," said Claribel.

"But her hair! It's a masterpiece of art and imagination. I wonder who her hairdresser is? He certainly knows his stuff. Funny, the difference a haircut makes to a woman, isn't it?"

"Yes, isn't it?" echoed Claribel bleakly. As Hollimore excused himself and strode off in the direction of the red headed girl, Claribel retouched her lips and ran a slim finger through her fluffed bangs. Her hands were cold.

Effie's reflection in the mirror above the kitchen sink gave back her vivid smile. Her crisp red-gold curls were almost completely obscured by the inverted pewter bowl.

"Don't cut off too much, Mom," she warned. "Just enough to smarten the edges."

"Haven't I cut your hair enough times to know how to do it?" returned Mom Bailey brandishing her shears above the bowl. "Keep still and don't fidget."

Clip, clip, clip. The burnished ringlets dropped to the towel around Effie's shoulders. Snip, snip—

"A man in the restaurant offered me a part in a play last night," said Effie. "He said he liked my haircut." She laughed.

"You mean you're goin' on the stage?" asked Mom.

"No," said Effie. "I'm going to marry Tommy. He asked me last night."

Effie's hair released from the confining bowl, crinkled and glittered as if each hair were individually endowed with vivid life.

"Gee, Mom," Effie leaned on the kitchen sink and admired her radiant mop. "Gee, Mom, that's swell." She turned to her mother. "The man in the restaurant said my hair was a masterpiece of art and sophistication. Tommy says it looks like a sunburned dandelion. You should've seen the dame with the man who offered me the job. Marcelled and sleeked and shellacked until she was afraid to move her neck for fear she'd throw a hair out of place. Swell looking, too, except for a scared look in her eyes. I guess she was afraid of spoiling that classy headdress.

"Funny, isn't it, the difference a haircut makes to a girl?"

Build on Faith and Trust

Writer's Opinion Is That Vows to Keep Faith, and to Be Honest, Are All That May Reasonably Be Exchanged at Matrimonial Altar.

By HELEN WELSHIMER, in the New York World-Telegram.

Mrs. Virginia Overshiner Cogswell announces that she is disillusioned about men and marriage. Why shouldn't she be? She says she wants to terminate her seventh marriage. To take back your heart seven times is a procedure monotonous enough to bore anyone.

While Mrs. Cogswell's atitude is not difficult to understand, the contention remains that it isn't sporting of her to tell girls, "Don't marry!" Not every one tries seven times without finding a satisfactory husband. By a little pre-marital consideration, a man and woman can often determine whether the chemical allure which drew them together has a chance for survival.

Certainly no man and woman—though their marriage score be seven times seven—must continue the nuptial relationship when love has vanished and isn't expected back. Dictates of sound judgment, good taste and health suggest that such people at least live apart.

First of all, two enamored human beings should determine whether their affection for each other is real or synthetic. It is best to fashion wedding garments only when love is all wool, a yard wide, guaranteed not to shrink, fade or run.

Compatibility — mental, physical and spiritual—is an important marital prerequisite. People who have been reared with a common background, who have a community of tastes and interests, who have studied the same textbooks and found the same answers to their problems, have a much better chance of success than those who represent different worlds.

Adoration is a nice part of love. But when there is nothing but a tender emotion, it is surprising how quickly small differences can toughen it.

Two people who believe that they can follow their own interests apart from the affection bestowed on each other soon find that the moments of worship in each other's presence have lost their savor. Anybody can worship a honey-colored idol on a shelf or admire a colored glass window in a cathedral. But when you marry you must observe that the object of your devotion can't slt forever on a pedestal.

Probably the greatest mistake that people make is to take the marriage ceremony literally. Two people promise to love, cherish and protect each other until death parts them.

The first vow should be cut. No one can promise to love anyone else forever. We can promise to keep faith, to be honest and honorable, to cherish our affection, to guard it and nurture it. But if it passes with the spring or summer, all we can do is surrender with grace. We cannot bank on finality in any human relationship.

The Bible, which says that two people shall become one flesh, makes no mention of one heart or one soul. After all, marriage can't succeed if love is held with bonds. It has to be a voluntary offering. We can't restrain the wind, the tide, the rain, the spring, or love. Love, most of all. It comes and goes at the giver's bidding.

But love is not as variable a quality as we may suppose from this freedom of disposal. When two people's hearts click, and those two are understanding and compatible and respect each other's freedom as individuals, the chances are that love will last.

A marriage built on a cornerstone of possessiveness may topple in the first high wind. But one erected on faith and trust will stand, although the waters rise, the winds blow and the storms come.

The last few years of economic sacrifice and struggle have taught youth—and youth's parents, too—that it is considerably more important for two people to be able to laugh together, weep together and plan together than to have frosted rolls in the cupboard and several cars in the garage. Marriage has to be woven from spiritual stuff rather than material. Or it will fall down—seven times out of seven!

Love, in brief, can't be put on a mercenary standard. It requires respect more than adulation.

If, having come to marriage prepared, Mrs. Cogswell found unhappiness in seven instances, fate has played her a distinctly raw deal. We don't blame her at all for warning other women against the glorified state. But it is nice to know that most people have had better luck!

Help Scientific Study

Miniature earthquakes, created by setting off small charges of dynamite, are helping scientists study deep-lying rock structures of the earth, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Sensitive instruments record the "earthquakes." By studying the effects of these explosions it is possible to locate accurately underlying strata of rock as deep as 40,000 feet below the surface. The apparatus also is used to locate earthquake faults, to study the velocity with which earth tremors are propagated, to locate oil shale and to measure the depth of alluvial deposits. Dynamite charges vary from one to forty pounds. The explosive and recording instruments are carried on a special truck outfitted by scientists of the California Institute of Technology.

TULLE TRIMS PRINT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The call of the evening mode is for masses of frothy tulle used in a trimming way on gowns. The very handsome yellow and black silk crepe gown pictured has a froth of black tulle at each shoulder. The cunning cape which milady holds in hand in readiness to don at sweet will is also of frothy layers of black tulle.

Hales of Pleated Silk

The latest hales for evening wear are made of pleated silk in a variety of colors, with moleskin capes and muffs, green, plum or navy.

ACCESSORIES EKE OUT SMALL BUDGET

The woman who has to get through an entire season with one evening gown—now there's a problem for you. But it can be an amusing problem if the woman is sufficiently clever and ingenious. The styles are on her side this winter.

All this girl with the collapsed budget need do is watch her colors and accessories. Let her get a white or cream-colored gown built along simple, classic lines in crepe, chiffon, satin or velvet. Then let her change the gown's appearance from time to time with a double capelet of burnt orange tulle, with a mauve sequin jacket, with a high-necked deep blue velvet jacket that buttons down the back, even with a lovebird green chiffon scarf whose ends float airily behind.

Purple Flowers Are Back in Spotlight of Fashion

"Buttercups and daisies here to please the ladies"—are supplanted by violets, pansies and lilacs. The current acceptance of colors in the purple range, sponsored by Schiaparelli, Mainbocher, Lelong, Patou and others, have brought these lovely blossoms back into fashion.

Late last summer Paris began using these together with blues, which frequently have a purplish cast. The violets are varied in type, single, double, large, small; lilacs come in sprays or clusters, following genuine or artificial effects. Schiaparelli uses a spray of pansies over the shoulder, Mainbocher uses lilacs to trim lavender chiffon. Patou poses a bunch of violets at center front.

Black Velvet Favored

Black velvet hits the high spots for afternoon and evening. Velvet suits with peplums and rhinestone buttons or bowknots are chic.

Leighty, of St. Joe, chairman of publicity.

CHARLES KAGEY DIES SUDDENLY AT AUBURN

Paralysis caused the death of Charles Kagey of 905 South Jackson St., Auburn, at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mr. Kagey was ill only a few hours. Apparently as well as usual he helped his mother, Mrs. Minnie Kagey with the washing on Monday. About noon he felt sick and lay down for awhile. Later in the afternoon he attempted to empty the wash water, but was compelled to lay down again. At 4 o'clock he was worse and a physician was called. In a short time he was unable to talk and his condition became critical.

Mr. Kagey was for 10 years agent for the Indiana Service Corp. He was born in Spencerville and was 58 years of age on August 22nd last. He resided for ten years in St. Joe and eighteen years in Ashland, Ohio, and shortly after his parents moved to Auburn in 1906 he went to Auburn. He attended and was graduated from the St. Joe high school.

Mr. Kagey made his home with his mother who survives, with one brother, George Kagey, of Willard, Ohio. He has a daughter, Florence Kagey who resides in Warsaw, Ind.

The funeral service was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence with Rev. J. O. McKinley, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene officiating. Burial in Woodlawn cemetery.

CORN-HOG SIGN UP MEETINGS SCHEDULED

Corn and hog producers in DeKalb County will be given an opportunity to make application for the contract being offered by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to reduce the production of corn by 10 to 30 per cent of the average acreage planted in 1932 and 1933, and to reduce hog production by 10 per cent from the average of 1932 and 1933, in a series of application sign-up meetings which will start at Vernon Kepler's farm residence in Troy Township and the Waterloo Library in Grant Township on Thursday, February 14, as announced by T. E. Myers, County Agricultural Agent, today.

"Each producer attending the sign-up meeting will be expected to bring to the meeting all evidence and information necessary to complete his contract, and wherever possible, landlords should accompany the producers on sign-up day," Mr. Myers stated.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

P. T. A. Next Tuesday Evening

The local Parent-Teachers association will observe the 300th anniversary of the founding of the secondary schools in America with a special program on next Tuesday evening, February 19th. Superintendent W. S. Painter of the Garrett Public Schools will be our guest speaker on this occasion. The program will be one of considerable interest to adults and the upper high school grade pupils.

Remember the junior class play which will be given on Friday evening of this week.

Jack Lovely, a transfer student from Wilmington Township, withdrew from school on last Friday. His family have removed to Ohio.

Superintendent C. F. Stallman called at the school on Monday forenoon of this week.

Edward Sechler has been absent from school this week. A few of last week's sick list have returned and others are now afflicted.

The next teachers institute will be held in Auburn on Saturday, February 23.

Diplomas were ordered this week. This reminds us that we are approaching the last quarter of the school term.

First and Second Grades

The children in our room are taking a mid-morning lunch of graham crackers and milk.

We made valentines on Tuesday.

The second grade made a Lincoln poster on Tuesday.

Several pupils in our room have the measles.

Third and Fourth Grades

We celebrated Lincoln's birthday Tuesday afternoon. Each of us who found a picture of Lincoln had a part in our program. We heard stories about his life, and poems written about him.

Our spelling honor roll includes Patricia Carpenter, Jean Hurni, Betty Rudolph, Walter Fetters, Lewis Freeburn, Earl Keller, Donald Kinsey, Candace Loftus, Betty Nicholls, Robert Ridgway, Frances Reidenbach, Mary Ellen Rude, Gladys Stewart and Marilyn Zonker.

We have made a valentine for our Valentine Party Thursday.

Mary Ellen Rude is on our sick list.

My Adventures in a Work Shop

I am a kite, I live with Tom and Mary Brown. One day as they were out flying me I got caught in a tree. Then Tom crawled up in the tree and got me down. My string was broke but he tied another on me. A few days later when Tom was at school Mary was at home because she was only five. She asked her mother if she might fly me. Her mother said she could. So she took me out and was flying me. Then all of a sudden a big, big wind came and blew me into a tree. Mary ran and told her mother about the accident. Her mother said she should get the clothes prop and get me down. Then I was scared. I thought she would tear my paper and when she came with the prop to get me down sure enough B-s-s-s-s-s went my paper. Then she said, "Now I have ruined the kite." But when Mary saw Tom coming home from school she ran to him with tears in her eyes and said, "Tom I was playing with your kite and a big wind came and blew it into a tree." Mother said I should try to get it down with the clothes prop and when I tried to, I tore it, Tom, but I didn't mean to.

"That's all right, Mary, I can fix it."

Now Tom had a little workshop so he took some pretty paper and then he took my strips of wood apart, nailed the pretty paper on me, and then I looked as good as new.

My Escape

A few days afterwards Tom was flying me. His friend came up behind him scared him, Tom let go of my string and I floated away. Finally the wind slacked up and I fell to the ground. In a few minutes some other children came and found me and took me home and played with me. Tom told Mary, and she said, "That's a good joke on you."

—Patricia Maxwell.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Miss Ruth Keesler of the sixth grade won the George Washington contest held in our room on Wednesday afternoon.

The spelling honor roll of last week contained the following names: Maurice Hurni, Luella Strouse, Harold Inlow, Alice Richmond, Ruth Donley, Evelyn George, Marcel Pugsley, Sylvia Washler and Myra Keesler.

Abraham Lincoln's birthday and St. Valentine Day are being observed in our room this week.

SPENCERVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The local basket ball squad have a game with Pleasant Mills this Friday night.

The pupils in grades three and four are planning for a valentine box on February 14.

The primary children have been making valentines with February 14 as their chief objective.

The music teacher and pupils have already began to work on their operetta.

In Junior Business Practice the members are making individual collections of advertisements, slogans and trademarks, the three best and most attractive collection to be given honorable mention and placed in the school exhibit.

Every one at the Freshman party had a very good time.

The eighth grade and its guests will be entertained by Louise Shockley and Gene Miller at the home of the former on Wednesday evening. A valentine box has been planned and games will be played during the evening.

Fixth and Sixth Grades

Dick Reed, Helen May Coles, Lavern Furnish, Marjorie Brown, Donna Mae Washler, Marcille Harper, Merle Goldsmith, Marion Walter, Betty Shockley, Paul Crothers, Carol Reed, and Billy Baker received 100% in spelling this week.

We attended the show that was given upstairs Friday and enjoyed it very much.

YOUTHFUL LINES IN HOUSE FROCK

PATTERN 2071

You'll like the youthful shirtwaist lines of this smartly tailored house frock, and you'll like the way you can slip into it as quickly as one, two, three! What a joy for the woman who hates to jump out of her nice warm bed on cold winter mornings and start struggling with hooks and eyes! For the dress opens the full length of its front and is easily adjusted to the figure by means of a tie-belt, part of which slips through a slit at one side and is drawn about the waist to tie into a gay little bow with the other half of the belt. And if you prefer a round neckline the dress can be made without the collar, as in the smaller illustration.

Pattern 2071 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 3¾ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York city.

Smiles

SUCH IS JAZZ

"When Jake's dog tipped over a table in the cafe, four waiters dropped their trays at the same time."

"Yes, and I heard that two couples got up to dance, thinking it was a new jazz tune."

Social Problem

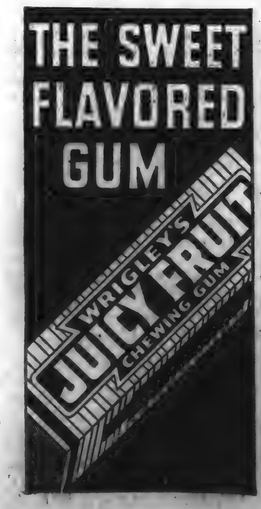
"What are you going to do about Rattlesnake Pete?"

"He's one of Gulch's social problems," answered Cactus Joe. "He has robbed so many banks successfully that we don't know whether to classify him as a racketeer or a malefactor of great wealth."

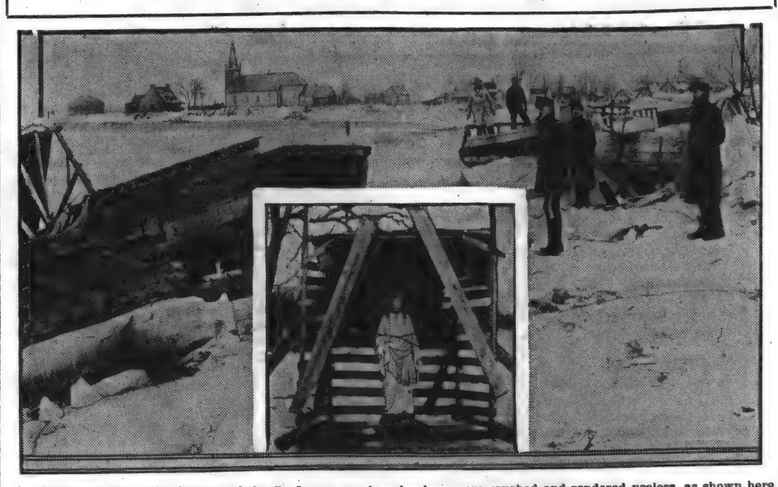
Showing Appreciation

"Sonnie" was in the raptures of eating fried chicken, so much so that his mother remarked, "Well, you certainly seem to like it!"

"Yum! Yum!" said Sonnie between bites. "If I had a tail (another bite), I'd wag it!"



Place Statue in Ice Jam as Villagers Pray



ALL types of boats, in the way of the St. Lawrence river ice jam, were crushed and rendered useless, as shown here. Father Bourget of the Roman Catholic church at Hogansburg, N. Y., ordered the statue of St. Peter taken out of the church and placed between the ice jam and the Indian village of St. Regis, while the villagers gave prayers of thankfulness that the river was receding. The inset shows a picture of the statue of St. Peter.

PETER DISCOVERS SPOOKY

PETER RABBIT had been startled by a voice as he was passing a certain big apple tree in the Old Orchard. The voice had seemed to come from that big apple tree. Peter stopped short and stared up through the branches of the tree. Look as he would he couldn't see anybody. There wasn't a leaf on that tree and he could see all through it. Peter blinked, felt foolish, very foolish indeed. He knew that had there been anyone sitting on one of those branches he couldn't have helped seeing them.

"Don't look so high, Peter. Don't look so high," said the voice with a chuckle. This time it sounded as if it came right out of the trunk of the tree. Peter stared at the trunk, then suddenly laughed right out. Just a few feet above the ground was a good-sized hole in the tree, and poking his head out of it was a funny little fellow with big eyes and a hooked beak.

"You certainly did fool me that time, Spooky," cried Peter. "I ought to have recognized your voice, but I didn't."

Spooky the Screech Owl, for that is who it was, came out of the hole in the tree, and without a sound from his wings flew over and perched just above Peter's head. He was a little fellow, not more than eight inches high, but there was no mistaking the family to which he belonged. In fact he looked very much like a small copy of Hooty the Great Horned Owl, so much so that Peter felt a little cold shiver run over him, although he had nothing in the world to fear from Spooky. His head seemed to be almost as big around as his body, and he seemed to have no neck at all. He was dressed in bright reddish brown with little streaks and bars of black. Underneath he was whitish with little streaks of black and brown. On each side of his head was a tuft of feathers. They look like ears, and some people think they are ears, which is a mistake. His eyes were round and yellow with a fierce hungry look in them. His bill was small and almost hidden among the feathers of his face, but it was hooked just like the bill of Hooty.

As Spooky settled himself he turned his head till he could look squarely behind him, then brought it back again so quickly that to Peter it looked as if it had gone clear around. You see, Spooky's eyes are fixed in their sockets, and he cannot move them from side to side. He has to turn his whole head in order to see to one side or the other.

"You haven't told me yet why you look so unhappy, Peter," said Spooky.

RULES

By ANNE CAMPBELL

IT WAS because of rules he had to go
Away from all he cherished. . . .
On the street.
He looked back to the ward and saw the glow
Of lamps. . . . He could not help it if his feet
Would drag a bit, as, climbing on a bus,
He rode in silence almost ominous.

He thought of rules the whole way to the rooms
Her presence had made sweet. . . .
The hospital
Must have them, I suppose. . . . A man presumes
But after all, there was his child, his wife—
All that he held most precious in this life.

But when he washed his work-grimed hands and lay
Alone within their bed, he thought again
Of the not very distant, happy day
When rules to separate them would be vain.
Smiling, he thought (Queer how a grin can smart!):
"No rules can keep her image from my heart!"

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I was to a vaudeville show last night. In one of these acts a fellow with a terrible voice sang a song. Although he sang it badly the melody still haunts me. How do you account for that?
Sincerely,
K. OTTICK.

Answer: That is easily explained. The reason the melody haunts you is because the singer was so bad he probably murdered the song.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am a man forty-five years of age. I am single. I do not chew, smoke, drink, swear, dance or gamble. Do you think I will live to be ninety years of age?
Yours truly,
A. MARVEL.

Answer: You probably will. But, if you don't do any of the things you mention, why do you want to live forty-five years longer?

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I arrived in a small town, one day last week, and I had a heavy grip. I saw a tramp at the station and thought I would have him carry my bag for me. I asked him if he wanted to make a quarter. He said "no" and walked away from me. How do you account for that?
Yours truly,
SAYLES MAN.

Answer: He probably had a quarter.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I was in New York last week and saw a lot of plays. Why do the managers produce plays which are so "raw"?
Yours truly,
Q. PONN.

Answer: The managers know the newspapers will "roast" them.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I smoke 60 to 70 cigarettes a day and my doctor says this habit will affect my brains. Do you agree with him?
Yours truly,
SIG ARR.

Answer: No! If you had any brains you wouldn't smoke 70 cigarettes a day.

Mother's Cook Book

COOKING WITH COCONUT

NOW that the fresh coconuts are in the market it is the time to use some of the good recipes that are being worked out by industrious housewives.

To prepare the coconut pierce the eyes with an ice pick and let the milk drain into a cup. Now place the coconut in the oven for a few minutes to become hot, then crack it and the meat will come out nicely without sticking to the shell.

Orange Coconut Creams.

Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, add two cupfuls of granulated sugar, one-half cupful of coconut milk and one-fourth cupful of water. Boil to the soft ball stage, 236 degrees Fahrenheit, stirring only when necessary. Cool and beat like chocolate fudge. Add flavoring, using two teaspoonfuls of orange juice and one-half teaspoonful of grated peel; mix well with two cupfuls of freshly grated coconut. Mold with the hands, taking a tablespoonful at a time. Roll in coconut and set aside to harden. This recipe yields about one and one-half pounds.

Fresh Coconut Candy.

Take one cupful of coconut milk, add three cupfuls of sugar and put on to boil; cook ten minutes after the boiling begins, then add all of the grated coconut and cook five minutes longer. Beat until it is cold, pour out into greased baking sheets and cut into squares.

Coconut Cookies.

Take one cupful of fresh coconut, add to two-thirds of a cupful of butter and one and one-third cupfuls of sugar creamed, add two beaten eggs, one-half cupful of chopped raisins and sift together one and one-half cupfuls of flour with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg and one-half teaspoonful of cloves. Add the dry ingredients alternately with one-fourth cupful of coconut milk.

May Yet Find "Missing Link" in Congo Forests

How would you like to meet an ape with red hair? There is a tradition that such an animal exists in the forests of the Congo, and that it is larger and stronger than the gorilla, but also in some respects more like men. It stands erect and walks like a man—not only occasionally, but always—and its intelligence is nearer to man's than the ape's.

Before we dismiss this story of the red-haired ape as a fantasy we must remember that a great part of the Congo forest is still unknown and unexplored, and that at first many people were sceptical about the existence of the gorilla.

And there is a very circumstantial story of how a red-haired ape was killed by pigmies some twenty years ago. The body was seen by a district official, but when he returned, an hour or so later, to collect the skin, it had been burned by a missionary, who had strongly disapproved of the Darwinian theory, and feared that the discovery of this new species might help to confirm it.

Perhaps a new expedition will find another specimen. That many creatures as yet unknown to science do exist in these mysterious forests is accepted by those who know Africa best.—London Answers.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people 'round 40 think they're "growing old." They feel tired a lot . . . "weak." Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

"Faint Heart"

By EVELYN GORDON
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

MILT MARRICK'S fingers drummed with soft impatience on his desk. Then he got up and for the tenth time stopped to listen at his open door.

No, she wasn't coming yet. Past nine now. Ruth Royal during these two years as his secretary in the Marrick Advertising agency never had been late. Until this morning.

And this morning of all mornings! When fate lay in what would be revealed in her lovely face when she would emerge through that door connecting their offices. Would it be yes, or no?

For months he had been like a timid swimmer atop a springboard, but with insufficient courage to take the actual leap. And now it was as though he had positively cast off by proxy. Because of yesterday; yesterday, when he had walked firmly out and bought an expensive engagement ring.

He wrote a letter then and placed it inside the velvet case beneath the ring.

Now, how to get it to her? It was like a voice from Paradise when on the way out at five, Ruth said, "My mother's with me for a week. She's keen to meet the man I'm working for. Couldn't you drop into the apartment?"

Ruth had the merriest fire crackling in the grate when he arrived.

Some one said, quietly, "Miss Ruth, the coffee's served."

And Milt decided that when the ladies preceded him to the dining room he would place the precious box on her pillow as he passed Ruth's bedroom door where she would discover it.

He had not slept, thinking of Ruth and of Joe Allerton—he'd seen them together lately more than enough.

The electric light button clicked in the adjoining room!

Instantly Milt's eyes focused on the connecting door. His heart leapt like a racehorse taking final hurdles in competition with other aspirants. He yearned for the light of acquiescence on her face. Some one was with her. "Let it be anyone but Allerton," he prayed.

"It's serious, Ruth." The voice was low, secretive; and Milt knew that voice—Joe Allerton's. "We've simply got to get together," (he failed to catch the next pleading words but read his own suspicions into them) "otherwise the bottom will drop out of everything."

* * * * * * *

After a curt "Good morning," she said firmly: "Let's get these orders straightened out first, I've had so many complaints about mistakes—" Her words all pertaining to business, bumped up in a huddled mass in his brain through a telephone buzzer on Ruth's outer desk. She hastened to answer it.

And suddenly he was alone again when the door opened gently. Some one peeped in, then entered noiselessly.

Milt's face paled. "Why—Anne!" His eyes were gray clouds. "You! What have you come here for?"

"I'm glad you're going to marry her, Milt. Any girl would give her ears to marry you. You've always been so fine, staunch." She hesitated as though her throat were blocked. "Only—she doesn't know yet."

"You see, Milt, it's my one bad habit. I'll always steal. Because I can't seem to help it, somehow, I took Miss Royal's ring; found it on the pillow when I went in to turn the bed down. I go from place to place, you know. But I left there this morning."

An aching void for the girl he had once adored gaped in Milt's gentle heart. He had helped her so many times to escape punishment.

Anne opened her purse, took out the square-cut purple box with reverent care; put it safely into Milt's hands. It was only then that her dark eyes misted. "Don't do it this way, Milt," she begged. "I mean—not the writing part. Tell her. She'll like it better, Milt. It seems sort of cowardly to do it this way."

Milt looked hard into her thin face. "Thank you, Anne," he said with difficulty. "I will."

Suddenly he straightened up to his full six feet and slapped his thumb over the buzzer mightily.

Ruth came running in. Her eyes were red, strained. Without a doubt she had been crying.

"Come here, Ruth. What's the matter?"

Her lips quivered. "Oh, everything that was ever the matter in the whole world. The business is going to ruin and you can't see—can't see—"

"—the reason why," he supplied in a thick certain voice. "Well—this is it!" His arms closed tight about her. "This is why!"

"Oh, Milt," she was saying breathlessly, "what's been the matter with you? This curious hedge you seemed to have around you! I felt you cared about me, but somehow we couldn't get through to one another."

He kissed her hard. "We have now," he said triumphantly.

'And all the time you were getting more absent-minded than ever. Sending the wrong material out. Mixing up the merchandise; making clients mad until Joe Allerton and I were almost beside ourselves. Only this morning Joe said the bottom would fall out of everything unless we could do something; get together—"

"So, that's what Joe was saying! That I was going daft." He kissed her again. "My sweet brown bird!" There was a roguish gleam in his eye. "The hedge is down—and the Marrick agency still floats—with you at the helm!"

The "liquid test"

...it ENDS bowel worries for many people

This is a test that tells you whether the system needs a cathartic change. If you have constant sluggish spells or bilious attacks, and laxatives seem to make things worse, it would be wise to try this:

Stop all use of any laxative that does not encourage variation from a "fixed dose" (which may be entirely too large a dose for your individual need). Use instead, a liquid laxative that you can measure and regulate as to dose. As necessary to repeat, take smaller doses, less and less often, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

Doctors use liquid laxatives, and a properly prepared liquid laxative, containing natural laxative agents like senna and cascara is a joy and a comfort; a real help in establishing regularity. Ask your doctor about this! (Doctors use liquid laxatives.) You can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a most dependable liquid laxative, at any drug store.

Lincoln, the Poet

By MARGARET E. BRUNER
in Indianapolis News

THE world has honored him as one whose heart
Was touched by sorrows of a fettered race—
Who, in his kindness sought to ease the smart
Of suffering, nor turned averted face;
For he was kind to every desolate
And hunted creature—lonely tree and hill;
There was a hunger he could never sate,
A longing he could never quite fulfill.
He was a mighty poet, though he wrote
No lines by which the world could know his art;
But I am sure he heard the perfect note—
Felt rhythms which the mind could not impart,
A genial man, and yet with soul depressed,
His songs forever locked within his breast.

Sacred Heritage to the American People

ONE hundred and twenty-six years have rolled into the ages since the birth of Abraham Lincoln. Kindled at the very hearthstone of his being were the fires of two great principles whose flames have burned with a brilliance undimmed by time through generation after generation—the cause of liberty and equality for every man. Believing inherently in these two great truths, his became an inspired vision.

When the startling breath of war's alarm spread throughout the land, in defense of these principles, with impassioned zeal, he led his country to noble victory. The memory of this rugged man of modest dignity and enduring qualities, whose broad ideals become more clearly revealed with the passing years, is a sacred heritage to the American people.

Though the treasured dust and ashes, once his mortal frame, have long been enshrined by a worshipful nation, his immortal spirit lies not entombed, for today, in the hearts of our grateful Republic, the inspiration of the martyred soul of Abraham Lincoln to eternal freedom goes marching on.

Lincoln Wordage Beats Bible and Shakespeare

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S writings and speeches now in print exceed in volume of words both the Bible and the works of Shakespeare, according to information by Dr. Louis Warren, director of the Lincoln National Life foundation, writes a Fort Wayne (Ind.) United Press correspondent.

In 1772, after three years of work, an English man found that the Bible contained 926,877 words. Shakespeare's complete works have been estimated to contain 1,024,000 words. The written and spoken words of Lincoln total approximately 1,078,965 words, according to Doctor Warren.

While the Bible and Shakespeare's works are complete, many of Lincoln's writings and speeches still are unpublished. The count did not include Lincoln's own personal papers, the traditional Lincoln anecdotes, or the many personal letters which are still in private hands.

AGNES DUNN WRITES MOTHER FROM CEYLON

Agnus Dunn, a well known missionary here, again writes her mother, Mrs. L. V. Dunn, of Breedsville, Mich., the letter arriving Jan. 8., and later sent to us for publication. We reproduce it as follows:

Colombo, Ceylon, Dec. 4.

Dearest Mamma:

This is mail day. For we have reached the place where mail goes once a week as in India.

I mailed you a card from here, one I wrote on the ship between Penang and here. Now I'll tell you a bit about Colombo and why we are still here when we should have sailed a week ago yesterday.

It was hot on the boat between Penang and here, as it was most of the way out, and it's hot here days. We sleep well uder a sheet at night. Two nights I was at the Y. W. I used a blanket. We landed here Sunday A. M., Nov. 25. Anchored out in the bay and took a launch to shore. Five other passenger ships were in harbor, one had gotten in just before we did. I looked around in the dock thinking I might see someone I knew and sure enough I did, an Indian teacher and her mother. In India 2 years ago I met Dr. Jaccocks (American) whom I tried to locate, in town, but failed.

I wanted to go to Kandy, a town 72 miles from Colombo, as much for the ride to see the island, as anything else. By this time all the other passengers from our ship had made their arrangements for the trip and gone on. We thot we'd go on the train but found it had gone. So I bargained for a car and off we went. We had such an interesting ride there, rubber trees, cocoanut palms full of cocoanuts, bananas on their trees, papaya trees, bread fruit (which is cooked as a vegetable, tho it grows on a tree,) jack fruit trees, bamboos; elephants, ox carts, thatched roof mud houses—the people in their odd costumes—the men (Singalese) with their hair done up like a woman's, and with a funny circular comb like a crown on top of their heads. In Kandy we visited the Buddhist temple where a tooth of Buddha is supposed to be, saw the lake, and a beautiful botanical garden.

After we started back to Colombo it rained, poured. I told the driver to go slowly as we didn't care what time we reached Colombo, as we did not sail until next day at noon.

Well, after awhile he drove faster, skidded, and we crashed into a bank. Mary was on the bank side so she got the broken collar bone while I escaped with only a few bruises, mostly on my right ankle and shin and right forearm.

Fortunately a private car came along and brot us to the General Hospital in Colombo (57 miles.) By that time it was 9 P. M. Couldn't even find out if there were a white doctor in Colombo!

I stayed all nite with her and in the A. M. asked for an X-Ray, and for the shoulder to be strapped up so we could go on the boat at noon. When the doctor finally came he said she couldn't be moved for 2 weeks.

So I had to go to the ship, pack up our stuff and take off the hand luggage. The heavy stuff I sent on to Bombay.

No more had I returned to the hospital than I was informed I couldn't stay with Mary, tho we had a private room big enough for 12 people!

I had to get a room at the Y. W. Not until the A. M. of the 28th did I meet an American woman (a missionary.) She told me of a small, private hospital where she knew the doctor (Anglo-Singalese) and his Irish nurse wife. I made arrangements and we moved that very day. I am staying with her, and we are happy here. We will take ship Dec. 12th for Bombay.

As far as I can tell Mary is getting along O. K. and I am fine. The ankle is still somewhat swolen and black and shin sore, but I've walked as much as four or five miles once or twice without pain, so you see it isn't serious.

I forgot to tell you we saw one cute baby elephant, 3 years old. I took Mary's picture with him. Then she rode a big one, bare back. This, of course, on the way to Kandy.

This will reach you after Christmas so I'll have to say I hope you had a good day. I remember you and Florence and the family every day in prayer. We are all near in the encircling arms of His love. We are thankful to Him the accident was no worse.

Lovingly, Agnes.

STORE LICENSES ABOVE 40,000 ISSUED

Chain stores of Indiana, numbering 8,166, paid $436,541 in state store license fees during 1934, or more than two-thirds of the total store license payments. The 53,756 single stores in the state paid license fees amounting to $185,635.

The year 1934 was the first during which the fee of $150 a store for each store over twenty in a chain was effective. Previous to 1934, the top rate was $25.

The seven largest chains, which operate more than two thousand stores, paid 45 per cent of the total 1934 fees. These were oil compaines and retail grocery concerns each of which owned stores, ranging in number from 165 to more than 400.

Issuance of 1935 store licenses is proceeding rapidly, according to Mr. Jackson, with more than 40,000 licenses already prepared and mailed to store owners. License applications for this year were delinquent after February 1. Store licenses are required for all establishments which offer merchandise for sale.

HICKSVILLE TRAINED HORSE HAS BEEN SOLD FOR $8,500

Charles G. Coughanour and sons Reed and Harper, three miles west of Hicksville, on the Fort Wayne road, have become nationally known among race horse devotees for their breeding of fast stepping pacers from the dam Sweet S. Marie. This mare, which they have owned for several years, has a record of 2:11 3-4.

One of these pacers Theo O' Guy (4) 2:01 1-2 was recently sold by Theodore Hilt of Sandusky to Charles T. Martin of Urbana for $8,500 cash.

Others from the Coughanour stables making fast records are Robert O' Guy 2:05 and Auctioneer, a 2 year old, 2:08. Auctioneer was undefeated in his class in 1934, but burned to death in a fire in Indianapolis training stables.

REVIVAL MEETINGS

FORMER ST. JOE B. & O. AGENT DIES

C. A. Patterson, of Fort Wayne, writes The News Monday as follows:

"I am enclosing an item of the death and burial of H. K. Reynolds. I do not know whether you had word of it or not. Mrs. Reynolds, as you will remember is a sister of Sell Bowen and therfore aunt of Glen and Walter Bowen. Mr. Reynolds was B. & O. agent at St. Joe along in the 80's, some of the older residents will know about him or perhaps from the old News files. He was quite popular while at St Joe. Just thought if you didn't have this item you would be glad for it. We are all well."

Reynolds

Henry K. Reynolds, aged 75, who retired five years ago as a machinist for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, died of infirmities of age Saturday at 1:10 P. M. at his residence, 225 North Seminole Circle, after a week's illness. Mr. Reynolds was born in Syracuse, O., and had resided here 27 years. He was a member of the Simpson M. E. Church here and the Masonic Lodge at Attica, O.

Surviving are the widow, Alice; a son, John W., of St. Louis; four sisters, Mrs. L. A. Denny and Mrs. Annetta Miller, of Chicago, Mrs. Angeline Lucas, of Richmond, and Mrs. Bessie Strempel, of Mansfield, O., and a grandchild.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at 2 P. M. at Mungovan & Sons' Mortuary, with Dr. Fred F. Thornburg officiating. Burial in Lindenwood Cemetery.—News-Sentinel.

TWO ST. JOE WOMEN SERIOUSLY ILL

Mrs. Malinda Shilling came near having a stroke Monday morning. Mrs. Myrtle Soule was there when she became ill and calling for help, Chas. Koch soon sommonsed some male assistance and Mrs. Shilling was carried to the couch.

Today she is some better and is rational. Her son, Howard, and family are assisting in her care.

The second sudden illness on Monday was that of Mrs. J. P. Buckingham. A severe gall stone attack was her trouble, and her condition was serious. Today she is resting easier.

TWO CITIZENS TAKEN TO HOSPITALS

Mrs. Emmett Epler was taken to Garratt hospital last week by trustee Trostel, where she underwent an operation, following several months ailing. She is reported improving nicely from the operation. The second operation may be necessary before permanent recovery can be assured.

Rolla Wiers, who has been ailing for the past two years, was taken to the Sanders hospital Friday by Trustee Trostel, for an operation.

Reports this morning are that Rolla passed through the operation successfully and that it developed that the appendix had encircled the small intestine, causing him much distress. He had been before many physicians for examinations and not until late were any of them able to give any cause for his condition.

FORMER BANK PRESIDENT AT HARLAN TO BE TRIED AGAIN

Special Judge D. Burns Douglas in circuit court has set Friday, March 22, at 9 A. M. as the date for the second trial of Noah Amstutz, former president of the Harlan State bank, on charges violating the Indiana banking laws. The Allen county grand jury indictment on which the former bank president is to be tried charges bank loan of funds to an officer of a bank without the written consent of all of the directors.

On February 14, Amstutz was found not guilty by Special Judge Douglass on one true bill charging bank loan of funds without written endorsement of the entire board of directors.

The second indictment on which Amstuts is to be tried comprises a different set of circumstances.

The indictment on which Amstuts is to be tried then is in two counts. One charges that on October 29, 1932, the former bank head borrowed from the bank $3,561.54, the second that he obtained from the bank $3,561.54 from December 22, 1931, to October 29, 1932, both without first executing a note or other evidence of indebtedness bearing the written indorsement of all members of the bank's board of directors.

The guests departed at a late hour wishing Virgil many more happy birthdays.

PICKLES WIN OVER BUTLER—LOSE TO HICKS. IN TOURNEY

The St. Joe Valley Pickles defeated the Butler Merchants 34-22 and the St. Joe Merchants defeated the Butler A. C's 29-14, last Saturday evening at the local gym. Both the Pickles and the Merchants displayed the type of action that wins ball games. The Pickles traveled to Hicksville Tuesday night and played in the tournament, meeting the Hicksville Jr. Merchants at 8:30. The Pickles line-up is as follows: Williams, Wade, Scott, Trovinger, Haught, Irons, Bonham, Burns, Varius, Walter.

The game resulted in a defeat for the Valley Pickles by a score of 16 to 20, thus ending their participation furtehr in the tourney. The game was hard fought and run close throughout the game.

The Pickles and Merchants will play here Saturday eve, March 2. Old Fort Motors team, coached by Ralph Miller, will be the probable opponents. First game 7:30. Admission 5, 10 and 15 cents.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

R. H. C.

The Rural Housewife Club held a very interesting meeting Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 12, at the home of Mrs. Will Hamilton. The club was called to order by the president, Mildred Curie. Roll call response, "Sayings of Lincoln" by fifteen members. Reading of the minutes and approved. Suggestions and advice to the ladies given by John Crothers. Following the business meeting Gladys Hart conducted two contests, one a jig-saw puzzle for each member, the other one more puzzling, when given out was supposed to be flowers, fruits and vegetables, but closed by having nuts, melons and two presidents on the list, "some joke." The hostess then invited her guests to the dining room which was decorated in keeping with the valentine season, where a delicious lunch was served. All returned to their homes thanking Mrs. Hamilton for a most pleasant afternoon. Club adjourned to meet Feb. 26 with Mrs. Hazel Washler.

CULTURE CLUB

A velentine party of the Culture Club was held at the home of Alice Reidenbach last Wednesday evening. The rooms were tastefully decoarted in keeping with the valentine season.

After a short business period conducted by the president, Floy Smith, the meeting was in charge of the committee composed of Helen Ulm, Anne Sechler and Huldah Reasoner. We were then favored with a solo by Helen Ulm. After which several games were enjoyed. The evening's entertainment closed with a valentine exchange.

Later a two course luncheon was served at the small tables. Covers were laid for twenty. The tables were beautifully decorated in red and white, the centerpiece being a small basket with a cupid doll, filled with heart shaped candy. At each cover was a small red heart shaped box filled with nuts and candy hearts for favors.

Mrs. Charles Kinsey of Auburn was a guest.

A Guest.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club held a very enjoyable meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Leighty, February 13th. This was the yearly entertainment of the Husbands of the club women. Other guests were Dr. and Mrs. Shook and Dr. and Mr. Baumgartner, of Spencerville, Mrs. Laney Gee and Mrs. Frank Bachtel. At 6:30 o'clock dinner was served at small tables representing the twelve months of the year and those whose birthdays occurred in the same month were assigned to that table so represented. The menu was interspersed with music and verses of poetry.

The first course consisted of meat loaf, scalloped potatoes, baked beans, salad, pickles and hot rolls. The second course, ice cream, cake and coffee. After the tables were removed a program was rendered that reflected much credit on the committee in charge, Avis Staman, Grace Dilley, Harriett Johnson, Millie Shull and Lillian Buckingham. A song by a mixed quartet composed of Wm. Staman, Avis Staman, Edith Cole and Merritt Sechler, opened the evening's program. Next a playlet entitled "The Art of Keeping Happy" was given by Millie Shull and Harriett Johnson. A tribute to the founders of the L. L. C., Ada Olds, Millie Benninghoff, Ella Patterson, Eva Sheffer, Emma Baker, Laura Baker, DeLora Curie, Kate A. Leighty, Adda Patterson, Emma Widney, Ida Barney, and Adda Filley, was given by Belle Woodcox, who gave a short resume of those who so earnestly founded the organization and proved themselves such worthy members. The club has enlarged its membership but the spirit remains the same. In closing Mrs. Woodcox asked the cooperation of the present club members to maintain the same qualities of mind and heart that were manifested in that little group of women who seeing the need of a closer relationship of the Ladies of the town along educational and social lines, were responsible for this club.

Mrs. Gerdes then gave a musical reading, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Gerdes, which was very enjoyable. Then a quartet composed of Mrs. J. R. Leighty, Mrs. F. B. Leighty, Mrs. Glen Cole and Mrs. Wm. Staman gave several numbers in a comic dress affair which proved decidedly to be two sided, with songs appropriate for both sides of their costumes. An encore was also very amusing. Stunts and charades completed the evening's program. The husbands and guests appreciate the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Leighty and the Ladies Literary Club.

A Guest.

Design Wearer Can Depend On

PATTERN 1799

Anything you do with this design is smart, and you can do many things with it. Don't you like it as it is, made of a crisp, fresh little cotton? Now think of it in navy blue dotted voile with pleated net frills. Could anything be more charming? A surplice front is always one of the most becoming things a woman can wear, and the big revers make this one doubly flattering. The sleeves are as graceful as can be, and the well-proportioned points at the front and the back of the skirt do the most astonishing things for the figure when it is a bit large.

Pattern 1799 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 4¼ yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York.

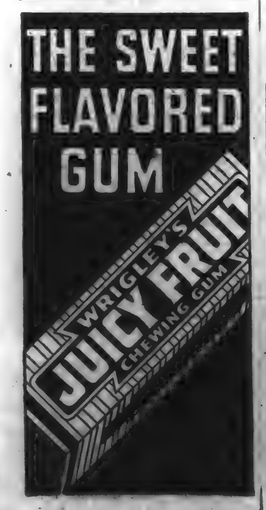
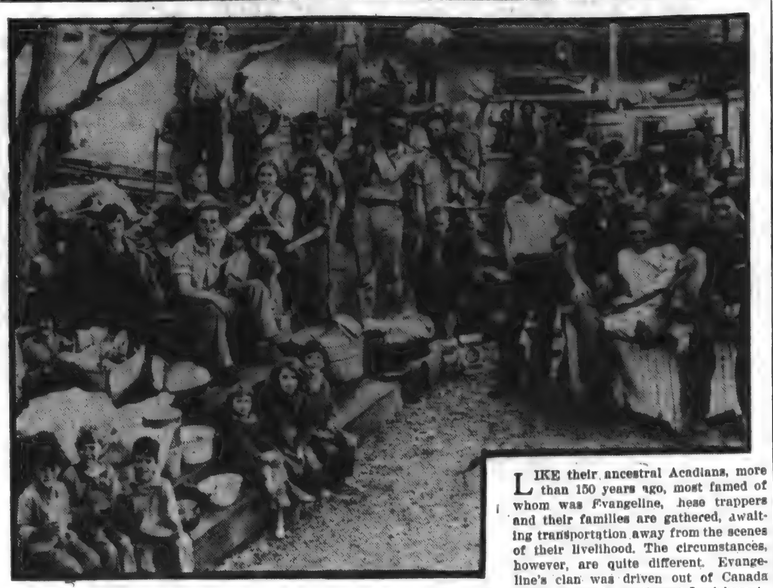
THE SWEET FLAVORED GUM



Descendants of Evangeline's Clan on Move



LIKE their ancestral Acadians, more than 150 years ago, most famed of whom was Evangeline, these trappers and their families are gathered, awaiting transportation away from the scenes of their livelihood. The circumstances, however, are quite different. Evangeline's clan was driven out of Canada by the British. The descendants of that band, pictured here were brought from their homes in southwest Louisiana to a 90,000-acre tract of marsh below New Orleans by a fur syndicate, as trappers. Only the intervention of a United States marshal and forty deputies averted a massacre when residents of the marsh, feeling themselves cheated of a livelihood, rose up in arms against the invaders and protested with weapons and fire. The 'Cajans, as they are now called, were mobilized by marshals and gladly went to their homes 200 miles distant. They are shown preparing to leave the place for the journey home.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

REDDY FOX QUARRELS FOOLISHLY

AS REDDY FOX sat glaring up at Terror the Goshawk, whose arrival from the Far North had spoiled Reddy's hunting in the Green Forest, he grew angrier and angrier. He grew so angry that presently he walked over until he was almost under Terror the Goshawk. "What right have you down here in the Green Forest?" he snarled.

"The same right you have, Reddy Fox," retorted Terror.

"It's no such thing," snapped Reddy. "You haven't the same right here I have. You belong up in the Far North, while I live here all year round. Why don't you stay where you belong?"

"Huh!" Retorted Reddy Fox. "Talk is Cheap."

"Since when have you owned the Green Forest?" replied Terror. "I would have you to know, Reddy Fox, that I go where I please. I have found very good hunting here these last few days, and I think I shall stay the rest of the winter. What are you going to do about it?"

That question was too much for Reddy Fox. If Terror had been a four-legged person like himself there might have been ways to make things most uncomfortable for him. As it was, there wasn't a single thing Reddy could do, and he knew it.

"You're a great, big bully and coward," snarled Reddy. You know it is an easy matter to call people you hate bad names.

Terror merely chuckled. It was a hateful chuckle and made Reddy angrier than ever. "So I'm a coward, am I," said Terror. "Think again, Reddy; think again. It is you who are a coward, not I. I fear nothing and no one. Just to settle the question I dare you to go up to Farmer Brown's and steal a chicken from his henyard while he is about."

"That's a silly dare," snarled Reddy. "You are daring me to do something you don't dare do yourself. You know well enough you'll keep away from that henyard as long as Farmer Brown is about."

"Is that so?" snapped Terror, and the feathers on the top of his head began to rise in anger. "I never dare anybody to do what I don't dare do myself."

"Huh!" retorted Reddy Fox. "Talk is cheap." He said this with an unpleasant sneer.

Terror's fierce eyes blazed with rage. "I never boast," he declared. "I dare you to go to Farmer Brown's henyard right now and prove who is the coward."

Reddy Fox couldn't very well back out. He tried to think of an excuse, but for the life of him he couldn't. "All right," said he, "I'll take your dare."

Mother's Cook Book

DAINTY DISHES

SOME time when entertaining one's friends at a dinner try this method of serving sweet potato:

Orange Sweet Potato.

Cook the sweet potatoes in their skins, peel, mash and season with butter, salt and white pepper. Prepare the halves of oranges that have been squeezed of their juice by removing all the white inner lining of the skins. Fill them with the seasoned potato and about twenty minutes before serving time place them in the oven to become hot; a small piece of marshmallow may be placed on top to brown or a sprig of parsley used on top for a garnish when serving.

Ozark Soup.

Cover a fresh soup bone with cold water and simmer until the meat is tender, adding salt toward the end of the cooking. Strain the broth and to one quart of the broth add one medium-sized potato cut into dice, and one-half cupful of washed rice. Let cook until tender, then add one can of tomatoes, bring to the boiling point, add a tablespoonful of flour mixed with one cupful of sweet cream, boil five minutes, add seasoning of salt and pepper and serve. For further flavor add one teaspoonful of sugar, a little chopped celery, a pinch of curry powder and a bit of mace with a few dashes of cayenne pepper.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a girl twenty-three years old and have lived all my life in the country, and I have just made up my mind to move to the city. I am a pretty good cook and that is why I am writing to you. What I want to know is: Do many city people "keep" cooks?

Truly yours,
MARMA LADE.

Answer: They do not. But most people engage another as soon as one leaves.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

It isn't that I am opposed to a person playing cards for money, but I would like you to settle an argument between my wife and me. The question is, "Can an honest man play poker"?

Sincerely,
JACK O'DIAMONDS.

Answer: Of course he can, but he won't win.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My father says the silliest things. For instance, last night he said his bald head was just like heaven. Don't you think that is a silly thing for a man my father's age to say?

Truly yours,
VAZZLE EEN.

Answer: I would say instead of being silly your dad is rather bright. The reason your father compares a bald head to heaven is that he simply means: "There is no parting there."

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I saw a man with both his hands bandaged and I asked him how it happened. He didn't answer me. I later found out the reason he didn't answer me was because he is deaf and dumb. I also heard his hands were bandaged because every joint in his fingers is broken. How do you account for an accident like that?

Sincerely,
DINAH MITE.

Answer: He is deaf and dumb, the joints of his fingers are broken, very simple: he most likely broke them by cracking jokes on his fingers.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have never traveled on a train. I hear a lot about Pullman porters. What are they?

Yours truly,
CY TSEER.

Answer: A Pullman porter is a colored fellow who won't let you step off the train, but insists on brushing you off.

TO MY CHILD

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SOMETIME in years to come, when the strong sea
Of life is threatening, with you afraid,
I hope that courage comes with thoughts of me,
And you recall the hope that ever made
A green place in the desert of our lives.
We have made much of little and been gay.
When your own disillusionment arrives,
Remember love that sweetened every day.

I wish I could build love into a wall
So thick and high you never would be caught
In life's swift eddies. . . . If you hear a call
From a far place, it will express this thought:
There was no road too difficult to take;
There was no task too hard for your dear sake.

Fascinating Tunic Dress

Striking in material and motif is this fascinating new tunic dress. The fabric is navy blue taffeta with white polka dots. The suit is closely fitted at the hip and skirt, and cut with deep raglan sleeves, which are turned back at three-quarter length to form deep cuffs. Really stunning is the wide ruching which is made of self material, cut on the bias and fringed at the edges. Three rows are used on the tunic, another row forms the Pierrot collar, and the same ruching is used on the navy blue straw hat. A blue velvet bow is caught in the neck ruff, and a velvet ribbon carelessly knotted forms the belt. Navy blue suede was selected for bag and gloves, and matching kid for the pumps.

A CHILD'S LAXATIVE SHOULD BE LIQUID

(Ask any doctor)

For your own comfort, and for your children's safety and future welfare, you should read this:

The bowels cannot be helped to regularity by any laxative that can't be regulated as to dose. That is why doctors use liquid laxatives.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

The right liquid laxative dose gives the right amount of help. When repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, natural laxatives that form no habit — even in children. Its action is gentle, but sure. It will clear up a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset. Every druggist has it.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering impurities from the blood stream. But kidneys get functionally disturbed—lag in their work—fail to remove the poisonous body wastes.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, attacks of dizziness, burning, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains; feel "all worn out."

Don't delay! For the quicker you get rid of these poisons, the better your chances of good health.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They tend to promote normal functioning of the kidneys; should help them pass off the irritating poisons. Doan's are recommended by users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Prints Gay With Color Now Arrive

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

PLAYING the game of fashion, the next move is to acquire a bright simple daytime wearable frock which has the freshness of the new season in its looks, to wear under your fur coat during lingering snows and departing wintry chill. Later this gay little gown will companion admirably with a chic light wool topcoat in role of a smart springtime ensemble.

If it is your custom to buy ready-mades a casual saunter through leading dress departments will be your budget's undoing, for the new between-season's dresses are not to be resisted. A most exciting feature about the early spring arrivals in the shops is the abundance of frilly ornate neckwear which lends a delightfully feminine air to the new modes.

The woman who likes the fun of making her own simple daytime frocks will find inspiration-plus in the spring fabric displays which in their gay colorings have turned winter into spring within store walls. Walking through the aisles and aisles of fascinating, joyous-looking prints and the rows and rows of voguish linens that flaunt their vivid peasant colorings before enchanted eyes, and the novelty cottons which were never more novel, no matter how conservative you may have been up to this season in matter of colors and patternings you will throw discretion to the winds and indulge to your heart's content in the giddiest, prettiest, most flattering materials you have known for this many a day.

As to the new prints the arrival of the first robin in your garden is no surer sign of spring than is their appearance on the style horizon. You will be delighted, if bewildered, by the surprising variety of colorful materials that are just as practical as they are good looking.

The three frocks shown here illustrate but a fraction of the perfectly beautiful washable prints that are in good taste now for wear under a coat and for later on when no coat is necessary. These attractive dresses are made up in rayon chulla crepe, in the brightest of colorfast colors.

For campus or office wear or for resort wear with light accessories, the tailored frock to the left, of print in a spaced conventional dot design with its ascot type scarf and cuffs of self-fabric, is both smart and practical. There are no fussy details or tricky places that your iron cannot reach in a hurry, and you probably know that you can wash and iron these chulla crepe frocks with no more special care than fine cottons.

The frock with the two-tone tie will carry you through a day that includes shopping, luncheon, matinee and tea. The lines are becomingly simple, the better to accentuate the beauty of the design of colorful leaves against a dark background. It is easy even for the amateur to work with this crepe it stays so accurately in place as you cut out the pattern, with no frayed or curled up edges as you baste it together.

The print that fashions the dress on the seated figure is stunning. Solid black dots together with white dots that are cross-lined with fine red and black lines stand out boldly against a bright red background. The button fastening and the touch of knife pleating are important style details. As you see from the smart models pictured, you do not have to sacrifice any style points this spring when you look for washable dresses.

TAFFETA TUNIC

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Taffeta silk for tunic, for blouse, for the frock entire, for trimming touches is the great hue and cry for spring. The knee-length tunic-blouse pictured is of printed taffeta in exotic coloring. The skirt is black crepe and the accessories are black, introducing white stitchings on shoes and bag. The hat is a very modish sailor of shiny black straw.

NEW STYLES SHOW GREEK INFLUENCE

The Greek influence on current styles has spread so that now it is to be seen in furniture and clothes as well as in the lines of the feminine figure. The popularity of the flat Greek rear profile has made the figure ideal of the Greeks an established vogue.

The influence of this Greek ideal is to be seen in Mainbocher's recent introduction of a gown modeled on the robes worn by ancient Greek dancers. This filmy, graceful garment heralds a turn from the "important" gown, with its stiff formality, to the softness of net and tulle. Its straight skirt is short in front and to the ground in back. There is a garland of fruit or flowers around the waist. Very authentically Greek. And very revealing of the state of one's figure. Hips must be slender, small breasts uplifted in youthful silhouette. The flat Greek rear profile was never more important than to this new and slimly molded style.

To complete the picture, a great vogue for classical Greek furniture is predicted for this spring.

New Fur-Lined Slippers Slender as Satin Pumps

The fur-lined slipper is probably one of the greatest joys the modern woman has ever known. And because it is fur-lined, doesn't mean that it is bulky or clumsy looking. Not at all. It is as sleek and slender as the sheerest satin pump or sandal, but the sole of the foot is protected against cold pavements by a thin, but warm, layer of rabbit or sheepskin, fuzzy side footward.

The strapless brassiere is another boon to smart women. For evening it has certainly become an indispensable item in the society woman's wardrobe. Because of its clever construction of the sheerest and most clinging fabric, it stays perfectly in place without the bothersome need of straps over the shoulders.

Tete-a-Tete for Three

By THAYER WALDO

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

MARIE discovered it at twenty-seven minutes after nine while she was looking under the vanity table for her slippers. She was still standing there regarding it, when someone knocked on the door. She turned slowly, drawing the marabou negligee about her, and said, "Come!"

The butler opened it, and over his shoulder she could see the dark composed face of Roderic Ashe.

"Come in and shut the door," she said at last. He frowned and nibbled his under lip, asking:

"It's—it's perfectly safe?"

"I thought you'd say that! You always were a scared fool."

He stared at her, lips parted in mute astonishment.

"Don't stand there gaping," she snapped. "You're going to hear a lot more. I've made up my mind to tell you a few things tonight."

"Hold on," he began; "I'm afraid I don't understand—"

"Of course not! You don't understand anything—I don't believe you ever have. That's why I'm fed up and sick of you."

She had backed away as he came forward. Now they stood in the center of the room, between vanity table and bed, facing each other at a distance of three or four feet. Perplexity had given way in his expression to sheer bewilderment.

"That's a smart look you're wearing," Marie told him contemptuously, "but I'm not surprised. I didn't expect you even now to know what I was talking about. You poor sap!"

She turned away with a toss of her sleek brown head, and sauntered across the room to pluck a cigarette from the case on the mantel. There was silence in that interval, for Ashe found no further words.

"Look at you now—all dolled up like an ambassador! And that's the way you've been every night I've asked you here. A tuxedo and a polite smile and talk, talk, talk. My G—d, you're dumb! I didn't think anyone in Hollywood could be so dumb about a thing like that."

He seemed to sag back in the chair, but his tone was quiet enough.

"Have you," he asked, "gone absolutely insane, Marie?"

She laughed again, and again it had a forced staccato quality.

"That would be all you could see in it," she shot back at him; "you're so blind and so stupid I almost feel sorry for you. You know, for a little while right at first I couldn't believe it. I told myself you were pretending not to understand just because you'd always been Peter's best friend. And maybe I was right, but I doubt it. I don't think anyone could be so illy-pure.

"Well, all that counts is that I played it straight to you and you either couldn't get the idea or didn't want to, and now I'm through with you. Through, you hear me? And if you've acted this way out of loyalty to that crippled husband of mine, I hope you feel properly noble. If I ever decide to tell it on you, you're going to be laughed right out of pictures.

"Now go away—leave me alone! Of course I'll have to go on seeing you every day at the studio, and playing with you in that silly story of Peter's; but I'm never going to spend another minute with you off the set if I can help it. You're a boob and a flat tire and a big pain in the neck. Get out!"

The final words were almost shouted. Marie crumpled her cigarette and flung it into the grate. After a moment Roderic rose, rather deliberately, and made her a brief bow.

"I'm told," he began, "that riddles are very popular this season, so—"

"Oh, shut up and go!" she broke in swiftly, spinning around to face the wall. An instant longer he stood looking at her back, then strode to the door, opened it, and went out without another word.

Peter North lay quite motionless in the bed, a look of profound emotional disturbance on his thin face. A screened black box stood upon a stand beside him; his secretary sat by the foot of the bed, pencil and notebook in hand. Peter North reached over and snapped a switch on the black vox, then said:

"Take a letter please, Miss Allan. To Roderic Ashe, Zenith Studio.

"Dear Rod: I've a confession to make that isn't easily made. Shame stabs me like a knife. I hid a dictograph attachment in my wife's room tonight and listened to everything you said. How could I have been such a fool as not to know that if anyone were cheating with me it would be my ungrateful wife but never you, the finest friend a man ever had! Just the warped creation of a sick man's brain, I suppose. Forgive me and God bless you, old Pal.

Peter."

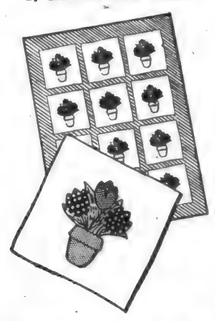
Marie stood by her boudoir windows, gazing out. There in the broad drive below she could see Roderic's car. He was entering it. His face showed set and angry in the light from the veranda.

Marie turned away. Her gray eyes, her cheeks, were wet with unchecked tears. The small enameled clock upon the mantel stood at 10:12. She sat upon the bed and took off her satin slippers. Then she replaced them beneath the vanity table, beside the microphone which she had first discovered at twenty-seven minutes after nine.

Tulip Has Won Popular Favor

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



The tulip adapts itself so well to applique and quilting designs that it is made use of quite frequently. This combination, showing the entire potted plant, gained popularity immediately after it was released. Tulips in bloom always form a beautiful color scheme, and this tulip pot is also brilliant in prints and green applique. These stamped blocks are 18 inches, and twelve are required for a quilt about 76 by 97 inches, if you use a nine inch border and four inch strips between blocks. Strips and border widths can be changed to make a quilt any size.

Send 15c to our quilt department for one of these stamped blocks, No. 96-F, and the stamped applique pieces ready to be cut out. Work this up and see what a beautiful quilt can be made of this design. A set of six blocks will be sent for 75c, postpaid.

Date Palm Cultivation Increasing in America

Date palms are grown as ornamental trees in California, Florida, and Bermuda. Their leaves are used by Christians on Palm Sunday, and by Jews celebrating the Passover. Dates are not only eaten as such, but are made into jams, jellies, date butter, and vinegar. Date sugar, obtained from the sap of a closely related species, is an important commercial product in the East Indies. Date-palm meal is obtained from the stem of another related species growing in southern India.

Iraq furnishes almost 95 per cent of the dates imported into the United States. In 1933, the United States imported 47,492,841 pounds of Iraq dates. About 30,000,000 of these were shipped direct from that country, the rest trans-shipped through several countries of Europe. The United States imports small quantities of dates from Arabia, Algeria, Persia and Turkey, and also grows dates in the Southwest, particularly in the Coachella and Imperial valleys of southern California, and the lower Salt and Gila river valleys of Arizona.

In these gardens grow over a hundred varieties of dates. Some are used chiefly for cooking, others for eating. Some are dry, not sticky, while others "candy" on the tree. Preferred are the Ascherasi variety, probably the best dry date; and the Deglet Nour, a very sweet, soft, melting date. Its name originally meant "Date of the Light," referring to the unusual translucence of its deep, golden-brown flesh.—Bulletin of the National Geographic Society.

WHEN THE DOCTOR SAYS YOU HAVE "TOO MUCH ACID"

Health, your doctor will tell you, is based on a delicate balance in the system between alkalinity and acidity. Modern day habits, especially the foods we eat, destroy this balance by creating excess acids. Watch for acid danger signals!

In the mouth acids attack enamel, bring tooth decay and bad breath. In the stomach they attack delicate linings and bring sick headaches, indigestion, gas and constipation, and often chronic disorders.

All new automobiles registered in Indiana after Jan. 1, 1936 must be equipped with safety or shatterproof glass under a bill signed by Gov. Paul V. McNutt at Indianapolis Friday. The governor also signed a measure giving the state optometry board regulatory powers over the practice of optometry in Indiana. It sets up a code of advertising, prohibiting price quotations or discount offers and limits possession of optometry equipment to licensed persons.

Predictions that the 1935 attendance at Indiana state parks would be greater than ever before and that the visitors would find the parks more atractive than in the past, have been received by Virgil M. Simmons, Commissioner of the Department of Conservation, from the park custodians and operators of the park inns. Interest in the parks reflected in requests for information received by the custodians, is far more general than in past years, the custodians report. During 1934 approximately 700,000 visitors were registered at state parks and memorials where attendance is checked by the admission fees. This represented an increase of approximately 40,000 over the preceding year.

TO ELECT A PERMANENT COMMITTEE

Notice of meetings held in each township for the purpose of electing the permanent 1935 Corn-Hog Producers in DeKalb County according to Ralph Bartles, County Chairman and T. E. Myers, County Agricultural Agent. These meetings will be held on the evening of March 4th in every township at the same place that the sign-up was held with a few exceptions. Troy Township will be Troy Center; Franklin Township at Franklin Center; Concord Township at the St. Joe High School; Jackson Township will hold their election Friday evening, March 1st, at Jackson Center.

The assessors will receive their supplies today, and start on the work Friday.

COMMUNITY PARTY AT LOCAL GYM

(Auspices Conservation Club)

Plans are being formed for a grand Community Party to be held early in March, the proceeds of which are to be used for a very worthy project.

It is hoped that the public will support this Party in a big way.

Every one in the community is invited and it is hoped will be there.

Watch our next issue for further details.

ADD OVER 12,000 ACRES OF CLASSIFIED FORESTS

During the twelve-month period closing today more than 12,000 acres of Indiana land has been added to the state's classified forest area, it was announced today by Virgil M. Simmons, Commissioner of the Department of Conservation. Land placed under the forest classification as provided by a state law enacted in 1921 and certified as such to the county auditors before March 1, is subject to taxes on a valuation of $1 per acre.

Since the forest classification act was passed by the General Assembly to encourage the planting of trees, approximately 100,000 acres have been inspected and classified as forest lands by the Division of Forestry. While over twelve thousand acres have been certified as classified forest land during the past year, applications for classification of more than that acerage are now awaiting approval.

In return for classification of land containing a minimum of three acres, the owner must agree to prevent grazing in the area and to plant trees on the tract as may be recommended.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

If you wish a season ticket for the sectional basketball tourney being held at Garrett on Friday and Saturday of this week see John Kaellner, secretary of the local school athletic association. The ticket which will admit you to six sessions—morning, afternoon, and evening of both days will cost $1.50. Eight schools from Steuben county and the seven schools of DeKalb county are participating. The local school is paired with the Angola High School team to play at ten o'clock on Friday forenoon.

The senior class dinner served on last Friday was well patronized in spite of the very inclement weather.

Jean Ridgway and LaVern Reas were absent from school on last Friday afternoon. Several of the pupils and some of the teachers are desirous of knowing just why this absence accurred.

Music supervisors of DeKalb county schools have decided to give a music festival again this year. Pupils from the seven high schools will stage this program at Spencerville on the evening of April 12th.

Pupils from the first year algebra and plane geometry classes will be represented by teams in the District Mathematics contest sponsored by the Extension Division of Indiana University. Mrs. Simanton teaches these classes.

In a class meeting held on last Friday the seniors chose Miss Reuls to coach and direct their class play.

T. V. A. POWER PLAN GETS SETBACK

Attorneys for the Tennessee Valley authority, President Roosevelt's first "yardstick" power project, prepared an immediate appeal from a federal district court injunction prohibiting government power competition with private companies.

The decision was a serious blow to the sale of cheap power generated along the Tennessee river to municipalities by the government agency. In effect, it puts the government out of the power transmission business in Alabama.

Government attorneys contended the authority was selling a "surplus" of power. The power was generated, they said, as a part of the government's navigation and flood control project. Judge Grubb ruled that the power TVA proposed to sell in Alabama was not surplus, but was generated for the primary purpose of sale.

This idea of government control of business and also entering into competition with private business is not right and just in any sense of the word.

CROSSING ACCIDENTS INCREASE OVER 1933.

Deaths, injuries and the number of accidents at railroad crossings for the first ten months of 1934 increased over the corresponding period of 1933, according to the latest compilation by the Safety Research Bureau in Detroit.

There is nothing novel in the reporting of consistent increases in these offerings to the gods of speed, carelessness and faulty brakes of shiftless drivers. But there is satisfaction in the rapidly growing recognition that this destruction of life and property must be stopped. President Roosevelt and members of Congress recognize the evil and have placed grade crossing elimination in the van of the latest phase of the recovery program.

It is not questioning the zeal of these leaders to inquire whether theirs is the best method. They plan to furnish labor for the idle in the building of under-passes and over-passes at intersections of railways and highways. The idea is admirable but the safety problem cannot be solved by this means.

To be really effective the government plan would cost many billions of dollars. Why? Because statistics prove that more than half of the crossing fatalities occur at unprotected crossings of which there are 233,491 in this country. Unprotected crossings are those on seldom used country roads but they take a ghastly toll of life much more, in proportion, than those bearing both heavy rail and highway traffic. The protection of these intersections by grade separations of any type would be prohibitive in cost. The solution is a considerably less expensive, "foolproof" method.

A less expensive method would practically eliminate the danger and at the same time would actually protect many times more of the Safety Research Bureau to o fthe Safety Research Bureau to select any particular type of mechanical protection, but several types seem to be suitable. Certain of these have proven their efficiency and the cost is less than that of grade separations.

The expenditure of any given sum probably would give as much employment if used for the installation of safety devices as the same sum would if used for the building of a much smaller number of grade separations.

But the paramount fact must be considered. ALL crossings must be protected to halt the carnage of accidental death. It is the opinion of this bureau that wholesale protection is to be preferred to hit-and-miss grade separation.

The Methodist young people drove to Harlan Tuesday evening and were guests for a social evening. The next get-together will be held at Milan Center Church. Games were played, contests enjoyed and a fine lunch appreciated.

Passage of a bill which would force a change in the system of conducting state high school basket ball tournament was recommended Tuesday by the house committee on public morals at Indianapolis. The bill, introduced by Rep. Carl E. M. Woodard, D., Michigan City, would prohibit persons under 21 years old from participating in more than two games in 24 hours.

A very nice crowd of young people from the Newille, Spencerville and St. Joe Sunday Schools, met at the local gym last Thursday evening and enjoyed the recreational period of the FERA School, which is being held here each Thursday evening, in charge of Mrs. Fitch, Mr. VanScoick and Mr. Lash. An evening of good clean recreation should be encouraged by parents and teachers.

Tuberculosis is on the downtrend in Indiana, according to a survey by the Indiana Division of Public Health. The year 1934 showed the lowest rate the state has yet attained. A new low was also established for diphtheria, being definitely under the two previous low years, 1930-31. However, a large gain was noticed in organic heart disease. There was an increase of more than 3,000 deaths in 1934 over the previous year.

The chances seem good for considerable pro and con argument on a variety of subjects, before the present session of the national legislature closes. Will Congree continue the N. R. A. for two years longer, as requested? The bonus payment is yet to be disposed of. What will be done about old age pensions? Our friend silver, the metal and not the character in the funny sheet, clamors for recognition. It is proposed to refinance farm mortgages by the issue of several billion dollars in currency. The poet said: Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown. Crowns are not fashionable in the United States, but it is safe to state that if the average head were under a silk hat hanging in an unpretentious white house on Pennsylvania Avenue, the head would not be entirely at ease.

By a vote of five to four, the Supreme Court of the United States has decided that one may promise to pay in gold and then settle in some other medium. The average man always has been of the opinion that if he agreed to supply a plow, he could not deliver a cultivator instead. The general principle involved in both transactions, however, appears to be merely what is known as fireside law and not the real thing. Attention is called to the fact that the decision was based on a five to four vote, from which it appears that one man, in this particular instance, had all the say. Few will be inconvenienced personally because they are denied payment in gold. All should be impressed by the circumstance that the selection of a single judge of the Supreme Court of the United States may be a more weighty affair than choosing a President of the United States.

Californians have the reputation of being persistent boosters for their own state. Much that they have said in the past has had to be taken on faith, because not evryone has time to go to the Pacific coast and make his own observations. It is now possible for Washington folks to have a look at California by means of what is little more than a weekend trip. A commercial plane leaves the capital of the nation at nine in the morning and sets its passengers dow in Los Angeles at midnight of the same day.

Emerson observed that a man is like a piece of Labrador spar, which has no lustre as you turn it, until you come to a particular angle, whereupon it shows deep and beautiful colors. That is a kindly and philosophical thought, but the trouble with it is that the arm sometimes gets tired in the turning process.

Those who forecast that the present Congress, like its predecessor, would be simply a subberstamp for okeying the plans and experiments of the President, were mistaken. The Congress has a mind of its own these days, and it doesn't hesitate to express it. It isn't so disruptive to Presidential policies, of course, as the Congresses which wrecked havoc with the Hoover Administration, and contributed much to its collapse, but it is giving Mr. Roosevelt something to think about.

The first actual rebellion against the White House came in the Senate, when the World Court was up for vote. Every President since the war has advocated American participation in the court, with reservations—and every President has been turned down flat by the Senate. It was almost universally believed, however, that Mr. Roosevelt would be able to do what Harding, Coolidge and Hoover were unable to do. Most big newspapers—outside of the Hearst chain—were for the World Court, as were most publicists and political commentators of both parties. It is said that congratulations were being received by World Court advocates before a vote was taken, so certain seemed the passing of the necessary bill.

Fight for the Court was led by Majority Leader Robinson—no expert on foreign policy, he is conscientious, hard working, loyal to his chief. Fight against it was led by Senators Borah and Johnson, who fear and despise any kind of participation in European affairs.

Result was that the Court was defeated—it gained a substantial majority in the vote, but not the two-thirds necessary for authorizing American participation. Some twenty Democratic senators deserted Mr. Roosevelt to vote against the bill.

That was major rebuff number one. Number two will probably arise when the President's social security program begins to be worked out. Few senators seem to favor Mr. Roosevelt's recommendations—they have other and for the most part, wilder ideas as to what should be done for the aged, the ill and the destitute. It is no secret that the White House is worried, is bringing all pressure to bear in an effort to subdue opposition.

The President's $5,000,000,000 public works bill has also found hard going. Congressmen are opposed to giving the sole authority for disbursing it into Mr. Roosevelt's hands, wish to ear-mark the money for definite purposes. As a result, legislation is held up.

Behind much of the opposition to the White House in the old element of political patronage. Mr. Roosevelt has not, in the view of many Congressmen, allowed them to make their choice of "Deserving Democrats" for government jobs; he has often desregarded the recommendations of Senators and Representatives as to state appointments. Congress is angry over this—and a Congressman, "robbed" of his chance to put constituents in easy and profitable jobs, is in no mood for joining whole-heartedly into a program advanced by the man who did the "robbing."

36,000 Automobile "Murders"

The President of the United States in letters to the Governors of the 48 states, has urged the enactment of uniform regulation of traffic, and intensified safety educational campaigns.

There is no good argument against uniform traffic legislation and regulation in the face of the fact that the killing record of automobiles last year touched the 36,000 mark.

Think of it! Thirty-six thousand lives snuffed out by automobiles in one year. Why should there be any argument about uniform traffic laws and the need of cooperation between states to eliminate such a disgraceful record as this?

Take a specific example: Why should one city be allowed, as at present, to maintain three differet types of "stop" signals at intersections, thus confusing both its own drivers and those from other states? Legislators could work on a "life saving" program such as this to the benefit of every man, woman and child in the country.

Auburn residents have been terrorized for the past reveral weeks by night prowlers and thievery and Friday night during the brizzard a prowler was detected at the Wm. Gugerli home, the back door was opened and the police dog made a dive for the intruder and when it returned it carried a sweater cuff in its mouth and that was close to "bringing home the bacon" even if there were hams hanging on the back porch.

You need your money
And I need mine;
If we both get ours,
It sure will be fine.
But if you get yours
And hold mine too,
What in the world
Am I going to do?

John Crothers, Frank Leighty, Williard Hurni, Ralph Sechler and F. B. Leighty, were at Fort Wayne Monday evening attending a meeting of the Tri-Rivers Conservation Club at the court house. Attorney L. J. Dunten, gave a talk on his trip before the legislature and the interest in the nonpollution bill that is being worked up by all clubs of the state. He went at length to explain the bill and its opposition and how the clubs will have to unite to put over this much needed legislation. Films were shown by a state conservation official, and it proved a real treat to everyone.

On an average, each and every automobile in the United States uses 495 gallons of gasoline every year.

The death rate from kidney disease among those who use alcohol, according to medical authorities, is 85 per cent higher than among those who do not use alcoholic drinks.

Now, since the laws have changed so that every man can easily get a drink, we wonder if something can't be done so every woman and child can just as easily get what they need to eat.

"Man," says a Kansas editor, "is the only animal that will suffer want when plenty is at hand."

Americans drank an average of 9.37 gallons of beer each in 1934.

In the United States, last year, there were stamp taxes paid on the sale of 45,351,707 packs of playing cards.

Cigarettes and coffee have increased in sales in spite of the depression. The desire for a stimulant to help steady the nerves during these strenuous times is given as the cause.

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS

by R. M. Hofer

The other day I was in a country grocery store on the Oregon Coast. Some traverels were getting soft drinks.

I ask the lady proprietress, whom I knew, if she couldn't make me a ham sandwich. She motioned me to one side and said that the law prohibited her from selling sandwiches unless she took out "another" license. She pointed to the wall of the store which was covered with licenses, federal and state, which were required for the sale of differeent products.

"But," she said, "there is no law yet that prevents me from giving you a sandwich," which she did.

What a picture! A free country, a little country grocery store, a hungry man—and the law prohibiting him from buying a sandwich.

From Marshfield, Oregon, comes the astonishing press dispatch that two dairymen were fined, not for selling impure milk but for the high crime of selling milk that was too rich, too pure—just as it came from a good cow.

I could hardly believe my eyes. There was no false labeling, no adulteration—the crime seemed to be that they failed to "water" their milk sufficiently to bring the butter fat content down to the legal requirements for the grade of milk sold. The court handling the case gave the offenders a suspended sentence and placed them on a parole for a year.

And this happened in the land of the free! Men hailed into court and sentenced for serving their customers too well.

From Eugene, Oregon, a committee appointed at a mass meeting of 2,500 people, has sent a telegram to President Roosevelt asking him to withdraw the "paupers' pension plan" and substitute a bill "which provides for a program of national recovery, economic rehabilitation, social improvement, humanitarian achievement and crime prevention."

The desire seems to be to camouflage the idea of a public dole and make the recipient of public funds contributed by the taxpayers, think he is getting some kind of a royalty or dividend from a newly discovered estate left by a wealthy uncle.

They say a rose would be a sweet by any other name. Have American citizens reached a point where they will accept charity more readily under a sweet-smelling title?

Oats will be particularly important this year as an early grain feed. Owing to the poor crop of last year, it seems probable that many farmers will buy seed about which they may know little concerning the smut content. DeKalb County farmers are urged to treat oats this year to offset the dangers of heavy smut infestations. Either formaldeyde or the ethyl mercury phosphate (improved Ceresan) may be used as the treating materials. These may be purchased at most drug stores, hardware and places where seed is sold.

Purposes of Conservation Club

The question is asked many times, What is the purpose and what can be accomplished by such a club? Indiana's Conservation program is this:

1. Developing a greater appreciation of Outdoor Hoosierland.
2. Encouraging and correlating all conservation activities.
3. Perfecting artificial methods of wildlife propagation.
4. Improving conditions for greater natural increase of wildlife.
5. Correcting and controlling the pollution of streams and lakes.
6. Adding recreational opportunities through our State Parks, State Forrests, and all other state properties.
7. Further developing State Forests and Forest Nurseries.
8. Restoring sub-marginal lands to their natural state.
9. Fostering "Riverside Forest" plan.
10. Furthering Conservation through Education.
11. Striving to make Indiana a more attractive Outdoor State.

There is much to be accomplished in this community. You are invited to affiliate with this Club and your support will be appreciated.

There are now 400 Conservation Clubs in the State with an approximate total membership of 82,000. The Conservation Department has given every possible encouragement to the various organizations. All club projects have been received with an open mind and all possible assistance given. Financial aid has been and is being given through the purchase of fish and game raised by the clubs. Seed for the planting of feed patches has been furnished; trees for planting windbreaks and shelters, as well as reforesting, are furnished at a minimum cost. Reforestation of idle or submarginal land is being encouraged by the exemption of such lands from taxation when classified with the Department. Engineering service is available for any legitimate conservation project. A free nursery inspection service is carried on at all times, as well as a bee inspection service and many other services extended in an effort to encourage the individuals and the organization to assist in the accomplishment of this pragrom.

Any community can have almost anything it desires in conservation if the residents of that community will work together as a unit to accomplish those desires.

BANKING EVOLUTION

By R. S. HECHT

President American Bankers Association

BANKING at one time was a private business, but more recently has developed into a profession—a semi-public profession. This change has not come suddenly but is the result of an evolutionary process. Banking has grown and changed with the growth and change of our country.

R. S. HECHT

The banker who has survived the trials and tribulations of the past few years has proven himself a man of courage and ability, and we may well expect him to meet the problems that lie before him with resolution and sound judgment.

Changes of momentous importance have occurred in our economic structures and bankers have had a difficult road to travel. Some will argue that all of these changes were evolutionary and inevitable, while others look upon many of them as revolutionary and unnecessary. It is extremely difficult to trace with any degree of accuracy the real causes for many of our troubles and it is not always easy in judging these developments to distinguish properly between cause and effect.

Unfortunately it has become the fashion to blame on our banking system all the troubles which the depression has brought. As a consequence we hear much of needed reform of banking by law. No one will deny that certain defects have developed in our existing banking laws which need correction, and that certain abuses were committed which no one wishes to defend or have remain possible in the future. Never before were bankers more determined than they are today to bring about whatever changes in our banking system are called for by the public welfare.

The best results can and will be accomplished by normal processes and gradual adjustments of our present private banking structure—suitably supervised by proper authority—rather than by the passage of still more drastic laws, offering panaceas in the form of more government-owned or government-controlled financial organizations.

The Basis of Good Laws

Lasting laws relating to any phase of human need are formed and modelled in the rough school of practical human experience and are usually the result of sound evolutionary processes rather than of sudden impulses to change fundamental principles.

If we analyze the new banking picture which has developed during the past eighteen months, we cannot help but arrive at the conclusion that evolutionary changes which have taken place in banking, and the economic life of the nation of which it is a part, have justified much of the banking legislation recently passed. As we look ahead and consider the new problems which are facing us we must inevitably come to the conclusion that some further changes in our banking laws will become necessary.

It is not enough that bankers merely acquiesce in banking imposed by law. Zeal for evolutionary banking reform must be more aggressive than that. Banking practice itself, without compulsion of law, can and should reflect the changes and lessons of the times and difficulties through which the nation has passed and, even to a greater extent than law, render banking more truly a good public servant by voluntary self-reform. In no small measure is this accomplished by the better training of the members of the banking fraternity and by instilling constantly higher ideals in those who are ultimately responsible for bank management.

As we march on into the world of tomorrow the banker has a greater opportunity for usefulness than ever before, and I hope that the service he will render to society will be so conscientious, so constructive and so satisfactory as to merit general approval and assure him his logical high place and leadership.

NATIONAL SAVINGS MARK INCREASES

NEW YORK.—The annual savings compilation of the American Bankers Association for the year ending June 30, 1934, shows that for the first time since 1930 total savings in all American banks recorded an annual increase.

A statement by W. Espey Albig, Deputy Manager of the association in charge of its Savings Division, in the organization's monthly magazine "Banking," says that savings deposited in banks as of June 30, 1934, gained 3.5 per cent as compared with a year earlier.

"The aggregate is an increase over last year of $742,132,000, the first since the year which closed June 30, 1930," he says. "This is a notable achievement, for the decline since 1930 had been precipitate and all-embracing, in that year savings had reached the all-time high of $38,478,631,000. A year ago the amount was $21,125,624,000, a loss in three years of $7,353,007,000. This year the figure stands at $21,867,666,000.

"Depositors, too, have gained in number, going from 39,362,442 on June 30, 1933, to 39,662,174 on June 30 this year, a gain of 299,732. Four years ago there were 52,729,433 depositors, or one depositor for each 2.3 persons in the country. Now there is one account for each 2.3 persons."

IT HAS become a revered custom on Washington's birthday to take a moment's halt in the rushing tides of modern events and to find fresh inspiration in recalling to mind the ideals, the warnings, the hopes and the visions with which he, in the serenity, the courage, the sincerity of purpose and the unbiased judgment that were characteristic of his public career, launched the newly liberated nation of colonial states in the troubled and uncertain waters upon which it was venturing and delivered it into the custody of his successors in the trust. Clearly beyond the confusions of succeeding political dynasties, observes a writer in the Kansas City Star, stands out the personality of this first President and his utterances of hope and warning seem as significant and potent today.

A great, a solitary figure, a symbol of the cause for which he fought, a personification of the constitutional foundations upon which he helped to place his conceptions of an ideal democratic government, he stands out at the head of the long line of presidential leaders an enduring inspiration even to the present day. If he had the temper of a man, he knew how to use it and control it. When plotting army officers and scheming politicians sought to undermine his influence and his ability as a commander, he put his devotion to his cause above his personal feelings and turned the tide against them by his dignified forbearance and forgiveness.

* * * * * * *

Let us recall some of his words, midst our world troubles and misunderstandings, written to his friend, Benjamin Harrison:

"My first wish is to see war, this plague to mankind, banished from off the earth."

"Of all the animosities which have existed among mankind, those which are caused by difference of sentiments in religion appear to me the most inveterate and distressing and ought to be deprecated. I was in hopes that the enlightened and liberal policy which has marked the present age would at least have reconciled Christians of every denomination so far that we should never again see their religious disputes carried to such a pitch as to endanger the peace of society."

"It has always been a source of serious reflection and sincere regret to me that the youth of the United States should be sent to foreign countries for the purpose of education. I have greatly wished to see a plan adopted by which the arts, sciences and belleslettres could be taught to their fullest extent here, with the means of acquiring the liberal knowledge necessary to qualify our citizens for the exigencies of public as well as private life."

"The more I am acquainted with agricultural affairs, the better pleased I am with them. I am led to reflect how much more delightful to an unde-bauched mind is the task of making improvements on the earth, than in the vain glory which can be acquired from ravaging it by a career of conquests."

"This government, the offspring of our own choice, uninfluenced and unawed, adopted upon full investigation and mature deliberation, completely free in its principles, in the distribution of its powers, uniting security with energy, and containing within itself a provision for its own amendment, has a just claim to your confidence and your support."

"Towards the preservation of your government and the permanency of your present happy state, it is requisite, not only that you discountenance oppositions to its acknowledged authority, but also that you resist with care the spirit of innovation upon its principles, however specious the pretexts."

"It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world; so far, I mean, as we are at liberty to do it; for let me not be understood as capable of patronizing infidelity to existing engagements. I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than to private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy."

"Harmony and a liberal intercourse with all nations are recommended by policy, humanity and interest. But even our commercial policy should hold an impartial hand, neither seeking nor granting exclusive favors or preferences, consulting the natural course of things, diffusing and diversifying, by gentle means, the streams of commerce, but forcing nothing."

"Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. . . . It is substantially true that virtue or morality is a necessary spring of popular government. The rule, indeed, extends with more or less force to every species of free government. Who that is a sincere friend to it, can look with indifference upon attempts to shake the foundation of the fabric?"

"Promote then as an object of primary importance institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge. In proportion as the structure of a government gives force to public opinion, it is essential that public opinion should be enlightened."

"As a very important source of strength and security, cherish public credit. One method of preserving it is to use it as sparingly as possible, avoiding occasions of expense by cultivating peace, but remembering also that timely disbursements to prepare for danger frequently prevent much greater disbursements to repel it."

"Observe good faith and justice towards all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all; religion and morality enjoin this conduct; and can it be that good policy does not equally enjoin it? It will be worthy of a free, enlightened and, at no distant period, a great nation, to give to mankind the magnanimous and too novel example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and benevolence."

The Range You've Always Wanted

Now, you can have that High-Power Perfection Range at a price you can afford to pay. Perfection-made products are priced at the lowest they have been in years, but, the low price does not mean that the name "Perfection" stands for any less quality. On the contrary, Perfection High-Powers are GREATER VALUES than ever before—they include additional conveniences.

A demonstration will convince you that the High-Power is the fastest oil stove burner in the world. See it today, or better still, try one in your own kitchen, without obligation.

For a short time only, and for cash we are offering a Special Low Price on the Complete Stock of both Perfection and Ivanhoe Stoves. If you think it is a little too early these Stoves can be bought on the Lay Away Plan, by paying ⅓ down, the balance at time of delivery. Always a little Cheaper. Ask for tickets.

Oil Burning COOK STOVES and RANGES

Friends of Mrs. Mahlon Baker, Auburn, will be glad to learn that she is much improved and hopes to be allowed to sit up this week. Mrs. Baker is spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Bishop, and family in Cleveland and has been seriously ill.

A REAL JOKE ON HARRY A. KEES

Harry, as our citizens know, was the foreman of the FERA labor in St. Joe last fall and winter, and the purpose was to improve our streets. On Tuesday Harry attempted to drive over one of his newly improved roads in the north part of town, and his Maxwell car was stalled. After several attempts to make his way out of the mire, he was compelled to give up in despair. For a while Harry sat in his car and thought the matter over seriously. "Now this is a new road, and I built it according to plans, and just why should I be stalled here. If I call for help that will not look well, and if anyone sees me here, they will know that my car has either refused me or else I am stuck in the mud, and I don't like the idea of them thinking I am stalled." The old Maxwell spluttered again, the smoke flew, and the mud became deeper. Help was the only way out, so help was called and Harry swore off on trying a new road again in the spring.

Harry had the town board to go and see the place where he "sunk" and wants them to fix it forthwith. And did the women in "Hamburg" laugh.

PLAY DATE CANCELLED FOR SATURDAY

Due to conditions beyond control, the play sponsored for next Saturday night, March 7, has been called off, all of which is a great disappointment to the sponsor as well as those producing the play.

Because of members of the cast being unable to play on Saturday night, and the advance men not knowing this, makes it necessary at the last minute to cancel, and because of numerous events coming on, no date could be setetled on at present.

A DeKalb County band is being organized with William Melvin as director and will include members from all towns in the county. The Auburn Commercial Club is sponsoring this movement with a $110 contribution. They will meet on Friday nights for practice.

GREAT COMMUNITY PROGRAM MARCH 14

A community program, sponsored by the Conservation Club, will be given at the gym on Thursday evening of next week, and admission will be free to everyone.

All ladies who come are asked to bring a box lunch, and after the program the boxes will be sold to the highest bidder and the money will be used for the purchase of shrubbery for the school grounds.

Every club and organization has been asked to take part in this program and by next issue, the committe may be able to report.

Plan to attend this big event and show your interest in wanting to help this most worthy undertaking.

THE ROBBERIES AT AUBURN SOLVED

The apprehension of Victor Murphy, 33, residing a mile south of Garrett, early Sunday morning and his confession of twelve burglaries in Auburn and others in Fort Wayne and Kendallville precipitated raids that resulted in arrests of twenty-five alleged accomplices, with more to follow.

A large amount of the loot was found and identification was made Sunday and Monday of much of it by Auburn people.

Murphy was aided by a white man and three colored men of Ft. Wayne, and one woman. Much of the jewelry was disposed of by the Katz second hand store on Calhoun Street, and melted to prevent identification. They are under arrest, however.

MARCH MEETING OF WITTENBERG BROTHERHOOD

The March meeting of the Wittenberg Brotherhood will be held at the Methodist Episcopal Church in Garrett on Wednesday evening, March 13. The program is being prepared by the Wesley Brotherhood class of the Garrett Church. The congregational singing will be lead by Mr. J. D. Brinkerhoff. Harry M. Brown will, by special request, sing "The Holy City" which was so well received at the meeting at Garrett last March.

The principal address of the evening will be delivered by Hon. Maurice McClew, of Angola, who will speak on the subject, "Is Crime Increasing?"

The Garrett members of the brotherhood are promising a splendid meeting. The service will begin promptly at 7 o'clock.

CULTIVATE HABIT OF NEVER SAYING HARMFUL THINGS

"I have made it a habit never to speak unkindly of anyone," a woman noted for her popularity said to the editor recently.

"If I find little that is pleasant in the character of a person I am obliged to meet frequently, either in business or socially, I try to avoid them as much as possible, but I never engage in criticism and sometimes I find I am actually discovering some traits to admire."

Few of us live on so high a plane we can say the same thing, but life has taught me one thing: every time we speak unkindly of someone we hurt ourselves; therefore, if only for the selfish motive of self-benefit it is a good thing to place a restraint upon our tongues when we are tempted to speak ill of another.

There is a warm glow in your heart when you praise a friend. It makes you feel virtuous and and kindly and you purr inside with self-satisfaction. But when you tell all you know, and that not so kind, about someone you dislike, then you generate a poison in your system, not literally, perhaps, but as insidious as a few drops of dangerous chemical, and the harm you seek, if unconsciously, for the person you malign is directed against your own human economy and you suffer far more than the object of your wrath.

The next time you are tempted to tell Mrs. So-and-So what a mean person you think her next-door neighbor is just try to find something nice to say instead, and the first thing you know you will discover you actually are growing, if not fond of the neighbor, at least capable of viewing her shortcomings without annoyance.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Final P. T. A. Meeting of School Year

On next Tuesday evening the regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers association will be held in the school auditorium. Two events on the program of that evening will be demonstrations of work done in the girls physical education and home economics classes. Teachers and pupils of both departments very much desire that the parents witness these demonstrations. There will be additional numbers on the program.

A business meeting will follow with reports from secretary and treasurer and an election of officers for the next school year.

An Indoor Circus

In order to finance some equipment for physical education class work the school has scheduled Fisher Brothers Indoor Circus for a night of genuine amusement. The date is Wednesday, March 20th. Place—School gymnasium. Keep this event in mind and watch for the circus posters.

Sectional Tourney

Coach R. G. Noffsinger took the following players to the sectional tourney held in Garrett on last Friday and Saturday: Merlin Simanton, John Kaellner, Clayton Baker, Charles Thornton, Kenneth Richmod, Leonard Curie, Carl Goodwin, Wayne Storer, Devere Woodcox, and Frank Monroe. Keith Wilmot accompanied the team as student manager. Although the local team had been paired with a much larger school which had an impressive record for the season the locals played a very good game holding Angola to a score of 39 to 26.

This week ends the fifth grading period for the upper six grades. Report cards will be issued on Wednesday of next week.

School attendance has improved. Measles seem to have run their course and the mild weather has caused fewer absences due to colds.

First and Second Grades

Helen Rickett withdrew from the first grade on Friday.

Billy Mansfield entered the second grade on Tuesday.

The second grade is making a Dutch sand table.

Third and Fourth Grades

In our English period last week the Fourth Grade wrote letters about pets. We copied the letters for our writing. The best letters were selected and read in Miss Morr's room.

We made paper clocks last week. We used fasteners to hold the hands of the clock. After we had finished the clocks we had a discussion about clocks and timepieces.

Our Spelling honor roll includes Betty Rudolph, Robert Baughman, Walter Fetters, Earl Keller, Betty Nicholls, Frances Reidenbach, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude, Marilyn Zonker, and Alice Strong.

Betty Nicholls became ill at school last Tuesday.

We have seen several spring birds already; this, together with the warm weather, makes us think Spring isn't so far away!

Bruce Gerdes and Paul Martin, accompanied by their wives, were guests of the Gerdes home near North Manchester, Sunday.

A marriage license has been issued to Lavon Richmond, 22, farmer of Concord township, and Connie Harter, 18, Newville.

The intangibles tax became due Thursday for 1935 and ten days are allowed for payment, County Assessor Chas. E. Miser advises.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hull called at the Chas. Quance home in Fort Wayne Sunday afternoon. They alos called at the Wm. and Fred Quance homes in Auburn.

Little Miss Jeanne Hatch, of Spencerville, spent Saturday and Sunday with her brother, James, grandmother, Mrs. Ada Berry, and aunt, Mrs. Mary Betz.

A wedding anniversary dinner was observed Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser in honor of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Yeiser and the host and hostess. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Keesler.

Mrs. Nan Lysher caught her hand in the electric wringer at the George Kees home, last Thursday, while helping with the family washing. The skin was completely torn from the back of her hand. She is now at her home in the country.

It is forecast that the government is going to make a change in its policy toward agriculture. It will have less to say about what the farmer should do and not do—and will leave more up to the farmer himself. Progressive American farmers will welcome that change. And they will also welcome the chance it will give them to show the stuff they are made of.

F. B. Leighty and wife were accompanied by Mrs. F. H. Langley, of Auburn, to the Henry Hathaway home, where they visited Sunday afternoon. The Hathaways were well and enjoying their farm home. They expect to be served with electricity soon as the pole line is now being constructed from Kendallville. On our return to Auburn we visited in the Langley home for the evening and found Mr. Langley feeling much better but Mrs. Warner had been feeling miserable due to an asthma attack of several days duration, and she was weak.

SPRING, SPRING, BEAUTIFUL SPRING

Evidences of Spring seem to be quite numerous, but we will have to admit that this nice weather for March is quite treacherous, yet the more subsantial indications are that Robins are here again and they have started building their nests; sugar water is trickling freely from broken limbs and a number of maple sugar camps have been tapped; boys have begun to play ball on the streeets; doors are flung open to allow the sunshine to enter, and the exhilarating fresh air to circulate in the homes; the raking of yards and burning of trash; the birds are jouously singing; the pussy-willow buds are bulging; the side roads have become impassable compelling the farmers to park their cars at their road side; dogs have commenced their wearisome travel from one end of town to the other; people are about in their shirt sleeves; the washing of windows has started, to allow the family to see out and to let the sun shine in; seed catalogs are on the increase and provide much of the incoming mail; Sunday visiting and driving is on the increase; nimrods are seen alongt the river in great numbers; good old parsnips are putting in their appearance; horseshoe pitching by several of our citizens; moving; the assessor making the rounds; and last, but not least, the spring fever bug has nipped many of our citizens.

TO CONCLUDE SEASON WITH FOUR FAST TEAMS

The St. Joe Valley Pickles defeated the Hicksville Merchants team (that beat them in the tourney) 34–14. Irons scoring 16 points while Wade again held his man scoreless.

The Pickles will conclude the season with a blind tourney March 11, Monday evening, four of the best teams in the district will participate. The Pickles will have the same line-up—Irons, Wade, Haught, Scott, Bonham, Burns, Thimlar. We want to give you fans a treat in this the conclusion of the schedule. Four real games. First game at 7 P. Strong Appeal in Braided Rag Rug

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Braided rugs appeal to many rug makers because the work is simple and requires no tools. They, however, are not as durable as the crocheted rug, owing to the fact that the braided strands are sewed together, and for this reason we advise to sew with a strong waxed thread.

The above "Pin Wheel" rug measures 35 inches and requires about 4 pounds of cotton rag-rug material. The center section has a black background and the 3 section design is white. The outer circle and inner center are of hit-and-miss mixed colors.

Cut strips 1½ inches wide. Fold edges under and then fold again to make a strip about one-half inch wide. Use three strips in braiding.

Start in the center and sew 8 rows of braid around, keeping work flat. Start next row on opposite side of where the previous row ended. Work around, changing colors for 9 rows, as illustrated. To change color sew strips of new color desired to the ones in use. Start again at different place for 8 outside rows, then sew on the last row separately. This rug has 26 rows.

If you are interested in making rag rugs, send 15c to our Rug Department for book No. 25, which contains 26 rugs in braiding and crochet. Instructions are given with each rug, also directions for braiding and crocheting rugs and how to prepare your rags into strips to get the best results.

GREEN CANARIES

Little Dorothy had a canary at home, and one day she went out to tea with her mother. In the room was a cage containing a pair of bright green little birds. Dorothy kept looking at them and presently asked:

"Mummie, what's the matter with those canaries? Aren't they ripe?"—

Once Was Enough

Two women were waiting for a bus, which was nearly full when it came along.

"Room for one inside and one on top," said the conductor.

"But surely you wouldn't separate mother and daughter."

"I did once," replied the conductor, as he rang the bell, "but never again."—London Tit-Bits.

"We don't have to worry," answered Cactus Joe. "Nobody in the Gulch does enough regular work to permit the strike to make any real difference."

"He is not letting it grow—I am letting him grow it."

Troops Move In to Clean Up Kentucky "Crime Zone"

KENTUCKY National Guardsmen moved secretly into Manchester, Ky., to carry out an order to "clean up" Clay county, whose bloody history led a federal investigator to call it "the worst criminal stronghold in the United States." The troops descended upon the town early in the morning in a surprise move by Gov. Ruby Laffoon to break up an alleged automobile theft ring and end other lawlessness. The town is practically under martial law, and Brig. Gen. Ellerbe W. Carter is in command. Photograph shows an air view of Manchester, Ky., with the state guardsmen encamped in trucks in the center of the town.

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE VISITS THE SMILING POOL

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE had taken it into his funny little head to go over to the Smiling Pool. Just why he did it nobody knows. Perhaps it was because he wanted to consult Grandfather Frog, who, you know, is accounted very wise. Perhaps he wanted to call on his big cousin, Jerry Muskrat. Perhaps it was because he felt uneasy and wanted to go somewhere for a change of scene. Whatever the reason, Danny unexpectedly appeared one morning on the bank of the Smiling Pool.

The very first person he saw was Grandfather Frog sitting on his big,

"What Are You Doing Over Here, Danny Meadow Mouse?"

green lily pad. "Good morning Grandfather Frog," squeaked Danny.

Grandfather Frog turned about in a funny little hop of startled surprise and blinked his great, goggly eyes at Danny Meadow Mouse. "Chugarum," said he in a deep gruff voice. "What are you doing over here, Danny Meadow Mouse?"

"Nothing in particular," replied Danny.

"People who are doing nothing in particular are very likely to get into trouble. Don't you know that, Danny Meadow Mouse?" demanded Grandfather Frog.

"Oh, I guess I can keep out of trouble around here. You're looking very fine, Grandfather Frog. You don't look a day older than when I last saw you."

"I don't feel a day older," replied Grandfather Frog, and his voice was not quite so gruff. "You see, it rather tickled him to be told that he looked no older. "Of course I'm glad to see you, Danny," he continued, "but just the same I think you are taking chances in coming over here. Longlegs the Blue Heron comes over here almost every day, and I have an idea that he would just as soon and perhaps a little rather, have a fat Meadow Mouse for his dinner as an old frog like me."

"I believe you're not glad to see me at all," declared Danny. "You are trying to scare me."

"No such thing," replied Grandfather Frog gruffly. "But I never like to see anybody take unnecessary risks. You know, I believe in safety first. Now what would you do if Reddy Fox should suddenly appear right behind you? You would be in a tight place. There isn't a thing for you to hide under, and hiding in the grass wouldn't do you a bit of good, for that keen nose of Reddy's would soon find you."

"Reddy isn't here, so what's the good of borrowing trouble?" squeaked Danny. "It's time enough to worry when there is something to worry about. Did you ever know a finer day, Grandfather Frog?"

THE OLD HOME GOES

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE house went long ago. . . .
Its walls are crumbled;
And the barn door, once painted red,
has tumbled.
I heard they sold the lumber for old wood
To start the autumn fires with . . .
not much good,
This roof that sheltered me, this house Granddad
Built for his bride when he was yet a lad.

He made the house, and planted the green tree
Back of the outdoor kitchen . . .
Valiantly,
Where so much ruin is, the tree still stands.
It is a gift from God. . . . The meadowlands
Beyond were razed a hundred times, but still
The tree is green upon the sunny hill.

Nothing the years have done to it has mattered.
Against its strong old heart the years have battered.
The sun of happiness, the rain of tears
Have beaten on its boughs for fifty years,
And it remains the same—constant—kept whole—
As if it, too, had an immortal soul!

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a boy twelve years of age and have been offered a job after my school hours. I am supposed to set 15 rat traps in the basement of an office building every day. Is it hard to learn to set a rat trap?

Sincerely,
I. D. CLARE.

Answer: It is very easy to learn how to set a rat trap after you once get your hand in.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have a girl friend who is a good swimmer. She told me, yesterday, that she once fell off a boat into the water and a large shark came after her, looked her over, then went away without even touching her. Do you believe that?

Yours truly,
IKE ANTBEE LEEVIT.

Answer: Sure I believe it. It must have been a man-eating shark.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am the mother of a girl seventeen years of age. I want her to take up golf, tennis, swimming and other outdoor sports. She refuses and stays in the house. She says she prefers indoor sport. Are indoor sports all right for a girl her age?

Truly yours,
I. WORRIE.

Answer: An indoor sport is all right for a girl, if she knows when to send him home.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am in love with a boy twenty-one years of age. He wants me to marry him but he is a spendthrift. Is it all right for me to marry a spendthrift?

Yours truly,
WANDA WHATEDU.

Answer: It is all right if he is just starting on his career as a spendthrift. Get in on it, kid.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My husband, who was a fireman, was discharged by the city. The only reason given in his discharge was "For acting childish at the last fire." What do they mean by saying, "he acted childish?"

Truly yours,
HOOKEN LADDER.

Answer: Your husband probably was in charge of the hose crew and "by acting childish," they mean he played on the ruins after the fire was out.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My next door neighbor told me he got a wireless from London, England, from his brother, and it only cost two cents. Do you believe that?

Yours truly,
U. MAYNO.

Answer: Sure I believe it. It was a postcard.

Mother's Cook Book

THIS AND THAT

CANDIES make a delicious garnish for simple desserts, and save the time necessary for preparing more elaborate ones. A bit of chocolate or maple fudge crumbled over ice cream, cornstarch pudding, custard, or junket, makes an otherwise plain dessert very stylish.

To make an old dust mop practically as good as new put a large tablespoonful of concentrated lye in a pail halfful of boiling water and let the mop boil in it. Rinse thoroughly several times and put in the sun to dry.

One or two tablespoonfuls of kerosene put into the boiler with the clothes will whiten them.

Begin early and start right with the child; this is especially important if he is to be a strong, well and an efficient citizen.

The normal child eats with zest the food placed before him. Dawdling over food or refusing to eat it will need hard work to overcome. It is far easier to form good habits than to break bad ones.

If the child is accustomed to a variety of foods very early, before he begins to form likes and dislikes, he will like and eat everything as he grows older.

It is the very exceptional child who is made ill by certain foods; of course, one must eliminate them if it is found to be a real case. Some children feign illness and nausea to gain attention and something refused.

One's methods in dealing with the food question must vary with the child. It will work with some to insist on the food on the plate being eaten before he has dessert. If not hungry enough to eat the food on the plate, he is not hungry enough for dessert. A word of praise, a reward, often brings the desired result. As children are people, they should be treated as such; no two individuals enjoy exactly the same things, so we must be tactful in dealing with little people.

It is wise to look over the supply shelf often and keep it well filled, for with the holiday season, many unexpected calls may be made upon it.

Microbes

Microbes undoubtedly present the greatest extremes in nature. They vary greatly in size, some being 5,000 times larger than others. They live in a temperature range of 779 degrees, some being able to live at 459 degrees F. below zero while others thrive at 320 degrees F. above it. And some apparently are deathless, as they have been found in a revivable condition in coal deposits one hundred million years old.—Collier's Weekly.

The Pampas

The pampas are the vast, grassy plains in central Argentina. Their area is equal to the state of Texas. They are bound on the north by the forests of Gran Chaco and on the south by the steppes of Patagonia. During the rainy season, the pampas are covered with a luxuriant growth of grasses which provide pasturage for great numbers of cattle and sheep.

CONSTIPATION Can be Helped!

(Use what Doctors do)

Why do the bowels usually move regularly and thoroughly, long after a physician has given you treatment for constipation?

Because the doctor gives a liquid laxative that can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Ask your doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit — even in children. Your druggist has it; ask for—

Age-Old Memories Stir Merry Laughing Spring

Moonlight falling in pearly, ghostly radiance over the hill in Hardscrabble forest touches candleberry and sweet-fern with opalescence and mirrors age-old stars in the fern-lipped bowl of the Laughing Spring.

The Spring, which finds something funny in its age-long life, chuckling constantly at some comic joke, remembers the coming of the Ice age, its imprisonment under the ice sheet, and the herds of mastodons migrating through the valley after it. It remembers when wild animals were dominant along the Hudson, and the timid coming of Red Men from the West, spying out the land, taking it away from bear, deer, moose and wolf.

At its lip white settlers stooped to drink, listening for war-whoops. It remembers the Dutch, the English, Continentals marching past to the battle of White Plains, and boys of the Neperhan marching away to the Civil war.

Hunters, hobos, pursued men and women, hikers, lovers, have all visited the ancient fountain, but still the Spring is the youngest and merriest thing in all the Hardscrabble forest, for it still remembers how to laugh. —New York World Telegram.

Street Scene

By LAURA LINCHEN

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

PATRICIA turned the corner and trudged up another busy street. Never had people seemed so much like marching ants as they filed past her, nor the world itself more like a dunghill of crawling insects.

Claude, her stepfather, was waiting for her in the lobby of the Maldridge. Mother worked but Claude lived on a pension; he was gassed or something once. Patricia had just come to live with them since Aunt Margot died. Aunt Margot understood. Patricia was a sensitive child that needed encouragement and patience. Her talent needed good soil and fair weather for its growth. Aunt Margot had nourished Pat's literary seed. But Aunt Margot had died and Patricia at nineteen was left dependent on mother and Claude. Claude seemed to hold some strange power over mother. Patricia loathed him. He was heavy and almost vulgar and the once good contours of his face were flabby now. Claude thought Patricia a moon-struck fool. He had told her to get out and find a job and make her own. Mother had mildly added that it would do her no harm.

Three mornings now had she walked the streets and answered ads, and made inquiries. "Any experience?" How could one say yes? Some took her application; others would not do that. It was a strange, hateful world.

At the corner she saw a voluptuous old negress wabbling down the street. She was humming to the swaying of her rippling fat. Patricia watched her while waiting for the green light. The old black woman came up to her.

"Well, hello, honey, Miss Wilma." Pat stared at her not replying.

"I know you all think you don't know me," she went on, "but I knows you. I knows you by that pretty little dress you wearing." Patricia felt embarrassed.

"No, you don't know me. I'm . . ."

"Listen, honey, Miss Wilma, I don' fo'git no dress after I done once washed it." Pat glanced uneasily at her green pleated crepe. It was only its second wearing. The old woman was mad.

"Get out," she said hurriedly. "I'm a stranger here in town." The light was green. Patricia hurried across but the old woman was at her heels and talking loudly.

"Sho nuff. Well you and Miss Wilma jus' look so much alike, ah, honey, you don' know no one what wants a good washwoman?" Well this was technique.

"No," said Patricia kindly and quickly realized her indulgent tone was a mistake; the negress was walking abreast of her now.

"Well, yo' all couldn' put a nickel on a church calendar, could ya?"

"I'm looking for a job myself," and Pat suddenly jay-walked to shake her off, but the old negress jay-walked, too.

"Dat's right, honey, dat's right. You'll find one, too. Just depend on da good Lord . . . he makes fo' us all." Well, that was a thought. Then the old woman stopped to confab with a street cleaner and, Pat, seeing her chance, dodged down the street. It was only a little piece, however, until the old woman came calling after her.

"Lissen, chile, you done run off and pass'd up a sign in dat winda . . . you mustn' nebbah pass a sign, Miss Honey."

Despairingly, Pat looked back. "Why, sure enough, it says 'Girl Wanted,' I might go in." The old woman nodded proudly and turned back with her. Well, this was too much.

"Listen, you stay here, I'd better go by myself," she said, but just as she was about to enter the shop door the old negress caught up with her.

"I ain' gonna let you po' child go in there without no he'p," she said, opening her dilapidated purse the while. "Heah, now, this gonna he'p da good Lord do his work." She took out a rabbit's foot, and giving it three moaning kisses, handed it to the young girl. Laughingly Pat took it. What a quaint old fool, she mused, as she entered the place. Crazy as a loon, but she did give her a warm feeling inside. She saw a man standing in the back talking to a lady. Still smiling she sought him.

"I saw your sign in the window, sir."

"Oh, I forgot." But then he was staring round-eyed at the thing in her hand.

"What's that?" he said. Pat looked down and felt the heat creep over her chin and up her cheeks. She gave a silly little laugh.

"Oh, that's for good luck," she said. The man did not smile but looked a long time at her innocent young face.

"All right . . . all right . . ." he said at length gruffly. "Report in the morning. Place for a girl in the office."

The lady standing beside the manager gave a significant humph.

"I thought you wanted clerking help," she said.

"I did," he answered, "but I just hired a woman for that. I forgot to take the sign down."

"Then, why in the world did you hire this young thing for?"

"I don't know," he mused softly. "Did you see that rabbit's foot? Luella, do you remember how we tied our wedding rings to the horse shoe a full week before the wedding?"

Luella gave a snort and walked behind the counter.

"Just imagine people still believing in such charms. I didn't have the nerve to disillusion her, so young in life."

Discovery May Lead to Victory Over Cancer

The growth of the human infant, the chick in the egg, bacteria and the toad can all be represented by the same mathematical equation, Dr. Norman C. Wetzel, associate professor of pediatrics at Western Reserve UniversityMedical school, told the National Academy of Sciences.

Proper interpretation of this mathematical equation of growth, Doctor Wetzel said, eventually might lead to conquest of cancer, since cancer was a growth problem—a situation in which body cells grew without restraint. The equation, which is what mathematicians call a second degree differential, represents the relation between heat production and growth, he added.

Four factors, he found, were involved in growth. One encourages growth, a second retards or inhibits growth, the third is the net external work of growth. He calls the fourth the "coefficient of inertia growth." In cancer, Doctor Wetzel said, it was evident that the factor which retarded growth was not operating.

He urged that medical science embark on a study of the influence of various hormones, vitamins and the like, with a view to fitting them into their proper places in the equation of growth.—David Dietz, Scripps-Howard Science Editor, in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

3. If throat is sore, crush and stir 3 BAYER Aspirin Tablets in a third of a glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat soreness almost instantly.

REMEMBER DIRECTIONS

The simple method pictured here is the way many doctors now treat colds and the aches and pains colds bring with them!

It is recognized as a safe, sure, QUICK way. For it will relieve an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, be sure that you get the real BAYER Aspirin Tablets. They dissolve (disintegrate) almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets disintegrate with speed and completeness, leaving no irritating particles or grittiness.

BAYER Aspirin prices have been decisively reduced on all sizes, so there's no point now in accepting other than the real Bayer article you want.

WHEN THE DOCTOR SAYS YOU HAVE "TOO MUCH ACID"

Health, your doctor will tell you, is based on a delicate balance in the system between alkalinity and acidity. Modern day habits, especially the foods we eat, destroy this balance by creating excess acids. Watch for acid danger signals!

Guilty of these Every Day Habits?
Eat Too Much
Smoke Too Much
No Exercise
Late Hours

In the mouth acids attack enamel, bring tooth decay and bad breath. In the stomach they attack delicate linings and bring sick headaches, indigestion, gas and constipation, and often chronic disorders.

Neutralize excess acids at once with Milnesia Wafers—original Milk of Magnesia in tasty tablet form. One Wafer before bedtime, and the whole digestive system, from mouth and gums to intestines, is kept sweet and clean and clear of these harmful acids. Thousands of physicians now recommend Milnesia instead of old fashioned liquid Milk of Magnesia.

Economical, too! Each Milnesia package contains more Magnesium Hydroxide than all other liquid forms.

GRAIN AND LIVE STOCK ASSESSED AT HIGHER PRICES

When the local assessors of DeKalb County went to work Friday morning to make the annual assessment of property, they began putting down valuations for livestock and grain that are much higher than a year ago.

Last year milk cows were assessed at $25 to $50; now they are $35 to $50. Sheep and goats are $4 to $8 instead of $3 to $6; sows $15 to $20 instead of $8 to $15; and poultry $5 to $6 instead of $3 to $5. Other cattle and hogs will be assessed by weight at the market price.

Grains and seeds will be valued at the market prices at the beginning of the assessing period. Barley is 68 cents, as compared with 50 cents a year ago; clover seed is $10 instead of $6; oats are 48 cents instead of 32 cents; rye is 60 cents instead of 50 cents; soy beans are $1.50 instead of $1; wheat is 88 cents instead of 75; and corn is $1 per 100 pounds instead of 60 cents.

Automobiles of 1935 model will be assessed at 85 per cent of cost; 1934 model, 60 per cent; 1933 model, 40 per cent; 1932 model, 20 per cent and 1931 model, 10 per cent. The minimum value to be placed on an automobile is $10.

Diamonds will be figured at $200 a karat. Household goods will be brought to an average of $200 if possible. Male dogs will be assessed at $2 each, females at $3 each and each additional dog $4. Bees will be $2 per stand. Horses and mules will be assessed at $200 downward.

The following interrogatory will be called to the particular attention of the taxpayer: "Does your wife, or any member of your family, or anyone living with you, own any personal property subject to taxation?"

The assessors have sixty working days and are expected to complete their task by May 15. Assessor Chas. E. Miser asks the public to cooperate with the assessors in order to eliminate errors. Property owners should give their right and complete names and addresses.

The assessors will make their first reports to Mr. Miser at the court house Saturday, March 9.

SEELY

Lizzie L. Seely was born at Newville, Indiana, January 1, 1864. She was the first child in a family of five given to William and Ellen Seely. As a young woman she taught school and was postmistress at Newville a number of years.

In the year 1891, on December 24, she was united in marriage with Horace Joslin of near Newville. They resided on a farm for about five years then moved to Edgerton, Ohio, where she conducted a millinery store a number of years. At this place her husband died, then she moved to Auburn, where she resided two years. From here she moved to Butler, where she continued to live until her health failed then she went to reside with her sister, Mrs. Ed May.

Lizzie confessed Christ as her Savior and united with the Church of Christ at Newville in a meeting conducted by L. L. Carpenter. Was also a member of the Order of Eastern Star, who honor her today by their presence and service.

Her last sickness was brief. She was taken ill on Wednesday, February 27 and fell quietly asleep on Friday evening, March 1, 1935, aged 71 years and 2 months.

There remain to cherish her memory, three sisters, all living near the old home, a number of nieces and nephews, cousins and a host of friends and acquaintances.

The funeral services were conducted from the Church of Christ at Newville the 4th day of March, 1935 by Harvey K. Schondelmayer, the present pastor. Interment was made in the beautiful Maple Grove cemetery at Edgerton, Ohio by Mrs. Mayola Kinsey.

A Snap of the Switch tells the Story . . . don't guess!

A STRANGE sound in the lonely blackness of night wakens one suddenly . . . startled, one's imagination dreads the worst . . . and then with a quick flip of the electric light switch, a flood of light tells the true story.

The modern miracle of flameless, safe electric light is nowhere so necessary as on a farm. The isolation, alone, of a farm home makes electricity essential.

Prowlers around house and barn aren't likely when electric wires tell the tale of instant, searching illumination. Some farmers assure this protection by keeping lights burning in a few strategic locations all night . . . isn't the safety of your family, of your live stock and property worth this small cost?

Good lights also safeguard your family's eyesight. With the new Light Meter we can show you what illumination you are now getting on your important work and what you actually need to conserve your eyesight.

Give us an opportunity to work with you in properly illuminating your farm, inside and out.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MARCH 14, 1935 NUMBER 11

A LOGICAL GOVERNMENT UNDERTAKING

In his address to Congress on proposed public works for the current year, the President laid down certain broad principals on which he wished the program to be based. Among them were: That projects be determined on the basis of the amount of direct labor they would provide; that the highest possible percentage of the money spent go into pay envelopes; that the work produce things that would be of definite public usefulness; that the projects be of a type that would not compete with private endeavor.

Few public works projects could better fit those principals than grade-crossing elimination. The great bulk of every dollar spent would go to labor, both on the job an in heavy industries—paint, cement, steel, etc.—providing necessary supplies. No private business would be harmed. And the public would not only receive the boom of stimulated purchasing power, but would be benefited in another vastly important field—safety.

Thousands of people have been killed at grade crossings; each year brings its heavy toll. Only a small proportion of the thousands of existing crossings are adequately protected. Past campaigns to eliminate crossings have produced some results but lack of funds has brought such work almost to a stop.

No work is more in the public interest than grade-crossing elimination, and its cost should be borne entirely by the public instead of the railroads because everyone in the country would reap the benefit.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cole and Mr. B. E. Widney were Sundav guests in the home of Mrs. Alice Lewis at Auburn, celebrating her 82nd anniversary.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The last regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association for the present school year was held Tuesday evening of this week. The program opened with a Style Show presented by the Vocational Home Economics department in which the girls had an opportunity to display work done in the sewing classes. Helen Tustison, Louise Sechler and Ersa Reidenbach then gave a vocal trio. Mrs. Mildred Curie gave an excellent talk on "Cooperation" in which she mentioned many things which pupils, parents, teachers and school officials must take into consideration if school is all that it should and could be. The concluding number on the program was a demonstration of work done in the physical education class by the girls who are under the instruction of Mrs. Simanton. In the business meeting reports were read by the secretary and treasurer. The nominating committee presented the names of Adrian Washler for president, Mrs. Mildred Curie for second vice president, and Roy Maxwell for treasurer. The school principal to act as first vice president and one of the grade teachers to serve as secretary. The nominating committee's report was adopted.

On Wednesday evening of next week Fisher Brothers will present an "Indoor Circus" at our school gymnasium. Come and see the trained dogs, acrobats, clowns, and trapeze performers. Receipts from this circus will be shared with the school and our share will be used to provide gymnasium equipment. Admission adults 25, children 15 cents. The school band will provide music on this evening. Come and help us add to our gymnasium equipment as well as seeing an evening of clean amusement.

Judge C. C. Carlin will give the commencement address on Wednesday evening, April 7th.

Keep the program sponsored by the Conservation Club and Box Supper to be held on Thursday evening of this week in the high school gymnasium in mind. The program will be excellent and the receipts from box sales will go for a good purpose—land scaping school grounds and playground equipment.

First and Second Grades

On Wednesday our room sent Glen Epler a basket of fruit and other gifts.

The third grade language class gave a pantomime lesson for us on Friday.

Our room has a Dutch exhibit.

Third and Fourth Grades

The third grade has completed their work in the Health book, and now they are working on a Health Habits booklet.

Our Spelling Honor Roll includes Patrica Carpenter, Betty Rudolph, Robert Baughman, Hubert Bleeks, Lewis Freeburn, Estella Hart, Loren Inlow, Earl Keller, Candace Loftus, Patricia Maxwell, Betty Nicholls, Frances Reidenbach, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude, Gladys Stewart, Alice Strong, Irene Sechler, and Marilyn Zonker.

Leon Kees was a visitor in our room last Thursday afternoon.

Loren Inlow, Ned Keller, and Patricia Maxwell have been absent this week.

Calvin Mansfield entered our fourth grade last week, making our enrollment 39.

Fixth and Sixth Grades

Miss Mary Katherine Hanes entered our fifth grade last week from the Auburn schools.

Those on the spelling roll for the week of Feb. 25 to March 1st, were Maurice Hurni, Nelda Kees, Betty Keesler, Burnadine Wade, Ellen Zimmerman, Rose Ayers, Ruth Donley, Myra Keesler, and Howard Rickett.

The spelling honor roll last week consisted of Mary Close, Maurice Hurni, Nelda Kees, Franklyn Sechler, Jack Goodwin, Harold Inlow, Paul Keller, Myra Keesler, Ruth Keesler, and Sylvia Washler.

The contest on the capitals of the states of United States with the pupils of Mrs. Furnish's room Friday afternoon was very interesting as well as helpful.

CULTURE CLUB ENTERTAINS

The Ladies Culture Club observed its annual event, known as guest night or gentlemen's night, at the home of Mr. nd Mrs. M. C. Blue last Wednesday evening.

The rooms were tastefully decorated in keeping with the St. Patrick season.

After the meeting was called to order by the president, Floy Smith, the meeting was in charge of the committee, composed of Lula Armstrong, Mayola Kinsey, Pluma Hamilton, Blanch Leighty, Winifred Hart and Madonna Wade.

The members joined in singing "Hail! Hail!" after which a song, "We're here for fun," was sung by all. Welcome address was given by Dale Hart and the response by Ralph Sechler. Then came the Irish jokes and stunts which entitled the teller to a trip around the world. Then Irish games and contests were enjoyed, and prizes awarded to George Hart, Earl Smith, Mrs. Charles Kinsey, Ethel Wineland and Earl Kinsey. Last a game of Who is Who. Each man was given a shamrock with a maiden name of each one of the ladies written on it. This way was taken to tell you who your partner was for luncheon.

A delicious two-course luncheon was served at the small tables. They were beautifully decorated in green and white. Baskets of candy marked the place of each one. Other guests were Mrs. Charles Kinsey, of Auburn, Walter Ervin and Earl Kinsey.

The husbands and guests appreciate the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Blue and the ladies of the Culture Club.

Next year at the regular time the gentlemen will entertain the ladies of the club.

A Guest.

Mr. Ernest Wood, of Ligonier, took Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Weaver.

Mrs. Vina Geisinger of the west, who was here as guest in the Chas. Koch home last week, was taken to Auburn Friday by Mr. and Mrs. Koch to be a guest of relatives before returning home.

Mrs. Mary Ridgway and daughter were on the sick list the past week. Others were Mrs. Doris Yeiser, the little son of Harry Loucks, and Mrs. Malinda Shilling who is improving from a light stroke, and Sam Armstrong.

SAVINGS-BANK GAINS

Mutual savings-banks deposits in 18 states increased in 1934 by $163,080,092 to $9,757,690,937, and total assets of these banks gained by $199,497,834 to $11,055,498,066, both deposits and assets being only slightly under record figures for 1932, according to Philip A. Benson, president of the National Association of Mutual Savings banks.

There also was an addition of $25,756,405 to surplus, bringing that fund to $1,192,628,224, or 12.2 per cent of deposits. New York state's mutual savings banks led the nation in gains and assets, their increase being $109,715,244.

They also led in deposit gains, the increase being $81,245,170.—Literary Digest.

GARFIELD TEA

Gay, Crisp Taffeta Trims New Gowns

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ALL roads and bypaths which the spectacular spring style parades are now treading lead to taffeta. The furore and excitement over this crisp, sprightly and youthful silk is keeping up at such a maddening pace, those who launch the new fashions are almost talking taffeta in their sleep while during their waking hours they are voicing a spring-song of taffeta which is reaching to every style center far and near.

And such taffetas! Taffetas which baffle description so persuasively lovely and dramatically chic are they. Printed, plain, metal-interwoven, plaided, striped—just say taffeta and the salesperson will show you such a versatile assortment as to almost bewilder.

According to the new style program taffeta is as smart for dresses, daytime or evening, it matters not which, as it is for suits, wraps and ensembles. It is equally as important used in a trimming way and for hats, big bows and accessories of every description.

The latest news about taffeta is the little separate jacket of this pert swishy silk which may be worn with your spring frock of light woolen or crepe or "what have you." It may be quilted or plain and it may be in black, navy or other dark street color with prospects of pastel shades later on in the summer.

Demonstrating taffeta in a trimming way, the three costumes pictured tell a fascinating story of what's what to wear this spring. Of course the up-and-going dress to the left in the group is navy, for navy blue outranks even black in importance according to reports. Metal-plaided navy taffeta forms the wide girlish collar, also the deep cuffs which extend halfway up the sleeves. The rhinestone hook-and-eye fastening adds an intriguing touch.

The dress going arm-in-arm with the afore-described may be considered in terms of either black or navy. The deep cape collar is in taffeta in the same color accurately matched so as to carry out a perfected monotone. The huge animated taffeta bow interprets a fashion which is all-prevailing this season.

Comes next in the picture to complete the group a stunning suave, sleek and slim-of-cut two-piece tailleur fashioned of a novelty weave woolen in a rich-toned green. The decorative bow is of gold-striped taffeta with the same color combination repeated in the square buttons. Note the fashionable breton sailor which tops this smartly costumed woman's carefully coiffed head. If you are asking about the millinery outlook there is much could be said in regard to the race for supremacy which is now going on between sailors of varied type and quaint picturesque "way-back-when" looking bonnets to which add a third competitor—the very new brims which lurch toward the front narrowing at the sides being thoroughly modernistic in their streamline movement.

Outstanding Chic in "Party" Frock

PATTERN 9236

Exciting affairs—matinees, parties and the like—call for an exciting frock, a frock such as this, for instance! From the slimly modeled bodice with its rows of soft gathers at the neck, to the hem of its slenderly paneled skirt, it spells chic with a capital C! And if you think that all the smartness of the design is concentrated at the front look again! For important back interest there's that deep, buttoned yoke, cut in one with the sleeves. The graceful sleeves, by the way, may end in unusual, gathered "bracelet" cuffs or be left open in elbow-length flares. The pattern indicates how to make them both ways. Lovely in flat or canton crepe!

Pattern 9236 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards 39-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York.

DICK TAPPITT put down his glass of applejack and looked across at Garrison with eyes that shone.

"Maybe you've heard of grander, crazier guys than Sam," he said; "I never have."

"And you mean to tell me," the publicity man asked, "that he deliberately broke his leg so you and Mollie would take this job? Man, what a story!"

He pulled a scratch pad toward him and began scribbling notes on it. The two were alone in his office, near the west end of Zenith studio's administration building. Dick Tappitt lounged back on the big leather davenport and approved!

"Good! This is something I'd really like to see played up. It might help Sam get a better break, and that's what I want more than anything else. He's the best honest-to-Pete pal a man ever had, and I—well, I feel as if I'd given him kind of a raw deal.

"You see, Sam, and I've been hoofing together for about three years—five-a-day routine on the small time back East. Six months ago we met Mollie; she was on the same bill with us in St. Joe. Well, right away Sam wanted her to join, so after the show he looked her up, they had a talk, and next day we were rehearsing a new trio song-and-dance act.

"Mollie did worlds for us," he went on; "she added the sex appeal and the touch of class our stuff had been needing. What's more, we all got along well together. In a way, though, that was the rub: before long both Sam and I were nuts about Mollie.

"She wasn't the sort of a girl to bust things up by being partial, so she handled us with kid gloves. Still, Sam could guess what I knew: that Mollie really cared for me. Understand, I'm not taking anything for granted; Sam talked to me and offered best wishes the day before we left to come out here. That's the kind of 24-karat boy he is, and ever since then he's tried to help us along and ease himself out of the picture. But I wouldn't have that."

He lit a cigarette, rose, and commenced to walk about the room. It was evident the situation affected him deeply. Garrison wore a look of encouraging interest and kept pencil poised above paper. This, he knew, was first-rate material on a subject worthy of attention. Mollie Hoppe and Dick Tappitt were certain to become as famous as any dancing team in pictures. The screen test of them he'd seen today established that.

"We were getting up in the game," Dick resumed; "making a hit on the bigger circuits. But we all knew there wasn't much further to go; vaudeville's a very sick business these days. So we pooled our dough, bought a flivver, and steamed West. We had some fancy ideas about what we'd do when we hit Hollywood; but a month of pounding the pavements and chasing agents after we got here cured those.

"That was when Sam began to do his stuff. First he took an usher's job to keep us going, then he landed Mollie and me a tryout in a cabaret down at the beach. And now—now he's pulled this. What a d—n' fool—and what a prince!"

"Just how did this leg-breaking business happen?" asked Garrison. The dancer grinned to hide his emotion.

"Well, when we clicked in the beach job, we wanted to have Sam back with us, but he stalled and said he guessed he'd stick with what he had. Of course I knew the answer: by that time Mollie and I weren't hiding our feelings much, and Sam thought he'd be in the way.

"Poor guy—he sure had the wrong slant! Mollie felt bad about it, and naturally I did too. I mean, after losing her to me and then with all he'd done for us, it seemed just plain lousy to have him cut out of the act. That's why when this offer came along, we said nothing doing unless Sam's included. It was Mollie's idea, and I backed her up strong.

"Well, sir, Sam goes out to the ABC plant, tells 'em he's an experienced stunt man, and gets on as a parachute jumper. They sent him up to bail out at a thousand feet, and he on purpose doesn't pull the cord until he's two hundred feet from ground. See the scheme? He knew if he had an accident that laid him up, we'd sign on here.

"Mollie went over to the hospital to visit him; that's why she's late for this conference. I wanted to go along, but—Geo, what can you say to a bird like that? First I let him support me, then I glaum onto all the good breaks, and finally I grab off the girl he loves—and this is how he hits back! Lord, it sure gets me!"

As he dropped down on the divan again, a bell rang. Garrison picked up the phone at his elbow, said: "Yes?"

"McSweeney of the Journal," a crisp voice announced; "what's the lowdown on this thing the dancer you were raving over just pulled?"

"I haven't," said Louis after an instant, "the cockeyedest notion who or what you're talking about."

"Come on—cut it, will ya? You know d—n' well what I mean. That Mollie Hopp you claim is due to be a wow phoned the license bureau from Good Samaritan hospital ten minutes ago; she wants to file notice of intention with some bird named Sam Trotter. One of my boys called her and asked for details, but all she said was she'd just found out how close sympathy is to love. Now what's the angle?"

MEDICAL SOCIETY HAILS VITAMIN E AS SEX FACTOR

Vitamin E, whose alphabetical brothers can make you crave a steak or bring sunshine into your life, soon may be the means of pre-determining sex.

The Illinois States Medical society has announced that the lowly vitamin, plentiful in the oily substance of wheat, appears from "the most ethical laboratory experiments" to have strange powers of determining whether an unborn child will be a boy or a girl.

Research has shown that mother rats give birth to males and females in direct ratio to the sparse or overabundant supply of vitamin E in the diet, it was explained.

"Apparently hypo-vitaminosis, or sparse supply, in the case of vitamin E tends to produce male offspring just as hyper-vitaminosis, or an abundant supply, tends to produce females," the journal said.

An experiment in England was reported, in which two women unable to bear children were treated with the vitamin and each gave birth to a child.

The society also claimed that research has shown that children born to mothers treated with the vitamin are more intelligent than "those just born."

"It seems clear that undoubtedly the obstetricians, by supplying vitamin E liberally to expectant mothers, have a great opportunity to enhance the child's capacity for learning," it was pointed out.

Doctors Know! ... and they use liquid laxatives

You'd use a liquid, too, if you knew how much better it makes you feel.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Just ask your own doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help—and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without aid.

People who have experienced this comfort, never return to any form of help that can't be regulated! The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit. It relieves a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset.

To relieve your occasional upsets safely and comfortably, try Syrup Pepsin. The druggist has it.

TULLE IS IN VOGUE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Reports from style centers all agree as to the tremendous importance of laces, tulles, nets, chiffons and other like diaphanous media for evening and coming summer fashions. Enthusiasm for stiffened tulle is manifested throughout couturier showings in Paris. Georgette Renal, one of the up-and-coming designers, fashions the exquisite gown pictured of midnight blue tulle, the sequins on the cape being in matching blue. She uses three tiers of the tulle fabric to form an interesting silhouette starting with the sequin-covered cape with its sprightly flare, continuing with a peplum for the little jacket, adding a corresponding flare in the back swing of the skirt.

KID BOOTEES TRIP ONTO SHOE MARKET

You should see the new kid bootees that have just tripped onto the shoe market.

A revolution in footwear, is the way most people feel about them. Cecil's little black kid ones already are a success. The effect is achieved by eight straps that lace across the instep until close under the ankle bone. This particular bootee lunched at the Crillon and Madame was wearing at the same time a belted three-quarter coat, whose high neck and accompanying lofty Russian toque obviously demanded the bootee touch.

Cecil has another bootee deserving mention. It is of black kidskin with patent leather lacing at the outside.

Tailored Styles Will Be Popular for Spring Wear

As a fashion foreword to spring, a prominent stylist says that women are asking for models that have a minimum of fancy trimming and a maximum of tailoring. With these requirements in mind, this authority believes in interpreting Regency and Empire themes to spring sportswear.

He refers to Empire skirts being cut very high, a good three inches higher for spring than this winter. Swallow tail jackets as novelties, vests, loads of them in all different colors, in patterned silk or in plain pique, wing lapels faced in contrast fabric—these are some of the Regency developments which he believes in borrowing, developments taken from the masculine phase of the Regency period and assimilated in sports fashions minus the decorative trimming of this period.

New Blouses

Blouses with very feminine lines and flattering fullness in medium pastels, rose tones and beige are going to be seen worn with spring suits of the "dressmaker" sort. Chiffon blouses will soon replace the more opaque sheers.

New Jewelry

Some of the most interesting jewelry being shown for formal wear copies military or royal orders, suspended on heavy metal or jeweled chains.

CREAMED DISHES ALWAYS APPEAL

Best Method of Preparing Them Is Quickest.

By EDITH M. BARBER

THERE are creamed dishes and creamed dishes, and, oh, what a difference there may be! Fortunately for the business woman housekeeper, the best method for most of these dishes is the quickest. Almost all of these easily made main dishes are the better for cooking in butter first, then sprinkling in the flour and when it is well blended with the browned butter, the milk is added.

My famous frizzled beef, which one of my readers said must be my favorite recipe as I printed it so often, is made in this way. I can't tell you how much I dislike the ordinary creamed dried beef for which the meat is often scalded first, to remove the salt and incidentally much of the flavor, and then put into a white sauce, often too thick and sometimes even lumpy. If the beef is cooked in the butter, you will not find it too salty.

I use practically the same method for cooking mushrooms, for cooking creamed Hamburg steak and often for creamed chicken and veal. I often use this method as a basic one for creamed soups, cooking the onion in the butter and then adding the flour, milk and strained vegetable pulp.

The only trick to produce a smooth sauce is to turn out your fire when you add the flour and stir it in thoroughly so that every particle is mixed with the butter. In preparing creamed oysters, cook the oysters over heat until the edges begin to curl. I like to add chopped raw celery which I add with the "plumped" oysters. This improves flavor and appearance and at the same time gives a contrasting texture to the dish. A little raw celery is very good with creamed meat or fish on both these counts.

Quick Meal.

Creamed oysters and celery.
Baked potatoes.
String beans with onions.
Toasted sponge cake with canned peaches.

Method of Preparation: Light oven. Scrub potatoes and bake.

Open can of string beans, prepare onion, cook in butter, add beans and heat.

Prepare oysters.
Toast sponge cake.
Open can of peaches.
Make coffee.

Creamed Oysters With Celery.

25 oysters
1½ cups white sauce
1 cup chopped celery
½ teaspoon worcestershire sauce

Clean the oysters and cook until the edges curl. Add oysters to white sauce which has had some oyster liquor used in place of some of the milk. Add celery and seasoning and pour over slices of hot toast.

Creamed Hamburg.

½ pound Hamburg steak
2 tablespoons drippings
Salt and pepper
5 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
5 slices toast

Melt the drippings in the frying pan, add the meat and cook until light brown. Sprinkle with the flour and seasoning, stir until smooth, add the milk and boil three minutes, stirring constantly. Serve on toast.

Frizzled Beef.

¼ pound dried beef
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
Pepper

Tear the beef into pieces. Melt the butter in a frying pan and cook the beef in it a few minutes. Sprinkle with the flour, stir well, add the milk slowly and stir until it boils. Let boil one minute, season and serve.

Sterling or Plated Silver

It is quite customary for those who have sterling silver flatware to have plated hollow ware, although sterling is the de luxe kind to own. There are persons who would no more consider having these large pieces plated than the small ones. However, the expensiveness of sterling hollow ware brings with it the need for precautions about having much of it about, and, this does not pertain to plated silver, even the finest of it. For this reason, there are homemakers, who could amply afford sterling, who yet prefer the plated pieces. For those of small incomes, plated silver hollow ware is the sensible kind to have. It can be artistic in shape, beautiful in design, and serve every purpose. While speaking thus of hollow ware, I also would say that an occasional sterling article of this sort to have in with the less costly pieces is a delight. The homemaker can care for, and treasure it, without its being a burden, as whole sets of the sterling containers would be.

Telephone Table Sets

One of the immediate helps is to have a real telephone set, a table with shelf for the telephone book, and a chair that slips so far under it when not in use, that it is out of the way. These sets can be had frequently, at low cost. Now during the regulation monthly furniture sales is a good time to be on the lookout for a bargain, should you need a set. Some styles are decidedly decorative, while in others the utilitarian value is the chief one. With such a set the table, chair, and book are all arranged for.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

PATIENCE is one of those virtues which is often as effective as will power. It can work wonders, and in so smooth and gracious a manner that no one is disturbed, annoyed or upset. It is not entirely a passive virtue, one that makes for finer character in the one who exercises it. There is a definite force in it which influences other persons also. It has been thought of too long as passive, as representing almost an inertia of spirit, something that will hold back action not alone by force of mentality, but by a passiveness that found objections too difficult. This is paying too big a price for the reflex action of the virtue.

There are times when to be patient is a fault. When the person knows that endurance by refraining from saying or doing something will bring disaster to another, this is paying dearly for withholding comment or action, even though by so doing a disturbance would be created. This is not genuine patience but the fruit of fear of commotion.

The Finest Patience.

Patience in its finest form is an element of loving devotion whereby others are helped at the price of personal comfort. Or it is a marvelous means to an end which is worthy. Patience of these types is selfless.

Patience which is akin to will power, is another beautiful type. It is true that to exercise patience often requires a profound self-control, but it is when it has the working energy of force in business and home management that it is being used wisely. The statement "Everything comes to him who waits," is futile unless it is a working patience. It must be the kind which has actual power to aid in bringing about the desired end. How this is done cannot be stated with precision, but it is reminiscent of the other truth that "Faith without works is dead."

Patience in Speech.

Patience in speech is a virtue. It can control outburst of anger in others as well as in oneself. This does not mean a slowness of speech, but a determination to keep down angry words which might or would spell broken friendships, or some sort of disruption. It frequently is in making inconsequential comments that patience gradually leads away from disturbance to calmness. An irate person can very frequently be soothed. In business a person who waits and talks pleasantly until the salesperson gets the idea which is wished to be conveyed about articles to be purchased, usually has success.

The person who, in the home, keeps the caliber of voice agreeable and nonprovocative and does not merely stop talking in a manner that speaks louder than words of angry disapproval when things go wrong, is the one who is sure to win out. Patience is a winning power as well as one of self-control.

Painted Woodenware

Woodenware has come out of the kitchen to the breakfast and luncheon table. Some of the new pieces are rather expensive, but a very smart salad container, for example, can be created inexpensively from a kitchen chopping bowl. The chopping bowl is carefully sandpapered inside and out, then the outside is painted bright red, blue or green. Sometimes only a band of color added. Smaller bowls make good containers for fruit, nuts or candy.

Madame Lucia Davidova, noted Georgian aviatrix who has an international flying license, has the tiny dining room of her smart New York apartment fitted with table accessories of pewter, wood and silver.

A New Deal for Beds

Since the low bed is in vogue and will probably remain a favorite, large high beds may be converted by sawing down the headboard or removing it entirely, substituting a footboard for the headboard and cutting down the legs. When applying paint or enamel over wood that has been stained, first apply a thin coat of shellac or a specially prepared sealer. This is to prevent the stain from "bleeding" through the new coating.

Brightening Dark Rooms

The vogue for bright colors on painted walls is a boon for those who have rooms with north windows or little lighting, says a prominent decorator. An effect of sunlight is created in even the darkest interior by the use of such fashionable colors as bright yellow, strong pink, peach and white. A large mirror or one of the recently introduced mirror screens will help also in lightening up dark rooms.

Some Change Noted in Rules for Politeness

"You are expected to rise early and be dressed neatly, to exercise before breakfast, and to retire to rest when the family in which you reside desire you to; and you must consider it a breach of politeness if you are requested a second time to rise in the morning or retire in the evening.

"Your department must be grave and decent while in the house of God, and you must remember that all light conduct in a place of worship is offensive to well-bred people and highly displeasing to your Maker and Preserver.

"Every hour during the week must be fully occupied either in useful employment or rational amusement while out of school; two hours must be employed each day in close study and every hour during the week must fully occupied.

"The truth must be spoken at all times, on all occasions, though it might appear advantageous to tell a falsehood.

"You are expected to be polite in your manners, neat in your person and room, careful of your books and clothes, attentive to economy in all your expenses.

"Talebearing and scandal are odious vices, and must be avoided neither must you flatter your companions by remarks on their beauty, dress or any slight accomplishment, in order to increase their vanity."

Commenting on these oldtime rules of politeness, a modern woman writer caustically remarks:

"Heaven deliver us! But this is only a part, dear reader, of the list of rules for the current manners of students at the first 'Academy for Young Ladies' to be opened in New England—at the beginning of the last century. It is a museum piece that I cannot deny the readers of this column.

"They were not making it easy, these New England 'educators,' for young ladies to have 'good manners.'

"Of course even in this highly frivolous, wasteful, wicked day, we believe in being quiet in church, in keeping ourselves and our possessions clean and neat—and telling the truth when it is not too inconvenient! It is the manner in which even these reasonable demands are expressed and their implication of how young people should be dealt with that gives us a precious sidelight on those days.

"The prize, by honest vote, would go, I think, to this one: 'Neither must you flatter your companions by remarks on their beauty, dress or any slight accomplishment, in order to increase their vanity'! Today's 'well-bred young lady' would regard it as better 'manners' to never overlook an opportunity to remark on her companions' beauty or charm—and wherever possible within the bounds of conscience to say something pleasing and heart-warming to those whose hand she touches in this fleeting journey on which we are for a short time together.

"'Other times,' say the French, 'other manners.' For my part, I prefer those of our times. What say our readers?"

SURGICAL CARE AVAILABLE FOR BIRD AND BEAST

Our ancestors would open their eyes in wonderment if they could see the trouble taken nowadays to patch up beasts and birds that have lost legs, eyes and teeth.

A sheep from the highlands of Scotland, which recently arrived in Liverpool, was found to have a deftly made artificial hind leg, contrived from a piece of shepherd's crook and a laced leather support.

Sam, a sheepdog, owned by a Yorkshire woman, met with a bad accident and had to have a hind leg amputated.

He stood the operation well, and soon was able to get about quite comfortably, with the aid of a wooden leg held with straps to his back. Another dog, whose hind legs were paralyzed, was given a little cart on a couple of wheels, which was fitted to his body, and with this he managed to dash about the garden almost as well as ever.

Many a pet bird nowadays is fitted with a wooden leg; even a stork, at Oran, Algeria, was, by public subscription, thus equipped, as the Arabs feared that babies of the neighborhood would meet with misfortune should it be left to perish.

A pair of pythons at the London zoo were recently fitted with glass eyes, and artificial rubber feet were fitted to a duck in the state of Michigan when its own feet had to be amputated after frostbite.

A Paris veterinary surgeon specializes in providing old dogs with gold teeth.

Jumbo, an Irish terrier living at Catford, lost nearly all his teeth when he was twelve years old. An impression of his mouth was taken, and a dentist made him an artificial set.

Within a few days, however, the rats of the Ravenbourne Brook, his happy hunting ground, were carefree once more, for he had lost his teeth.—Pearson's Weekly (London).

Hotel in the Air

The new Zeppelin, which is under construction in Freidrichshafen, Germany, will carry the equivalent of a two-story building, with 25 bedrooms, a dining room, 45 feet long, and baggage room large enough to hold automobiles. The craft will be 600 feet long and more than 120 feet wide at the center.

Have Been Well Coached

A dietitian expresses the opinion that Americans eat intelligently. If they didn't by this time, the greatest amount of advice heard since Adam's time would have gone to waste.—New York Sun.

Too Many Lessons for Child Will Work Harm

"Recently I overheard a mother of a tiny three-year-old girl boasting that her daughter had started taking dancing lessons and that she was giving the child a half hour's daily practice at the piano in addition. 'I am so afraid that if I don't start her out while she is young to do all the things I want her to do she will never master any of them,'" Fae Decker Dix recounts in her article in Hygeia Magazine on the evils of overburdening children with extracurricular activities.

"Her words did not make sense to me," she says. "Imagine thrusting such a weight onto a three-year-old child who does not even talk plainly yet, whose whole world is a pageantry of strange loveliness to be explored by the questing little feet, hands and senses! It is enough that the three-year-old child copes with each day's play adventures, learns to obey the parental expostulations and to get along well with his fellow playmates.

"To try to thrust little children into new experiences before they are naturally ready for them is a stigma on parental intelligence. Adults who assume more responsibility in any field than their physical strength warrants show a flagrant lack of prudence. The bill collector will certainly come later in the form of inefficiency and ill health, and his interest takes greater toll than any banker or loan company."

Three Simple Steps to Ease a Sore Throat in Three Minutes

Modern Scientific Method Wonderfully Easy

REMEMBER PICTURES HERE

1. Crush and stir 3 BAYER Aspirin Tablets in ½ glass of water.

2. Gargle Thoroughly—throw your head way back, allowing a little to trickle down your throat. Do this twice. Do not rinse mouth.

3. If you have a cold, take 2 BAYER Aspirin Tablets. Drink full glass of water. Repeat if necessary, following directions in package.

Here's a safe, modern and effective way to relieve sore throat. A way that eases the pain, rawness and irritation in as little as two or three minutes. Many doctors advise it and millions are following this way. Try it.

All you do is crush and stir 3 BAYER Aspirin Tablets in ½ glass of water and gargle with it twice—as pictured here. (If you have signs of a cold, take BAYER Aspirin and drink plenty of water.)

Get real BAYER Aspirin Tablets for this purpose. They disintegrate quickly and completely, making a gargle without irritating particles.

BAYER Aspirin prices have been decisively reduced, so there's no point now in accepting other than the real Bayer article you want.

S. highway 27 in Auburn.

Headline in the daily papers reads: "Liquor bill will stop Sunday sales," and we question this statement. Just when have the liquor dealers become so law conscious that they will heed the new law? Was this new bill passed because of their obedience to the old law? Was liquor ever sold on Sunday before and do these joints always close on schedule? Senator Smith, a Democrat said, "This bill will ruin the Democratic party in Indiana."

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MARCH 21, 1935 NUMBER 12

BENEFIT PROGRAM DREW GOOD CROWD

The benefit or community program put on last Thursday evening at the gym was largely attended, sponsored by the Conservation Club, with the sole purpose of assisting in the planning and furnishing of shrubbery and equipment for the school grounds.

A keen interest was created by the club, as was evidenced by the response of the clubs and organizations of the community. The program was indeed entertaining throughout.

A stand provided lunch for those who did not purchase boxes. In all 26 finely decorated lunch boxes were sold, and while they did not sell like in days of old, yet brought in near $30. An approximate $40 was realized from this event.

TWO RED LETTER DAYS FOR THE L. L. C.

The Ladies Literary Club was delightfully entertained by the Culture Club, of Auburn, at the beautiful home of Mrs. C. R. Holben, on W. Seventh St., on March 18th. The program consisted of music, both vocal and instrumental, and a splendid travelogue by Mrs. Tallen, recounting a trip through the West Indies.

The luncheon was beautifully served in St. Patrick's Day appointments and thoroughly enjoyed by all. An hour of visiting followed before the St. Joe ladies departed with many congratulations for the pleasant and profitable evening.

On Wednesday evening, March 13, occurred the regular musical evening provided for in the yearly program, at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R Leighty. The committee, consisting of Lora Leighty, Lela Northrup and Avis Staman gave the members a complete surprise by departing from the regular routine and bringing Emily White Hull and her able assistants, Hazel Hart Greer, accompanist, and June Hosack, reader, to do the entertaining.

The program consisted of readings, vocal solos and musical readings. The opening number was a musical reading by Mrs. Hull entitled "Just by Laughing," Harris.

Solo Numbers: "The Mission of A Rose," by Cowen; "Homing," by Teresa Del Riego; "Because I Love You Dear," by C. B. Hawley and "Somewhere A Voice is Calling" by Arthur F. Tate, were all given by Mrs. Hull.

Reading: "The Little Mixer," cutting arranged by Mrs. Hull was given by June Hosack, who also gave "The County Fair" in such a pleasing manner.

Because of the club study of American literature Mrs. Hull gave other readings, Longfellow's poem "The Day is Done," a musical reading "Marguerite" by Whittier and a cutting from "The Merchant of Venice," act 1, scene 2, Shakespeare. Mrs. Hull also gave "The Happiest Day" a cutting from the book by Margaret Sangster. These numbers were all so ably given and much appreciated by the club ladies.

The hostess served a lovely luncheon consisting of lemon sherbet, cake, coffee and mixed nuts.

The club will cherish the memory of an evening so delightfully promoted.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Through the courtesy of the Kinsey store we had the use of a radio on last Friday and heard the broadcast of some of the state tourney basketball games.

Jean Goodwin was absent from school on last Friday afternoon. Why?

The junior boys won the interclass basketball tourney played at noon hours during the past two weeks.

Mr. Noffsinger has been ill with influenza this week. He was not able to meet his classes on Tuesday. Other teachers and pupils have been afflicted with severe colds but have kept on their feet fortunately.

The juniors are planning for a class party this week end.

One week from Saturday is the date of the last county teachers institute for the school year.

First and Second Grades

Pupils absent from our room this week include Helen Wiers, Glen Epler, Mary Moore, Walter Stewart and Russell Ridgway.

The first grade is planning to make a project study of the circus.

Third and Fourth Grades

Allen Haller enrolled in our Third Grade Monday morning.

Our Spelling honor roll includes Betty Rudolph, Hubert Bleeks, Estella Hart, Loren Inlow, Earl Keller, Donald Kinsey, Patricia Maxwell, Betty Nicholls, Frances Reidenbach, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude, Gladys Stewart, and Marliyn Zonker.

During our English period last Tuesday we played store. We had quite a variety of things in our grocery. We took turns at being clerk and customer. We had paper money and learned to make change.

In our Art period last Friday we made "Flags." We studied the different colors and their arrangements in flags of other countries before we made our copies.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Marcel Pugsley is ill with the measles this week.

The spelling honor roll for last week consisted of DeWayne Cook, Mary Close, Franklyn Sechler, Jacqueline Shuff, Burnadine Wade, Betty Smith, Ellen Zimmerman, Frank Curie, Ruth Donley, Treas Epler, Jack Goodwin, James Hamilton, Harold Inlow, Myra Keesler and Marcel Pugsley.

FROM ABOUT ST. JOE

Spring arrives officially this morning.

John Crothers has a new Chevrolet Sedan for his letter route.

Brown county state park opening has been set for April 1, the first in the state.

Mrs. Ima Epler is home from the Garrett hospital where she underwent two operations.

Goeble Goodwin underwent an operation at a Warsaw hospital, Tuesday, and is in a serious condition.

Earl Wyatt, of Auburn, who has been suffering with sciatic rheumatism all winter suffered a relapse last Saturday and is confined to his bed.

"Trying to force recovery by statute is like standing up in a sailboat and blowing on the sails. The speed of the boat is determined by forces outside it."

Ernest Hissong, of Scipio, moved into the J. R. Leighty tenant house recently vacated by Ray Reasoner and began working on Tuesday morning for Roy Keller.

Probably the earliest maple tree to bud is in front of the Betz restaurant and the bees from the Lutheran Church are busy trying to extract the sweetness from the buds.

Frank Coughanour, 80, for years a teacher in Hicksville rural schools and two years at St. Joe, died last Wednesday night at his home at Hicksville. He had been ill for many months.

Miss Virginia Farver, of Auburn, a chalk artist, will illustrate the song of "The Ninety and Nine" at the Concord meeting on Thursday night. You will enjoy this feature of the service.

A car load of 6,000 gallons of spray material was unloaded here this week for the Leighty Orchard. A quantity was parceled out to others in the community who are growers of fruit. This is the first shipment ever received in tank cars, and of course comes much cheaper than in the car load package shipment.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Murphy and two sons, of Cole's Corners, were Sunday visitors at the Mrs. Adam Shilling home. Tuesday evening guests at the same home were Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Koehnlein and Mr. Eldon Mitchell, of Clyde, Ohio, after their church services at Concord. Mrs. Shilling who has been ill for some time enjoyed the visit and music provided by the guests very much. A light lunch was served.

Business is definitely better now than at this time last year. Practically every industry is increasing sales, earning moderately higher profits. Complete figures for January show that the index of industrial production was at the highest January level since 1930. The fact remains, however, that in the view of many competent observers, fundamental conditions are unchanged, and all that is keeping us going is government spending. It is true that 10,000,000 men are out of work, are being supported by relief—about the same number that was unemployed two years ago, when the great recovery drive started. That is the most ominous fact that the country faces now.

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau met at the home of Fern Draggoo, March 15. After opening songs led by Mary Krise the Club Creed was read by all. The club voted to sponsor a 4-H Club. The secretary's report was read and approved. Twenty-eight members responded to roll call with some "Irish Wit." A poem was read by Florence Baker. The project work was given by the leader, Helen Ulm. Two contests were conducted by Mabel Weikel. The committee served refreshments consisting of fruit salad, sandwiches, deviled eggs, pickles, wafers and coffee. Reporter.

SMART LINES IN MORNING FROCK

PATTERN 1933

Don't let Monday mornings, or any other mornings for that matter, get you down! Slip into this pretty new house frock and greet the day with the feeling that come what may, you, at any rate, are dressed as attractively as possible. The bodice, darted at the waist for trimness and comfortable fullness, buttons into a pert little point at the front—the sleeves with their buttoned trimming may be made either short or long—and the neatly paneled skirt is perfectly proportioned. For a particularly cheerful effect, use a gay plaid or bright monotone cotton material and make those perky revers of the same or contrasting fabric!

Pattern 1933 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3½ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

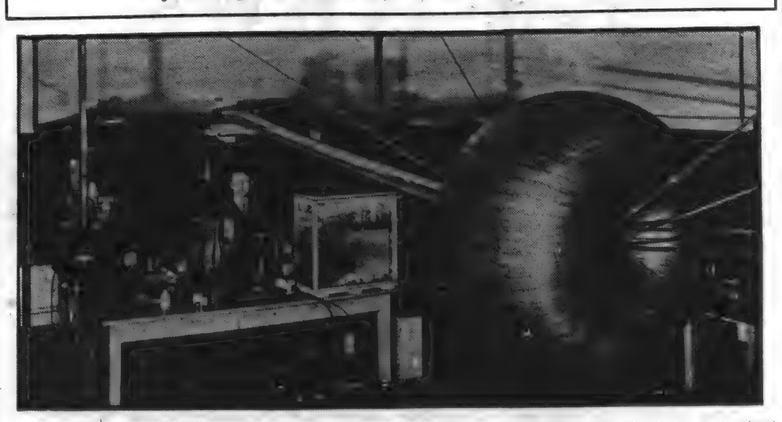
Newly Designed Doughnut Million-Volt Generator



DR. WILLARD H. BENNETT of Ohio State university's physics department, with his newly designed doughnut million-volt generator, for use in the study of nuclear disintegration. Because it is much smaller and less costly than the models previously used for the same voltage, the new generator is expected to greatly increase the possibilities for study of the atom and its nucleus. The generator will be used in operating a high vacuum tube at extremely high voltages, to produce high-speed particles which disintegrate nuclei of atoms and change the chemical elements. The new generator is of the electrostatic type and has a high voltage shield in the shape of a sphere with two holes on opposite sides. The shield is charged by means of a silk belt which passes through these holes.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am not one of those persons who believes everything told them. For that reason I am writing to you to find out if what I heard last night is true. I heard that the richest people in New York neglect their children. Tell me, is this true?

Yours truly,
ANN ARKIST.

Answer: What you heard is silly. Rich people do not neglect their children. They engage nurses to do that.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

What is meant by "A Gentleman Farmer"?

Yours truly,
Q. KUMBER.

Answer: A gentleman farmer is a man who raises nothing but his hat.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

During our natural history lesson, in school yesterday, our teacher said that about 8,000 elephants go every year to make white keys for pianos. If this is true, what do you think of it?

Sincerely,
E. KLIPSE.

Answer: I think it shows how far we have advanced in training animals.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

What is meant when they say a man has "horse sense"?

Truly yours,
JOCK KOY.

Answer: "Horse sense" is the thing which keeps a man from mortgaging his home to buy an automobile.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My mother and father had an argument. Ma said that Pa doesn't act the same as he used to before they were married, especially if they were on a train and passed through a tunnel. Why should men act differently, in a tunnel after marriage?

Sincerely,
I. M. A. MAY DIN.

Answer: Before marriage a fellow always kisses his girl in a tunnel. After marriage, when he gets in a tunnel, he takes a drink.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I saw a policeman stop an automobile and arrest the driver. The man wanted to know why he was arrested and the policeman said because he had only one eye. What charge can they place against a man driving a car because the man has only one eye?

Yours truly,
D. SEMBER.

Answer: He was probably arrested for driving because he had one lamp out.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

In an article I read in one of the morning papers I saw the following headlines: "Robbed by Comic-Opera Bandits." What in the world is meant by "Comic-Opera Bandits?"

Truly yours,
C. NARIO.

Answer: That means robbers who, after tying their victims so they can't move, use "Old Gags" to keep them quiet.

LABOR-SAVING IDEAS

WHEN making pastry prepare more than is needed and place in a cold place or ice chest, tightly covered with waxed paper. The thoroughly chilled mixture makes more flaky crust than that baked at once. From this pastry a few tarts may be made in a hurry, or cheese straws, a meat pie, using left-over meat.

Ice box rolls are another special that can be mixed and left in the ice chest for a week. Take off just the amount needed for rolls and put them to rise; when light, bake. A tin of delicious rolls are quickly served. An hour or two before baking make them into small rolls and keep very warm, tightly covered. It is better to grease them well with lard—that keeps the flour from drying out on top while rising. They should be more than double their bulk when put into the oven.

When baking potatoes prepare enough so that the next day a few will be available for cream potatoes. They are fully as good as those freshly cooked.

By keeping jars of chow chow, capers, olives, pickles as well as cheese, celery, anchovies and numerous other condiments and relishes, one has access to delightful fillings for sandwiches which need to be made in a hurry. A jar of mayonnaise and a bottle of french dressing should be made in such quantities that they are always available. It takes very little extra effort to double the amount when preparing a salad dressing, and then there is always a supply.

Wash the heads of lettuce and place in a cloth or covered dish in the ice chest, then the lettuce will always be ready for use. Parsley well washed, leaving the moisture clinging to the leaves, if put in a fruit jar tightly covered, will keep two weeks, fresh and green. Add a bit of water if it seems to dry out.

Inferiority Complex Needed

If you want to succeed in life, cultivate a good, healthy inferiority complex. It is something to be cherished and held, observes a writer in Pearson's Weekly. You ought to feel awed and silent when you stand before a great work of art, or in a beautiful building. You ought to feel moral inferiority when you contemplate the lives of some great men. You ought to feel awe, reverence and respect—they are the three qualities the world needs today.

THE GIFT OF FRIENDSHIP

By ANNE CAMPBELL

MY FRIEND came home from far away,
And brought a gift to me,
But in my hand no bauble lay,
And there was nothing I could see.

She gave to me a cheering word,
A happy smile, a loving glance,
And in my heart new courage stirred
To conquer changing circumstance.

There is no gift that can be bought,
Or any work of art,
As precious as the one she brought;
The beauty of a friendly heart.

Bedtime Story for Children

REDWING THE BLACKBIRD GIVES WARNING

CREEPING toward sleeping Danny Meadow Mouse Reddy Fox managed to keep quite out of sight of anyone in the Smiling Pool. But there was one person to whom Reddy gave no heed. In fact, Reddy did not see him at all. It was Redwing the Blackbird, sitting on top of an alder tree on the bank of the Smiling Pool. Redwing had not seen Reddy until the latter had almost reached the Smiling Pool. Then, happening to look in that direction, he had caught a glimpse of something red moving in the tall grass. You see, he was looking down and therefore could see what those on the ground or in the water could not see.

Now Redwing does not fear Reddy Fox. There is no reason why he should. But Redwing has no love for Reddy Fox. He knows that Reddy would gladly catch him if he could. So the instant he was sure that it was Reddy creeping through the tall grass, Redwing flew out directly above Reddy and began to scream. "Danger! Danger!" he screamed. "Here is Reddy Fox! Danger! Danger!"

At the first warning note from Redwing, Grandfather Frog dived into the Smiling Pool with a great splash. There wasn't any real need for him to do so because out on that big green lily pad of his, he was quite safe from Reddy. But Grandfather Frog always feels more comfortable in the water when any kind of danger is around. All along the shore of the Smiling Pool, half grown young frogs dived into the water in a panic. They knew what had brought Reddy over to the Smiling Pool.

Of course at the first note of Redwing's voice the eyes of Danny Meadow Mouse flew open. The instant he saw where Redwing was hovering in the air as he screamed he knew that Reddy Fox was just beneath him and that meant that Reddy was right back of Danny himself. What should he do?

He Had Caught a Glimpse of Something Red Moving in the Tall Grass.

Where should he run? To turn back would be to run right into Reddy's mouth. There wasn't a hiding place near. It was useless for him to try to outrun Reddy, for Reddy could catch him in two jumps. Was ever a meadow mouse in a more dreadful position? There was Reddy Fox behind him and the Smiling Pool in front of him. To Grandfather Frog, whose big goggly eyes showed just above the surface of the water, it looked as if Danny Meadow Mouse would soon be no more. He couldn't see one little chance for Danny to escape.

Death Ray Apparatus Aids Human Life

DR. E. D. McALISTER of Smithsonian institution is photographed with his death ray apparatus. Using ultra-violet—invisible light—rays from a quartz spectrograph, he determines what wave lengths are lethal. As it is adjusted it is lethal to ascarids (intestinal parasites). This machine, operated with a radiation wave of from 3,900 to 1,950 angstrom units, is lethal to many organisms. An angstrom is ten-millionth of a millimeter.

WHEN YOU TAKE A LAXATIVE

... use a spoon

It isn't what brand of laxative you take that's so important—it's the form. A liquid laxative can be taken in any required amount. If only a little is needed, you need never take a bit too much.

Doctors favor the easily measured liquid laxatives. Instead of any form that does not encourage variation from the fixed dose. A fixed dose may be an overdose for you—or your child.

Always remember this one thing about constipation: the secret of any real relief is reduced dosage.

Give the bowels only as much help as may be needed, and less help as the need grows less, You will find Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin an excellent aid in regulating the bowels. It contains senna and cascara (natural laxatives) and it will clear-up any bilious, sluggish condition without upset. Delightful taste, and pleasant action. Your druggist has it.

MAN NOT ALWAYS HELD ENEMY BY WILD CREATURES

There was once a time of universal friendship, or at least mutual tolerance, between man and the animals, declares Dr. Walter Hough, curator of anthropology of the Smithsonian institution. This situation is contrary to the theory that in the early days there was mutual antagonism between man and the lower creatures, causing a "tooth and claw" relationship.

"There are still remnants of this original 'Eden' in isolated parts of the world," states Doctor Hough, who has been tracing the method by which man domesticated animals. The trail of most of the domesticated animals leads back to central Asia. There, Doctor Hough believes, early man had a temperament especially adapted to inspire friendship and confidence among his fellow creatures.

"Observers in new countries," Doctor Hough says, "have recorded with surprise the lack of fear by animals. . . . There still remain in remote parts zones of peace, where animals are unaccustomed to fear. One such zone was found in Tibet by naturalists of the British Mount Everest expedition. . . . Another instance was called to my attention by a member of our own staff, who observed the lack of fear among the animals during his exploration of St. Lawrence island, Alaska.

"The above leads to the generalization that domestication is not the province of cruel and fear-engendering men. Domestication came about in zones of peace and was accomplished by peaceful men through kindly methods. The coming together of such fortuitous circumstances as animals suited for domestication and men of the peaceful, patient type undoubtedly was found in Asia, where our domestic animals originated."

GROUND GRIP TIRES

THAT 6,000,000 FARMERS NEED FOR THEIR CARS, TRUCKS AND TRACTORS TO PULL THEM THROUGH MUD, SAND OR BAD ROADS OF ANY KIND

YOU don't need chains, for these Ground Grip Tires will pull you through where chains would leave you stranded in mud or sand. Firestone Ground Grip Tires for motor cars, trucks and tractors give the farmer greatest economy ever offered, and relief from being stranded on mud roads and in soft ground.

Why can Firestone give you these wonderful new tires with the wide tread that withstands this terrific pull and strain, and still does not destroy the cord body? Firestone can do this because the body of this tire is built with Gum-Dipped cords. Underneath the tread, the patented construction feature of two extra layers of Gum-Dipped High Stretch cords gives extra adhesion of the tread to the cord body, enabling Firestone Tires to hold on this heavy, tough, scientifically designed tread. This tire cleans itself on any kind of clay or soft ground, and the tread projections have been so placed, that they are always in contact with the road, doing away with any bumping.

You cannot afford to be without these tires on your trucks and passenger cars. If your tractor is not equipped with rubber tires, see your nearest Firestone Service Store—tire dealer or implement dealer, and learn how easy it is to make the changeover. Compensation

By MAURICE GLEYRE
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

TWENTY thousand dollars' compensation for slipping on the ice in front of his own grocery store!

Mr. Pagnetta dropped his bold black eyes to veil their exultant gleam.

"My client," Attorney Rubinsky stated, "only desires compensation for the wrong that was done to him."

Mr. Pagnetta darted a sly look at the defendant and took pleasure in Mr. Schwabacher's increasing discomfiture.

Mr. Pagnetta's resentment had been accumulating ever since Mr. Schwabacher had opened a delicatessen next to his grocery store, with a window display of canned goods. When day after day he saw one or the other of his erstwhile customers come out of the store next door with an armful of bundles and a smile that reflected Mr. Schwabacher's expansive good humor, he could no longer be civil.

"There's not room for two grocers on this block," he told his competitor one morning when he saw him out on the sidewalk awkwardly wielding a broom.

"Mine iss delicatessen," Mr. Schwabacher corrected with a friendly smile.

"You're stealing my canned goods trade. There oughta be a law—"

"Togedder we bring more trade into the block," the other interrupted placidly. "We both benefit."

One winter morning he stepped out to survey his icy sidewalk, and found Mr. Schwabacher from the vantage of his own already ash-strewn premises doing the same thing.

"You better the ashes lay before the customers commence," Mr. Schwabacher advised after a hearty "goot day."

"And you better mind your own business," retorted Mr. Pagnetta.

"The ice iss everybody's business," Mr. Schwabacher contended good-humoredly.

Mr. Pagnetta turned about with a violence that sent his feet from under him. The result was a broken leg.

During subsequent days in the hospital his chief diversion was planning how to get the better of his rival.

"Can I collect damages," he asked the lawyer Rubinsky, "for my hospital and doctor bills, and the loss of time from business?"

Rubinsky shrugged his thin shoulders up to his large ears. "You can sue, and maybe you collect. How did it happen?"

Mr. Pagnetta described how his competitor, Mr. Schwabacher had come out of his store, picked a quarrel, and finally struck him, knocking him down and breaking his leg.

"Have you witnesses?" Rubinsky wanted to know.

"Yes. Several people heard him call me a lousy wop and other names."

"Witnesses to the blow?"

"Well—" Mr. Pagnetta thought of Bagnoni who would witness anything for a consideration, and of Pappas who would welcome the chance to cancel a long-standing debt. "Yes. I know of two." . . .

Mr. O'Ryan, counsel for the defense, now wanted to know just how the blow had been delivered, exactly where it had landed.

"Just indicate it," he suggested. "How? With his right hand—"

'Right fist!" Mr. Pagnetta corrected emphatically.

"With his right fist he delivered a blow on your left jaw behind the ear. You are sure it was his right fist?"

When the plaintiff's testimony had been fully corroborated by his two witnesses, Mr. O'Ryan faced the jurors. 'Gentlemen of the jury," he said, "you have seen the blow which could have been delivered only by a good right from the shoulder—the blow for which the plaintiff asks twenty thousand dollars' compensation."

At the mention of compensation Mr. Pagnetta moistened his lips while his thoughts strayed into green pastures of anticipation. But when Mr. Schwabacher, red faced and visibly nervous, took the stand he was all attention again.

"Gentlemen," Mr. O'Ryan addressed the jury in hushed voice, "I want to call your attention to the fact that the defendant is one of our war heroes." He reached over and touched a little cross pinned on the lapel of Mr. Schwabacher's coat. "And I am going to prove that this war hero not only would not, but could not strike a blow with his right fist. Mr. Schwabacher, will you kindly remove your coat and roll up your shirt sleeve?"

While Mr. Schwabacher struggled out of his coat, Mr. Pagnetta sat forward uneasily.

"This cross—" Mr. O'Ryan held his client's coat up and turned slowly so that all could see the small medal—"was given in compensation for a wound won in combat." Flinging out his free hand he pointed dramatically to the arm which Mr. Schwabacher had just exposed to view.

Mr. Pagnetta in company with everyone in the room, looked—and his gaze remained transfixed. In his mind's eye he was seeing again those awkward movements of Mr. Schwabacher as he swept his sidewalk, while the voice of the counsel for the defense beat into his ears.

"Mr. Schwabacher suffered a serious wound in his upper right arm. So serious that the bone between the elbow and shoulder had to be removed. As you can see, the arm is practically useless . . . your honor, I demand the arrest of the plaintiff and his witnesses on charges of perjury."

BREEZY VEHICLE

When automobiles were first introduced to Cape Cod, some thirty years ago, an old sea captain was given a ride in one of the first cars, a high-sided contraption steered by the tiller that preceded the steering wheel.

"Well, captain, what do you think of her?" asked the proud owner and driver.

"Well," answered the captain, his face showing a puzzled look, "she's the first craft I ever seen that has a head wind no matter which way you p'inted her."—Boston Daily Globe.

READING FUN IN STORE FOR BOYS

Here's important news for the boys of America. The American Boy—Youth's Companion, the nation's quality magazine for boys, has been reduced from $2.00 a year to $1.00. The three-year rate, formerly $3.50, has been reduced to $2.00.

"For a long time we have been seeking a way to reduce the cost of The American Boy to readers," states Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor. "Recently we have effected savings that make the cut possible, and we think boys will agree that the new price is big news on the reading front. We hope boys will help us to spread the good news by telling their friends."

Along with the cut in cost, the magazine's publishers are planning a magazine that will continue to set the pace in fiction, articles, and departments. The favorite characters of millions of boys will parade through the American Boy in new stories. Douglas Renfrew of the Royal Canadian Mounted, Hide-rack, the red-and-gold collie, Bonehead Jim Tierney, the dectective, will give the reader many exciting hours in the months to come.

William Heyliger, whose true-to-life, gripping vocational stories have won him wide acclaim from parents and librarians, as well as the hearty approval of boys, is working on new stories. Staff writers are interviewing famous coaches and athletes and world-renowned explorers, to bring boys the color and fun of sports and travel.

In short, The American Boy, under its new price, will continue to give boys a magazine that measures up to the best standards set by adult magazines. Send your subscriptions to The American Boy, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Michigan. Enclose your name and address and the proper amount of money, and The American Boy will soon be headed your way, loaded with reading thrills.

FARM BUREAU PROGRAM FOR APRIL 2

The Farm Bureau program for April 2, at the high school gym is to be made up as follows:

Music by the St. Joe School Orchestra.
Prayer.
Secretary Report.
Report of the delegates to the state convention.
Reading by the Hart Sisters.
Music by the Orchestra.
Reading by Eunice Shilling.
Guitar music by James Hart.

"Mrs. Apple and Her Corps"

Mrs. Coran Apple and her troupe of home talent lady hams are on tour with their own show for the purpose of raising money to pay off the mortgage on their church back in Fodderburg; and their performance is just about the last word in reo-fined entertainment. No one will want to miss hearing Araballa Aldarby and Bertha Buttonbust in their heart-rendering solos.

This grand "mellerdrammer" will be given free at the Farm Bureau meeting in the St. Joe Gym Tuesday evening April 2nd., and lest anyone might think this group of ladies are from Hollywood instead of Fodderburg, we might explain in passing that they are from Richland Twp., and are in charge of Mrs. Fern Boyer, Social and Educational director of the Farm Bureau of that township.

All those who care to stay after the program and enjoy light refreshments with the Farm Bureau members are asked to bring sandwiches.

Concert - April 4

Mr. C. A. Woodcox and the music department of the school are promoting a musical concert which will be given on Thursday evening, April 4, in the school auditorium. Three well known musicians will present this program. Mr. Edd Clark is an accordion soloist. He ranks high as a composer and arranger of accordion solos and accordion band music. He claims fifteen years experience as a symphony orchestra cellist. Miss Helen Limbert is the vocal soloist of the evening. Miss Limbert is well known to Fort Wayne musical audiences having been soloist for the Fort Wayne Symphony Orchestra as well as soloist in Handel's Oratorio "The Messiah" when presented by Concordia College recently. Dale Shumaker is a flutist. He has been in the past a soloist with Kryla Band, Chicago Civic Symphony Orchestra and at present is with the Fort Wayne Symphony Orchestra.

The local school presents this concert to the local public with the expectation that a very enjoyable program will be experienced and that a share of the receipts will enable the purchase of some much needed music. The admission charge will be ten and twenty cents.

Senior Players to Receive Letters

In an A. A. Council meeting held Monday noon it was voted to award letters (S J) to John Kaellner, Merlin Simanton, Eloise Draggoo and Glenis Osmun for their good work in high school basketball.

Richard Freeburn, of Fort Wayne, visited school on Monday of this week.

Otto Kaellner withdrew from school on last Friday. The family has removed to Michigan. John Kaellner will complete his senior year in our school.

First and Second Grades

The honor roll for the month of March include first grade: Harold Curie, Marcia Guilford, Beccy Inlow, Betty Inlow, Russell Ridgway. Second grade: April Bowser, Franklyn Shuff, June Strong, Leora Wilmot, Mary Louise Woodcox, Gloria Zonker.

Mary Louise Woodcox is sick with pneumonia.

Third and Fourth Grades

Irene Sechler, William Smith and Walter Fetters were absent this week because of illness.

Mrs. Violet Moore was a visitor in our room Tuesday afternoon. Little Patty Jones visited school on Monday afternoon.

We are making a collection of bird pictures for our reading class. We are collecting old bird nests and making a study of them.

Spelling honor roll includes Patricia Carpenter, Donald Freeburn, Virginia George, James Kees, Betty Rudolph, Maurice Shuff, Loren Inlow, Dale Keeler, Frances Reidenbach, Betty Nicholls, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude, and Marilyn Zonker. Those who made 100% for the whole month were Betty Nicholls, Frances Reidenbach, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude and Marilyn Zonker.

Our per cent of attendance for this month is 96.7% over 84.3% last month.

MORTUARY

ROGER

Franklin T. Roger, son of Mathias and Anna Roger, was born near Spencerville in Allen County, Indiana, on January 25, 1855.

He was united in marriage February 23, 1882 to Harriet J. Roller, who preceded him in death June 12, 1909. Four children also preceded him in death. He was a member of the Springfield Center Lutheran Church.

He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Pheba Persons, of Northfield, Minnesota and Mrs. Anna Ringwalt, of Covina, California; two daughters, Mrs. B. A. Rhoads and Mrs. C. J. Grubb, also three granddaughters, Mrs. W. T. Gore, Miss Margaret Grubb, and Miss Alice Rhoads, all of Fort Wayne, and many relatives and friends.

Mr. Roger spent his entire life ir Allen County, making his home with his daughters, after the death of his wife.

He died of apoplexy Wednesday March 20th at 4:30 P. M. at the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. A. Rhoads, 3236 Parnell Avenue, after suffering a stroke early Wednesday, at the age of 80 years, 2 months and 7 days.

The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. A. K. Mumma, of Harlan, Ind., at the D. O. McComb & Son funeral parlors on Saturday fore noon, and burial at the White City cemetery, Spencerville.

HOWEY

Many Frances Benner-Howey, daughter of Christan and Marny Ann Benner, was born at Auburn Junction, Indiana, September 30, 1858, departed this life March 16, 1935, at the age of 76 years, 5 months and 16 days.

She united with the United Brethren Church in her youth and lived a consistent christian life.

She was married to Jonas Howey in 1878, February 6th, and to this union were born five children, three of which survive her, two children having died in infancy.

The husband having departed this life February 13, 1920. There are also left to mourn three sons, George, of Butler, Edward, at home, and Russell, of Fort Wayne. Three grandchildren, two great grandchildren and a host of friends.

2:30 o'clock, Rev Moore officiating. Interment took place at Newville cemetery under direction of Johnson & Son.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish in this way to extend our sincere thanks to the friends and neighbors for the kindness shown to us during the sickness and death of our Mother, also for the beautiful floral offerings.

The Family.

WALTER

Ruth Houghton, daughter of Charles A. and Anna E. Houghton, was born September 20, 1903, at Custer, Michigan and passed from this life on March 21, 1935 at the age of 31 years and 6 months.

She attended the grade schools at Bear Creek, Jackson Township, DeKalb County, Indiana and later took a business course at Tri-State College, Angola.

She was united in marriage to Grover C. Walter, January 3, 1929. To this union were born two sons, Frank Edgar and Marion Ellsworth. In 1925 Mrs. Walter united with the Rehobooth M. P. Church.

She leaves to mourn her untimely departure, her husband, Grover C. Walter, their two sons, and four step children, Howard E., Ford F., Helen and Ruth Walter; her mother, Mrs. Anna E. Houghton, father, Charles A. Houghton, two brothers, Roscoe, of Fort Wayne; and Paul, of Auburn, and two sisters, Vera Romine, of Albion, and Lela Folts, of Auburn.

The funeral was held Sunday from the Newville Christian Church, Rev. H. K. Schondelmayer, officiating, with burial in Newville cemetery.

Mrs. Fern Draggoo, Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Koehnlein, Eldon Mitchell, Mrs. Roy Reidenbach, Mrs. DeLora Curie, Mrs. Glen Kincey, Mrs. J. C. Hull and F. B. Leighty and wife attended the M. P. District meeting at Kendallville last Thursday. The meeting comes to St. Joe Church next fall.

Fish and Game Club Information

QUAIL RELEASED IN COUNTY SATURDAY

Through the conservation department, DeKalb county received, last Saturday, a shipment of 25 pairs of quail and the release was made through four clubs of the county, namely, Auburn, Waterloo, St. Joe and Butler by Wm. F. Brown, and Cecil VanZile.

Birds were released south of town and also in Newville township.

CLUB MAY HAVE FISH HATCHERY

If plans now in progress go through, St. Joe may have a fish hatchery.

The Conservation Club has been in communication with the Supt. of Fish Hatcheries in regards to rearing ponds and the superintendent is planning on coming here to look over the possibilities for such ponds.

A good attendance is desired at the Club's next regular meeting to discuss these plans.

Don't forget, April 3rd.

Fishing for Fossil Fish

These Fish Swam Over Wyoming Approximately 55,000,000 Years Ago.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

MOST fishermen must be thrilled by the pull of a live denizen of the deep. Some, however, enjoy fishing for fossil fish, millions of years old, using picks, shovels and chisels for "tackle."

One feature of fossil fishing is that the big ones can't get away, once they are "caught." This fact, and also the minor one that fossil-fishing in this country must be carried on in the remote, not to say obscure, portions of the United States, will probably keep it from assuming the place which it deserves as a major American outdoor sport.

The proper fossil-fishing trip leads you, for example, to Fossil, Wyoming, where you may be the only person getting off there that year!

Now the Priscacara pealei (poor fish to you!) may look tame enough as you pass him by in a museum on your way to the stuffed owls; but that is because these ancient relics of prehistoric days have been carefully caught for you, imprisoned in their stone frames, labeled, and hung where they can excite only the inflammable interest of the paleontologist.

But truly fishing some time for those rovers which, only a few million years ago, swam blithely through that inland ocean where are now the Rocky mountains.

One week-end fishing trip in Wyoming may net you a 6-foot palm leaf, three large pickerel, bass, or pike, a prodigious mosquito (just the way you'd like to see a mosquito, transformed into solid rock,) sunfish, herring, the thick-scaled gar pike.

Then, you never know when you may come upon an ancient crocodile 13 feet long. One was found near the fossil bed, where you must look if you expect your week's sport to be really exciting.

Where Roads Meet.

Fossil, Wyoming, is formed by the accidental meeting of two roads which slipped down from opposite sides of a mountain. There is a pleasing legend that the population of Fossil is 50; but, counting the people you can see and the ones you can imagine, you cannot arrive at a generous estimate of more than 30.

They will have to stop the train especially for you. They don't like to do it—and, as you look out over the wind-swept, cold, purple dawn on the Rocky mountains at this particular point, neither do you.

But it's worth it!

A few minutes after you have arrived on a well-conducted fossil-fishing trip, the sun will break over the farthest ridge in a long crescent of fossil mountain which sleeps content in a past which even the most arduous fisherman will never know.

Around you is a shallow sweep of mountain—red, gray, green, blue, and purple—colored with time and embracing earth and sky and air. The sky is a curious translucent blue. You stand as if on the basin of some huge broken piece of pottery. All about you at the broken brim are fossil beds which you may fish to heart's content and whose depth you may never plumb.

Custodian of the fossil beds, amateur sportsman extraordinary, Robert Lee Craig will take you fishing if you have an honest interest. He has been fishing in these hills for 37 years, and he has no patience with people who will not climb with him the 275 feet from his camp to the fossil hill; who will not wait while he lays bare a stratum of fossil rock; who will not, with his own suppressed excitement, cleave those strata again and again, peeling, stripping the layers down as though they were ears of corn. Often the finest specimens of fossilized fish will be hidden just beneath the gray-like surface and would pass notice of all except the most observing.

Heat of Day Best Time.

It is best to wait until the heat of the day to raise a ledge, for then the bright rays of sun, striking each layer as it is peeled off with wedge and hammer, often show up the faint tracing of a backbone, the dim outline of a fin.

When this outline is revealed, the fossil fisherman takes the sharp blade of a knife and gently scratches the protecting shale away to make sure of his specimen. Then he hews out a square of rock around the fish, and the specimen is ready for cleaning. The cleaning process is done with the fine blade of a knife, great skill being exercised to clear away all trace of rock in which the fish is imbedded without destroying the delicate outline of the fish.

Hills Slip and Slide.

These fossil hills are contrary—jealous as deep pools where bass lie hidden from the caster's fly. They slip and slide, they shift and fall, to confound the fisherman and make for him unceasing labor. You must wait and hope, you must listen to stories of other fish, other days; you must eat your noonday sandwich dry and brittle and filled with some dust of shale; you must know the sadness of cleaving a whole sheaf of rock at last—good, firm fossil rock in which whole schools of prehistoric fishes should lie buried—only to find it barren as a desert trail. No, these fish took one more dive before the cataclysm. They lie to windward or to leeward. And though you are some 25 or 30 feet below the top layer of protecting shale, still you have not fished deep enough.

If you are a proper fisherman, you will, of course, spend many lingering moments which might otherwise be tedious in contemplation of the ancient story of how your "catch" came to be cast up, in the very act of living, onto the dry and dusty mountain tops. As a theme for meditation, it far surpasses the habits of the lively pike in his favorite deep-lake retreat. For the how and the why of the northern pike in present-day waters is mysterious enough, but the how and the why of the fossil gar pike is the story of Time itself.

Perhaps the best definition of the fossil fish for the amateur stone fisherman is the simple one given by the late Frederic A. Lucas, formerly a curator of the National museum, in his book, "Animals of the Past."

"Fossils," he says, "are the remains, or even the indications, of animals and plants that have, through natural agencies, been buried in the earth and preserved for long periods of time." These "indications," which may be footprints, tramped leaves, the almost formless jellyfish, the very ripple on the sands, have been, in many instances, preserved in stone, perfect patterns of the ephemeral life of millions of years ago.

And how did fossil fish come to be imprisoned in their strangely lifelike stony form in the Rocky mountains of Wyoming? Your mind must go back to lost ages, when an ocean rolled over the wheat fields of Kansas, the prairies of Nebraska, and the site of the Empire State building alike. These abundant seas were ruled successively by various races of sea creatures, which came, ruled, were conquered by larger and more powerful species, and at last lay scattered at the bottom of the ancient ocean bed.

Strange Ocean Rulers.

Among the strange ocean rulers were the armor-clad fish; then, in turn, the fierce, sharp-toothed sharks, the fish lizards, the mysterious ichthyosaurus, the plesiosaurus, whose names are only a little less terrifying than the havoc they spread among the fish lizards crawling in the mud of ocean bed. The great marine reptiles called Mosasaurus, geologists believe, ruled the seas from New Zealand to North America at one time.

The Rocky mountains—so placid and gray now by daytime—swarmed with heroic battle in the days when they were still ocean bed. Huge turtles, saber-toothed divers, the monstrous fish of legend, all fought for supremacy, and over the waters flew the pterodactyls, dark, menacing shadows, with their powerful wingspread of 20 feet or more.

While the rival fish species spawned, fought, and died, the surface of the North American continent was gradually taking form. The land which made up the ocean bed was rising with monumental slowness—an inch, perhaps an inch and a half, a century.

At last the "ocean" on the North American continent was completely enclosed on the west and on the east by elevations of sea bottom, so that it connected with the Atlantic and Pacific oceans as we now know them only at the Gulf of Mexico and the Arctic circle. Continued elevations of the eastern and western edges contracted the area of this vast inland ocean, and parts of the ancient sea bottom rose, reached the surface, forming bars and vast fingers of land. Parts of the water area were contracted into inland lakes until, at last, they lost all contact with salt water.

The Bad Dream

By GERTRUDE von BERNUTH

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

IT WAS a stormy winter night. The wind blew a gale, the rain came down in torrents, and Cynthia Blake was all alone in the Long Island house.

Cynthia didn't like being alone, and on a night such as this she hated it. Especially since it had recently been in all the papers that David had gotten a fifty thousand dollar executor's fee from the Dodge estate. That made her nervous. But she lighted a log fire and settled down beside it with her book, hoping against hope that the time would pass quickly. David would be home by 11:30 anyhow.

Eight o'clock, nine o'clock—surely that clock must be slow!—ten o'clock—and the telephone rang. Cynthia sprang to answer it.

"I'd like to speak to Mrs. David Blake." It was a man's voice, businesslike, yet rather suave.

"This is Mrs. Blake," said Cynthia.

"Oh! Well, Mrs. Blake, I'm afraid I have some disturbing news for you."

"Yes?" said Cynthia, striving hard for self-control. Something had happened to David! "What is it?" she asked faintly.

"Er—Mr. Blake has had an accident." Cynthia gave one cry of anguish and then forced herself to listen.

"Mr. Blake was on his way home in a taxi, and his car skidded on Queensboro bridge. I happened to be driving by and stopped to see what had happened. Mr. Blake isn't seriously hurt, but they insisted upon taking him to Bellevue for examination and treatment. His one worry seemed to be about his wife, so I told him that I'd phone you. In fact, I told him that I'd gladly take you in to Bellevue, if you cared to go."

"Oh, would you? That's awfully kind of you!" cried Cynthia. Her one wish was to get to David, darling David. That was all that counted.

"How soon can you be ready, Mrs. Blake?" asked the voice.

"In five minutes! Oh you're sure that my husband's not badly hurt?" she implored. "You're telling me the truth, aren't you?"

"Mr. Blake is not badly hurt. He may have a broken rib or two, but—"

"Come on, come on, cut it out," broke in a rough voice. "We ain't got much . . ." then silence, as if a hand had been suddenly placed over the mouthpiece. Then:

"That was some one who wants this booth, Mrs. Blake. I'll be there inside of fifteen minutes. Good-by."

As Cynthia put the receiver back on the hook, she was puzzled. Her fear about David seemed to have vanished. She began to be her usual cool-headed self. That other voice, so rough and snarling. "Come on, come on, cut it out. We—"

Cynthia raced upstairs to the extension phone beside her bed.

"Pennsylvania-6-3500," she said, speaking into the mouth piece again. "Hello, hello, is this the Bar association? Is Mr. Blake there this evening—Mr. David Blake? He was to be in conference with—"

"Yes, Mr. Blake is here. He's in room 510. I'll connect you with him if you wish."

"If you please," said Cynthia.

"Mr. Blake, please," said the voice. And then David's voice saying hello.

"Dave is that you?"

"Certainly it's I. What's up?"

"And are you all right?"

"All right? Of course I'm all right. What's the matter with you? I'm just starting for home."

"O. K." said Cynthia, and hung up the receiver.

"Operator, I want the police," she said, taking down the receiver again.

"I'll connect you," said the operator. Her voice sounded excited.

"Police station, One Hundred and ninth precinct. What is it?" asked a man's voice.

"Officer," said Cynthia. "This is Mrs. David Blake, at 20 Weybridge road, Bayside, Long Island. I have just had a phone call from a stranger who tells me that my husband has had an automobile accident and wants me to come to him in Bellevue hospital. The man said he would be here in fifteen minutes to take me to my husband. I have since located my husband by telephoning and he's perfectly all right. But I thought, if the man comes, I'd like to have the police."

"Humph! A snatch! We'll have some one there inside of three minutes, lady. Don't be scared. Take it easy."

Cynthia hung up the receiver with fingers that trembled. That was that. Now what? She sat tense listening for sounds outside, and finally heard a car coming up the road. Which is it, she wondered, the 'snatcher' or the police? She shivered a little.

Just then the telephone rang again. "This is Dave again," said her husband's voice. "I'm phoning from the Long Island station. Is anything wrong out there? I'm worried."

Suddenly Cynthia heard a commotion outside, and a shot rang out. "'S all right, I dropped him," shouted a voice. "Where's the other one? Did he get away?"

"He won't get far. I blew his front tire, and the other boys are just coming up the road. They'll get him."

"Cynthia!" shouted David. "Is anything the matter? You're acting awfully queer. Why did you call me at the Bar association?"

"Oh, I fell asleep by the fire and had a bad dream," said Cynthia. "Tell you about it when you get home."

FEW WILL WORRY OVER CHANGE IN NAMES OF CITIES

Athens is no more. What was Athens is Athinsi. What was Piraeus is Pireefs; what was Patras has become Patral. These are some of changes of official spelling of Greek cities ordered by our Post Office department at the request of the Greek government. The new orthography will be used hereafter in all bulletins of the government; but one gravely doubts that any American traveler will tell his friends that he intends to debark at Pireefs for a visit to Athinsi!

Comparatively few great European cities have the same names at home and in English-speaking lands. Paris and Berlin are notable exceptions. In Italy Rome is Roma, Naples is Napoli, Florence is Firenze. Vienna is Wien, Lisbon is Lisboa, Brussels is Bruxelles, Copenhagen is Kjobenhavn. The Hague is either s'Gravenhage or Den Haag.

The arbitrary inconsistence in dealing with royal Christian names is not as weird as it was when there were more kings, but it is still inexplicable. Vittoria Emmanuele of Italy is always Victor Emmanuel, but for no reason at all Carol and Mihai of Rumania are not generally and properly Anglicized into Charles and Michael. There was no fixed rule about the last German emperor; he was Wilhelm about as frequently as William. But two kings of Greece were always George and never Georgios.

As a matter of fact people who fuss about the spelling of names worry about something worth no worry. When Kemal commands us to call it Ankara instead of Angora we pay no heed; but we have tamely accepted Istanbul in place of Constantinople. As for Athens, one's guess is that it is too old to get a new name, and that Athinsi will be seen not elsewhere than in the official bulletins.—Washington Star.

"Made My Car Look New Again!"

You'll marvel too, at how beautiful your car looks after you Simoniz it. But Simonizing does more than just bring back the lustre and beauty your car had when new. It makes the finish stay beautiful. Dust and dirt wipe off of a Simonized car with a dry cloth, and the finish sparkles as bright as ever. So always insist on Simoniz and Simoniz Kleener for your car.

Simonizing a car is easy! The new improved Simoniz Kleener quickly restores the lustre. Simoniz gives the finish lasting beauty and protection.

Why Firestone

TIRES CAN HOLD THE DEEP, HEAVY GROUND GRIP TREAD TO THE TIRE BODY, WITHSTANDING TERRIFIC PULLS AND STRAINS AND GIVING MORE TRACTION THAN ANY TIRE EVER MADE

REALIZING the need for better traction on soft ground and country roads, Firestone engineers designed and built a new type of tire with the deepest, heaviest, most rugged tread ever known.

You do not need chains with this remarkable new Ground Grip Tire, because the rugged tread is scientifically designed for self-cleaning and will not clog, even in mud or clay. Firestone can give you a tread like this because of two patented construction features.

One is the two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords placed between the heavy tread and the tire body, binding the tread and body together in one unit of great strength.

The other is Gum-Dipping, by which process every high stretch cord in the tire body is soaked in liquid rubber, preventing friction and giving the cord body extra strength to withstand the extreme flexing at low air pressures.

For your spring and summer plowing and general farm use you cannot afford to be without these new Ground Grip Tires on your cars, trucks, tractors and farm equipment. See your nearest Firestone Service Store, tire dealer or implement dealer today. Easy terms can be arranged. There is a complete line of Firestone tires, tubes and auto supplies for your every farm need.

This heavy traction tread guaranteed not to loosen from the tire body under any conditions and all other parts of the tire are fully guaranteed to give satisfaction in every respect

RECALLING TRAGEDY

A small group of men whose forefathers were persecuted for their religious beliefs in the Seventeenth century meet once a month in East End, London, according to the American Express company. They are the descendants of the Huguenots who fled to England after the edict of Nantes had been revoked in 1685. Of all the thousands who took sanctuary in England, not more than 150 have preserved their Huguenot individuality. Only three of the original friendly societies remain today, the Normans, the Lintotts and the Protestant refugees from High and Low Normandy.

Be Reasonable

Marriage is not a failure if too much is not expected of it.

The "liquid test"

...It ENDS bowel worries for many people

This is a test that tells you whether the system needs a cathartic change. If you have constant sluggish spells or bilious attacks, and laxatives seem to make things worse, it would be wise to try this:

Stop all use of any laxative that does not encourage variation from a "fixed dose" (which may be entirely too large a dose for your individual need). Use instead, a liquid laxative that you can measure and regulate as to dose. As necessary to repeat, take smaller doses, less and less often, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

Doctors use liquid laxatives, and a properly prepared liquid laxative, containing natural laxative agents like senna and cascara is a joy and a comfort; a real help in establishing regularity. Ask your doctor about this! (Doctors use liquid laxatives.) You can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a most dependable liquid laxative, at any drug store.

Millinery Stages Varied Program

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SUCH a bewildering variety of headgear as fashion offers this season! There is positively no excuse for not being becomingly hatted this spring and summer, for it would seem that every known type with a few extras thrown in is answering "present" to the roll call in current millinery showings.

Bonnets! The millinery shops are full of 'em. Every sort of bonnet is represented in the new hat collections ranging from ingenue types to the sophisticated eye-impelling bonnets of Regency period inspiration.

A fine thing about a bonnet is that it shows up the new "bangs" to perfection. The taffeta trimmed bonnet to the upper right in the picture demonstrates this point to a nicety. The big bow at the throat is of self-same taffeta as the bow on the bonnet. Milliners are all enthusiasm over the taffeta (plain or plaided) neck-bow and hat "sets" which are selling at first sight. The bonnet to the left is quaint and youthful with flowers and ribbon which make it utterly feminine.

It may be that the voguish pill-box turban goes best with your features. This pert little style of headgear sure gives an up-and-going look to any spring outfit. Atop the curly-curly coiffures hairdressers are now advocating, a pill-box hat declares convincing chic. The model centered below in the group is the perfect complement to a black crepe dress. It is of the modish black basket weave shiny straw, has two little black bows and flaunts an eyeline veil as most of these diminutive hats.

A fashion which is breathtaking in novelty and daring is the forward-move brim. Narrow at the sides is this type with a startling forward streamline sweep of the brim. To interpret the very quintessence of chic it must be tilted at a rakish angle down over the eyes. The smartness of these forward-brim hats is added unto with novel crown effects achieved via pleats and folds, eccentric peaks and spiral drapes often surmounted with amusing feather fancies or perky ribbon cocardes. Two models of this suggestion are illustrated below in the picture. The felt to the left is olive green with black and olive feather fancy. The finest of ballybunti straw in navy blue fashions the hat to the right. It has the new down-in-front and up-at-back movement.

The model centered above is a variation of the popular breton sailor. It is very youthful, made of navy taffeta, for you must know that millinery is yielding unreservedly to the taffeta craze which is now on. The pompon is of navy and white ostrich.

If you register in the sailor-conscious sorority it will be worth your while to tour the shops and see what's doing in the way of nifty exponents of this type. In Paris the low crowned sailor of shiny black straw is a big favorite. To wear the new sailors properly they must be saucily tilted over the eyes, with a veil to complete the picture.

Loyal to the beret are you? Well, fashion is willing, providing a very new look is achieved via a subtle drape or a topknot trim or a use of a novel fabric combination and always a little veil for the sake of chic. A matching scarf also adds a voguish note.

Simple Motif in Bedspread Design

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Some needleworkers hesitate when it comes to crocheting a bedspread, because too much work and time is required to finish it. The design shown above is about the simplest pattern known and works up fast. This model is worked in cream, rose and yellow carpet warp and measures 4¼ inches for each square. Find the size spread you want to make and then figure how many squares it will take. You will be surprised how fast the work progresses if you spend only spare time on making the squares, and the little material required to take with you when not working at home. When the squares are finished slip-stitch together and finish with a simple edging. The squares may be set together point to point, thereby producing a pointed edge instead of straight.

This is one of the thirty motifs shown in book No. 27, all illustrated with instructions, and will be sent to you postpaid upon receipt of 15c.

The use of these motifs is not limited to spreads. By using different sizes of thread many attractive and useful articles can be crocheted.

Snakes Kill Each Other

In a battle between a cobra and a mamba in London both were severely bitten, the mamba being the first to succumb, and the cobra dying while trying to swallow its dead enemy, each falling victim to the other's venom.

Rays of Sun Important in Relation to Foods

Experiments recently carried out in Cleveland, Ohio, go to prove that animals derive their energy by the reradiation of the sun's rays on the food they eat. Dr. George Crile placed brain tissue in a flask and in total darkness a faint greenish glow was seen, which grew even brighter when the bottle was shaken. By the use of very delicate instruments it was proved that these radiations are produced in different wave lengths, and that the addition of certain drugs increased or decreased the luminescence at will. Doctor Crile, who has studied from a scientific standpoint the behavior of thousands of animals, says that the thyroid and adrenal glands differ in size, according to the needs of their owners. Thus, lions and tigers possess large glands, which give them the energy they need so often at a moment's notice, but these glands are much smaller in alligators and crocodiles, whose habits are mostly slow and sluggish. It has been established that the thyroid glands in the case of man are larger than the adrenal glands in animals because there is a much greater need for sustained energy over long periods.—London Tit-Bits.

Electricity Waste

Radio stations unavoidably "waste" an incredible amount of electricity because less than two one-thousandths of 1 per cent of the power leaving their antennas is ever used. The average station has to send out constantly more than 50,000 times as much energy as its listeners could possibly consume if all of them had their sets turned on during all the hours of its broadcasting.—Collier's Weekly.

Now Relieve Your Cold "Quick as You Caught It"

For Amazingly Fast Results Remember Directions in These Simple Pictures

1. Take 2 BAYER Aspirin Tablets. Make sure you get the BAYER Tablets you ask for.

2. Drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

3. If throat is sore, crush and stir 2 BAYER Aspirin Tablets in a third of a glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat soreness almost instantly.

QUILTED VELVET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here is a lovely coat to wear to parties. When summer comes it will be just the thing to top your dainty lingerie frocks. It is smart and practical for resort year at any time of the year. Quilted crystelle velvet fashions it, and if you have the proper color urge you will select it in some one or other of the very new medium pastel tones. A big rhinestone pin adds chic worn on the scarf.

Novelty Dress Clasp

Interlocking gold rings form an interesting type of clasp to fasten a wool tunic.

SHOW WIDE VARIETY IN SPRING PRINTS

To the woman who thinks of summer in terms of printed fabrics the new season will provide a perfect orgy. The dresses shown in downtown stores are typical of the new printed fabrics. Many motifs are much less widely spaced than in other springs.

The animal motifs, especially the Scottie print, are here. Break it gently that nutty prints are also in the shops. The designs are taken from photographic studies of nuts, and are very effective. Why not? There's a new porcelain clay process which produces the deadest white imaginable and in spite of a great furor over color, this clay-white print is greatly admired. A swing about the shops confirms the report that more prints have been shown this year than last. Certainly, there are more stripes, checks and plaids; and they are often printed. Stripes are just another of the regency touches that seem so desirable at the moment.

Irish Linen Expected to Be Favorite Next Summer

Irish linen has come to the fore as the leading fabric in the Paris fashion picture. Cables from the French capital promise that next spring and summer women will be wearing suits, dresses, hats, shoes, bags and even lingerie of fine Irish linen.

The fact that linen used to crush badly was responsible for its not having been more universally used before. It was always an ideal summer fabric, porous and cool, yet strong and long-wearing. Now Irish linen has been specifically processed, so that the linens which will be imported for next summer's fashions are as nearly uncrushable as any fabric.

Parasols Come Back

Tiny and colorful parasols made of synthetic straw silk with yard-long handles appear with spring sports and street afternoon clothes.

BOB TALKS BACK

"BOB, I knew coffee was bad for children—but I had no idea it could have such an effect on Dad!"

"Certainly—it bothers lots of grown-ups that way, Fran. The caffein in coffee sets their nerves on edge, keeps them from sleeping, gives them headaches or indigestion."

If you suspect that coffee disagrees with you... try Postum for 30 days. Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It's easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink... may prove a real help. A product of General Foods.

A year ago the Senate defeated a number of proposed amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment Act (better known as AAA,) on the ground that they gave the Secretary of Agriculture dictatorial powers in all matters pertaining to agriculture. They affected not only the farmers but all who handled agricultural commodities.

Today the same group is hammering at the legislative doors demanding even greater power for the Department of Agriculture. The proposed amendments would give the Secretary wider latitude in his interpretation of the intent of the AAA as well as added authority in enforcement of its provisions.

The first amendment would allow the Secretary to substitute commodity payments for the present cash payments to farmers in the settlement for crop reduction contracts. Farmers who reduce their cotton acreage could be paid with corn or wheat, or with whatever agricultural commodity the Secretary decided preferable.

The second amendment extends the licensing power of the Secretary to include not only processors but everyone in any way "engaged in the handling of any agricultural commodity or product thereof." It is carefully worded to get them all.

The Secretary would have full power to determine conditions under which processors may buy from the farmer, to fix the price to be paid, and the quantity to be purchased. If he decides that the "practical means" of restricting production of any commodity is by refusing to allow the licensee to buy from farmers who have refused to sign Federal allocations or contracts, he would be within his authority under the proposed amendments.

No one has as yet been able to fully picture the far-reaching effects of this astounding proposed law. It contains many possibilities that carried to their logical conclusion, would affect the economic security of every man, woman and child in these United States.

With the Secretary authorized by these proposed amendments to demand and examine the books, contracts and correspondence of every licensee and every party to any marketing agreement, both the business man and the farmer would have the privacy of a gold fish.

If the farmers and business men of America feel that such departmental despotism, controlled and enforced by Federal political appointees, is preferable to self control, it may become the plan for the future. If, however, our people prefer to retain a few of the liberties guaranteed them by their state and national constitutions, it might be well to get busy at once and let their Senators and Congressmen know just what they think of this proposed law.

According to all signs, the Presidential campaign of 1932—which was considered exceptionally bitter—look like a tea party. Issues are forming, forces are appearing, that are entirely unprecedented in American politics.

It seems inevitable that there will be a third party in the field—and it seems equally inevitable that that party will be of the extreme left. It may be led by Huey Long, backed by Father Coughlin, and use as its appeal the "Every man a King" thesis. It may be led by a Townsend Plan advocate, promising prosperity for all through governmental largesse to the aged. It may be led by someone who stands for something we haven't yet heard of al College System of counting votes for the Presidency makes that practically impossible— as Roosevelt the first discovered and as LaFollette the elder did after him. The third party's importance lies in what effect it will have on the vote obtained by the regular Republican and Democratic party candidates—and therein is an opportunity for endless conjecture.

Few think that the third party candidate would win—the Electorhaven't yet heard of.

Backers of the President poohpooh the third party, say he is certain to win a sweeping victory in '36 whether the movement materializes or not. Opponents of the President hold that the third party would draw millions of votes that would otherwise go to Mr. Roosevelt, would thus indirectly cause the election of a conservative Republican, who would have support of most business men, together with the party's established following.

It was that aspect of the question which General Johnson spoke on in his amazing speech a fortnight ago. Whatever you think of the General's views, you have to admit he has courage, he isn't afraid to speak his mind. In his speech, he made a bitter attack on Long and Coughlin and all they stood for. Then he turned and lashed the conservatives who might encourage them in order to draw support away from Roosevelt and split the liberal-radical camp. General Johnson said that such political opportunism pushes the American democrary steadily toward "a licking or a dictator." It is an interesting fact that, following the speech, the General's views were heartily endorsed in many substantial quarters—including newspapers, public men and industrialists.

A question of the hour is, How does Mr. Roosevelt's strength compare to what it was a year ago? The answer, made by boiling down the opinion of a legion of observers, is that he is slipping—but that he still has the confidence of the bulk of the voters. That, of course, doesn't answer the question of how far he may slip—or have regained or added strength—by next year. That, in turn, is going to depend on the state of recovery.

At the present time, the recovery program has failed in various important particulars—and, in addition, it has become confused with the reform program. Unemployment soars. More people are on relief than ever. Industry is sitting still, and many leaders seem pessimistic. A belief is prevalent that the President's program has lost direction—that it is whirling around in circles, is going nowhere.

It is that fact which supports the hopes of third party radicals—they feel that the people, if they see the failure of a more moderate program, will go for one that is really left-wing. And the conservatives, strangely enough, base their hopes on exactly the same thing—they believe that a Roosevelt collapse would send voters scurrying back to the right-wing of economic thought.

What is right? Guess as much as you like—but don't bet on it.

FROM THE EDITOR OF THE AMERICAN BOY

During the coming year, the boys of America will get a half-fare rate to adventure and fun! The American Boy—Youth's Companion, the nation's leading magazine for boys, formerly $2.00 a year, now costs $1.00. A three-year subscription, previously $3.-50, costs only $2.00.

Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor of The American Boy, brings boys the hearty assurance that the new prices will in no way affect the editorial contents of the magazine. It will be as large, as beautifully printed, as full of high-spirited adventure as ever.

"The American Boy's leadership has been no accident," Mr. Ellis states. "We publish the magazine on the firm belief that boys deserve a magazine as good as any publication for grown-ups. So we use the best illustrators obtainable—well-known artists who work for the biggest magazines. We send our staff writers all over the country digging up the interesting facts of science, interviewing world-famous explorers, talking to coaches and athletes

"We encourage and assist our writers to go everywhere for material—to Haiti, Africa, the South Seas, China—and bring back adventure for American boys. We hire experts on hobbies and boy problems to advise boys and young men. These steps account for our position as the quality magazine for boys, and we shall continue to take them."

Twelve issues of fun and excitement for $1.00! Three years for $2.00! Spread the news among your friends—and send your own subscription direct to The American Boy, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mich. Service on your subscription will start with the issue you specify.

J. C. HULL HONORED BY COMPANY

Mr. J. C. Hull, local insurance agent, was today presented with a gold sign by the American Insurance Company of Newark, New Jersey in recognition of his agency having faithfully represented that company for over a quarter of a century. The presentation was made by a Western Department representative of the Company, who spoke highly of Mr. Hull's ability in handling the company's interests.

Mr. Hull also received a congratulatory letter from Paul S. Sommers, president of the American Insurance Company, who has taken a personal interest in the event. "More important than all," wrote Mr. Sommers, "is the bond of friendship which has held us together, and we hope it may grow even stronger in the years to come. Great credit is due you in that your business has endured and prospered for so many years. Few agencies have been in existence for so long a period, and your past record should be a heritage symbolic of future achievements."

Mr. Hull has represented the American Insurance Company since April 12, 1906, and his many clients will doubtless join with us in wishing the agency continued success.

Mr. and Mr. Clayton Wyatt, of Fort Wayne, Karma Jean Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Andress and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hursh were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cochran.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horn, well known residents, of Springfield township, Allen county, Ind., celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary at their home Sunday March 31, 1935.

Sixty-eight relatives, neighbors and friends called in the afternoon to extend greetings and congratulations. Ice cream and cake were served to the many callers.

Mrs. Venus Mason, their only daughter, helped to entertain and make the occasion a success. The anniversary date was also Mr. Horn's seventy-sixth birthday. Mrs. Horn being seventy years of age.

They were showered with cards, fruit, flowers, and other gifts. In the evening Mr. Paul Dean entertained them with a few selections on his accordion. Mr. and Mrs. Horn are both in a wonderful state of preservation and can look forward to many more anniversaries.

Those who called were: Mrs. A. Reasoner, Elkhart, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. John Dilley, Waterloo; Mr. and Mrs. Abe Mason, Butler; Mr. and Mrs. Earl McNabb and family of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lenon, Mrs. Mary Paff and Mrs. Gladys Houk, Hicksville, Ohio; Rev. A. K. Mumma, Harlan, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dilley and Miss Ethel Smith, St. Joe; Mildred Smith and Mrs. Effie Smith, Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baker and son, Eugene, of Butler.

The following from Spencerville and vicinity: Mr. and Mrs. Jay Mason, Mr. Ezra Horn, Mr. Geo. Horn, Mr. and Mrs. Jennings Horn and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Abel, Mr. and Mrs. John McNabb, Alwilda McNabb, Ethel McNabb and Kenneth McNabb, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walter, Sr., and daughter, Miss Fern, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Walter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chaney, Mr. and Mrs. W. Frank Rhoads, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sommers, Mrs. Nancy Chaney, Mrs. Rebecca Kirst, Mrs. Hattie Fairfield and daughter, Miss Helena, Mr. C. W. PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

School Calendar

Thursday evening, April 11, County high school musical festival at Spencerville; Friday evening, April 12, Senior Class play, "Brown, Brown and Brown" in local school auditorium; Saturday evening, April 13, Junior-Senior Banquet at Fort Wayne Y. M. C. A.; Sunday evening, April 14, Baccalaureate service M. P. Church; Wednesday evening, April 17, high school commencement.

Rev. Wm. D. Koehnlein of the local M. P. Church will deliver the baccalaureate address. Judge C. C. Carlin, of Angola will be the class speaker on Commencement night.

The Senior class received their invitations and name cards through the local News office this week. Diplomas arrived last week. If all can weather the "tempest" of semester examinations there will be twenty graduates this year.

Due to illness of one of the musicians it has been necessary to cancel the music program announced for Thursday evening of this week.

On last Friday afternoon adrollment was made by the sophomore and junior classes of this school year for their work next school year. The eighth and ninth grades will have advance enrollment soon for freshman and sophomore subjects to be taken next school year.

"Brown, Brown, and Brown" has been chosen for the play to be given by the 1935 senior class of the St. Joe High School. The date of the play has recently been announced for Friday, April 12, and, according to the usual custom, it will take place in the high school auditorium.

Among the last minute rushes and the usual activities at the end of every school year, the following seniors must find time to report for rehearsals: Keith Davis, Jean Goodwin, Earl Kinsey, Keith Wilmot, Eloise Draggoo, Robert George, Bonnie McSorley, Glenis Osman, and Harold Likens. Other members of the senior class are helping with the staging, advertising, and business administration of the production. Miss Janalyce Rouls is directing the play.

"Brown, Brown, and Brown," is a Baker play which has caused a great deal of favorable comment among dramatic circles. It moves swiftly with a plot that is something out of the ordinary. The audience will find many a pleasant chuckle or stir of emotion as it watches the antics and development of the business firm of the three Browns, a witty, undernourished office boy, an ignorant, temperamental house keeper, Sally, the Brown's stenographer, a generous judge and his wealthy daughter, and a Brown wife who, due to greenness, turned yellow but came through white.

First and Second Grades

Our room is making a study of birds.

We had 100% attendance on Monday.

Quite a number from our room are planning to see "David Copperfield" at the Hicksville Theatre this week-end.

Our spelling honor roll includes Patricia Carpenter, Virgin i a George, Jean Hurni, James Kees, Betty Rudolph, Maurice Shuff and Allen Haller for the Third Grade, and Walter Fetters, Lewis Freeburn, Loren Inlow, Dale Keeler, Donald Kinsey, Candace Lo[illegible], Patricia Maxwell, Betty Nic[illegible], Frances Reidenbach, Robert R[illegible]way, Mary Ellen Rud[illegible], Stewart and Marilyn Zonker [illegible] the Fourth Grade.

Earl Keller, Jack Egler, [illegible] Keller and James Kees have [illegible] absent part of this week because of illness.

We were the guests of the [illegible] Grade English Class last Tuesday afternoon.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The fifth grade gave an interesting program at their English period Friday afternoon consisting of reciting poems, telling stories, dramatization, and songs. They had the third, fourth and sixth grades as their audience.

The spelling honor roll for the week of March 18-22 consisted of Mary Close, Betty Keesler, and Mary Hanes.

Those on spelling honor roll last week were Mary Close, Mary Hanes, Ruth Donley, Evelyn George, James Hamilton, Marcel Pugsley, and Sylvia Washler.

GOSHEN PEOPLE ENTERTAINED AT HART HOME.

On Friday evening, March 29, the pleasant country home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hart was the scene of a happy gathering, when six school teachers and two prominent business men and their wives, of Goshen, also Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hart, Mrs. Clyde Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart and son and Mr. and Mrs. W. Lehr Wilder and son, of this place were entertained at a mystery party.

After many jokes, both original and written, a mystery man came to the door with a message from Detective Green saying a mystery was to be solved and the group must proceed to the home of Lehr Wilder, where a part of the mystery would be revealed.

Games and contests were enjoyed for a time when they returned to the Hart home to find tables spread for refreshments. After all had been adorned with green paper caps they were informed they had become Green detectives, as the mystery was still unsolved. The hostess was very ably assisted by Mrs. Clyde Hart and Mrs. Bernice Wilder.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Moyer, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Mendenhall, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Beck, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bryner, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Stoll, Mr. and Mrs. J. Galen Whithead, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hart, all of Gosen, and those mentioned above from this place.

The guests left at a late hour, saying they had spent a very pleasant evening.

Reindeer at Last Reach End of Five-Year Trek

WHAT can happen in this great world in a period of five years? Among the great achievements we can list that of Andrew Bahr of Seattle. Five years ago he took an assignment to drive 3,000 reindeer across the Great Arctic circle. Bahr, although not a young man, took this great task at the instance of the king of England, through a commercial trading company, who believed it a good idea to provide meat for the Mackenzie district of Canada, where there was a scarcity of food. In 1929 a herd of 3,000 reindeer was turned over to this herder and for five years he has plodded 1,200 miles across the Arctic circle and has at last reached his goal. Camping for months waiting for a river to freeze over, weathering Arctic blizzards, camping for the breeding season and a thousand other obstacles have befronted this great hero, but he has delivered, not only his original herd, but an increase for the five years of over 10 per cent and incidentally there were two children born on the stormy passage, and are husky individuals. The Andrew Bahr feat will go down in history as one of the greatest feats of man.

THE BUTTERFLY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

I HAD been in the kitchen half the day,
Cleanings the cupboards, making the room fair.
When hands are busy, hours fly away,
And it was noon before I was aware.

Weary before the open door I stood,
Looking at my own patch of homely green,
When I was joined in my brief solitude
By a brown butterfly, with golden sheen.

I was transported on its gauzy wings
Far from the sordid tasks of everyday.
Intangible but high imaginings
Captured my thoughts and bore me far away.

There was my early home, the open door,
The locust tree, the garden rich in blooms;
The sunlight on the whitely scrubbed pine floor,
And heaven leading peace to little rooms.

From toil there is escape. The drab cocoon
Of ordinary day cannot hold fast
The thoughts that soar like butterflies in June,
And find their way to God's blue lanes at last.

WHY SHOP-TALK IS SO POPULAR

Makes for Forgetfulness of One's Self.

One of the last arts to mature in a young society is the art of conversation. At its best, conversation is a kind of impromptu orchestra, each player improvising in perfect harmony, time and tune, tossing the theme from instrument to instrument, the themes developing and changing, discarded or resumed at the caprice of the players. This of course presupposes that the subject of the conversation be impersonal, that it be free to range pretty much over the whole field of human experience. Such conversation is first met with in the form of shop-talk, and the reason shop-talk among people of the same interests or profession (in which is included school studies) is so popular may be that here, perhaps for the first time, we learn how delightful it can be to exercise our minds in company with others to the total exclusion and forgetfulness of our tiresome selves. That is why students talk so eagerly about their school tasks, why business and professional people so madden innocent by-sitters with technical discussions of the minutiae of their trades; why artists, musicians and scholars persecute the public with their passionate dissertations. But there is a stage beyond this, where human interests are broad enough and deep enough to embrace everybody, where the whole of experience is the subject.

"Clever but undiscriminating," "undiscriminating because the past is not alive to them." "Highbrow? Anything rather than that!"—this is a good-natured appraisal of how our sophisticated New Yorkers make it appear to Europeans. The objection to them is that they do not know enough, either about the past or their own country. But the condition is temporary. A passion for learning has sprung up in our land since the war which, given time, should turn out a crop of men and women able to interpret America to Europe as it really is, and not as a glorified Wisecrackiana. After the fire of the World war, after the whirlwind of the Jazz decade, after the earthquake of the economic depression cometh the still small voice of the spirit.—"Uncle Dudley," in the Boston Globe.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

AN UNEXPECTED DANGER

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE, swimming across the Smiling Pool to escape from Reddy Fox, was worried enough as he thought of how helpless he would be should Billy Mink or Snapper the big Snapping Turtle discover him before he reached the other bank. But Danny would have been still more worried had he known of a certain Big Pickerel, which you know is a kind of fish, who was making his home in the Smiling Pool.

Now the Big Pickerel lived very largely on the minnows and other little fish of the Smiling Pool, but he was always ready for anything else that might be good to eat. He had been some distance away from where Danny dived into the water, but he had heard the splash Danny made. It was different from the splashes made by the young frogs, and the Big Pickerel knew the difference. He would have been very glad to get one of the young frogs. In fact, he could have told what had become of a good many young frogs which had disappeared very mysteriously. But he had paid no attention to the splashes of the young frogs when they had dived into the water at the warning of Redwig the Blackbird. You see, he knew all about frogs, and he knew that they had dived right down to the bottom and hidden in the mud.

But this other splash interested him, and he began to move along in the direction of it. Now if he had hurried in the first place, this story might have had a very different ending. But the Big Pickerel had had a good breakfast, and he was only mildly interested.

Just as Danny Scrambled Out On the Bank, Those Great Jaws Closed With a Wicked Snap.

So he swam rather slowly. Danny Meadow Mouse was almost across the Smiling Pool before the Big Pickerel saw him. When the Big Pickerel did see him he quite forgot that he had had a good breakfast. It was seldom that he had the chance to dine on a fat meadow mouse, and he could think of nothing in the world that would taste better.

If he had moved slowly before, now he shot forward like an arrow. Grandfather Frog saw him and tried to warn Danny, but Danny was already swimming as fast as he could, and all the warnings in the world couldn't have made him swim any faster. The Big Pickerel's great jaws, each of which had ever and ever so many sharp teeth, were actually opening to seize Danny, just as Danny's feet touched bottom. Just as Danny scrambled out on the bank, those great jaws closed with a wicked snap, almost on the end of Danny's funny, short tail.

There was a great splash, for the Big Pickerel had rushed so that he had almost stranded himself in the shallow water. For a minute Grandfather Frog couldn't see what had happened. Then he saw the Big Pickerel dart back into deep water, and with a sigh of relief saw Danny Meadow Mouse pop into one of the holes in the bank of the Smiling Pool.

Ears of Corn on Stalk

The number of ears of corn may be anywhere from one to one-half dozen or more on the same plant, while the number of kernels to the ear may vary between 500 and 1,000 or more. The golden bantam types of sweet corn, for example, have smaller ears with fewer kernels than most other types and 500 would be an average for this type.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

AU GRATIN DISHES

AU GRATIN signifies, in French, a dish baked with a coating of bread crumbs. Such dishes are particularly good to serve for luncheon, as they are easily prepared and quickly served. However, they may make a chief dish for dinner, or for a part of a company dinner. The main part of the dish, whether fish, meat or vegetable, is usually mixed with a white sauce. To these dishes one may add cheese, chopped hard-egg, peppers, red or green, mushrooms and parsley. When the food is all cooked, the buttered crumbs are used for a topping and the dish is simply heated for ten or fifteen minutes to brown the crumbs. When the food is used that needs longer cooking the crumbs are added ten minutes before removing from the oven.

Cabbage au Gratin.

Cook cabbage eight minutes in boiling water, drain, chop in small pieces and sprinkle with salt and pepper, cover with a rich white sauce, stirring lightly with a fork to mix well. Turn into a baking dish and cover with buttered crumbs over a light layer of cheese. When the crumbs are brown the dish is ready to serve.

Summer squash, potatoes, carrots, eggplant, in fact, almost any vegetable is most attractive served in that manner. The nice thing about such dishes is they may be leftovers from the dinner of the day before.

Epicurean Finnan Haddie.

Soak a three-pound haddie in warm water or milk to cover, for an hour. Bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes to separate the flakes: there should be two cups; cook one tablespoon of chopped onion in one-fourth of a cup of butter five minutes, stirring constantly. Add one teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of paprika, a few grains of cayenne in four tablespoons of flour, stir until well blended, then add, stirring carefully two cups of milk. Bring to the boiling point, add the fish. Put into a greased baking dish and cover with crumbs. Brown and serve.

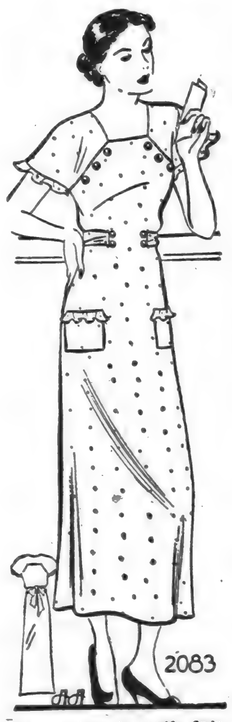
SIMPLE TO MAKE; EASY TO WEAR

PATTERN 2083



When a busy housewife finds a frock as pretty and as simple to make up as the one illustrated, she'll make several of them in different colors—that is, she will if she's very clever. There are only three pieces to the body of this dress, the back, the yoke—cut in one with the sleeves—and the front. Cut them out, sew them up, add the slimming half belt which ties into a perky little bow at the back, and the smart patch pockets, whip frills onto the sleeves and the pockets or omit them altogether—and in less than the time it takes to tell about it you'll have one of the daintiest house frocks you've seen in a long, long time!

Pattern 2083 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 3¼ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

Look to Your Accessories for Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT'S smarter, if you please, for this spring, than a good looking black, navy or tweed suit or frock "set off" with fetching accessories to a nicety down to the slightest detail? We confess we do not know the answer, unless it would be "more accessories." However, this we do know, that fashion has gone so unmistakably accessory-conscious, this season, the very fate of your costume depends on the chic and the charm and the correctness of the accessory items worn with it.

Which leads us to predict that you will be tempted to spend as you have never spent before on the dainty lovely neck fixings which are simply lavished on the new spring frocks and suits. Neither will you be able to resist the appeal of the intriguing costume jewelry together with ingenious little gadgets of every description.

Speaking of accessory ensembles, a veritable chamois spring fever has broken out both among fashion-alert Americans and chic Parisiennes. To demonstrate how utterly swank from headtop to fingertip yellow chamois accessories on navy are proving to be, we are illustrating a stunning ensemble to the right in the group. The pert V-back beret and classic pull-over gloves are of this soft butter colored chamois leather. The tailored scarf with hand-stitched chamois is real news. The four-inch belt with circle buckle and the new flat bag with braided handle are also of the fashionable chamois. Yes, we agree with you that these new chamois sets are outstanding and greatly to be coveted by those who appreciate the air of distinction they impart.

The costume worn by the girl seated has about it that note of sophisticated simplicity which is high-style convincing. Her navy novelty silk frock bespeaks discriminating taste. The wide patent leather belt is according to latest dictate of the mode. The jaunty hat is a smooth bailibunti for which Paris fashionables are expressing a decided preference this spring. The real sensation about this costume is the novel gold jewelry worn with it—looks as if it were a frilled collar and cuff set. It is, however, of gold metal which is light as a feather. It would be difficult to find anything in the way of a neckline and wrist adornment that will impart a finer finesse to a simple navy or black afternoon dress, than these very unusual jewelry sets.

Frilly, fluttery neckwear means everything to the new costumes. If your yearning leans to animated little lingerie pleatings and ruffings and frilled jabots and lace collars and cuffs which carry alluring feminine appeal now is the moment to see your fondest hopes realized, for fashion makes fanciful neckwear the center of attraction this season. The sheer white finely pleated jabot at the top to the left in the picture is typical of the new trend. The hat worn by this vitagraph star is excellent style since it is of quilted taffeta banded with shiny rough black straw. Milliners are making a feature of quilted fabrics for spring. Her little galyak shoulder cape is also up-to-the-moment, for dainty fur separate pieces are very important in the current mode.

The lingerie blouse with a very frilly frill has come into its own this season. Note the attractive organdie and lace model to the left below in the picture. It has wee crochet buttons—two dozen or more down the front. The nifty little pill-box turban is hand made of the new glass ribbon straw.

CHIC SPRING FURS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Dainty furs and fur trimmings tuned to spring are conspicuously in the limelight at present. For sportswear or for early springtime this cunning snow-flecked weasel jacket is an excellent choice for a young woman of fashion. Shading from a yellowish beige to a soft brown it harmonizes with browns or the new pastels which are so popular this spring.

Turquoise Jewelry

Turquoise jewelry is enjoying quite a vogue at present. Long strands of small beads are worn, twisted several times around the neck or the arm, with one detachable clip to match holding the different strings in place.

FEMININE CURVES COME INTO FAVOR

The perennial question of the great American figure is before us again, and this time the consensus is decided—we are to have feminine curves this year.

Not the Mae Westian curves of yesterday, nor yet the wasp waist of the Gibson girl, but a happy compromise—a return to natural contours.

Rosina McDowell Lynn, of the McDowell school of costume design says the new trend toward natural curves is all due to Mussolini and Hitler, and their policy of encouraging women to concentrate on the nursery.

She says the American figure follows the trend of the times, toward a more normal state of mind, and predicts that the spinach-and-grapefruit diets of the last few years are on the way out.

Flecked White Linens Are Popular for Spring Frocks

Heavy white linens splashed with multicolored flecks (achieved by sprinkling in small bright bits of cloth while the material is being woven) and cream linens embroidered in red and black figures are used for frocks. A new "blotting paper pink," flame and pastel tints are favorite colors for linen frocks this year; green, brown and gray are smart for suitings.

Linen corsets, lingerie, gloves, bags, hats and shoes are among the novelties launched this spring. Golf suits and tea gowns, evening frocks and flying suits, summer dresses and tennis shorts are also being fashioned in the new flax weaves.

Velvet Ensemble Favored

Velvet ensembles or velvet dresses with long narrow fitting capes of graceful line are being worn with matching gloves and hats in London.

DON'T VOTE, BUT DON'T NEED TO

French Women Wield Power Without Ballot.

DOROTHY DUNBAR BROMLEY, in the New York World-Telegram.

French women are still fighting for the vote today because Napoleon believed our sex should be treated as minors. You can read that set mind of his between the lines of his gallant letters to Empress Marie Louise. He talks to her as if she were even younger than her years.

She is to be generous in her gifts to the people he designates, she is not to give gold snuff boxes, she is to be pleasant to her family and she is "never to allow anything ambiguous to be said in her presence about France and politics."

Obviously Napoleon gave his "bonne Louise" very little credit for judgment of her own or for any common sense.

Napoleon had one willful wife, and that was enough for him. Josephine had carried on her intrigues under his nose. But when he paid her in the same coin she had raised the roof.

So it came about that Napoleon wrote into his famous Code Civil, "the wife must learn that she owes obedience to her husband." And, "the wife shall follow her husband wherever she goes." This was a dig at Josephine.

The Code Napoleon has been slightly modified in the course of the years. But even now a French wife can't leave the country without her husband's permission. She can't open a bank account without his o. k., unless she has a business or profession of her own. She can't visit friends or places of which he disapproves. And he has absolute authority over their children and property, unless the marriage contract calls for a separation of their estates.

American women in some of our states are no better off than French women, except for the fact they have the vote. As for that, the French woman would have had the ballot some time ago if the senators of the radical party had not feared that the female vote might strengthen the clerical party.

Since the married French woman is a chattel and since no French woman can go to the polls, American women have been in the habit of condescending to her. But we needn't waste our pity. Ask a Frenchman to make an important business decision and he is as likely as not to put off until tomorrow. He wouldn't admit it, but he will wait to find out what his wife thinks about it.

During the war any number of French women ran their husbands' businesses and factories without a hitch. A Parisian woman of my acquaintance managed her husband's tin factory. When she heard that his outfit at the front could not communicate with headquarters for lack of telegraph wire she got hold of the proper machinery and turned to making telegraph wire.

Napoleon left a lasting imprint on the laws and customs of France. But it would have taken a greater force than the Little Corporal to stay the course of the French woman.

The French woman knows how vain men are. So she never makes a show of power. While she pretends to defer to her husband, she will let fall a suggestion which he will adopt as his own. And if she deceives him she is usually more subtle in her technic than was the willful Josephine. With all her legal disabilities she is happier than the American woman. For she is important in her husband's scheme of things 24 hours of the day.

In the final analysis the French woman makes a business of understanding men. Man is her metier.

COMPLETE LINES OF TRUCK TIRES FOR EVERY TRUCKING SERVICE AT LOWEST PRICES—GIVING LONG MILEAGE AND GREATEST ECONOMY

FIRESTONE pioneered the ship-by-truck movement in 1918, and ever since has consistently led in anticipating every requirement in the design and construction of truck and bus tires for every transportation condition. To accomplish this, Firestone has consistently followed the fundamental principle of its founder and active head, Harvey S. Firestone, "Always to find the way to build tires better than anyone else."

While there are many reasons why Firestone Tires are safer and more economical, there are two reasons that stand out above all others. One is Gum-Dipping; and the other is two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread.

By Gum-Dipping, every strand in every cord is soaked in liquid rubber, preventing friction—adding extra strength and long mileage. By having two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords placed between the tread and cord body, it is practical to use a tread with higher, more rugged shoulders and a deeper non-skid with flatter contour.

All this provides more rubber on the road, giving longer wear, greater traction and quicker stops. These two extra construction features are patented and used only in Firestone Tires. Take a forward step in maintaining schedules and reducing operating costs. Call on the Firestone Service Store or Firestone Service Dealer today.

Firestone GROUND GRIP TYPE
Super traction tire for unimproved roads.

Firestone OLDFIELD TYPE

A Senate committee has reported favorably on the Black bill, which provides for a six-hour five-day working week. One does not have to be a patriarch to remember when workmen were on the job at seven in the morning and remained there until six in the evening with an hour for dinner, and followed that program for six days in the week. A carpenter used to have a set of planes for making moldings by hand. Today the mill does the work. A ship is unloaded mechanically in less time than was required formerly to take off the hatch covers. Men have been replaced by machinery, but the pupulation has continued to increase. The machines are not likely to be thrown out. It is not possible to set the surplus men aside to decay, as was the case with teh stage coach upon the introduction of the railway. What is to be done no one knows. The proponents of the thirty hour week say their plan will help.

AWARD CONTRACTS FOR 15 HIGHWAY PROJECTS

Indianapolis, Ind., April 11.—Contracts for fifteen highway and bridge construction projects having a combined cost of nearly three-quarters of a million dollars, were awarded during the month of March by the State Highway Commission, it was announced today by James D. Adams, chairman. This brings the total cost of construction work placed under contract since the first of the year, to more than two million dollars.

Work placed under contract during March included street improvement in Evansville and New Albany; highway construction in Steuben and Wayne counties; bridges in Jennings, Grant, Marion, Fulton, Steuben, Wayne, and Harrison counties and a grade separation in Lake county. Preliminary work has already been started on several of these projects and others will be under way within a short time.

Since the first of the year the State Highway Commission has placed under contract highway work costing $1,624,810.69 and bridge and grade separation projects costing $451,864.30, making the total awards for the three months $2,076,674.99. Award of several contracts on which bids have been received during the three-month period, is still pending.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The St. Joe High School participated in an essay contest sponsored by the National Home Makers Association at Freeport, New York, and the names of the local prize winners have just recently been announced.

The contest was open to any high school student having credit in home economics, and the subject of the essay was to be "How My Home Economics Education Helps At Home." Rules of the contest prohibited the use of any fictitious facts but encouraged originality in stating the truth. It seems that the contest afforded a good opportunity for parents, students, and teachers to check the application of the study of home economics.

Three ribbons were presented the local winners, who were, Mazie Brown, first, Doris Gall, second, and Alta Inlow, third. Special mention was also given to the essays of Jean Hauck and Edythe Stewart. All papers were entered under numbers, names being omitted. Mr. Bruce Gerdes of the English department, acting as judge, stated that the contest was very close and that judging was often difficult. All members of the faculty were pleased with the response and enthusiasm given the contest. It is hoped that the local home economics department can enlarge its equipment some day, and thus serve even more efficiently.

The essay of Miss Mazie Brown, local blue ribbon winner, has been entered in the national contest of the same nature. All success to Mazie! A copy of her essay follows:

How My Home Economics Helps Me At Home

My home economics helps me in my home in many ways. The first year I took home economics, I studied "Home Management." In this I learned how to manage a home thriftily. Of course, I have no home that I completely manage, but my mother has placed quite a lot of responsibility upon my shoulders. I do the marketing quite often and here's where my home economics comes in, for since I have studied this, I know how to get the best quality of foods for the most reasonable price. I, also, learned the different parts into which a dollar is broken, and that only so much can be spent for one article.

Next I studied problems of home living. In this we studied and worked out some very interesting projects. My project, that I worked out has benefited my home a lot. I persuaded my smallest brother, Cecil, to hang up his coat and hat instead of just throwing them on a chair or in a corner somewhere. What a difference this has made not only in looks of the house, but upon lessening the work of those who straighten the house.

"Dietetics," also has helped the home. In this subject we studied food and just what it is composed of. I learned the amount of food that is required per meal, although of course it varies with the age, size, and occupation of the person. Since I am cook at home, this helps me in selecting how much to prepare. Then, too, we made out menus for persons with different kinds of diseases such as Tuberculosis, Anemia etc. What a help this knowledge would be if one of our family should be overtaken with one of these diseases.

We studied "Child Care" for awhile in home economics and in this we learned how to care and feed a child. In families where there are small children, a girl that has studied and knows something about this subject, will be a great help in times when her mother is busy and can't perform these duties herself.

"Foods" is another subject which helps the home, if applied. I learned how to put together recipes and then finally cook them in the laboratory. I have put the things I learned into effect at home as much as possible. One of the cakes which we made in the laboratory has turned out to be the favorite cake at home, therefore I make it at home quite often. We keep files of the different recipes here at school and at home my mother and I both use them. We, also, learned how to can foods and this helps in the home.

Sewing has done a lot of good for the home. Since I have learned how to sew, I have helped my mother mend and also make new garments. I have made most all of my own clothes that have been homemade. I enjoyed this so much that I know I will never forget what I have learned.

In home economics we, also, learn how to get rid of such pests as moths, flies, mice, etc. This has helped me at home quite a bit, for there is nothing I hate as much as flies. Oh yes, we learned how to clean such devices as the refrigerator, and cabinets and this is very valuable in the home.

Art is another study which comes under home economics, and it involves many things that help in the home. In this we learned the different kinds of color schemes which can be applied to the home in selection of curtains, dishes, pictures and linen. Thru the right selection of colors we can improve the looks of our home immensely. Then, too, supposing we wanted to build or remodel our house, we could do this to the best of advantage by studying art. Also, in planning gardens and lawns. In arranging rooms to be most convenient in a new house, it could be done so much better with a knowledge of art.

In arranging furniture and ornaments around in the rooms, art is concerned as in selection of designs in wallpaper, curtains, vases, and pictures. At my home, my mother permits me to do this, because she says I've studied how and why some objects are better than others. I really enjoy this.

Almost everything we do and almost everything we have, we could improve through application of the things that are taught in home economics. And I can say, since I've been trying them, that it really makes a difference toward the best appreciation of family life.

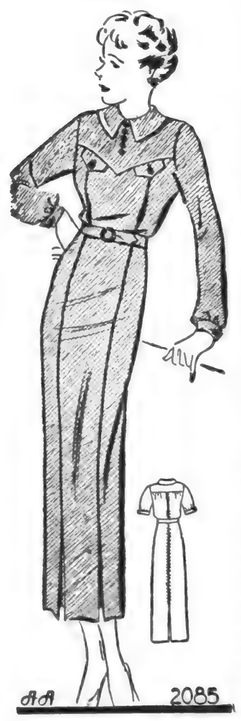
Smart for School or Work in Office

PATTERN 2085



When a girl leaves the house before nine every morning, whether she's off to school or to work, she needs at least one well-tailored frock in her wardrobe, one that will take her smartly through long busy hours and bring her home at night looking as freshly dressed as when she started. Designed along tailored lines, this frock adds a becoming "little boy" collar to its youthful yoke and tops its smart front bodice pleats with buttoned-down tabs that look for all the world like two perky little pockets. The skirt boasts a panel in front which ends in two inverted pleats, and there is another inverted pleat at the back. The full back gathered to the yoke is the last word in chic.

Pattern 2085 is available only in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 16 takes 2¾ yards 54 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

The Road to Health

By DR. R. ALLEN GRIFFITH

DENTAL PAIN KILLING

THE fear of pain is man's heritage. An American dentist reduced that heritage forever by making the first practical use of nitrous oxide (laughing gas) as an anesthetic.

Anesthesia really was discovered on December 11, 1844, by Horace Wells, a dentist of Hartford, Conn., when he offered himself as a possible martyr to suffering humanity, by inhaling nitrous oxide and having a tooth extracted. In January, 1845, Doctor Wells took his discovery to Boston and operated before the medical college. He was ridiculed and pronounced a fraud. The wise men of Boston pointed the finger of mockery and cried "humbug," determined to break upon the rocks of derision any man from the country who supposed the wise men of the city ridiculous enough to believe his story.

Dentists in their eagerness to relieve human suffering and pain, have for years successfully used local anesthetics such as cocain and novocain. In later years they have developed the use of a combination of nitrous oxide and oxygen, the safest general anesthetic known. The death rate from nitrous oxide and oxygen is estimated at one in a million, against one in thirty thousand in ether.

Dentistry's latest gift to suffering mankind is conductive anesthesia or nerve blocking, by which the area controlled by a nerve is rendered insensible to pain. Surgery is now able to perform major operations such as laparotomies and amputations by injecting the nerve trunks with novocain. What would be man's fear and dread of dental and surgical operations without the gracious sleep of anesthesia?

Through anesthesia, dentistry has given to humanity one of its greatest boons, and it is hard to conceive that in the past few years, bills have been introduced in some of our state legislatures to prevent dentists from giving anesthetics. However, it is only in line with the profound scientific ignorance of politicians.

The dentist has succeeded in taking the "dent" out of dentistry. Where an individual suffers from pain in his teeth, it is his own fault. The modern up-to-date dentist has so many ways of relieving pain that no one need to suffer from their teeth. His latest and greatest gift to humanity, however, is the prevention of systemic disease through the proper care of the teeth.

Proper dental care will not only prevent pain and preserve the teeth but will preserve general health as well.

TEETH AND TONSILS

WHEN you smile in a mirror what do you see?

Do you see a clean, healthy mouth and a row of pearls, or a neglected oral cavity with decaying, uncared-for teeth?

The mucous membrane of the mouth is highly resistant to the invasion of bacteria. If this were not true, we would all be in constant trouble from mouth infections, for it is easy to demonstrate that every mouth in any civilized community contains a great variety of bacteria, most of them of highly virulent strains.

During the past few years it has been the practice to remove the tonsils, but to overlook their source of infection, the teeth. Let us see how the tonsils become infected.

The substance of healthy tonsils is composed of small nodules of lymphatic tissues arranged in groups of 12 to 15 crypts and connective tissue, blood vessels and a few nerve fibers. From the crypts numerous follicles branch out into the substance of the tonsil by means of irregular channels.

Surrounding each follicle is a plexus of lymphatic vessels, and the whole is covered by mucous membrane.

While well protected from the outside, yet, because of their peculiar construction and the numerous lymphatic plexuses and crypts, they are ideal incubators for micro-organisms that may once succeed in penetrating the lymph channels. The lymphatic vessels of the gums terminate in the submaxillary glands. The lymphatic vessels leading from the plexuses surrounding the tonsilar crypts also pass to the submaxillary glands. It is therefore readily seen that bacteria may pass almost directly from the gum margins to the tonsils.

Bacteria passing into the lymph channels may easily pass on to the tonsils and be enormously multiplied, both in number and virulence, and be passed through the submaxillary glands to the deep cervical glands, and finally on to other parts of the body without the surface of the tonsil even being disturbed. This is why the removal of the tonsils, while immediately helpful, does not always remove the source of the trouble. The same condition still remains, and operation after operation frequently succeed each other as the lowered resistance of some other point causes it to become infected.

If the teeth are properly cared for first, and the crypts of the tonsils carefully cleaned out, the tonsils may frequently be saved. In any event the teeth should be the first consideration, for in treating diseases resulting from focal infection the original point of infection must be eradicated.

Smooth Air Work

By JACK MITCHELL

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

"BASHFUL BEN" MAYFIELD determined for the hundredth time to tell Wilma that he loved her. Furthermore, with an increased salary cinched, he'd ask her to marry him. Bravely he stepped from the stag line, a tall bronzed figure quite handsome in a tuxedo. He tagged the beautiful blond Wilma.

"Wilma, I've something to tell you," he blurted.

"A confession, Don Juan?" Wilma asked.

"Bashful Ben's" heart sank and his confidence vanished. The same thing had happened many times before. "N—no," he stammered. "I want to tell you that I—I—have some more old clothes for the Junior League shop."

Wilma rested her head against his shoulder. He hoped she wasn't repressing a snicker. "Thanks, Ben. We need them. You'd be surprised at the people who are destitute."

Ben continued dancing without conversation but creditably.

• • • • • • •

Next morning the factory superintendent greeted Ben as he entered the locker room at the field. "No planes to test today, Bashful. The old man wants you to go over to the school and check out a limited commercial candidate."

Ben's usually pleasant disposition seemed to vanish. "What's Malden getting by with?" he growled. "I'm supposed to be a test pilot, not a students' nursemaid." Beneath Ben's irritation lay a terrifying fear. Wilma was a limited candidate in the Arcway Flying school.

"The old man thought it would be a good idea for you to do a little instructing before you take over the Nolton branch. You might build up a school over there."

"Who's the student?" Ben tried to keep his voice firm.

"Some debutante. Maybe you know her, but remember, no favoritism," the factory superintendent warned.

"What plane?" Ben growled.

"Check plane two. The low wing."

In Ben's mind there formed a desperate plan. He had to incapacitate check plane two till Malden finished checking those transport candidates. Then he could get Malden to check Wilma. "Some cotton in the carburetor jets would keep the plane on the ground long enough," Ben decided.

He entered the hangar and approached check plane two. His heart did a power dive as he saw a mechanic bob up from the motor cowling. "Mornin'," Mr. Mayfield. I had to come out early to check up on this timer. She was missin' a little when they brought her in yesterday. Everything will be O. K. by the time the students get here."

There was nothing to do except wait.

Finally Wilma drove up. He was right, he thought bitterly, watching her putting a gosport helmet over her golden hair. But he was puzzled by the gosport. He hadn't known that the school used them on advanced check hops.

Suddenly the full one way speaking tube possibilities of the gosport occurred to him. . . . A chance to talk to Wilma without running into her confidence-destroying jests, without even looking at her demoralizing beauty!

Ben pulled his tinted goggles over his eyes and his parachute-silk neckerchief up over his mouth.

While the mechanics were unchocking wheels, Ben, pitching his voice as low as he could, said through the tube: "Take off and climb to three thousand. Fly to Durberry, doing S-turns on the way. Bank 'em up steep. When you get to Durberry, land at the airport."

Wilma's take-off was good and her air work smoother than that of many veterans. After a few turns Ben shook the controls. Wilma released them. Ben wanted her to concentrate on what he was going to say.

This time he didn't disguise his voice. "Your work is very smooth. Smooth as you are, Wilma." There was no retort, of course. He gathered courage. "There's something I've been trying to tell you for a long time, but you always got me off on Junior Leagues or something. Now I'm going to tell you and you're not going to interrupt: I love you."

The world didn't fall apart, so Ben continued. "I'm going to be manager of the Nolton branch, and I want you to marry me. I promise to—"

Wilma shook the controls vigorously. The world was falling apart, after all. Ben's hand fell limply from the stick. Wilma couldn't talk back and she couldn't walk home, but she could land at any suburban field and call a taxi.

She might even report him for getting so fresh, thought Ben, as Wilma cut the gun and lost altitude rapidly in a spiral. She landed beautifully and taxied onto the apron in front of the hanger.

Ben removed the gosport mouthpiece with shaking hands. With great effort he steeled himself to resume the role of flight instructor. "That landing was all right, but this isn't Durberry," he said looking at a propellor tip.

"No, this is Lakeside," came the soft reply, "the elopement town where they marry people on a moment's notice. After waiting two years for this, you don't think I'm going to give you a chance to change your mind, do you?"

Indian Village De Soto Visited Believed Found

Almost 400 years ago Hernando de Soto visited the "town of Guasili" in the North Carolina mountains.

Dr. John R. Swanton, of the Bureau of American Ethnology and the Smithsonian Institution's leading authority on Indians of the Southwest, declared the site of the long-lost village has been "rather definitely" located at the site of the old Indian mound near Murphy, N. C.

Smithsonian institution scientists have been excavating the mound, almost certain for weeks it was the lost village. According to the institution, De Soto's visit was in 1540.

It was described at that time as a town of 300 wooden houses—probably an exaggeration—capital of a province of the same name, where the hungry Spaniards were given a hearty welcome. Its occupants may have been Cherokee, since this was in territory later held by the Cherokee tribe.

The people of this town were visited in 1566 by the Spanish official, Juan Pardo, who "held conference with them in interest of his holiness and his majesty and they replied that they wished to be Christians and have his majesty for their master."

Today the place is marked by a large mound. The excavation was undertaken under the direction of J. D. Jennings, of the University of Chicago, representing the institution.

NEATLY TRAPPED

Recently a railroad, which was sued for $100,000 by a negro who falsely claimed that his legs had been paralyzed in an accident, sent two negro detectives to his town to expose him. They set up a crystal gazing parlors and, after several weeks, subtly arranged to tell the victim's fortune in his home. The crystal "forecasted" that the only way he could win his suit was to carry a log over the railroad track the next morning, hopping across on one leg and back on the other several times. So he did. And a movie cameraman, hidden in a bush, "shot" the act—and killed the action.—Collier's Weekly.

It's a Season of Plaids and Checks

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

GOES madly on the rage for checks and plaids. Where fashions are at their smartest these animated patternings are flourishing with all their might, both for day and evening wear.

The new plaids and checks are as apt to be "all wool and a yard wide" (more likely fifty-four inches) as they are apt to be of washable synthetics, linens or cottons. In fact among the swankiest weaves going you will find linens done in garish, racy plaids which make up too swagger for words—ever so effective for sports wear.

Then, too, topcoats of gorgeous plaids are going places where they never went before, for women are wearing them during the daytime hours about town and for travel as well as sports. Some have fur collars and some haven't, but they are that good looking with or without you will be envying the fortunates who possess them. The girl seated to the right in the picture is wearing a model which is styled with latest details, such as the hand-cut fringe of self material which trims the wide scarf ends and the wide turn-over collar. The predominating colors in the plaid for this coat are brown and beige with a streak of orange in its makeup. The same plaid is striking in tones of reds or greens.

Her companion is wearing a check suit and if you are wanting to get into something decidedly stylish for spring here's your cue and no mistake about it. This one is black and white but if you happen to be in some other color mood, there is a check to satisfy, such as green with gray, navy with white, brown with tiger yellow. Then, too, there are tweed checks galore out on the field of action. They are smart, to be sure, but we must say there is a regular landslide in the direction of the simple little checks as pictured.

It is ever so good style to wear a tweed wool check skirt with a jacket of plain or the reverse. It is smart, too, to top a plaid or check skirt with a colorful suede jacket.

Plaid taffetas for daytime frocks, either synthetic or pure silk are making a grand success of it this season. A shirtwaist dress of plaid taffeta is in the height of fashion. Likewise a one-piece taffeta frock topped with a redingote of wool in navy or black makes an ideal spring costume.

Myriads of simple little morning and informal afternoon frocks choose plaid for their media. The model on the standing figure plays up bias-to-straight effectively. Novel touches such as buttons in alternate colors and little pockets set in on the bias add zest to this mode.

The other dress is interesting, too, in that it is made of a star print—little stars instead of the dotted theme and you can get this material with white stars on navy or red and other combinations. A deep pointed collar of white pique and large white buttons tune into the scheme of things most cleverly.

BOTH HUMOR AND POETRY EVINCED IN PLACE NAMES

The southern mountaineer's whimsical humor is seen not only in some of his songs and hoe-downs but in place names commemorating some jest, some episode more or less grimly comical or tragic—Broke-Jug creek, Tear-Breeches ridge, Chunky-Gal mountain, Seldom-Seen hollow, Rip-Shin ridge—ouch! How vividly that recalls certain scrambles through stony thickets—Burnt-Shirt mountain, Jerk 'Em Tight, Hanging Dog creek, Headforemost mountain, Bore-Auger creek, Fiery-Gizzard creek, the Devil's Courthouse, and so on.

In Cumberland county, Tennessee, two beautiful brawling streams unite whose names are No Business creek and How Come You creek. Undoubtedly, there is a story back of each name.

But the mountaineer is often poetic, too, and gracefully descriptive in his place names. The touch of melancholy in his nature is evidenced by the frequent recurrence of such names as Lonesome and Troublesome. Desolation, Defeated, Poor Fork, Kingdom Come, Falling Water and Lost creek are significant names of streams. Craggy Dome, Balsom Cone, the Black Brothers, Lone Bald Thunderhead, Little Snowbird, Grandfather; Hawksbill; Graybeard and Wine Spring Bald are all mountains lyrically and descriptively named.

I asked a mountain man in North Carolina whether a certain bold promontory had a name, and I have a pleasant memory of the slow lift of his eyes to where it towered 1,000 feet above us, and the soft drawl of his mellow, low-pitched voice as he answered: "Yas, hit's called the Winter Star."—Alvin F. Harlow in the Saturday Evening Post.

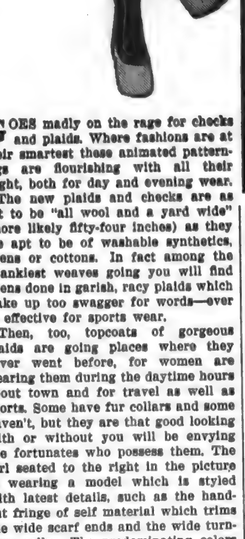
NAVY AND YELLOW

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



It is good-looking, this girlish frock and hat to match, is it not? It is a film-folk fashion and you know it is smart and advance if it originates in Hollywood, as it has. Ruby Keeler wears it. Attention is especially called to it because of its navy and canary color scheme. Navy for the foundational color with either white, yellow or pink is the talk o' town this season. The smart set are carrying out the idea by wearing accessories made of natural toned chamois skin. The dress pictured is of navy wool with accents of canary colored rough-textured crepe.

Turquoise Preferred

The turquoise has the preference among evening jewels, appearing effectively with white crepes and satins and especially with black velvet. Big turquoise buttons trim a black velvet dress cut away in front to show a fan-pleated underskirt of black tulle.

"SKIMMER" NEWEST WHIM OF HATTERS

The "skimmer" is the newest whim of the hatters, with madness its chief distinguishing charm.

The skimmer is the 1935 version of the pancake sailor which has been with us, off and on, in recent months. Only now it is flatter and crazier and generally more exhilarating than ever.

You clap it on the side of your head at whatever angle best suits your current mood, batten it down with a band around the back or even a hatpin, and then go out and join in a sporting battle with the spring breezes.

There is one redeeming feature about the new skimmers. They have done away with the unsightly elastic bands that decorated last springs's version of this particular style of headgear, and have substituted bands of ribbon or felt or straw to match the hat.

New Silhouette Featured by Alix and Schiaparelli

There is much discussion and some difference of opinion expressed concerning the new draped lines which had their most prominent exponents in Alix and Schiaparelli dresses. These influences, variously related to the Hindu, the Persian and the Ihran, are best known in the sari-draped togas familiar in Near East photographs.

The draping is in a soft, statuesque line, swirled round the body in a continuous movement from ankles to head. Several arrivals consider it a significant new silhouette trend, promising more for later season development. Others are inclined to disregard draping, considering it too extreme.

Spring Accessories Matter of Importance to Fashion

Accessories are going to be matters of prime fashion importance this spring for there are "ginger and snap" in the way they are put together. Here is the way one chic Parisian accents a black and white check suit: Yellow straw hat with black band, yellow blouse and yellow chamois gloves, blue cornflower in the buttonhole, black suede bag and gloves.

Lace With Tweeds

Bows of soft lace are being worn with tweed costumes.

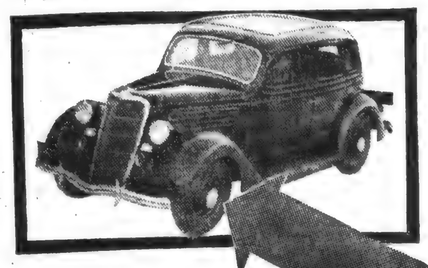
BIG "AIR-BALLOON" TIRES



are standard equipment on the 1935 Ford V-8 AT NO EXTRA COST

On other cars they are de luxe equipment at from $38.50 up—extra

THE wheels of the 1935 Ford V-8 are smaller with 6.00 x 16-inch balloon tires — and these tires are made to special Ford specifications.

They have a much wider and flatter tread than other tires of this size, giving more contact with the road. They are mounted on a 4-inch rim — whereas other cars use a 3½-inch rim for the same size tire.

These air-balloons have better traction. This provides quicker acceleration in starting, and increases safety in stopping. It adds to the life of the tire by preventing slippage on sudden starts and stops.

The broader rim for the tire minimizes sidesway and resists tire roll on fast curves.

All tires, tubes, brake drums and wheels are accurately balanced preventing "wheel tramping" and vibration at high speeds.

Riding comfort is increased because car and passengers ride on more air at a lower pressure.

See and drive the New Ford V-8 for 1935 and you will vote it the most beautiful modern car you have ever seen at the price.

Anyone who doubts the truth of the adage that there is always room at the top should try to get a three dollar room in a hotel which advertises: Three dollars and up.

Sales of the so-called Baby Bonds of the government are going forward pretty well, securities of that kind having been disposed of to the extent of about forty million dollars. That many dollar bills placed end to end would reach almost from New York City to London, but who wants to lay out any more money in the direction of Europe?

It cost in the neighborhood of ten thousand dollars to print the pink papers intended to go with the income tax report but now discarded. Let us not be too hard on Uncle Sam. He simply made a slip. Many rich men pay their income taxes with scrupulous rectitude and lay their books open for examination to back up their returns. Other rich men do not seem to have any income at all, if data brought to light by congressional investigations may be relied upon. The income tax collections this year are forty per cent larger than last year. Possibly the pink slip served to bring a corresponding number of tax dodgers to the mark. It is to be wondered whether the pink slip net caught some new big fish along with the small fry.

The dust storms of the great American plains have attracted much attention and produced a variety of comment. Boiled down to few words, they are regarded as a local calamity pointing to a national problem best expressed in the words of an authority to the effect that no country has wasted its natural resources so fast as has the United States. Considered relatively to the entire population, the number of persons who are damaged through dust storms is small, and attention can be drawn most forcibly to the plight of the dust storm sufferers by referring to some instance of resource waste that has touched almost everyone. For example, mansions are being built today with lumber which, two generations ago, would not have been used in the construction of a pig pen. The soil bears patiently with long continued borrowing but in the end demands that its debts be paid.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Attend the Senior Class Play "Brown, Brown, and Brown" which will be given at eight o'clock on Friday evening of this week in the school auditorium.

The baccalaureate service for the class of 1935 will be held at the Methodist Protestant Church on next Sunday evening beginning at seven o'clock. Rev. Wm. Koehlein has charge of this service and will give the address of the evening.

The high school commencement will be held on Wednesday evening of next week in the school auditorium. The program will open at eight o'clock. Hon. C. C. Carlin, of Angola, will be the speaker. His subject will be "Life's Relay Race." John Kaellner is salutatorian and Earl Kinsey valedictorian of this year's class.

Ersa Reidenbach and Dean Kees represented the local high school in the geometry section and Iris Wilmot and Ivan Brown were representatives in the algebra section at the district mathematics contest held in Ft. Wayne on last Saturday. Manuscripts were forwarded to Indiana University for scoring and results will be announced later. Auburn was the only other county high school participating in this contest. Schools from neighboring counties also participated. Mrs. Simanton teaches our mathematics classes.

Wednesday was local contest day in the high school commercial classes of the state. This contest is sponsored by Ball State Teachers College. All pupils taking typing and bookkeeping in our school participated. The twenty-five schools which rate highest in the local contest may ener teams in a state final contest held at Muncie the latter part of this month.

"Brown, Brown and Brown," the senior class play of the St. Joe High School, is receiving its finishing touches now before its presentation in the local gymnasium April 12 Faculty advisers and seniors concerned with the business end of the production predict a large audience for Friday night, so people wishing choice seats should come early. Lights will be dimmed for the opening curtain promtly at eight o'clock.

John Brown, portrayed by Earl Kinsey, is the originator of the Brown firm with its dealings in antiques. Mr. Brown is getting a fresh start in life. James Brown is a partner, who knows old furniture because he never owned any other kind. Although not easily persuaded to enter the business, he is a true member after initiation. However, Keith Davis, this "all-wool and a yard wide" character, is not so faithful in love affairs until he finds the right girl. Robert George, as Joseph Brown, adds to the interest of the play because his affiliations are left a surprise. His hobbies are pottery and neckties.

The part of Sally is well enacted by Jean Goodwin. She is a waif who improves herself and claims two names before the final curtain. Bobby Burns, who is really Keith Wilmot is a wise-cracking office boy whose comedy will probably bring down the house.

Eloise Draggoo as Mrs. John Brown, Bonnie McSorley as Louise Richmond and Glenis Osman as the housekeeper are to be complimented on the way they carry their parts, while Harold Likens with a pair of nose glasses does justice to the part of Judge.

Special music for the evening has been arranged by the girls' vocal trio, including Ersa Reidenbach, Louise Sechler, and Helen Pustison. Another drawing card in the musical line will be an instrumental trio from Ball State College, Muncie, Indiana. Appearing in the trio will be the Misses Ethel Green, cellist, Virginia Deen, violinist, and Doris Morris, pianist. The senior class feels very fortunate to secure the services of these very talented young ladies who broadcast frequently, and anticipate a fully enjoyable evening of entertainment.

L. L. C. CLOSES THE YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

The Ladies Literary Club enjoyed a most delightful evening, April 3rd at the home of Mrs. Edith Cole. The evening's program was in charge of a committee, consisting of, Mrs. Della Storer, Mrs. Daisy Woodcox, Miss Janalyce Roula and Mrs. Edith Cole. The remainder of the club being unaware of all proceedings save the invitations which requested each one to come with a wee bit of verse from Shakespeare to aid the committee to make "much ado about nothing."

On arrival the ladies were seated at two long tables beautifully decorated and lighted with silver tapers. The program and luncheon fitfully portrayed the five ages, infancy, school girl, maiden, mother and grandmother. The luncheon courses being interspersed with stunts, songs and readings typical of the period.

A short business session followed in which the ladies made arrangements to attend the Federation of Clubs which was held on Tuesday of this week at Garrett, Ind. Seven representatives attending.

Wednesday evening of this week finished the work of the club for this year, the meeting being held at the home of Mrs. Martha Kennedy at Garrett.

The annual convention of the County Club Federation was held in the M. E. Church at Garrett, Tuesday, April 9th. The forenoon session was given over to business at which time reports of all county chairmen were given and officers elected. At close of the business session Mrs. C. R. Clark, of Auburn, conducted the institute hour. She was assisted by several of the Club Ladies. This was a very helpful and interesting hour. The subject being, Why belong to a Club. At the noon hour luncheon as served in the basement of the church.

In the afternoon several musical numbers and readings were given, among them a reading by Mrs. Mary Gerdes of the St. Joe Ladies Literary Club.

Mrs. Harry Hensel, of South Whitley, Division President, gave a short talk, after which Dr. L. Potter Harshman, of Fort Wayne, gave his illustrated lecture on "Mental Hygiene as applied to Today's Problems," which was very beneficial and instructive.

The ladies from the St. Joe Literary Club attending were: Mrs. C. A. Woodcox, Mrs. Inez Hadsell and Mrs. J. R. Leighty, who are county officers, also Mrs. C. C. Woodcox, Mrs. Glen Cole, Mrs. Bruce Gerdes and Mrs. Frank Curie. Mrs. Jennie Sechler attending the afternoon session.

Wednesday evening, April 10th, was the last meeting of the year for the Ladies Literary Club, at which time they were entertained at the home of Mrs. Martha Miser Kennedy, of Garrett. Pot luck dinner was enjoyed at 6:30 and the ladies spent a very enjoyable evening with Mrs. Kennedy in her new home. The ladies have appreciated the work of Mrs. Kennedy in the club very much and regret that it will be impossible for her to carry her active membership with us in the future. The officers for coming year are: President, Cora Curie; vice president, Avis Staman; recording secretary, Mary Gerdes; corresponding secretary, Violet May; treasurer, Ines Hadsell; critic, Lora Leighty; parliamentarian, Belle Woodcox.

Frances Reidenbach accompanied Miss Janalyce Roules home for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Weaver are visiting his sister at Marcellus, Mich., for a few days this week.

Don Keller is making many changes in his new garage property and when completed he will have a fine place.

Mr. and Mrs. John Baker, of Auburn, were entertained to Sunday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Ulm, south of town.

Rev. and Mrs. Wm. D. Koehnlein attended the revival services in progress at the M. P. Church in Kendallville, Monday evening.

Frank Moore, of Harlan, fell from a chair in the M. P. Church, Tuesday, when getting ready to paper, rendering him unconscious. It is thought a concussion of the brain resulted. He was in the building alone at the time of accident, but others outside heard the fall.

DeKalb county has 141 more farms now than when the census was taken in 1930, according to a preliminary count of the returns of the supervisor of the 1935 census of agriculture. The present number is 2,363, as compared with 2,222 five years ago.

A series of low-log dams is being constructed by ERA workmen in the secondary streams of Vigo county, to prevent soil erosion, improve channel conditions and conserve the water supply. Similar relief projects are being carried out in Parke, Morgan, Warrick and other counties.

Glenn Miller, of Ordway, Colodo, was here on Sunday. He came to Flint, Mich., last week to drive home a new Chevrolet and he stopped in St. Joe and persuaded Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kees to go home with him. They will go to Phoenix, Arizona and to Los Angeles, where they will visit a number of Gorrell relatives. They expect to be away for a month.

Official figures for the first week of April show a total attendance at the state parks of more than two thousand persons, an attendance which exceeds that for the first three months of 1934. One factor in the increased attendance this year has been the more favorable weather conditions and the greater interest in the parks as a result of the extensive improvement programs.

America's 36,000 wealthiest families have approximately the same total income as the combined 11,653,000 remaining families.

If each of the 435 United States Representatives were given his prorata portion of the Administration's $4,800,000,000 to spend he would have about $11,000,000 to pour into his home district; which could be used for political purposes or otherwise.

John Koch suffered a stroke of paralysis Monday at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Vera Rosenberry, north of town. Mr. Koch was in town Saturday night and was feeling fine. A special nurse is taking care of him and he appears some better, being conscious all the time.

Glen E. Yoquelet, of Auburn, and Andrew P. Grube, of Stafford township, were sworn in at the office of County Clerk Carl Walter Thursday as members of the county alcoholic beverage board. They will take no further action until the state board appoints the third member of the board and issues further instructions. Mr. Yoquelet was appointed by Mayor Lodie E. Patter, of Auburn, and Mr. Grube by the county commissioners.

Major General Albert J. Bowley, commanding Fifth Corps Area, at Columbus, Ohio, announced today that the quota of C. M. T. C. candidates to be trained in this corps area has been increased from 1650 to 3450 candidates. This increase will mean a corresponding increase in the procurement quotas allotted the 355 counties in the corps area. Applications required to take care of this additional increase will be accepted from qualified young men between the ages of 17 and 24, residing in Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, and West Virginia.

GIVEN DIVORCE IN FORT WAYNE SATURDAY

Testifying that he treated her cruelly and inhumanly and associated with another woman, Arietta Wilcox was granted a divorce from Wyllis Wilcox, a former Auburn young man, in court at Fort Wayne Saturday.

Mrs. Wilcox also was awarded the custody of a 13 year old child, Karma Jean Wilcox, and the father was ordered to make support payments of $9 a week for the benefit of the child.

The wife claimed that her husband failed to contribute to the support of her and their child for the last five years, and that during that time he associated with the other woman, whom Mrs. Wilcox named in her complaint.

Mrs. Wilcox stated that her husband and the other woman are living together as man and wife and that he has been introducing her in public as his wife. The plaintiff told the court her husband is a musician and earns $40 a week.

FIVE SCHOOLS PARTICIPATE IN MUSICALE

A chorus of 200 voices from five high schools in DeKalb county climaxed a splendid musical program given Wednesay night in the Spencerville community hall. The concert was the annual spring music festival in which pupils in the DeKalb county high schools participate and which of late years is taking the place of the county musical contests. The five schools participating were Garrett, Ashley, St. Joe, Spencerville and Auburn. Butler and Waterloo did not take part. Each group gave two selections and the chorus sang four numbers. "Lift Up Your Heads, O, Ye Gates," a sacred number, "Slumberboat," "Grant Me True Courage, O Lord," another sacred selection and "Italian Street Song" from the opera "Naughty Marietta" were the offerings by the large chorus.

FIRE PROTECTION A NECESSITY

The following is repored from Bicknell, Ind., paper, setting forth the fire protection situation:

"After April 15th responsibility for rural fire protection in the Bicknell community will be placed upon the townships and not upon the city. Mayor Lloyd Jones announced that after April 15th the Bicknell fire department would make no runs outside the city limits.

"This was brought about by the township trustees refusing to cooperate with the city of Bicknell in purchasing some new fire fighting equipment, which the city is forced to buy with out adequate funds."

New fire equipment has been purchased in St. Joe, and the firemen are now considering and open for agreements as to protecting the community.

Verne King, brotherinlaw to Wm. Staman, died in an Ann Arbor hospital Monday noon. Funeral to be held this afternoon at Sturgis, Mich., his home.

THE BASSETTS WRITE FROM ARKANSAS

A letter was received recently by Edgar Lysher from Clifford Bassett, of Fulton, Arkansas, and will be of interest to their many friends here. It is as follows:

"It has been a long time since I heard from you, so long that I have forgotten which of us owe the letter, but I will try a few lines. Well, we have moved down stream about 2½ miles from where we were. We have been having high water for two weeks but it is falling now. We have a garden here, we have onions, radishes and lettuce planted now and expect to put out potatoes and other things later.

"We sell our fish in Fulton, to a man there who buys all we can supply him, he is a wholesaler. Charles is going in with a load today.

"Well I guess I will have to close for this time."

Your friend,
C. C. Bassett,
Fulton, Ark.

ST. JOE FLOUR MILL

MORTUARY

MILLER

Eva R. Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Long, was born in Perry County, Somerset, Ohio, May 7, 1879. Passed away to meet her Lord on April 13, 1935 at the age of 55 years, 11 months and 6 days.

Mrs. Miller was a loyal and faithful member of the Methodist Protestant Church at St. Joe. In 1900 she was united in marriage to Mr. William Miller.

She leaves to mourn her death the husband, William, a sister Mrs. Lee Burgette, of New Haven, a brother, Franklin Long, of Fort Wayne, and a host of friends.

The funeral services were held from the Methodist Church Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, with her pastor, Rev. William Koehnlein, officiating. Burial was made in Riverside cemetery. Mrs. Kinsey in charge.

CARD OF THANKS

In this manner I desire to thank all the neighbors and friends who extended a helping hand and a word of sympathy, during the illness and death of my companion.

William Miller.

KOCH

John U. Koch died at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Waldo Rosenberry, north of St. Joe, on Monday morning, following a stroke on Monday a week ago. Mr. Koch was 79 years, 9 months and 14 days old and was buried in Riverside cemetery Wednesday afternoon. Surviving are three sisters, Mrs. John Morr, of Albion, Mrs. Geisinger, of Garrett, and Mrs. Frank Johnson, St. Joe, and two brothers, Charles and Reuben Koch, of St. Joe. The obituary will appear next week.

STRONG

Lydia Ellen Strong, was born, December 12, 1859 in Stafford township, DeKalb County, Indiana, and peacefully ended her life's journey at her home near Newville, Indiana, April 12, 1935, at the age of 75 years and 4 months.

She was the oldest of seven children born to Wm. H. and Mary Dickerhoff Scoville. Three of the family remaining after her death, Ida Hadsell, of Hicksville, Ohio, Letitia Craun, of St. Petersburg, Florida, and Charles Reign Scoville, of Eureka Sprinks, Arkansas.

When twelve years of age, during the ministry of Bro. Sutton at Butler, she accepted Christ as her Saviour and remained true to the Church of Christ until death.

She taught school for twenty years in this community and in the state of Missouri. Nearly every district in this and the surrounding neighborhood were represented in her teaching experience.

She was married Sunday, April 14, 1889 to Wm. Leslie Strong. Today, Sunday, April 14, 1935 is her forty sixth wedding anniversary. To this union were born three children, Mary Schondelmayer, Hugh and George Strong, of St. Joe, Ind. She being the first to break the family circle. There remains the husband, three children and ten grandchildren.

The burial was made in Newville cemetery, Sunday afternoon with services being held in the Church of Christ by J. O. Rose, of Angola.

Among those from a distance attending the funeral were two nephews, Reign Hadsell, of Hiram, O., Deloss Hadsell, of Youngstown, O., and Dr. Charles Reign Scoville, a brother, of Eureka Springs, Arkansas.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for their kindness during our bereavement and also the members of the St. Joe and Newville churches.

The Family.

KRUSE

John Kruse, a well known farmer residing two miles east of Auburn, on the Auburn-Butler road, died suddenly Sunday morning. Dr. B. O. Shook, of Spencerville, DeKalb county coroner, after an inquest pronounced death due to mitral heart lesion. Mr. Kruse was 69 years of age on March 17th.

The funeral services were held from the late home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial made in Woodlawn cemetery near Auburn. Rev. Geo. McKinley, of Butler Center, pastor of the Rehobeth Methodist Church officiated.

Mr. Kruse was a brother of Mrs. Charles Kinsey, of Auburn.

WINS FIRST PRIZE IN FLOUR CONTEST

Mrs. Frank Milliman has been awarded first prize of $200 in a recent contest sponsored by the manufacturers of Arista flour. The prize check was presented to Mrs. Milliman at Dolan's Store 1726 Lake Avenue, Fort Wayne Tuesday, by Austin Morton, of the Indianapolis Branch of the Southwestern Milling Company.

Mrs. Milliman's entry in the contest was adjudged the best of more than 35,000 entries from almost every state of the Nation.

Mrs. Sam Keesler is slowly recovering from a recent illness.

Mr. F. G. Gauntt moved Monday from the Pepple residence into the Leighty home. Some modern improvements are being made making an ideal home. Mr. Gauntt expects his daughter and two sons from Boston to spend several weeks with him this summer.

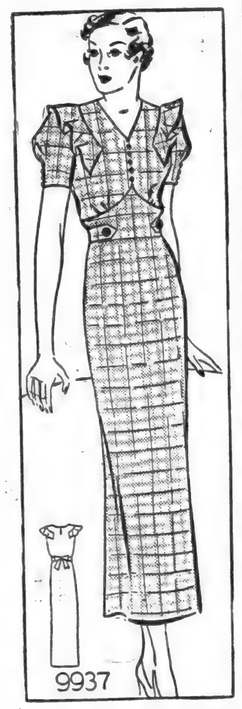
RUFFLES CONFER CHARM ON DRESS

PATTERN 9937



When you want to look particularly appealing, above your morning cup of coffee, slip into a gay little house frock like the one sketched. Piquant little ruffles climb over the shoulders of its nicely modeled bodice and emphasize its cunning, slightly puffed sleeves. The skirt, slim as a reed, sweeps up to a chic point in the bodice and there's a pert little bow at the back that adjusts the waistline to your figure. The dress may be made sleeveless, if you prefer, with the ruffles forming pretty caps over the tops of the arms. But whichever way you make it, choose a nice cotton fabric—checked, flowered, or plain.

Pattern 9937 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 36-inch fabric.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York.

Friendly Interest

By SCOTT W. RYALL

SOME find the Ninth ward merely an unpleasant conglomeration of smells, fruit peels, push-carts, kids and none-too-clean clothes on fire-escapes.

But they are not the Ninth warders. For them it is an oasis in a cold city; a dowdy, fat mother holding forth a friendly interest for the good, bad and indifferent among her sons and daughters.

Sentimentally and esthetically, that was fine. But, while the residents of those dark smelly canyons appreciated it in essence, they hardly applied the emotion as sentimental or esthetic.

And sometimes it was a distinct inconvenience.

Solomon Brady Isaacs, a gentleman of mixed parentage, found that out. Solly had, at one time, been the hope of the ward with his broad street and school education topped by a not-so-broad correspondence course in law which enabled him to skin by the bar examinations.

From his mother Solly inherited a fine mat of red while his father contributed a pudgy form and astute mind. By his own efforts he set up the combination behind a second-hand desk and gold-leaf lettering, "Attorney-at-Law," on the window.

It was a moment of pride to his father when he opened the office and his feelings were shared by the ward, up one block and another. They dutifully brought their paltry law cases to him, were surprised that he expected pay, did not pay him and after some months the landlord found it necessary to carry out eviction proceedings for which case he did not hire Solly.

Solly evacuated the ward in bitter anger and went through a four-year siege as law clerk in a downtown office. There his education broadened to include intimidation and coaching of witnesses, the lucrative profession of framing alibis and disposing of "hot" bonds; in short, the manipulation of justice—at a price.

He scraped and saved through those years, gathering a clientele, nursing a dream of revenge.

One day in June, when the smells, fruit peels, push-carts, kids and clothes were most evident, Solly returned, preceded by a small van of new furniture which went into the whole second floor of the newly renovated Lowenthal building.

He sat behind curtained windows, grinning down spitefully on the staring faces of erstwhile neighbors. Then he turned on the sallow youth, newly appointed guardian of the outer office.

"All cases from the Ninth ward paid in advance and double rate," the little lawyer instructed savagely. "I'll show 'em. And every afternoon you go out. Find who owes money to which. Get 'em to sue. Make 'em mad. Make Mr. Ginsburg, at the Kash and Karry grocery, collect from everyone who owes him money. Make Silversteins stop giving credit at the warehouse. Scare 'em!"

His eyes blazed viciously.

For six months an insidious influence gnawed within the ward. It was carefully guided and superintended by the red-headed man behind the curtained windows in the Lowenthal building.

"I hear Mr. Ginsburg is having a hard time of it. A bad thing when a family man goes astray."

"Who said that?"

"The boy who works for Solly Isaacs. He let it slip. I know he didn't mean to. He bit his lip, like this."

Bad days, very bad days for the ward with friend against friend, and even old man Isaacs suspected of handling stolen goods.

In the midst of it the little lawyer watched the growing havoc and expanded his business of aiding criminals through loopholes of law.

His neighbors, unsuspecting victims of his malignant hate, were proud of his comeback. They watched his meteoric rise with wonder, without too great curiosity, but they did watch.

The people on Grimm street knew the back of the Lowenthal building and could see certain skulking figures go in the alley. But why didn't they go in the front way?

As thoughts will rise to murmurs and murmurs rise to official ears, there came a time when the plumbing in the Lowenthal building suddenly stopped and workmen must mess through Solly's private offices, much to his irritation, secretly leaving little hidden transmitters.

Detectives listening from another part of the building, making notes of Solly's indiscretions and sins, were the indirect cause of Mr. Ginsburg shaking his head solemnly before Mrs. Breeden some four months later.

"I hear Solly Isaacs is on bookkeeping at the prison," he said. "You remember, Solly? Of course. Funny about him; a quiet, harmless, nice young feller. Ah, if we had only known, we might have warned—"

"You never can tell, Mr. Ginsburg. Would you mind charging that?"

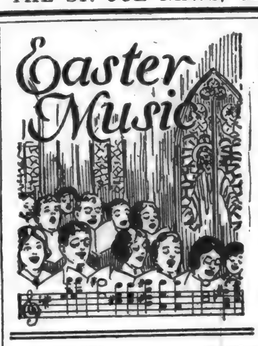
"Glad to, Mrs. Breeden."

"And I'll be in about the old account on Wednesday."

Mr. Ginsburg smiled, bowed and did not ask which Wednesday.

The ward produced its smells, carts, kids and clothes. Nothing had changed except that Solly Isaacs was "on bookkeeping" at the prison.

Mr. Ginsburg dismissed his sad thoughts abruptly and went back to stacking peaches; carefully turning the bright and rosy sides toward the public.



IF CHRISTMAS is the greatest day in the year for children, Easter holds a similar position for the adult members of the race. The world prepares to welcome it with hymns, psalms and spiritual songs, wherever the light of Christianity has penetrated.

It is a festical of far greater antiquity than Christmas, and at one time marked the dawn of a new year. The vernal equinox occurs about the 21st of March, when winter ends, and spring introduces the coming summer.

The oldest records of history tell that Easter was always a religious festival, though far more ancient than Christianity. Bonfires were kindled in Rome and the sacred fire in the temple of Vesta was renewed on the 1st of March each year. Similar customs prevailed in Germany and England. These customs lingered in certain parts of the British Isles into the Nineteenth century. In Scotland they were called the Need Fires, which were produced by the friction of two pieces of wood, which created the flame. This was quite a religious ceremony, and was accompanied by singing, dancing and the Beltane games. The Beltane cakes were precursors of Easter cakes, a survival of which is still with us in hot cross buns.

The music of Easter is generally of a more advanced character than that of Palestrina Was Commissioned to Write Suitable Music.

Christmas. Carols predominate at the Christmas festival, but there are few carols at Easter, where the music is more in keeping with the Resurrection and Ascension of Christ.

Easter has probably had greater influence in the development of music than any other period of the year. The Council of Trent assembled at this season in 1562, when the great reformation in church music took place. Composers of this time had introduced profane melodies as the principal theme in the masses, and all kinds of ornamentation of an unsuitable character. The council swept the whole system from the church, and commissioned Palestrina to write suitable music for service. He did this, and has since often been referred to as the saviour of church music.

It was the story of the Resurrection of Christ that inspired Schultz to write the first oratorio on that subject. He wrote "The Passion," according to the four Evangelists, and "The Seven Last Words," and history accords to him the title of "The Father of Oratorio."

What would Handel have done without Easter? "The Messiah" stands out as his greatest effort, and there is no composition, even today, which has as great an influence on the people as this oratorio.

The Resurrection of Christ has inspired more lofty thoughts and aspirations in poets, painters and composers than any other subject, and has produced greater works. After the long, cold winter days we are waiting to welcome the Easter sun, so we may join in greeting as we sing,

"Christ the Lord is risen today, Alleluia."

Call for Man-Tailored Jacket Suit

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FIT yourself out with a neat, trim man-tailored suit to which give "class" with accessories that are eye-filling and chic down to the minutest item, then—on with the Easter style parade!

It is not that the strictly man-tailored short-jacket suit is the only type sponsored by leaders in fashion for the new season. On the contrary, suit-buying is a bewildering problem these days. The range takes in every known species from the softly styled bolero, cape-sleeve jacket, also with-a-cape sort, to the tailored one-piece-dress variety which, when topped with its inevitable jacket, is so styled as to look the part of a jacket-and-skirt tailleur. Then, too, the swagger-coat suits are as smart as the smartest. In fact any costume is in fashion this season just so it's a suit.

However, there comes the crucial moment in the life of every fashion-following woman when she must arrive at a definite decision as to "what to buy" in way of a new spring outfit. Reducing generalities as to style trends in the suit realm to a concrete unit we are inclined to believe that the advice offered in the first paragraph of this discourse on suits is as about as safe and sane and style-promising as any we can suggest. We assure you that there is a decided flair among the best-dressed women for the strictly man-tailored jacket and skirt versions, two pleasing exponents of which we present in the illustration herewith.

There is no need to dwell upon the satisfactions the whole season through that one gets out of a neat dated-up-to-the-moment suit such as pictured to the left. A classic type such as this is the very foundation of a successful wardrobe. No matter how many frills and furbelows and sweetly feminine pretty-pretty clothes one may possess, when it comes to "something to wear" which will prove equal to every daytime occasion, there is nothing which can take the place of a good-looking suit, as is this model. It is tailored of slate blue men's suiting with a white overcheck. The jacket has that easy-at-the-waist look which is indicative of the newest silhouette. The blouse is white challis printed in red and black dots with an ascot scarf neckline.

The companion suit to the right accents the vogue for contrast. Also it is a smartly feminized interpretation of a masculine fashion in that the black broadcloth of a man's dinner jacket is combined with the striped fabric of formal trousers. Under this ultra chic braid-trimmed jacket milady wears a very dainty batiste blouse which has a jabot and collar with fine val lace-encrusted edge.

The beauty of a strictly tailored suit is that miracles can be worked in its appearance by varying the accessories worn with it. For example, fancy how stunning the double-breast tailleur will look when its owner tops it with one of the stunning new natural chamois hats, tying a stitched scarf of the identical chamois about her throat, carrying a chamois handbag and wearing gloves of matching chamois. A navy blue sailor of the new rough spun-glass straw, with navy blue footwear and other accessory items would likewise prove a pleasing diversion.

GREAT FEATS OF MEMORY PUT ON HISTORIC RECORD

Unless there is something unusually difficult in memorizing figures quickly, the young Serb of Belgrade who claims to have set up a world's record by committing to memory in ten minutes a number containing more than eighty figures does not seem to have done anything remarkable. He would at any rate have had a formidable rival in James Milnes Gaskell, a cousin of Lord Houghton (Monckton Milnes), who once repeated the tellers in every house of commons division for the preceding sixty years and suggested an "amusing game" which consisted in each player giving the name of a parliamentary borough and the persons who had represented it during the same sixty years. Gaskell said that he and his father once played at that game nearly a whole day without stopping. What prodigies of useless knowledge they must have been!

Another remarkable feat of memory is recorded of a soldier who served in the New Zealand expeditionary force during the war. He claimed that he could remember the name and number of every soldier in his battalion, and his claim was unexpectedly put to a test when the battalion headquarters were blown up and all the records were destroyed. But the soldier, who is now a professor at Edinburgh university, was as good as his word and supplied the missing details.—Montreal Herald.

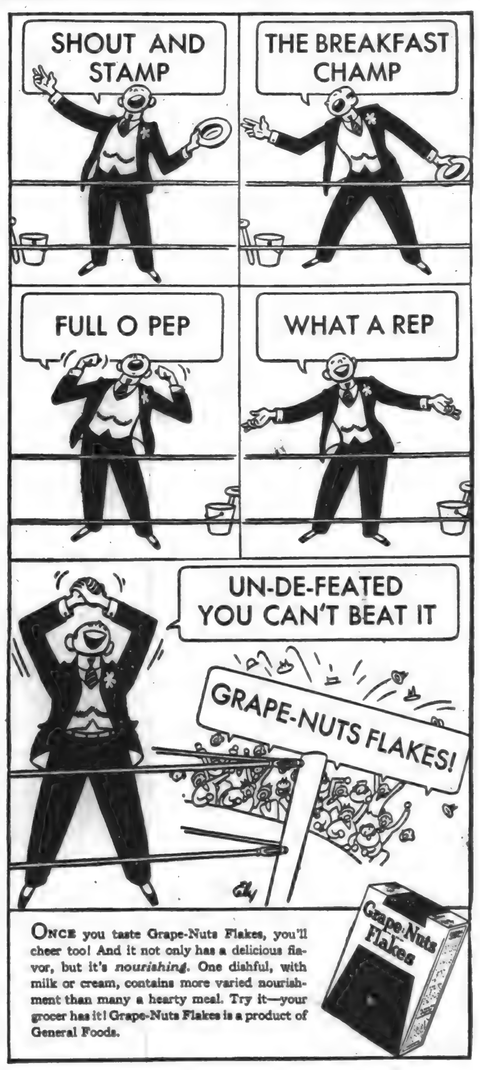
Task for Scholar

A great Greek scholar, when visiting a woman's college in the United States, was asked whether he would do the institution the compliment of translating their college motto into Greek. He courteously agreed and then asked what the motto was. It was placed before him and he read the words: "Pep without purpose is piffle."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are best for liver, bowels and stomach. One little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic.—Adv.

Big Army of Hunters

Nearly 6,000,000 hunters paid close to $9,000,000 for state licenses in 1933, the latest year for which records are available, says the biological survey in summarizing reports from state conservation departments.



ONCE you taste Grape-Nuts Flakes, you'll cheer too! And it not only has a delicious flavor, but it's nourishing. One dishful, with milk or cream, contains more varied nourishment than many a hearty meal. Try it—your grocer has it! Grape-Nuts Flakes is a product of General Foods.

SPRING SUITS ARE OF RABBIT WOOL

Fifth avenue shops already are showing rabbit wool suits for spring in soft pastels. The favorite style consists of a one-piece dress on shirtwaist lines, with a loose hip-length jacket in a deeper tone of the same color. The frock is tailored to the last notch, has short sleeves, a monogrammed ascot of self-material, a saddle-leather belt and a kick pleat in the skirt.

The jacket, in a darker tone, is loose and casual, and may be worn admirably with springtime prints or sweaters and skirts.

The new spring weight rabbit woolens come in soft, silky shadow checks and stripes, diagonal and otherwise, are soft as the proverbial kitten's ear and as light as a spring zephyr.

There's a putty color that is grand in combination with a dark brown jacket, felt crusher hat, brown leather belt and brown accessories.

Three-Piece Ensembles to Be More and More Popular

Three-piece ensembles continue to be more and more popular. As a change from the winter woolen or fur coat with one-piece dress, there are novel ensembles for all hours of the day, composed either of a soft jersey or woolen dress with cape to match, sometimes with an additional sort of waistcoat or cardigan jacket, of three-quarter or rather seven-eighths coat in the same material as the dress underneath, or matching its trimming; also of very smart afternoon velvet coats trimmed with fur and shorter than the dress in the same velvet, completed by a lame or rayon chenille tunic.

Rug Into Coat

Cashmere rugs used for sports clothes are a novel idea for spring. The soft silky rugs, resembling camel's hair, are used in tones of beige and brown to fashion loose three quarter length coats and trim suits.

PEACH-BASKET HAT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

If anyone asks you to describe the new peach-basket hat just tell them it has a crown which narrows at the top and a brim which slopes to the edge. An inverted peach basket inspired this new shape which is quite the topic of conversation among milliners here and abroad. The model pictured has one of the very narrow brims although some peach-basket chapeaux widen their brims into picturesque and flattering mushroom effects. Belting ribbon and a stiffened mesh veil trim the navy blue milan straw peach-basket hat here shown. Many of the wider brimmed models are made of stitched fabric, either crepe or taffeta and some few navy or black satin models are to be seen.

Scarf the Thing

The scarf is among the indispensables of this season's wardrobe. Plain materials and plaids, every shape and size, are augmented sequin and ostrich feather scarves.

Suits for Spring

Fashion says "Suits for spring with a capital S." Jacket suits, cape suits, topcoat suits—all are in favor.

Anker-Holth Challenger Model

With the Only American-Made Bowl That Is Guaranteed to be SELF-BALANCING

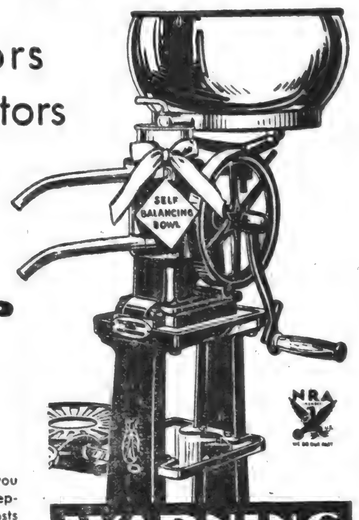
Don't miss this sale . . . come in and let us show you why the Challenger Anker-Holth is the cheapest separator in the world at regular prices . . . why it costs only 1-3 as much to use over a period of years as separators having bowls balanced by patching solder inside the hood . . . and why thousands of users estimate that the Challenger's 12 exclusive features alone are worth more than the price at which any other separator sells today . . . the patented bowl alone will save you the price of a new separator in ten years!

$8.00 SAVE THIS COUPON! This coupon, during this sale, will be accepted as $8.00 on the purchase of a New Challenger Anker-Holth or as $4.00 on the purchase of a Challenger Re-bilt or "New Head" for your old Anker-Holth.

This sale represents the lowest prices at which Anker-Holth Separators have been sold since the war in spite of higher costs and giving you a separator actually worth a half more than any Anker-Holth built before the war.



WARNING

THERE is only ONE self-balancing bowl made in America . . . it is the Challenger Anker-Holth. Don't be confused by misleading terms such as "self-centering," "stabilizing," etc. Here's how to tell—

If the discs are numbered, the bowl is NOT self-balancing.
If the bowl can be put together in only one way, it is NOT self-balancing.
If there are patches of solder inside the hood, it is NOT self-balancing.
If it isn't an Anker-Holth, it is NOT self-balancing.

We GUARANTEE the Anker-Holth bowl to be SELF-BALANCING; we GUARANTEE it need NEVER be returned to the factory to be balanced. There is NO balancing department in the modern Anker-Holth factory.

ROLLA WIERS SUES B. & O. FOR RELIEF BENEFITS

A demand for $5,000 is made by Rolla R. Wiers, in a complaint filed in the DeKalb circuit court Thursday against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

The plaintiff was employed in the maintenance of way department of the company and states that he became ill and incapacitated June 30, 1932, when he was 44 years of age. He was a member of the relief department of the company, he says, and was entitled to benefits.

However, the complaint sets out, the defendant has failed to make any payments to him since August 7, 1933. He claims to be entitled to $15 a month for the duration of his life expectancy, 25.09 years.

C. E. McClintock is the plaintiff's attorney.

WHERE TO WALK ON THE HIGHWAYS

A warning for pedestrians to use the left side of highways facing the traffic was issued at Indianapolis Saturday by Todd Stoops, secretary-manager of the Hoosier Motor club. Sixteen states have passed legislation making it unlawful to walk on any but the left side of the highway facing oncoming vehicular traffic. Although automobile-pedestrian collisions cause only about 37 per cent of the accidents on streets and highways in the country, the deaths from these accidents comprise nearly one-half of all fatalities.

PAUL CURIE IS RELEASED FROM DEKALB COUNTY JAIL

After being an inmate of the county jail over night, Paul E. Curie, 40, of St. Joe, was released Tuesday afternoon. He pleaded guilty when arraigned before Judge Endicott on a charge of petit larceny. Restitution was made for theft of a check in the sum of $3.18 belonging to Arthur Furnish that he admitted taking March 6 from Willard Hurni's store at St. Joe. The court suspended sentence of sixty days to the state farm. Curie was arrested at Fort Wayne Monday by police and was placed in jail by Sheriff Herbert N. Grimm.

LILLIAN RIDLEN ASKING DIVORCE AND SUPPORT

In the last months of their married life, her husband absented himself from their home a great deal of the time and told her to get a divorce, Lillian C. Ridlen, of Auburn, declares in filing a complaint against Nicholas Ridlen, Jr., in the DeKalb circuit court.

The plaintiff also states that the defendant displayed a violent temper and cursed and swore violently in the presence of her and their children. She says also that he did not support his family and that she operated a restaurant and filling station to earn a livelihood.

Married Oct. 18, 1916, the couple separated last Jan. 26. There two sons, Robert, 16, and Richard, 12. The court is asked to award the plaintiff a divorce and the custody of the children and to require the defendant to pay for their support. C. E. McClintock is the plaintiff's attorney.

LARGEST QUOTA FOR C. C. C. CAMPS

Applications for enrollment in the April class of the Civilian Conservation Corps are now being received at the office of the DeKalb county relief administration in the court house.

The quota, 21, is the largest to date. Fifteen per cent more than this number will be recommended as substitutes. The examinations will take place at Fort Wayne April 29 and then the assignments to the various camps will be made.

Those recommended will be from families needing relief. The eligible age limit is 18 to 24 years. Besides providing maintenance and clothing, the government pays a salary of $30 a month, of which $25 is sent to the youth's home directly by the government.

CLOSED SEASON FOR GAME FISH STARTS WEDNESDAY, MAY 1

Indianapolis, Ind., April 24.—Hoosier anglers who have been experiencing varying luck during the early spring fishing season, will be on a six-week vacation starting May 1 and closing June 16. The enforced vacation is due to Indiana's closed season on the taking of all game fish with the exception of trout.

Fish portected by the closed season include: large and small-mouth bass, rock and silver bass, bluegills, crappies, red-eared sunfish, yellow or ring perch, pike perch (wall-eye or jack-salmon) and pike or pickerel. The six-week closed season is supposed to cover the breeding season and fishermen taking any of the protected species during that period are subject to severe penalties. Only the species enumerated are protected under the Indiana law.

This will probably be the last year that the closed season on game fish will be the same in all parts of the state, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, pointed out today. During the recent session of the General Assembly, the Department of Conservation was given authority to regulate closed season on fish and other game. This will make it possible to establish closed seasons for various sections of the state, based on climate and other conditions affecting the breeding seasons of wildlife.

Mrs Art Guilford is at Auburn taking care of her mother, who has been seriously ill for the past three weeks.

Mrs. Flora Gee, Mrs. Jennie Abel and Mrs. Chas. H. Curie and three children were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee. Mrs. Bruce Koch and son were afternoon callers.

20% PAYMENT IN ST. JOE BANK

Additional Dividend of 20 Per Cent Authorized, Making Total of 60 Per Cent To Date

The payment of an additional dividend of 20 per cent to creditors of the St. Joe Valley bank was authorized Monday by Judge Endicott.

The petition was represented by Attorney W. D. Stump on behalf of Frank M. Brandon, of Auburn, special representative of the state department of financial institutions. He set out that he had secured a fund of $7,458.29 in the liquidation of the assets of the bank and $4,972.18 from stockholders' assessments. The former is sufficient to pay a 12 per cent dividend and the latter will pay 8 per cent.

Mr. Brandon had previously paid 40 per cent for this bank, making a total to date of 60 per cent.

Geo. Milliman and family have moved from the Northrup farm east of Spencerville to the Keener home just north of the old J. M. Milliman home, east of St. Joe.

Mrs. Leon Kees is critically ill with pneumonia and is being cared for by Mrs. Donald Hart and Mrs. Frank Meese. Her father, John Smith, of Flint, Ind., was brought here Tuesday, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kees, who were on a trip west, were telegraphed concerning her condition and arrived home Wednesday night.

Because President Roosevelt signed the War Department Appropriation Bill last week, more than three thousand expert riflemen will bring their guns to Camp Perry, Ohio, this summer to compete in one of the year's most impressive sporting events, the National Rifle and Pistol Matches, and will probably begin about Sept. 1, and run for three weeks. The matches have been held annually since 1837 but were discontinued in 1931 because of the economic condition of the country.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Twenty-five pupils from the upper six grades of the local school received certificates for perfect attendance this school year. These pupils were John Kaellner, Curtice Northrup, Violet Brunson, LeRoy Coburn, Ruth Curie, Eileen Gaff, Harriett Keller, Helen Washler, Bonnie Weikel, Elizabeth Weikel, Leonard Curie, Doris Gall, Dean Kees, Jean Hanck, Gordon Martin, Frank Monroe, Helen Tustison, Alta Inlow, Delta Inlow, Ruby Madden, Robert Schondelmayer, Blanche Strong, Eva Young, Hilma Bleeks, Gwenevere Jenkins, Pauline Donley, Dorothy Littlefield, and Grant Strong. Several of these pupils have a perfect attendance record covering other years.

The following seniors received their basketball letters at the last assembly held on Friday—Merlin Simanton, Clayton Baker, John Kaellner, Eloise Draggoo, and Glenis Osmun.

Thirty-one pupils have registered for the high school vocational home economics classes to be given next school year. This department is showing considerable strength and its progress will be watched with much interest.

With an additional teacher employed for wofk in the upper six grades some new courses will be offered next year and it will not be necessary to hold so many class recitations in study halls.

Results of a commercial test in the local school, given under the supervision of Bruce Gerdes on April 10, has just been received from Indianapolis.

As a school in typing, seventh place was awarded St. Joe, and as an individual student, St. Joe received third placing, Earl Kinsey receiving this very special high honor.

When one considers the many larger schools competing in this state event, the placing is remarkable, and naturally we think of the thoroughness of the instructors in being able to bring out such a fine ranking of school and pupil.

First and Second Grades

Gloria Zonker is the only one in our room who receives a certificate of attendance for this school year.

The yearly honor roll includes for the first grade: Marcia Guilford, Beccy Inlow, Betty Inlow, Russell Ridgway. Second grade: April Bowser, Leora Wilmot, Mary Louise Woodcox, Gloria Zonker.

Last Friday we entertained guests at our Easter party. At the close of our program we went to the hot lunch room where we were served strawberry ice cream and graham wafers. Each guest received an Easter basket filled with Easter eggs. Our guests included, Ruby Collins, Donald Inlow, Maxine Hanes, Patty Harris, Bobby Shuff, Coral Strong, Carroll Wade, James Kinsey and Josephine Baughman.

Third and Fourth Grades

The following boys and girls were neither tardy nor absent from school this year: Alta Strong, Walter White, Donald Freeburn, Lewis Freburn, Hubert Bleeks, Marilyn Zonker, Gene Harris, and Robert Baughman. Alice and Hubert have honor rolls for attendance for both the third and fourth grades. Walter White has not been absent since starting to school. We are proud of our attendance.

On last Thursday we had a large pot luck dinner in the Home Economics room. In the forenoon we played several games and did stunts.

Those who made honorable grades in our last examination in the third grade were James Kees, Ned Keller, Donald Freeburn, Jean Hurni, Patricia Carpenter and Allen Haller. In the fourth grade were Mary Ellen Rude, Frances Reidenbach, Loren Inlow, Donald Kinsey, Irene Sechler, Patricia Maxwell, Estella Hart, Marilyn Zonker, Betty Nicholls, Harold Wilmot, Robert Ridgway, and Gladys Stewart.

We hope all of you have a nice vacation and we'll see you again next September!

The Alumni banquet Saturday night completed the High School activities for the year with an attendance of near 150. A two course banquet was served followed by a novel radio program given by stars of the Alumni, with Basil Sheffer as the announcer. Ribbons were awarded to special classes for largest attendance and to the person coming the farthest and this was awarded to Mrs. Ethel Green Crooks, of Lafayette, her first visit to the Alumni since graduation. Talks were also made by other visiting members.

Rev. J. N. Scholes is improving from his recent illness, and able to be around again.

HOUSE FROCK ON TAILORED LINES

PATTERN 2089

Quite a "sweeping success," isn't it, this well-tailored house frock with its slenderizing lines and nicely detailed bodice? The skirt is fronted by a long slimming seam which breaks into a perky little kick pleat just below the knee; the bodice is gathered onto the yoke to provide ample fullness. And don't you like that vestee-like effect of the front yoke which does so much to break the width of the figure above the waistline? Buttons emphasize the trim belt, the pointed sleeve cuffs and the nice diagonal closing. Make it of any pretty cotton material, figured or plain, and you'll have a house frock to be proud of!

Pattern 2089 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3¾ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

EASY ONE

A man complained to the local postmaster because of the failure to deliver a letter improperly addressed. "Now, suppose," he continued, "I addressed a letter to the 'Biggest Dumbell in Christendom,' what would you do toward delivering it?"

"I should simply mark it, 'Return to Sender,'" replied the postmaster.

When in Doubt!

Scroggs—Our courtship began in a most romantic manner. My wife saved me from drowning. She's a magnificent swimmer.

Boggs—I notice you never go into the water now.

Scroggs—No; I'm not sure she would save me again.

Extra Pay

By RUTH ASTON

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

JUDY was only a movie extra, but Andy had fallen for her harder than if she were Mona Manning herself. Judy was twice as pretty as the famous star, only half as sophisticated, and ten times as sweet. The life guard had figured the whole thing out mathematically when the girls had come down to Long Beach on location ten days before.

But just now he stood glaring down as she sat in the sand.

"So you care more about your darned publicity than you do about me!"

Her blue eyes flashed angrily. "I care about holding down my job! If you'd ever been out of work as long as I have, you'd realize how much my pay envelope means to me!"

"I don't care how much you think of your pay envelope. I don't like that guy Turner even if he is a director. And I don't want you to go out with him"

Judy shrugged shapely brown shoulders "I'll go out with him every night in the week if it's necessary to keep my job!"

Andy glared at her. "And I suppose you'd let him make love to you, just to hold your job?"

Judy flushed, then laughed. "Don't be melodramatic, darling! Life isn't like that!"

"Don't be too sure I've heard of directors who expected more than just good acting from the pretty extra girls."

Judith sobered for a moment "I know. There was a girl who killed herself—"

She shuddered, but the next instant forced a laugh. "We're being awfully silly. Just because Mr. Turner likes to take me out is no sign he has designs on me!"

The man scowled. "Knowing Turner, I'd say that was quite a definite sign."

Andy saw very little of Judy the next few days although never for a moment did he stop thinking of her. On three different occasions he had seen her riding in the assistant director's long yellow roadster.

And then early one morning she came down to the beach, and his strong heart began doing strange things in his deep chest.

She carried herself with a determined air this morning that was new to her. Andy was puzzled as she strode out to the end of the windy pier. Surely she wasn't going to dive? The undertow beneath the pier was terrific. Only an expert swimmer could withstand that pulling toward the piles.

Good heavens! She was standing outside the railing at the pier's end, her shoulders drooping, her whole attitude that of hopeless dejection! Andy looked about wildly for movie cameras, but none were in sight. He was the only person on the beach. And just as he looked back at her, Judy slipped off into the water.

The life guard raced to the pier and covering its length in Marathon strides, dove into the water. He saw Judith clinging to one of the barnacle-covered piles under the pier. If only she could keep her grip! But the barnacles were sharp and would cut her hands. With long swift strokes he swam toward her.

"Hold on!" he shouted, but his voice sounded tiny.

She must have heard for she turned her head to look at him. A strange expression came into her eyes. Then deliberately she released her hold and dropped into the rushing green-black water!

Andy dived after her but soon discovered that she did not want to be rescued. She struggled desperately to free herself.

"Let me go!" she gasped when they reached the surface of the water. She kicked violently with both legs and pounded him with her fists.

Andy was bitterly determined. "Stop that! Do you want me to knock you out?"

One of his arms encircled her tightly, and with his other arm and legs he kept them both afloat.

She tried to push away but Andy raised his fist menacingly.

"All right," she gasped. "I'll go with you."

Her body relaxed, and with one hand on his shoulder she allowed him to tow her.

Laying her down gently in the soft dry sand, he asked, "Are you all right?"

Without answering she gave him a smile of unbelievable sweetness.

Andy took one of the cold white hands in his. "Darling, I don't know what's happened, but I love you, and I want to marry you. I want to take care of you always."

"You're sweet, Andy."

"Will you marry me?"

"Yes. I didn't want you to rescue me. But when you did, I found I loved you. Do all the ladies you save fall in love with you, Andy?"

The man ignored her question. "Darling, why did you try to drown yourself? Promise me you'll never do a thing like that again."

Judy smiled, salt water still clinging to her long eyelashes. "I wasn't trying to drown myself, Andy. I was just practicing for my big scene tomorrow, with extra pay. I'm doubling for Mona Manning in a suicide act! I was supposed to swim away under the water, but you spoiled it all by rescuing me."

Knitted Apparel Goes Ultra Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF YOU would keep in the very forefront of fashion you simply must wear something knitted this spring. Not only is the smart set taking to knitting with more enthusiasm than ever, but knitted things sold in the shops were never more fascinating. So whether you knit your own or buy, you are certain to be smartly clad if your suit, frock, coat, blouse likewise hat, gloves, belt and scarf, one or all are knitted.

Astonishing things are being done in knitted realms nowadays. Every fad, foible and intriguing move of fashion finds interpretation via knitted art on the new style program. Which accounts for the increasing enthusiasm expressed for knitted modes this season.

The stunning three-quarter coat to the right in the picture is one unmistakable "reason why" women are continuing so whole-heartedly knitted-minded this spring. It can be knitted rapidly because it is of heavy white cotton and made on large needles. Wide-at-the-wrist sleeves, a flattering collar and pouch-shaped patch pockets lend a casual air to this youthful model. The beauty of this coat is that it can be tubbed so easily. If you prefer, make it of the new linen yarn or string. In either event, cotton or linen, this coat is a swank fashion and its "endearing charms" will give you joy the entire spring and summer through.

In looking at the cunning jacket-suit to the left one can almost fancy the knitting needles clicking a ditty, to wit: "If fashion sends diagonals then diagonals' my choice." Which is exactly what we have been trying to say in regard to knitting as now is, it is as facile and amenable as any woven-on-loom fabric and what's more, knitted fashions are not missing a "trick" when it comes to styling with fetching details, silhouettes and accessory notes.

Note, for instance, the shapeliness of the jacket to this suit. The skirt is straight and narrow and may be knitted with or without the new slit hemline. (Twould be ever so smart with a slit hem to left front in the skirt.) The original of the model pictured is done in old ivory of a delustered crepe floss, knitted in a tweedy diagonal effect. The dainty blouse of drop stitch pattern is cream color. Brown grosgrain ribbon trims the jacket and the crochet hat.

Speaking of the crochet hat reminds us to say to those who would rather crochet than knit that fashion is willing. Members of the smart set are having any amount of fun crocheting the new cape suits (cape and skirt) out of either mercerised cotton or the very popular carpet-warp string. The whole thing can be done in an open lacy stitch or the skirt may be in plain with lacy for the cape. The crochet or knit sweater looks best in contrasting color.

For your spring suit we suggest the accessory ensemble of hat, purse and belt shown below. Crochet it of mercerised crochet cotton. The hat has the new off-the-face movement which is an accepted vogue in the advance showings. The "set" would be pretty in different color combinations. The one pictured is a rich brown with orange touches.

SPRING BRINGS NEW SHADES IN MAKE-UP

New spring shades are going to mean some new spring make-up for the woman of discernment.

Yellow, one of the favored spring colors, and beige, are calling for a coral tint in rouge and lipstick. Navy, however, requires a deeper tint, bordering on the red, rather than on the orange shades. With white or black, orange or the more brilliant shades of red will be advisable.

Local department stores have charts showing the shades of rouge and lipstick which should correspond to the shades of your clothes.

No longer is it adequate to have one shade of rouge and one shade of lipstick, the authorities divulge.

As for eye-shadow: blue goes with blue eyes, green with green, or brown eyes, and for evening, a new shadow with silver dust in it, that is dramatically effective.

Flapper Mode Revival Is Suggested by Short Skirt

The introduction of the short, full skirt in some Paris collections has set the fashion world to wondering whether the flapper is returning. Several designers showed daytime skirts that were an inch or two shorter than those of the previous season and most of them endorsed skirt fullness. Pleats and gathers shared attention.

Fluctuating skirt lengths also were a sensation of the evening modes. Ankles appeared again and again. The skirt which was sufficiently short to show footwear at the front frequently was lengthened to touch the floor at the back and sometimes to form a train.

Peasant Influence

The peasant influence has come to town, accenting allmness with its full lines. Fullness is used effectively, below shoulder yokes, back and front with a suggestion of gathered flounce at the back of the skirt above the knee-line. Waist and hips and shoulders look twice as slim by comparison.

WEAR FLOWERS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

'Tis said that fashions will be gay with flowers this season. The news of first importance in the realm of stylish flowers is the carnation. The favorite boutonniere of the moment is a big fluffy many-petalled carnation, white, pink, red or even navy blue. Garlands of flowers will be worn like a necklace. Add a flower bracelet if you will. A wreath in the hair, too, if it is evening. There is rumor in the air that hats will be trimmed in natural flowers—a special little contrivance to hold them and to permit removing to change for fresh flowers. The flower ensemble in the picture is interesting and very lovely. The turban and the cuffs of the gloves are made of shaded purple violets. The bows are of satin ribbon in a deeper shade.

Hats Go Bi-Colored

Here's something new in spring hats. Suzy makes a straw sailor whose right side is yellow and whose left side is black. It is finished with a simple black ribbon trim.

Hot Breads and Fine Cakes

Baking Powder Has Important Part in the Preparation of These Typical American Foods, but It Must Be Employed Wisely.

Hot breads and fine cakes are typical American foods. Modern cook books, magazines and newspapers devote much space to directions for their preparation. Cook books of an olden time, however, furnish few recipes for these dainties because "yeast powder," as baking powder was first known, is a comparatively modern invention. In these olden recipes we find directions for the use of soda and cream of tartar or vinegar, molasses or sour milk. Modern recipes use the two latter ingredients with soda, but most of them add as well a little baking powder in order to overcome the inconsistency of the varying acids.

Baking powders, of which we have three types, are all made of a soda base, but the acid, which is the other principal ingredient, differs. The three types of baking powder are known as combination, phosphates and tartrates. To be successful with a recipe which calls for baking powder you should know what type of baking powder you are using. The phosphates and tartrates demand more in comparison to the amount of flour than does the combination. Experiments made at the University of Chicago show that in most recipes about two-thirds as much combination baking powder should be used in most recipes. Other experiments show that for muffins, biscuits and cakes, excepting where extra eggs are used, the proportion of one teaspoonful to a cupful of flour gives generally good results. In using phosphate or tartrate baking powders, the proportion for cakes is generally one and a half teaspoonfuls to a cupful of flour. For biscuits one and a half to two teaspoonfuls to a cupful of flour, according to the type of crumb you wish. For absolutely accurate results, it is a very good idea to use the tested recipes supplied by the companies which manufacture each type of baking powder.

The use of too much baking powder produces a porous, coarse, dry crumb with a cracked, sticky crust. A great excess will make a cake fall. If too much baking powder is used, your product may have a slightly bitter taste. Too little baking powder produce a heavy cake, which has a rather bready consistency.

When sour cream is used, we particularly need baking powder as well as soda, unless we use another acid, because there is not so much acid in sour cream as there is in sour milk. It takes one-quarter of a teaspoonful of soda to produce leaven with one cupful of sour milk, but a cupful of sour cream needs only a quarter of a teaspoonful of soda to neutralize the acid, and we do not get so large a proportion of gas to raise our mixture. Because chocolate has a slight acid reaction many recipes for this favorite cake demand a small amount of soda, which produces a dark color and makes a tender cake. Let me warn you that an over-use of soda produces an unpleasant flavor and a slightly soapy texture.

The improvement in the prepared cake and biscuit mixtures is largely due to the scientific combination of the baking powder as well as to the good quality of flour, shortening and other ingredients used. One of the prepared gingerbreads on the market claims to have been developed from the recipe used by Mary Washington, whose son provided a birthday worthy of an annual celebration.

Standard White Cake.

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons tartrate or phosphate baking powder or 1½ teaspoons combination baking powder
½ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sifted sugar
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 egg whites, beaten light

Prepare pan. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and sift again together. Cream shortening thoroughly, then add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add sifted flour and baking powder to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla, fold in egg whites. Bake in loaf or layers in moderate oven. (Loaf, one hour, 350 degrees Fahrenheit; layer, twenty to twenty-five minutes, 375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Devil's Food Cake.

1 cup butter
¾ cup white sugar
2 cups brown sugar
3 egg yolks
3 whole eggs
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon tartrate or phosphate baking powder or ½ teaspoon combination baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup sour milk
2 cups coconut
6 squares chocolate

Cream the butter and sugar together, add egg yolks. Beat well and add one-fourth of the mixed flour, soda and baking powder. Add unbeaten eggs, beat well and add the rest of the flour alternately with the sour milk. Add coconut and chocolate melted and bake in three layers or in three small loaf cake pans, thirty to forty minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit). This cake will keep moist a week. Frost with boiled frosting, using three egg whites left from cake.

Baking Powder Biscuits.

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons tartrate or phosphate baking powder or 2 teaspoons combination baking powder
2 tablespoons fat
½ to 1 cup milk or water
¾ teaspoon salt

Mix and sift the dry ingredients and rub in the fat with the fingers or cut it in with a knife. Make a hole in the flour at the side of the bowl and add half a cupful of liquid. Add enough more liquid to make a soft dough. Roll on a metal surface or oilcloth until one inch thick. Cut into rounds and bake ten or twelve minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit). This recipe makes ten medium-sized biscuits.

Date Ginger Cake.

4 tablespoons fat
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup sweet or sour milk
½ cup molasses
½ cup cut nuts
1 cup cut dates
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
1¾ cups flour

Cream the fat, add the sugar gradually, add the egg and beat well. Mix the molasses and the milk. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, add alternately with the liquid to the creamed fat and sugar. Add nuts and dates. Bake in a moderate oven thirty to forty-five minutes.

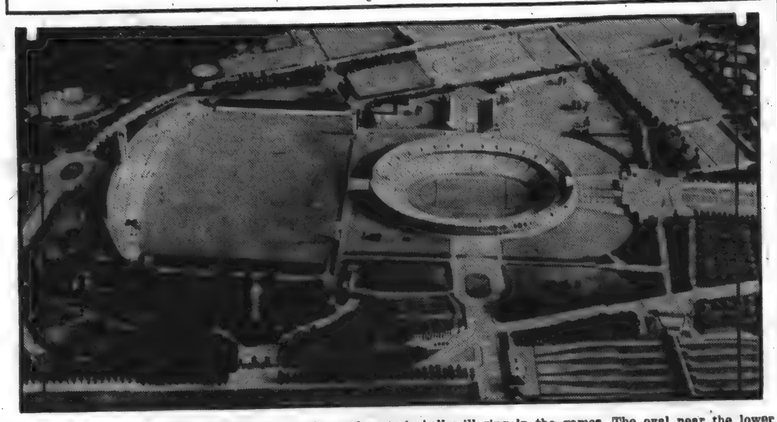
Germany Prepares for the 1936 Olympic Games



MORE than half a million spectators can sit comfortably in this enormous sports arena, the greatest concentration of stadia, gymnasia, fields and halls ever constructed in one single unit. Nine-tenths of all the activities of the next Olympic games will be centered here. But it will not take more than thirty minutes to fill or empty the great space, with the new transportation facilities created especially for the purpose. The center bowl is the Olympic stadium. On its opposite side, looking in the picture like an open double-winged door, is the swimming stadium. The large space to the left of the Olympic stadium is the assembly field, serving also as polo grounds. It covers more than twenty-four acres and accommodates 400,000 participants and spectators. On its left side rises the "Fuehrerturm" (Leader's tower) from which the Olympic bell will ring in the games. The oval near the lower left-hand corner, above the railroad cut, is the equestrian stadium. Opposite, in the midst of the wooded section in the upper left-hand corner, is the Dietrich Eckart open-air stage. To the right of it, the small round space, is the dancing arena. At the distant right, there is a group of gymnasia, pools and training buildings, with the "House of German Sports" and an auditorium for 1,500. On the extreme right, straight over from the big center bowl, are parking spaces for ten thousand automobiles. Just beyond is the hockey stadium. In the lower right-hand corner is the railroad station "Reichssportfeld." An underground railway station, also called "Reichssportfeld," is opposite the hockey stadium. There also are basketball fields, recreation halls and many other parts.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

DANNY USES HIS WITS

Who hesitates because of fear
May lose the thing he holds most dear.

IT HAPPENS over and over again among human folks as well as among the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. Perhaps it was because he had seen it happen more than once that Danny Meadow Mouse acted as quickly as he did. If he had stopped to think about it fear might have prevented him from doing as he did and things might have turned out quite differently and not at all so fortunate.

His Great Claws Were Spread Ready to Seize Some One and That Some One Was the Big Pickerel.

But Danny's wits are sharp and he has learned to use them quickly. There is nothing like danger to sharpen one's wits and Danny, as you know, is in danger a great part of the time. As he sat there peeping out of the little hole in the bank of the Smiling Pool where he had sought safety he was surrounded by danger and he knew it. It wasn't safe to leave and it wasn't safe to remain. Could anyone possibly be in worse fix?

He was doing his best to think of some way out of his troubles when he saw the Big Pickerel which had been hiding under some lily pads, swim out to the middle of the Smiling Pool and there stop close to the surface as if to enjoy the sun. Not two minutes later there was a sharp swishing sound in the air. Danny looked up to see a dark form shooting out of the sky. It was Plunger the Osprey, often called Fish Hawk. His great claws were spread to seize some one and that some one was the Big Pickerel.

With a great splash Plunger struck the water and disappeared right where the Big Pickerel had been a second before. Grandfather Frog dived from his big green lily pad with a startled "Chug-a-rum!" Snapper the Turtle sank from sight. Billy Mink disappeared. Reddy Fox stood up on his hind legs the better to see.

With a quick glance up to see that Redtail the Hawk was not watching, Danny darted out of his hiding place and scurried along the bank of the Smiling Pool towards the Laughing Brook. He knew that for a few minutes the attention of everybody would be fixed on Plunger. He hoped that no one would notice a scared little Meadow Mouse. He heard the water falling from Plunger and the beating of his great wings as he rose in the air, but he didn't even glance to see if Plunger had caught the Big Pickerel. He simply made those four little legs of his go as fast as they possibly could until he reached a tangle of matted grass, under which he crept, his heart going pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat. Not till then did he look back.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

ITALIAN GOOD THINGS

IN ITALY a little child may prepare the meal for a workman's table. But for those with more means much elaboration is used. In recipes using grated cheese the correct mixture is one-third Gruyere and two-thirds Parmesan.

Risotto a la Milanaise.

This is a very thick soup which, with the poor, is put on the bread, thus making a substantial meal. For use at a dinner it should be considerably diluted. Cut up half of a large onion in fine pieces, add butter the size of an egg and fry to a bright brown, add one pound of washed and soaked rice and one quart of bouillon. Cook until the grains are soft but not crushed. Set the dish aside to keep hot, add one-fourth pound of grated cheese and two ounces of butter. Season with white pepper, salt if needed, and a bit of nutmeg.

Potage au Chou.

Boil one-half pound of rice and the heart of firm cabbage in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and chop the cabbage in large rough pieces. Put back into the soup pan with three ounces of butter, three onions minced, and lightly fried in the butter, add one quart of good soup stock, salt and mixed spice. Boil up for half an hour. Set aside and add grated cheese to flavor the soup before serving.

Herring or Mackerel a Pitallonne.

Split and trim, removing the heads and tails of the fish. Let the fish soak four hours in seasoned oil and vinegar. Use salt, pepper, sliced onion, and chopped parsley. Drain and dust them with flour and fry them in oil. Serve crisp and hot.

TO HELEN

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE fabric of your friendship never wears,
Nor does it gather dust and pull apart,
It falls with tenderness upon the cares
That press, when evening comes, upon my heart.
It is a shawl to keep my shoulders warm
When all the world is cold, and chill winds blow.
It is protection from the winter storm,
And shade in summer from the hot sun's glow.

The fabric of your friendship, woven fine
With all the beauty of your lovely thought,
Embroidered in an Infinite design
By wisdom that your garnered years have taught,
Is to my life the same as the blue sky
To the tired earth—a background that is sure.
When all these lovely years have drifted by,
The fabric of your friendship will endure.

QUESTION BOX
By ED WYNN . . . The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I read in the newspapers that the Statue of Liberty's right hand measures 11½ inches. Is that true and if so why did they make it just 11½ inches?

Yours truly,
HUGH GOTTA SHOWME.

Answer: Her hand was made 11½ inches long because the sculptor knew that if he made her hand 12 inches long it would have been a foot.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

For years I have watched kettles on a stove just to see the steam come out. It has always fascinated me and yet, I must admit, I cannot understand what makes it come out. Please explain to me why the steam comes out of the kettle.

Yours truly,
I. B. DARNED.

Answer: The reason steam comes out of a kettle is simply so a wife can open her husband's letters without the husband knowing it.

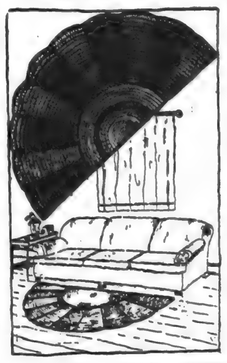
HIGHLY POPULAR "FAN" RAG RUG

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



This "Fan" rug rug has attracted a lot of attention and to our knowledge quite a few home rug makers have made one or more like it. It must be seen to be appreciated. Made up in brilliant colors, the panels in alternating light and dark shades and the center of dark green and red, this rug is bound to catch the attention of anyone upon entering the room. This model measures 58 inches across and 30 inches deep, and requires about four pounds of material to crochet. The ten panels are made first and then crocheted together. The center half circle is made to fit opening for it and in turn is slip stitched into space.

This beautiful rug is one of the twenty handmade rugs shown in colors in rug book No. 24.

If handmade rag rugs interest you send us 15c for this book of rugs with instructions, and you will receive it by mail postpaid.

GENERAL STORE RESUMES PLACE IN COMMUNITY

The general store is coming back, according to the reports of wholesale grocers from the Middle West, but it is a different institution from that which had a prominent place in the earlier days of merchandising and community life.

No longer is the cracker barrel open, the pot-bellied stove is conspicuous by its absence, and the box, half filled with sawdust, that was a combination cuspidor and waste-basket, is no more, says the Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch.

But in these newer general stores you can buy anything from a bottle of patent medicine to a postage stamp. To term them department stores is not correct, even though the atmosphere of the establishment in the old general store is gone.

The proprietors are in some cases men whose forebears were the storekeepers of the district in the days when houses and other buildings were made of the tough prairie sod.

The idea for small town merchandising needs is thus proven sound again. Not alone did the store supply the wants of the customers in the early days, but it was the forum of discussion on politics, religion and the state of life, manners and morals in the community in which the store was located. And the proprietor was as like as not to be the leader in community politics and in some cases religion.

Nowadays there are many other places where people may meet to discuss things. The movies provided the entertainment and the automobile the means to move about for wider horizons.

Yet many of the older generation would give a great deal to have the chance to spend a few hours again in that old general store they remember from the days of their youth.

WOUND IN HEART NO LONGER HELD AS SURE DEATH

To be shot or stabbed through the heart used to be considered certain death, and, though it is still a very effective way of killing either man or beast, research has proved that even the heart can be dealt with surgically.

A domestic servant in Mexico City, while going about her work, fell from the second floor into the street, and a knife she was carrying pierced her heart and remained embedded. In what seemed a hopeless effort to save her, the doctors at the nearest Red Cross center removed both knife and heart. For five minutes they were engaged in sewing up the heart and replacing it, yet so far from life being extinct, the patient, in spite of a serious pleurisy complication, recovered and returned to her duties apparently little the worse for her accident.

During the war, a man in hospital complained of severe pains in the region of the heart. X-rays showed a hard substance, and in the course of the operation which followed, the surgeon had to put his hand behind the heart and take away with his fingers the piece of shrapnel—about the size of a cent—which was there. During this process air was pumped into the man's lungs, and he recovered.

A rabbi was stabbed by a negro through the heart. The surgeons exposed it, and a saline solution was injected to replace the blood between pulsations. The left ventrical was then stitched up, and the patient's life was saved.

About the same time much interest was evoked by the successful operation of stitching up the heart of a Leeds butcher who was accidentally stabbed. A still more complicated case occurred of a man who was brought into a hospital with a revolver shot wound. The heart was exposed, and a bullet, found embedded in the thick flesh of the apex, was successfully removed.—London Tit-Bits.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering impurities from the blood stream. But kidneys get functionally disturbed—lag in their work—fail to remove the poisonous body wastes.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, attacks of dizziness, burning, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains; feel "all worn out."

Don't delay! For the quicker you get rid of these poisons, the better your chances of good health.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They tend to promote normal functioning of the kidneys; should help them pass off the irritating poisons. Doan's are recommended by users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

MORTUARY

COBURN

Alice L. Wyers Coburn, daughter of Joseph and Mary Jane Wyers, was born May 19, 1861, and departed this life April 10, 1935, aged 73 years, 10 months and 19 days.

She was united in marriage with Calvin Coburn in the year 1879. To this union were born seven children, four of whom passed on in the age of infancy.

She is survived by her husband, Calvin Coburn; two daughters, Mrs. Ruby Loomis of Hicksville, Mrs. Dalphia Wade, of Butler, and one son, Earl, of St. Joe; also fourteen grandchildren and eleven great grandchildren.

She united with the Church of Christ in Hicksville, at the age of seventeen, and remained faithful throughout her life.

MEEK

Kenneth Meek, aged 33 years, a son of Sherman Meek, former trustee of Newville township, residing half way between St. Joe and Hicksville, died Wednesday morning at the Dr. J. A. Sonders hospital in Auburn from septicaemia, pneumonia and complications. He had been a patient in the hospital for four weeks. For several days hope had been given up for his recovery.

The deceased had just commenced to move into his own home adjoining the Meek farm on the south, when taken ill. He is married and leaves a wife and two-year old son, Richard. The wife being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Baker of Scipio. He is also survived by the father, three brothers, Clarence Meek, living at home, Horace Meek of Dearborn, Mich., and John Meek, of Marshall, Mich. There is also a sister, Luella Meek, who lives on the farm with her father.

Mr. Meek was a member of the North Scipio Methodist Church. The funeral was held at 2:30 o'clock EST Friday afternoon from the Scipio Church and burial made in the cemetery nearby.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAY 2, 1935 NUMBER 18

SOME NEW AUTO LAWS IN EFFECT

Failure of the owner of a motor vehicle to apply for a title within five days now carries a delinquent penalty of $2.00. Many hundreds of persons have acquired cars and accepted assigned titles who have failed to procure title in their own name until the end of the year when new plates had to be secured. The practice has created a "jam of business during the plate selling season that should not exist.

Application for title issued by dealers on new cars likewise must be presented within five days or become subject to the delinquency fee of $2.00. The penalty fee is in addition to the regular 50 cent charge for issuing title.

Another new law provides that application for plates must be made at the time title is applied for, it being presumed that the vehicle is to be operated upon the streets and highways. Another corrective measure says that the Bureau of Motor Vehicles is not now permitted to issue plates when it appears that the vehicle as operated with improper registration during a previous plate period until the owner pays the fee for the period in which he did so unlawfully operate.

Plates are sold at half price on and after August 1st of each year and this new law means that when a motor vehicle is operated prior to August 1st on improper plates then the owner can not obtain plates at half price after August 1st but must pay for the full year.

Registered dealers are now required to make report of the sales of all new and used cars within five days to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. The bureau will use these reports to disclose those owners who have not secured title in their own name or reported the transfer of plates through the Indianapolis office.

The new junk title law requires the holder of a title to a motor vehicle which has been junked to write the word "junk" across the face of the title and deliver it to the state. Surrendor of the title may be made to any one of the 140 branches or to any department in the State House. The law will enable the department to purge its files of the useless records now being cared for. The department has in file approximately 2,400,000 titles and it is believed that a half million of these items are records of cars that have been junked.

Who said the letter "Z" is nothing but an ornament? A southern family of 11 brothers and sisters by the name of Cox have the following first names: Zadock, Zeber, Zilpy, Zula, Zenobia, Zeronial, Zesley, Zeola, Zelbert, and Zada.

LARRY BRANDON TO ADDRESS WORKERS

The spring county council of Sunday School officers and workers will be held at the Auburn Christian Church, Sunday, May 19, at 2:30, Standard Time.

Hon. Larry Brandon will bring a very important message for church folks and everyone interested should plan to spend the afternoon in this meeting.

Divisional meetings will be held at the close of the mass meeting, where every school worker will receive information concerning their particular official duties.

Plan to be there if you are an officer.

PLANS FOR WHEAT CONTROL VOTE ON MAY 25 DISCUSSED

County Agent T. E. Myers, Harry Shull, Orlo Deetz and Arthur Loutzenhiser, the three latter, members of the DeKalb county wheat control board, returned Thursday night after attending a meeting of wheat control associations at Columbia City. Elkhart, LaGrange, Steuben, Noble, Kosciusko, Allen, Adams, Wells, Whitley, Huntington and DeKalb counties were represented at the meeting at which plans were outlined for the referendum to be conducted for wheat growers on May 25.

The referendum will be held to determine whether or not the AAA's effort to help producers balance wheat production with consumption is desired. Commencing on Monday night, May 6th, a series of educational meetings will be held in each township in DeKalb county.

If a favorable vote is cast, the AAA will offer a new contract to wheat growers.

INTERURBAN TO CONTINUE SERVICE

Announcement was made Saturday by the Indiana Public Service commission of its decision to postpone action for six months upon the petition presented by the Indiana Service Corporation at the city hall in Garrett on March 27 for the right to curtail its service on the line north from Fort Wayne.

The decision was favorably received by residents and city officials of Garrett, Kendallville, Auburn, and Waterloo, cities directly concerned with the traction service, as in the following six months it is thought that business men and other citizens can show a decided increase in the use of the lines for freight and passenger service.

PEOPLE FAVOR THE CHANGE OF TIME

Daylight Saving Time has already been adopted by many in St. Joe, so as to be in line with the rest of the world. More people are eexpressing themselves in favor of this annual change than ever before. No public announcement can be made as to the town board action on this matter until after their meeting next Monday.

There is no reason why St. Joe should be out of joint with the entire surrounding towns, just to be on Standard Time. If you don't care to get up any earlier stay in bed, if you insist on eating but one meal a day, no one will force you to eat more, but if you are going to Chicago on the B. & O. you will have to be at the station on schedule or stay at home.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A group of friends gathered at the home of Virgil Freeburn on Monday night, April 29 to help Mrs. Freeburn celebrate her thirty-eighth birthday.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cake, cookies, pickles and lemonade were served.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs C. H. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. James Musser and son, Robert, Robert Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carpenter and daughter, Patricia, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Todd Kosht, Ben Kosht and Mrs. Elizabeth Kosht.

All had a very good time, the guests departing at a late hour.

Needed Relief for Indiana

Indiana needs $8,500,000 a month from the government's $4,880,000,000 work-relief fund to re-employ 90,000 family heads, Gov. Paul V. McNutt informed Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. The program he projected, McNutt said, would end direct relief in Indiana except for persons unable to work.

YOUTH FINED FOR COWARDLY TRICK

Robert Boone, 19, Objected To Another Young Man Calling on Girl at St. Joe

Robert Boone, 19, of Hicksville, O., admitted in Justice of the Peace Chester J. Hodge's court in Auburn Friday that he committed a cowardly trick when he struck Fred Miller, 19, of Harlan, Thursday night.

The two youths had been calling on the same girl at St. Joe. Boone was talking to the girl in front of her home Thursday evening when Miller arrived. Boone told Miller he wanted to talk to him and they started down the road. When they had gone a short distance Miller asked Boone what he wanted and Boone retorted with an oath that he wanted Miller to fight. Miller had his hands in his pockets and without warning Boone struck him a blow in the eye with his fist. Miller sank to his knees.

An affidavit charging Boone with assault and battery was signed by Miller's father, Franklin H. Miller, a justice of the peace in Allen county. Boone was arrested by Officer Cochran of St. Joe. He readily admitted his guilt. He was fined $10 and costs, a total of $20.

The defendant's mother said she would get the money to pay the fine and costs. In the meantime, the youth was sent to jail.

CRICK—MORR

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morr on Saturday, April 27th, when their daughter, Cleota, became the bride of Mr. Raymond W. Crick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Crick, of Fort Wayne.

Following special music by Miss Eloise Draggoo on the piano, the ceremony was solemnized by Rev. Wm. Koehnlein, of St. Joe. The couple was attended by Miss Marjorie Crick, sister of the groom, and Robert Morr, brother of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of the St. Joe High School, of Tri-State College at Angola and has had special training at Ball State College at Muncie. After teaching in the rural schools of DeKalb and Allen counties, she has been teaching in the St. Joe schools in the intermediate grades.

The groom is a graduate of South Side High School and the General Electric Apprentice School of Fort Wayne. He has also received his bachelor's and master's degrees in Electrical Engineering at Purdue University and is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. He is employed as an inspector at the Delco-Remy Company at Anderson, Indiana.

Those attending the wedding beside the above mentioned were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Crick and sons, Robert and Junior, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown and son, Fritz, and Harry Proxmire, of Fort Wayne, Miss Josephine Getts, of Hamilton, Miss Freida Wyatt, of Auburn, Mrs. Wm. Koehnlein, of St. Joe, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morr and son, Ellsworth and Marshall Morr.

The couple is at home at 2920 Lynn Street, Anderson, Indiana.

Free Clinic Next Wednesday

On Wednesday, May 8, there will be held a Free Clinic at the Irene Byron Clinic, 325 E. 9th Street, Auburn, from 9:30 to 11:00 A. M., and from 1:30 to 3:30 P. M. The clinic is to be held by the DeKalb County Tuberculosis Association and will be held on Daylight Saving Time. Please don't forget.

Dam Out Loers River

With the going out of the Spencerville dam, at the north side, the water has been lowered in the St. Joe river at least two feet at the Riverside cemetery. Should we experience a drought this summer the fish will hardly have live water sufficient to thrive in. Little did we realize the importance of this dam in the past years, which made the old St. Joe a beautiful stream in many places and afforded picnickers a place for boating, bathing and fishing.

In Gubernatorial Race

James D. Adams seems to be the likely gubernatorial candidate for the Democrats. Adams, former member of the state committee, is a newspaper publisher and has scored a brilliant record as chairman of the roads body, according to his supporters. Gov. McNutt will not give the go sign to any candidate until the eve of the 1936 convention, according to all indications. This is probably due to serve as a check to keep them in line.

FREE of GERMS and PESTS...

Sterilized Soil Saves Work and Money

All greenhouses and hotbed operators know that the damage done to plants by germs and pests harbored in the soil amounts to a sum of money difficult to calculate. The soil naturally presents a barrier against fumigation and chemical disinfectants, so that heat is the only practical and effective method of freeing it of the diseases and pests that attack plants.

Electric heat, controlled by a thermostat, is ready at the turn of a switch to kill these pests and diseases, and where the moisture content is uniform in all parts of the soil, an even temperature can be maintained—which is extremely difficult with other methods of soil sterilization.

Let us tell you more about this one hundred per cent effective method of killing destructive bodies in soil.

VALEDICTORIAN'S ADDRESS AT ST. JOE HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

Earl William Kinsey Makes A Splendid Address At Close of School Year

When a task is assigned, one must either accept or perform, or decline. Even though the position of valedictorian is unsought, the appointment is a call that one cannot refuse.

So mine is the pain and pleasure of speaking farewells in the name of the class of '35. The pain is in the parting and the pleasure is the hope of gerater things to come. Sustaining and inspiring me in this thought is our class motto: "Forward ever, backward never."

There is some worthy task in life for each one of us that will exactly fit us and our first concern and effort must be to find it.

An Italian, named Odriano Tilgher, has written a book called "Work—what it has meant to men through the ages." The book has been translated by an American writer, Dorothy Canfield Fisher. It reveals that to the Greeks work was a curse. Homer thought the gods hated mankind, and out of spite condemned them to toil. Xenophon called work the painful price which the gods charge for the goods of life.

The ideas of the Romans were similar. Work was the occupation of slaves. It was necessary to have a mass of toiling, hopeless beings in order that a few fortunate spirits might be free to develope the finer activities of life. The Hebrews pictured Jehovah as burning Adam out of a garden of idleness and imposing labor on him and his descendants as a penalty of disobedience.

We inherited something of this ancient thinking, plus a good deal of the Puritan idea that what ever is pleasant and beauiful must be wrong—that it is man's business in solemnity and sadness to "work out his own Salvation."

The truth is that work is the magic which transforms us from dull beings into people worth while.

It is an important fact that honest jobs are a gift from Heaven. Our present turbulent times have taught us that people who are jobless do no want money; they do not want free food or free rent or free anything. They want work. They want the feeling that they are needed; that they are an essential and self-respecting part of the scheme of life.

Work is not a penalty; it is not even a duty; it is a privilege. The history of all progress is the history of work. In proof of this statement let us compare our country today with the period of Washington. Listen to a bit of news:

"President George Washington went over to Elizabethtown yesterday to meet Mrs. Washington, and on their return they landed at Peck's Slip.

"Mrs. Washington was ten days making the journey from Mount Vernon to New York. She passed through Philadelphia, a flourishing town, with a more exclusive society than New York.

"A large crowd welcomed President Washington and his wife and then accompanied them to No. 3 Cherrie Street where those who had a claim to elegance and refinement gathered in the large, square room and held a reception."

Then eighty years later in 1842 the first bathtub was installed in a home in Cincinnati.

In 1843 the city of Philadelphia passed a public ordinance that there should be no bathing in bath tubs between November 1st and March 1st.

Two years later, 1845, Boston made it unlawful to use a bath tub without a physician's perscription.

In New York the punch bowl was five times bigger than the wash basin.

In those days there were few conveniences and scarcely any comforts to be found save a shade tree in Summer and a log fire in Winter.

Electricity was a shocking sight. Steam toyed with the tea kettle lid. Ships drifed in a calm and prairie schooners were the trunk lines. The telephone, telegraph and radio were sleeping. The press was an almanac, the pulpit a pall.

Punch and Judy performed above a calico curtain. Oil was known as ooze, coal was a curiosity and gas the polititions's torch. The West was a wilderness. Melodeons furnished music, candles gave little light and cellars were used for cyclones. Salt pork for breakfast, jerked beef for dinner, corn mush for supper.

Women wore bustles, men chewed tobacco and the boys hunted muskrats. Night ended at nine and morning began at four. Folks slept on straw ticks and every bedroom had a bucket in case of fire.

It is but a short time from the Redmen of yesterday to the supermen of today. Some people seem to feel that we have reached the summit of science and the peak of progress, but we have only just begun to climb. This is still a country where we can rise and remain there if we are willing to pay the price of all achievement—intelligent industry.

We are all given different abilities for different and definite work. Can we doubt this? God has proved this plan in the world of nature. Surely he would not do less for the human race. Let us briefly consider the relationship of trees to mankind.

Trees formed the first temple for man and what peaceful, happy moments we may have in their sheltering shade. A tree passes through the varicus stages of life. Step by step it approaches death. How human! The higher the willow sends its shade, the lowlier droops its boughs. Who would be so unwise as to try to hold back the sapling with the fallen trunk of its grand sire? What a direct encouragement to youth!

The aspen that shows so many shades—the fir tree, dark and high against the sky—the silver-shafted palm—the splendid spruce—the lonely pine. What a variety. How sturdily the old oak roars as it wrestles with the wind. How the storm causes the beech to shriek, the elm to send out a long, deep groan and the ash to moan. How human are trees!

In the quiet peaceful valleys we find the modest trees, but up on the mountain side are the branchless, barkless, blighted maples that are stricken by storm, but still dare the unequal fight.

Tormented tamaracks, humped hemlocks, all twisted, distorted, they crouch and creep over the gray granite bowlders, sending their crooked roots through the seams of a split rock in a desperate struggle to survive. How true of some humans!

We may be a member of the oak family, a branch of the birch clan or a sprig of the spruce. The point is, whatever we are, let us be what we are—be ourselves. The world needs both the pine and the palm. It needs every member of this class for creative work and useful service.

On every hand we hear that we are leaving school at an inopportune time. That the economic distress and the rumblings of war make a discouraging time for youth. But surely there is a ray of hope if we look for it. And I am reminded of the time when the world was dark and full of trouble and how, all unexpectedly came the greatest message of joy that the world has ever known.

"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night. And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy....."

Very old, very familiar verses but in comparing the troubles of that time with our troubles of today I received some thoughts from the verses that were new to me and I wonder if they have occurred to you.

At what hour did this great good news arrive? Not at ten o'clock in the morning, when everyone might have seen. Not in the full radiance of high noon. It came at night. In the middle of the night, when most people had gone to bed, tired by the day's work, hopeless about the morrow, expecting nothing important—in the hour of darkness and weariness—that was when the glory shone and the song was heard. To whom did the good tidings come?

The good news came to men at work. To men in the garments of toil; to men who, whether times were good or bad, were carrying on. They saw and heard. They were the first to know.

Perhaps it is still night with us but good news comes in the night. And it comes to those who are doing their best—carrying on with their duties—tending their sheep.

In our farewell we pay tribute to you parents, to you, our teachers in the school, to the teachers in the church and all others in the community who have carried on. Our parents and teachers have faithfully tended us—their sheep. They have sacrificed and worked in the night that we might have this hour of triumph.

Classmates, as we leave these familiar walls for the last time as Seniors of this High School, let us go out and find a field in which to work. Let us find a place for useful service. Let us tend the sheep.

MRS. A. W. TROSTEL HAS SPINE OPERATION

Mrs. Abner Trostel was operated on at the Garrett hospital Wednesday morning for spine trouble revealed in an X-ray picture this week. Some fourteen years ago she fell, in the barn, injuring the base of the spine, and the examination revealed about three inches broken off. She has been poorly for months.

Pride in one's car is understandable but there is no excuse for "putting it through its paces" on the public highways. Such recklessness invites disaster.

Good drivers realize that a car's speed and power is there for their protection.

COVER

Peter B. Cover died Monday morning at 2 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Louis Washler, east of Spencerville, with whom he had made his home for about ten years. He was 72 years of age. The deceased had been in poor health for some time and for eight weeks was bedfast as the result of complications.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon a t 2:30 o'clock EST from the Church of Christ at West Milford, Ohio, of which he was a member. Rev. Walter Coburn officiated and burial was made in the cemetery at Edgerton, Ohio. The body remained at the Roscoe Walter funeral home at Spencerville until Tuesday noon when it was removed to the Washler home.

Mr. Cover, a retired farmer, resided all his life near West Milford until he went to live with his daughter. His wife died in 1912. Surviving besides Mrs. Washler, is another daughter, Mrs. Pearl Lay, of Hicksville, Ohio. A brother, David Cover and sister, Miss Blanche Cover, reside in Hicksville also. He has a brother in Portland, Oregon and a sister in Clarkston, Mich. There are three grandchildren.

TIMMERMAN

John Timmerman, a prominent resident of the southern part of DeKalb copnty, and active member of the Masonic fraternity, living west of Spencerville, died Thursday night at 9 o'clock in the Dr. Bonnell Souder hospital in Auburn after an illness of only a week.

Pneumonia, later developing into complications, caused his death at the age of 67 years, 5 months and 10 days. He was taken Sunday, April 21, to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Forrest Gerig of 712 South Indiana Avenue, Auburn, but he did not improve and on Monday he was removed to the hospital. Hope for his recovery was abandoned almost from the first.

Born in Allen county, the deceased had resided on his farm one mile west of Spencerville for 33 years. He was united in marriage on September 6, 1890 to Mary Alberta Krise, a resident of Concord township. She died on February 13, 1934.

To Mr. and Mrs. Timmerman were born three children, one of whom, a daughter, died in infancy. Those surviving are Mrs. Gerig of Auburn and Charles Timmerman, a son, residing on the parental farm. There are one brother and three sisters surviving, Bert Timmerman, of near Spencerville, Mrs. Anna Koch, Mrs. Nan Lysher and Mrs. Charles Jackson, of St. Joe. Six grandchildren also survive.

Mr. Timmerman was a member of the Spencerville lodge of Free & Accepted Masons and was an active worker in this organization.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock CST from the late home and burial made in Woodlawn cemetery near Auburn.

Sportsmanship Award at Annual 500-Mile Race Inspired By Driver of Flaming Car

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The driver of a flaming car which might have headed into the grand stands is responsible for one of the most coveted and unusual awards made yearly at the 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway May 30 — the Sportsmanship Trophy.

In 1927 the car which the late Norman Batten was driving caught fire as it came into the back stretch. Batten cut his power and applied the brakes to slow it down and then remained aboard, foot resting on the rear axles, until it came to a dead stop. He was severely burned as the above picture shows. A collection was taken on the grounds and he was awarded the purse for his courage which was to be put to the supreme test a year later when he surrendered his seat in a life boat to a woman passenger and perished in the sinking of the S. S. Vestris. The award became a permanent fixture after the 1927 race.

Ira Hall won it in 1933 when he pinned his wrecked car to the upper wall with his shoulders and held it there for ten minutes, preventing it from rolling down into the swift moving traffic.

Gene Haustein won it last year when he sacrificed his chances in the race and crashed attempting to miss another car spinning on the track.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAY 9, 1935 NUMBER 19

DEATH OF FORMER COMMISSIONER DANNELLS

Willis A. Dannels, former county commissioner, died suddenly Friday afternoon at 4:30. The deceased was assisting Kenneth Smith, deputy surveyor, stake out lines on the Leas road a mile and a half southeast of Waterloo. They had finished the day's work and were walking along the highway to Mr. Smith's car to return to Auburn. As they talked, Mr. Dannells suddenly fell forward on his face.

In the fall of 1908 Mr. Dannells was elected a member of the board of county commissioners on the Democrat ticket. In 1910 he was re-elected for a three-year term which expired on January 1, 1915. To Mr. Dannells is given the credit for the DeKalb county court house. During his first term the question of building a new county building was discussed. One member of the board of commissioners was in favor and the other member refused to vote either way. Mr. Dannells cast the deciding vote.

DESTROY 446 ILLEGAL FISH NETS AND TRAPS

A thirty-day campaign by game wardens against illegal devices for the taking of fish from Indiana waters led to the destruction of 280 D-nets and 166 fish traps. A majority of the nets and traps were taken along the Wabash and White Rivers with a few found on northern Indiana rivers and lakes. The drive against the use of illegal devices for the taking of fish from Indiana waters will be continued, increasing the sport of the law-abiding fisherman.

BUTLER SCHOOL SUFFERS FIRE

The Butler public schools sustained a loss of between $10,000 and $15,000 from a fire Sunday night which completely destroyed the heating plant and one room on the first floor of the old school building which was directly over the boiler room. The damage is covered by insurance. The fire was discovered about midnight and started in the janitor's supply room. It is not known whether school will continue for the remaining two weeks or not.

ORGANIZE FOR MEMORIAL DAY

At a meeting of the Ex-Service men held Friday night, the following officers were chosen to head the Memorial Day plans for St. Joe observance:

MAY ELIMINATE DANGEOUR CROSSINGS IN COUNTY

A number of dangerous grade crossings in this territory are on the program of the state highway commission for elimination under the new federal work relief set-up.

These include the following: state road No. 427, Baltimore & Ohio railroad, just south of Auburn; state road 327, New York Central, at Corunna; state road 27, five miles south of Garrett, New York Central, Fort Wayne-Jackson branch; state road No. 1, .15 mile south of the DeKalb-Allen county line, Wabash railway; state road No. 3, .15 mile north of the DeKalb-Allen county line, G. R. & I.; state road No. 3 at Avilla, Baltimore & Ohio; state road No. 2 at Kimmell, Baltimore & Ohio; state road No. 6 at Kendallville, G. R. & I.; state road No. 6 at Waterloo, New York Central; state road No. 6 at Butler, Wabash railway; state road No. 20 at LaGrange, G. R. & I.; state road No. 27 at Monmouth, G. R. & I.; state road No. 224 west of Decatur, Erie railroad; and the opening of Clinton Street beneath the Pennsylvania and Wabash railroads at Fort Wayne.

The total number of hazardous crossings in the list prepared for the commission is about 160, but no decision will be made as to which will be eliminated until the federal authorities make an allotment of funds.

LARRY BRANDON TO ADDRESS WORKERS

The spring county council of Sunday School officers and workers will be held at the Auburn Christian Church, Sunday, May 19, at 2:30, Standard Time.

Hon. Larry Brandon will bring a very important message for church folks and everyone interested should plan to spend the afternoon in this meeting.

Divisional meetings will be held at the close of the mass meeting, where every school worker will receive information concerning their particular official duties.

Plan to be there if you are an officer.

TRACE RELATIONSHIP TO JOHN BROWN

"A statue of John Brown, who became famous in Civil War days and in the anti-slavery agitation which preceded, has been erected in John Brown Memorial Park at Osawatomie, Kan., and it will be dedicated on Thursday, May 9. J. Glenn Miller, a distant relative of John Brown, has received an invitation to the unveiling. Mr. Miller's great grandmother, Aralina Brown Bartlett, was a sister of John Brown. Mr. Miller has a large autographed portrait of John Brown which was given him recently by one of his uncles who resides in the east and Wednesday he received a postal card view with the inscription on the statue."—The Ordway New Era, May 3.

The portrait referred to was given Mr. Miller by George Bartlett, of Fort Wayne, upon his visit here only a few weeks ago. He hung it in his office at Ordway and it caused considerable comment, and thru it Mr. Miller was given an invitation to the unveiling mentioned above.

Perfection in Its Simplicity

PATTERN 2092

Every now and then some simple idea comes along and creates a furor—and every one wonders why it hadn't happened before! Like this perfectly grand house dress which has been designed. Its long coat lines make one appear slim as a rail while at work about the house, and it gives much freedom of movement. Its greatest feature, of course, is the fact you can slip it on and not be bothered by mussing your hair or twisting your neck—just a dive into it and it's on. It is attractive in colored cotton broadcloth, percale or pique print, substantial materials lending themselves well to its coat lines.

Pattern 2092 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 4¼ yards 36 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

Ancient Sumerian Statues Shown in Chicago

THESE Sumerian statues, 5,000 years old, exhibiting considerable artistic competence, have been placed in the museum of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago. They are part of a hoard of sacred images without parallel among known Babylonian works of art, and were discovered by the Iraq expedition of the Oriental institute, under the field directorship of Prof. Henri Frankfort at Tell Asmar and Khafaje, within 25 miles of Bagdad, Iraq. Renovation of the shrine of the god of Abu, Lord of Fertility, at Tell Asmar, sometime between 3000 and 2900 B. C., saved a large number of the statues. Because they had been consecrated they could not be thrown away or sold, and so they were buried under the floor of the shrine, to remain until the institute expedition uncovered them.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

DANNY CROSSES THE LAUGHING BROOK

Look long enough and hard enough,
You'll always find a way
To reach the place or get the thing
You're hoping that you may.

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE peeped out from under the tangle of matted grass back toward the Smiling Pool. Plunger the Osprey was rising higher and higher in the air and there was nothing in his great claws. It was clear that he had failed to catch the Big Pickerel.

Then He Scampered Across and Gave a Tiny Sigh of Thankfulness.

"I'm glad of it," muttered Danny, which, when you think of it, was rather funny, for the Big Pickerel had been watching for Danny himself and would have liked nothing better than to have snapped his big jaws on him. But Danny knew so well what it felt like to be hunted that though he was rather glad that the Big Pickerel had been given a fright, he was also glad that he had escaped.

Of Billy Mink, Snapper the Turtle and the Big Pickerel he could see nothing at all and rightly guessed that all were in hiding. Reddy Fox was sitting on the opposite bank, looking up at Plunger and grinning in the most provoking way.

"They've forgotten about poor little me," thought Danny and his heart stopped pit-a-patting quite so fast. "The thing for me to do is to keep going while the going is good. I've got to get across to the other side but I don't dare swim across the Smiling Pool. The Laughing Brook comes in right here and if I keep on following along the bank perhaps I will find a place where I can cross it without having to swim. It isn't the water but the things in the water I fear." Danny shuddered as he thought of the Big Pickerel.

As soon as he had quite recovered his breath he started on, darting from one hiding place to another, here a bunch of grass, there a big mullein leaf, yonder a piece of bark, and again a pile of sticks. He never stopped out in the open. No indeed. That would have been the very worst kind of Meadow Mouse folly!

Now the water in the Laughing Brook ran swiftly in places, leaped in merry little falls, or seemingly rested in quiet pools, but for a long, long way it offered no crossing-place for a tired little Meadow Mouse who was afraid to swim because of hungry fish who might be watching. Though he rested often, Danny grew more and more tired.

All afternoon he traveled and he was getting just a little discouraged and almost a little hopeless when just as the Black Shadows came creeping silently through the Green Forest he came to a bridge. It was only an old log which had fallen across the Laughing Brook, but for Danny it was a real bridge. He looked this way, that way and the other way. He listened with both ears. Then he scampered across and gave a tiny sigh of thankfulness. He was on the home side at last.

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN . . . The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I visited a night club, in New York, and the thing that puzzled me was how can they tell the guests from the waiters, as they both wear evening clothes?

Truly yours,
HERR TONNICK.

Answer: That is very simple. The waiters stay sober.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I've been invited to go swimming in a body of water where I heard there were a lot of sharks. Rather than be called a coward I have decided to accept the invitation. Can you tell me what to do if a shark grabs me by the leg?

Yours truly,
IKE N. FLOAT.

Answer: By all means let him have it. Never argue with a shark.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
Please explain what is meant by "The Minimum Wage"?

Truly yours,
CAL. S. THENNICKS.

Answer: The minimum wage is the money you get for "going" to work. If you want more money, why then of course, you have to work after you get to where you are "going."

Dear Mr. Wynn:
While walking along the railroad tracks I happened to look to one side and there I saw three men sleeping on piles of coal, which had been taken from freight cars the day before. What do you make out of that?

Yours truly,
N. GINEER.

Answer: They were probably laying in their winter's coal.

MINUTE MAKE-UPS By V. V.

Liquid powder must be applied properly if it is to give that smooth, well-powdered look. Use a small sponge—not your fingers—and put it on smoothly and evenly, never letting it accumulate in driblets or become spotty and thin on your neck. It's a grand foundation for your evening make-up.

WOOL STREET DRESS

This charming street dress of blue wool has an unusual color combination destined to be popular this season. The leather belt is of darker blue and the blouse peeking out is of red silk. The blue Milan straw hat is to match.

"A lot of us kick about the length of church services," says pious Polly "while others don't care how late they sleep Sunday mornings."

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

VARIOUS GOOD THINGS

A SALAD may be made from so many different food combinations that one need never be at a loss for one. An apple, a few dates, a slice of mild onion, will make a most tasty combination. A slice of tomato, topped with chopped onion and celery, or chopped cucumber and onion, a bit of chopped green pepper and any dressing at hand will make another.

Arrange alternate slices of orange and tomato on lettuce. Sprinkle with finely chopped celery and serve with french dressing.

Coffee Souffle.

Scald one cupful of milk with one tablespoonful of coffee and strain. Add four and one-half tablespoonfuls of tapioca, a dash of salt, and cook until the tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Now add one-third of a cupful of sugar, cool, add three beaten egg yolks and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake in hot water in a moderate oven for one hour. Serve with:

Custard Sauce.

Combine one and one-half cupfuls of milk, three egg yolks beaten slightly, one-third of a cupful of sugar, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of vanilla, added after the above mixture has cooked in a double boiler until the mixture coats the spoon. Chill, fold in one-fourth of a cupful of cream just before serving.

Crab Mornay.

Pour three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice over one-half pound of crab meat. Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add the crab meat, one teaspoonful of salt, two chopped red peppers and a dash of white pepper. Cook for 20 minutes.

Honeymoon Divinity.

Boil one cupful of honey, two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of orange juice until it forms a soft ball in cold water, or when it reaches 240 F. on the candy thermometer. Remove from the fire and pour over two stiffly beaten egg whites. Beat until thick, add two cupfuls of chopped raisins and 20 marshmallows shredded. Cut into squares before it hardens.

We're Going to the Circus!

By ANNE CAMPBELL

WE'RE going to the circus!
We'll sit in the front row.
We'll take in the concessions,
And see the Wild West show.
It's to oblige the children!
That's what we always say,
But grown-ups are all happy
When it is Circus day!

I thought I loved the circus,
When, as a small town girl,
I watched the glittering parade,
The gilded, motley whirl;
But circuses afforded
Only a little joy
Compared with this enchantment,
Shared with my girl and boy.

We're going to the circus!
We'll take the neighborhood.
There's Pat and Phil and Barry,
And Dick, if he is good.
And as I buy them peanuts,
And share their childish seat,
I'll know that youth is lovely,
But growing old is best!

Second to Strike Oil

Colorado was the second state to strike oil in the United States.

Do YOU Know—

That until the invention of matches, fire-making in the American colonies was quite a laborious task. The Indian produced fire by twirling a stick held firmly against a piece of wood. To give the stick a rapid motion he wrapped a bow-string about it and then drew the bow swiftly to and fro. The white settlers' method was the striking together of flint and steel.

Shoppers Seek Personality Styles

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A "PEPPY, fair and forty" lady who is "all dressed up" in a kittenish, flapperish way—youth clad in fashions sophisticated beyond its years—colors that make blonds look anemic and ashen or tones and tints that cause brunettes to lose glamour—hats with impossible head sizes, too little for the unbobbed, too big for shorn locks—well, what of it, why paint so crude, so unkind a picture?

Merely by way of contrast, dear reader, for the new spring and summer fashions are a direct denial to everything we have said in the foregoing paragraph. What is actually happening is that our fashion experts have sensed the need of gently, firmly and subtly leading women in the direction they should go in the fine art of dress. Which is why we are hearing so much these days in regard to the outstanding importance of personality fashions.

Among our modern fashion educators personality in dress ranks as a theme of major importance. Have you not noticed the signs of the times yourself? The courtesy and class-you-at-a-glance manner with which you are ushered to this or that specialized department the moment you step foot in a fashion emporium?

This is, indeed, a happy era which is dawning for shoppers in that dress-designers and coat and suit makers have become that personality-conscious they are making it their goal to create fashions that will tune perfectly to each and everybody's particular type. The modes here pictured are an outgrowth of this noble endeavor. They silence the lament of the middle-aged and matron who for years have been voicing complaint that they are not having a "fair deal" when it comes to clothes they "can wear," and that all the attention is concentrated on ingenue type. Here they are right before your very eyes, fashions that couldn't possibly be more perfectly tuned to the needs and demands of gentlewomen who have graduated into the alumnae of fashion's smart set.

These stunning models for the up-to-the-moment-in-style matron were selected for our illustration from among a galaxy of fascinating styles as shown during a "personality fashions" revue which the Chicago wholesale market council presented at a midwest conference gala dinner. The fashion themes included clothes for the youthful matron, for matrons more advanced, for slender girlish ingenue types, for the larger young woman, for the outdoor and sports girl, for tall blond types and for medium-tall brunettes. The moral to this story on personality fashions is, if while en tour in the shops fashion-seeking you do not see what you want, ask for it. It's there tuned to your individuality, simply awaiting your call.

Describing the trio of fashionable costumes for the matron as here pictured, the model to the left is a travel and street outfit especially designed for the youthful matron. It is tailored of a brown and white "broken-check" tweed in standard English cut. It may be worn equally well with dark or light accessories.

The street ensemble to the right of navy and white print silk with check sheer redingote coat is designed along simple slenderizing lines. The sailor hat adds charm.

Centered in the group is an ultra chic ensemble for the mature woman to wear to afternoon club functions or smart country club affairs. It is fashioned of a white sheer material with white and black stripe trimming.

FITTED VANITIES VERY CONVENIENT

The vanity bag has been revived and is one of the most important affairs that has been seen in a good many moons.

The new ones know a new practicability. In the first place they have been made to a great extent by people who understand vanity—the cosmeticians. They have known what to include. Nor only have they done a good job at making them practical, but they have seen that they have that other important requisite, which is beauty.

They are fashioned of velvet, of lame, of fine kidskin, of lovely silks, and even of metals. Their colors are almost unlimited, but women are usually careful, or should be, that they choose a color that will go with all party frocks. They may have a one or two sided opening, and usually hold purse, change purse, cigaret case, comb, lipstick, rouge and powder.

Jacket Lengths Will Vary; Suits Are to Fit Easily

There is a softness in the air that prepares one for the spectacle of spring clothes. Necklines are bowed, frilled, or softened, and even with classic tailleur, which is always chosen by certain types, a jabot or some other softening touch is suggested for the blouse. It is also advisable to have the blouse contrast. Even in the case of linen this idea is carried out.

With the usual exceptions, loose fitting lines prevail in the suit collections for spring, 1935. Jacket lengths vary to some degree, and so do their types.

Coat Dresses Smart

Coat dresses of black, navy blue or pepper-and-salt wools, cut on slender lines and finished with white pique collars in the form of petals or stylized flowers, are an outstanding spring fashion.

BEAUTY HINTS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The smartest women in this country as well as abroad are wearing vivid nail polish with lipstick to match. Reports from Paris and St. Moritz say that the really chic women there are matching theirs in red and yellowish red shades. Trick effects such as metallic combinations and odd color schemes have disappeared. The most fashionable colors are coral, cardinal, ruby and the "natural" which is the lightest of the yellow reds. Most Parisian beauticians prefer to cover the entire nail with polish instead of outlining the moon and tip. Some fashionable New Yorkers follow this mode, while others prefer the trim look which white moons and tips achieve. The young woman pictured has that look of distinction which perfect grooming always gives. She appreciates the enhancement which artfully colored lips and fingertips add to a chic ensemble. Notice the costume jewelry set which she is wearing. It includes a clip on her stitched crepe hat with a duplicate clip at her throat and a bracelet to match.

A Matter of Color

By HAL G. VERMES

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate WNU Service.

I HEARD of all kinds of figure men in my day but nobody like Roaring Reggie. There was the dizzy dame at Belmont who looked over the nags in the stables and then cracked down her cherries on the bangtail with the dressiest mane. And, of course, there's plenty of bets on the hide carrying the best looking rider.

But this story is about Roaring Reggie and the system he worked out that would have worked all the time if it would of, by which I mean Reggie would of made him a barrel of cherries if only.

But to begin at the starting gate, there we was at the Whoosh oval, where anything goes, Beezer Bertie, Harry the Pinhead, Mudder McMork and me. We're looking over the field and keeping our hands in our pockets until we see something that will pay plenty. We're tight on our cherries this day because we ain't got a grand between us—frankly, we don't own half a grand. In fact, we can perhaps push a century note together if we wet our hair plenty.

I'm serious thinking what we're going to do to pick us very much more cherries when this Roaring Reggie comes up to us at a canter so happy that it hurts me to look at him. Seems like he's a friend of Mudder McMork's but that don't mean he's somebody, because McMork knows anybody. Anyway, we listen to his spiel because it don't cost any cherries. And seems like this Reggie boy is a new kind of a dopester. He's got a system which is crazy enough to look good to Mudder McMork who eats anything up even if it's spinach. After listening, I'm laughing all over, but in 1.35 flat, McMork, who would be dumber if he was dead, sells the system to Harry the Pinhead and Beezer Bertie.

What can't I do then? I can't do nothing because the odds are against me and, as Bertie effectively points out with his beezer, I am carrying the light end of the pool and ain't got no say in the matter, anyway.

Well, what Reggie is roaring about is the positive payoff in a run-around for maidens that is due to go in a matter of minutes. The filly Reggie wants our cherries for is Susan Sevenup, who nobody ever heard of never.

And this is Reggie's system. He plies up all his cherries and plays 'em strictly on the color of the gallopers' coats. He has a fistful of facts and figures, but we ain't got time to digest them.

Bertie, Harry, and Mudder is fighting to throw their cherries away on this Susan Sevenup but I hold down the barrier while I asks this Reggie how can we lose? Which is the question I asks all tipsters, because if we can't lose, then I'm in.

So Reggie shows me the dope where in fifty-four races, bays win twenty-six times, chestnuts are on the front end only fifteen times, brown two, and black just one time. Now, what makes it sweet is that in this maiden merry-go-round, the only bay is Susan Sevenup.

"And she has to come in with the dinero," says Roaring Reggie, "because the rest of the maidens are all browns except for one black, which last will fall apart at the first turn."

The only reason I have no stable of my own today is because I am some of the people that Lincoln said you could fool all of the time. Roaring Reggie convinces me, because by this time I want to be convinced. Especially when he relates to me as follows:

"Because this filly is a stranger in the East," he says, "and she has a strong field against her, we can get fifty times over and over our money on her from a bookie what don't know any better than nothing."

While I'm thinking, Beezer, Bertie and Harry the Pinhead, are out promoting some more cherries on the cuff, and when they comes back we've got over a grand in the pool. And I have to admit that my split of fifty grand, even if it goes five ways, will keep the missus in blond hair nets for as long as she'll be a blond.

The post parade is going by then, so I ain't got no more time to think. It don't make any difference, because now Roaring Reggie has got all our cherries, and all we got left is hope. And I don't feel so good because I know that if that's all that's left afterwards, then we got a long walk back to New York.

I ain't going to tell about that race all over again because my heart ain't what it used to be. Sufficient to say that the dark horse what nobody knows cops the heat. Roaring Reggie's prize bay follows through, which just don't mean nothing to us because, of course, we put all our cherries on her nose for the long odds.

I'm thinking of visiting a cemetery just for the ride when McMork brings the glad news that the winner was a ringer, Talisman S. by name, a brown-coated gelding what was painted black to get him in this exclusive maiden event. So then the purse goes to Susan Sevenup, our filly; and before the fly bookie can leave for parts which is neither here nor there, we is filling our pants with the winning cherries.

Of course Beezer Bertie, Harry the Pinhead, and Mudder McMork is all for playing the color system from then on. But I kills that dopey idea when Roaring Reggie reveals to me private that he can't tell a bay from a chestnut because he's been color blind all his life.

Herald Silver Jubilee of Wrigley Advertising

An advertisement more than a quarter of a century old, advertising chewing gum for the Wrigley company, is now appearing in many publications. It first appeared in its present style in 1909. Its reappearance is said to set a record for the current use of an edrly advertisement design.

That a message simply and truthfully presented never loses its newness is the principle back of the Wrigley company's decision to revive this advertisement.—Adv.

Lesson in Trade Costs

Here is a story of Japanese competition: A pawnbroker in Bavaria in the Dutch East Indies accepted a new bicycle as a pledge and then found himself besieged with young men bringing him new bicycles to pawn. Inquiry showed that the price he was giving for bicycles in pawn was 40 per cent higher than the price charged by the Japanese for selling them new.—London New Statesmen.

FINGERS AS TYPE BARS

A "typewriter" that uses human fingers for type bars is the invention of an Austrian merchant. The typist dons a pair of gloves bearing several type characters, and by nimble manipulation of the fingers the desired characters are impressed on the sheet, says Popular Science Monthly. Two parallel guide rails, a small carriage bearing the typewriter ribbon, and a mechanism for automatic spacing, complete the outfit. According to the inventor, his device should be especially useful for making typed entries in books and on sheets of such a size or shape that they cannot be inserted in a standard typewriter.

Former Winners Have Chance to Set New Track Records With Victories In 1935

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—At least three former winners, two of whom may make track history, will start in the 23rd running of the annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway here on May 30.

Wild Bill Cummings who won a dashing victory last year by 27 seconds, may become the only driver to win two races in succession. Despite the heavy odds against repeating, he will be a popular favorite.

Louis Meyer, who won in 1928 and 1933 to share the two-time winner throne with the famous Tommy Milton, may become the only pilot to win three races. He came to the track with a new car last year with little chance to break it in and this year is a capable threat.

Fred Frame, who won in 1932, will again have three shots at victory, driving one of the trio himself. One of the most prolific racers in the business, competing two or three times a week the year around, Frame will bring short odds from the bettors.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1935 NUMBER 20

NEW BUS LINE IN OPERATION

Under the name, Northeastern Stages, a new bus route has been established and started operation today, between Fort Wayne, Ind., and Montpelier, Ohio, and will make two round trips daily, including Sundays and holidays.

At Fort Wayne they will have their headquarters at the Grey Hound Terminal, east of the Court House on Berry Street.

Their first stopping point out of Fort Wayne will be Cedarville at Parson's Grocery.

Leo, Warner's Hardware.

Spencerville, Gloy's Restaurant, arriving at 9:15 A. M.; 6:30 P. M. (C. S. T.)

St. Joe, Wade Inn, arriving 7:10 A. M.; 4:25 P. M. (C. S. T.)

Newville, Smith's Grocery.

Butler, Hotel.

Edgerton, Ohio.

Bryan, Ohio.

Montpelier, Ohio.

Complete information can be secured at any of the above named stations.

With the establising of this route, passengers can connect with lines out of Fort Wayne, and go to any part of the country they desire.

The way the schedule is arranged a person will have the entire day in Fort Wayne.

Mr. Shutt, who went over the route last week, is an experienced bus man and will do everything he can to give his patrons the service they desire.

Watch for the "Northeastern Stages."

ST. JOE 4-H CLUE CIRLS HAVE MEETING

The St. Joe 4-H Club held their opening meeting at the school house Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Clark, the county leader, gave a very beneficial talk, after which the following officers were elected: president, Barbara Stroh; vice president, Anna Belle Stewart; secretary, Leila Hurni; pianist, Eloise Draggoo; reporter, Christine Zonker, chorister and yell leader, Karma Jean Wilcox. A refreshment and entertainment committee was appointed for the next meeting which is to be held two weeks from Thursday at 2:00 P. M.

DISTRICT Y. P. RALLY LARGELY ATTENDED

One hundred and sixty-five young people, as members of the Kendallville District of the M. P. Church, were guests of the local church Friday evening, and were entertained at a 6:30 banquet in the gym.

In this district twelve churches are located and this meeting is held every three months. Kendallville group was awarded the attendance banner with 38 being present with New Haven and Rehoboth churches running close.

The program was given while seated at the tables, and the banquet was served by a number of the men. Pep songs were used frequently with Kendallville leadership. Hazel Stimman gave a number of readings which were well received. Mrs. C. H. Simons, of Kendallville gave a talk on the camp activities, for boys and girls, the school of methods and summer activities sponsored by the local conference.

Melville Blaising, of New Haven gave an inspirational talk for young people and in all, the best group meeting thus far was reportde by the visitors.

Rev. Koehnlein, local pastor, had charge of the program.

BUTLER GETS AID

Approval of a project for the reconditioning of the Butler school house, which was badly damaged by fire May 5, was received Monday from Indianapolis by the county FERA office in the Auburn city hall.

Sixteen FERA men will go to work on the project Friday, washing walls and woodwork and painting. The expenditure of $4,821 was approved. Of this, $3,360 is for labor, $168 for a truck driver, $192 for the use of a truck and $1,001 for material. The balance of the cost of reconstructing the building will be paid from the insurance.

BAKE SALE

RUPTURE

E. J. MEINHARDI
COMPANY SALESMAN OF CHICAGO HERE AGAIN

He will show you the "Meinhardi Rupture Shield" privately in his rooms at the Anthony Hotel, Fort Wayne, Ind., on Monday only, May 20th, from 10:00 A. M. to 4:00 P. M. and 7:00 P. M. to 9:00 P. M.

Ask the Hotel Clerk for the numbers of Mr. Meinhardi's rooms. Only men are invited.

The Meinhardi Rupture Shield retains the rupture on the average case regardless of size or location—no matter how much you exercise, lift or strain. The Meinhardi Rupture Shield is skillfully molded to each individual as a Dentist makes false teeth. (No leg straps and no cumbersome arrangements.)

It is waterproof, sanitary, practically indestructible, and may be worn while bathing or sleeping (continuously day and night) until no longer desired.

Do not neglect to see him on the above date. He will be glad to refer you to local men who have used the "Meinhardi Rupture Shield." There is no charge to investigate. This visit is for white people only.

COMFORT, LOOKS AND SMARTNESS

9083

When you've "a house to tend and a cake to bake," you'll appreciate an easy-to-get-into dress like this one, which will keep you looking smart as can be in spite of all. That rever which is faced back with a contrasting material will button right up into a tailored diagonal front if you prefer—the good-looking sleeves with inverted pleat and the patch pockets are all adequate for smartness and ease. You'll find all sorts of unusual buttons in the shops these days, and some particularly appropriate for giving an unusual touch to this dress, which makes up well in percale, gingham, lawn, etc.

Pattern 9083 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards 36 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

DANNY HAS THE SHAKES

Of all the chills of which you hear
There's no chill like the chill of fear.

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE sighed with thankfulness and relief as he reached the other side of the Laughing Brook by way of the old log which had fallen across it, thus making a bridge. To be sure he was a long, long way from his snug little home, where Nanny Meadow Mouse was anxiously waiting for him, but at least he was on the right side of the Smiling Pool and the Laughing Brook. He no longer needed to think of the Big Pickerel or of Snapper the Turtle. He had left Billy Mink and Reddy Fox way back by the Smiling Pool, so he felt quite safe from them.

Crept to the Entrance and Peeped Out.

Of course when he should reach the edge of the Green Meadows and start across to his snug little home he would have to watch for Reddy or Old Granny Fox, but just now he felt quite safe and it was a very good feeling indeed.

Being at last on the right side of the Laughing Brook, Danny felt that he had earned a rest, but having the wisdom of long experience he first looked for a place where he could rest in safety. Just a few feet from the end of the log on which he crossed the Laughing Brook was another old log. At once Danny scampered over to it for he long ago learned that old logs are quite likely to be hollow and when they are they make the very finest retreats in all the Great World for timid little people who wish to keep out of sight.

Just as he hoped, this old log was hollow and the only entrance was through an old knot hole barely big enough for Danny to squeeze through. Making sure that no one else was there, Danny squeezed in and promptly forgot all his recent troubles and was happy, which fortunately is the way of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows.

In two minutes Danny was fast asleep. How long he slept he didn't know but suddenly he was wide awake. He heard nothing, but he had a feeling of uneasiness. He crept to the entrance and peeped out. The moonlight lay full on the old log across the Laughing Brook and even as he looked a slim dark form leaped up on the farther end and began to run swiftly across with nose close to the old log.

It was Billy Mink, and Danny knew Billy's wonderful nose had found his scent somewhere on the other bank and that it would lead Billy straight to that hollow log. And so it happened. It was scarcely a minute before Billy's nose was poked in at the knot hole and Billy took one long sniff. "Ah, ha," said Billy. "So this is where you are. Come out like a gentleman and be eaten."

Danny said nothing, but he began to shake as with the cold. It was the chill of fear. He was trapped.

Do YOU Know—

That the month of January was named after Janus, an early Roman divinity. It was added to the Roman calendar by Numa, 713 B.C., who made it the first month because Janus presided over the beginning of all business. In 1752 the legal year in England was ordered to begin on January 1 instead of on March 25.

HELPFUL HOME HINTS

IF THE cork is too large for the bottle in which you wish to use it, roll it under a board to elongate it, after soaking it a few minutes in hot water.

A handy device for holding the safety razor blade may now be found in the department stores.

A tablespoon of vinegar added to tough meat or chicken will soften the fiber and make it less tough. Use it in the water when cooking.

To make mint extract fill a bottle with the fresh mint and pack it in well; cover with alcohol and let stand for two weeks, then drain off and the extract is ready for flavoring and mint drinks. Use pure alcohol and it will be perfectly all right.

When steel ornaments, buckles and buttons of cut steel become tarnished rub them with unslaked lime and leave them in it for a short time, when they will be beautifully cleaned.

Suede shoes will be improved by rubbing them with fine emery paper.

Corn meal well moistened with gasoline will clean velvet hats, collars, and felt hats so that they will look fresh and new. Renew the corn meal after cleaning and go over the article to be sure it has been well done.

Save the bacon fat, pour water over it and allow it to settle. The fat will come to the top, the burnt particles sink into the water. Skim off the fat and use it for all sorts of cooking. Nice for french fried potatoes, hash browned, or it may take the place of butter in gingerbreads and spice cakes.

An ink remover—Pour a tablespoon or two of turpentine into a saucer, add some powdered soap, stir until dissolved, then bottle and keep for any such emergency as grease spots, or ink on carpet or rugs. If applied at once before the ink dries, the spots will come out. Rinse with warm water and rub dry.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have an uncle who swears from morning till night. I never heard such language as he uses. Where in the world do you think he learned to swear like that?

Sincerely,
HELEN DAMM.

Answer: My dear Miss Damm, if your uncle does what you claim for him I assure you he could not have learned it any place, it must have been a gift.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a poor widow and have a hard time making both ends meet. I now find out that I could make some extra money by taking in washing. I don't know any people who send out their wash, so please tell me the best way to get in touch with those kind of people, will you?

Yours truly,
I. VOREESOPE.

Answer: Just put an ad in the newspapers to read as follows:

"A POOR WIDOW NEEDS WASHING."

And then give your address.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I met a boy at a dance last night and I like him very much. During our conversation, though, it seemed to me as if he was bragging a bit. He said that his brother lived in England and that he sits before the king and queen every day and keeps his hat on. Do you believe that?

Sincerely,
ROC A BIBABY.

Answer: Sure I do. He is their chauffeur.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have just started in college and am taking up a course in gardening and farming. I have been paying particular attention to the caterpillar and have discovered they always climb trees and eat the leaves. Can you tell me how to keep them from eating the leaves?

Sincerely,
CHRIS. ANN TENUM.

Answer: Let them climb telegraph poles.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Do you believe hanging a man will stop crimes?

Truly yours,
ALEC TROCUTION.

Answer: I sure do. I have never heard of a man committing a crime after he was hanged.

SAM

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SAM is an officer walking our beat.
No one could live on a quieter street.
If there were a riot, our Sammy would quiet
The riot, and never disturb our repose.
Each child on our street when he goes to sleep, knows
He's under a special policeman's good care!
Sammy is there!

And many a child on our street when he prays
Says: "Please God, bless Sam, 'cause he has to sleep days!"
While children are sleeping, his watch he is keeping,
And sleeping is better because we have Sam.
The children sleep on if they hear a door slam.
He takes all the grief that they might have to bear!
Sammy is there!

Sometimes the dear children drift off into dreams,
And thinking of God, and of Sammy, it seems
That some one who's thinking of others, unwinking,
And thinking not once of himself, is so fine
He must have a lot in his heart that's divine.
So the children sleep tight, and the whole night is fair!
Sammy is there!

Variety and originality in pets add charm and interest to stock-raising on a miniature scale, which no child can resist and none should miss. The Grunt

By BRUCE L. SCHMUNK
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

JUSTIN wasn't the type one would encounter ordinarily in a line gang. In the first place appearance beguiled his age; secondly, he exhibited more grace of culture than accoutrements of physical prowess.

I looked at the fellow for a moment the morning that Mansel, the district superintendent, brought him to the service desk, and decided in the same moment that he would be a complete misfit.

Smiling at Mansel I asked, "Line gang?"

"Nothing else open?" he queried.

"Nothing," I replied.

"Then give him a chance there," he instructed me. "But," he hesitated to add, "work him into Squint's crew."

On the following morning without formality, Justin was installed in the line crew of Squint Makony. Squint was foreman, a powerful man physically, and a congenial one socially. To the "hot stuff" with which he had worked for twenty years he was a blood brother. Mike Rullo, the other veteran lineman of the gang, was a man in a very masculine sense. Mike was careless, rough of manner and possessed of the benign brutality of utterance which is so often characteristic of men whose work demands stamina and develops physical ascendancy. The third member, Pete Bloom, a junior lineman, ranked well below the other two in moral stature.

Justin became, according to linemen's parlance, "the Grunt." He was to run errands, help load the truck, manipulate the ladders, handle the solder pot and bear the brunt of all jokes. It's a hard road from grunt to lineman.

One day soon after his inauguration, the Grunt was talking to Squint about the period of apprenticeship. He did not say that he would be willing to pay any price for a chance to climb, but such admission would have been superfluous; Squint knew it. Pete, overhearing the Grunt's remarks, seized the opportunity they afforded.

"You want to be a lineman, huh, boy?" he asked, binding sarcasm with inflection.

Justin colored. "I was talking to Squint, Jete," he answered.

Squint, one eye almost closed, turned to the junior lineman. The latter understood the tacit warning but he ventured one more thrust.

"Okeh, boss; but you ought to be orderin' a set o' rubber spurs for it. Them ones is made sharp."

The last consonant was still audible when a huge hand struck the side of the speaker's head. "You know it's time to lay off!" snapped Squint. "Now lay off!"

Although rain had fallen during the afternoon, there were no indications of an impending storm. The crews had gone off duty. Carter was at the service desk. He told me later he didn't realize there was a disturbance until one of the converters kicked over.

Within an hour four factories became paralyzed. Every minute cost the company money—penalty money. Squint's crew was the first called.

When I found them they were already at work on a pole about two hundred yards from the substation. The beam from the spot light on the truck enveloped Squint and Mike who were feverishly attempting temporary splices on the lower bank. Peter, carrying a searchlight, was walking the lines extending to the mills. The Grunt was making ready dry gloves for the men in the safety belts.

The mitts were half way to the top of the stick when it happened. A blinding flash of green light . . . a terrible hissing sound . . . a dull sickening thud as a limp body struck the mud—then silence. Mike sprawled in the muck; Squint hung motionless from his belt below the first cross-arm.

The Grunt looked at me and coughed. I tried to swallow to relieve the nausea. Pete, who had run to us, stood shaking, inarticulate.

While I bent over Mike, the Grunt removed spurs and safety belt. Pete, shaking violently, came nearer.

"Let's get him into the car," I said. Pete responded as well as he could; the Grunt had gone. We turned in time to see him buckle his safety belt around the slippery pole. Pete's teeth were chattering.

"Boss," Pete managed to stutter, "the Grunt ain't never shinned a pole. He'll get burnt, sure as—" The words died in a crash of thunder.

The kid on the pole swayed in the wind. We watched him dig in his spurs and then with difficulty tie a double hand line around Squint directly under his arms. Through a cross-arm brace he worked the rope, then called to the ground for action. A few inches at a time we let Squint down while the Grunt guided his head past bolt heads and projections. That night I shall never forget. The Grunt fell the last ten feet.

Back in the substation hours later the crew foreman regained consciousness. I couldn't describe the emotional reaction of the younger man when old Squint opened his eyes.

After the accident the complexion of the gang changed. Mansel transferred the Grunt to the main office. He is short two fingers crushed that night on the pole; but he is happy; Squint is on the job again. The man who thought of the rubber spurs is Grunt on one of the other crews now. Mike? Well, Mike hasn't been with the company since the night of the storm.

Unique "Primrose" Rug to Crochet

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

This rag rug measures 42 inches and requires about three pounds of material to finish. It appears to be made of six squares each of a different size, with the horizontal positions alternating. Work is started with the center square about 5 inches in diameter. Triangles are then crocheted on the four sides of inner square forming the second square. Continue same way for third, fourth and fifth squares. The sixth square is the same size as fifth square and therefore requires smaller triangles on sides than the others. Colors should be so arranged that center is in light shades of yellow, while outer triangles represent the petals of flowers, and may be shaded in color desired. This can be made into a very attractive and unique rug, depending very much on the color scheme used.

This is one of the twenty-six crocheted and braided rugs illustrated with instructions in Grandmother Clark's rug book No. 25. Detailed instructions are given in this book for the "Primrose" rug, and if you are interested, send 15c to our Rug Department and we will send it to you by mail.

"Check, Please"

A certain prominent female cinema star was asked to make a speech of acceptance in receiving a check in behalf of the stage relief fund. The chairman of the meeting introduced her and she was greeted with generous applause. When things had quieted down she smiled demurely and then blurted out, "Where's the check?"

Movement to Preserve Totem Poles of Indians

One result of the opening up of the further reaches of Canada is that the old primitive life of the Indians is fast disappearing, and with it their customs, traditions, and folklore. An effort is now being made to preserve the family trees, commonly known as totem poles, of the various tribes. These ancient heirlooms carry the tribal histories of more than 100,000 Indians.

It was the custom among the red Indians for each tribe to choose an animal to represent them, and thus was born the science of totemism. The carved poles show every sort of animal from lizards to lions, and it is through these that the various families and tribes can be recognized, as well as the periods when they flourished.

Hundreds of totem poles are being collected, some from as far out as the lonely Beaver island, in Hardy bay, an old trading post of the Hudson's Bay company. One of the most famous stands in Jasper National park. It is 65 feet long, and the work of carving it occupied three years.—London Tit-Bits.

The Spencer Township Home Bureau was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Harriett Coburn, Wednesday afternoon, May 8th. Ten members answered to roll call by telling where their Mother had been born. A very interesting meeting was enjoyed by those present and our project leader, Thelma Hart, gave a splendid report. Every woman in the township should put forth an effort to attend and get the benefit of this educational course. The hostess served a dainty two course luncheon, the first course consisting of shredded chicken, pickles, and warm rolls; second course, ice cream, cake, coffee, with baskets of nuts and candies as favors. Between courses Mrs. Mattie Hart gave a reading entitled "Rock Me To Sleep Mother." Spring flowers were presented each guest in honor of Mother's Day. Club will meet again June 12 with Rally Markle as hostess.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

Carl Carpenter and family spent Sunday at Pioneer, Ohio, with relatives.

Ed Storer and Frank Leighty were at Fort Wayne Monday on business.

The annual meeting of the Indiana Synod of the United Lutheran Church will convene in Ft. Wayne at the Trinity English Lutheran Church, next week on May 21-23.

Elgin Curie was placed in the county jail Monday night by Sheriff Herbert N. Grimm following his arrest by Marshal Chas. Cochran, of St. Joe, for public intoxication. He was arraigned before Judge Endicott Tuesday afternoon and pleaded not guilty. Bond was fixed at $200. Trial was set for Thursay afternoon.

The Irish Free State has approximately 140,000 unemployed.

Verne Monroe and family visited Stanley Monroe and family at West Unity, Ohio, Sunday.

Cooperation is like a good fight—it requires the activity of more than one party to be a success.

The Nazi organization is hunting wives for a large farm group. What becomes of the view that the Germans already are over-governed?

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gee and daughter, Marjory, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday evening supper guests of his mother, Mrs. S. D. Gee. Bruce Koch and family were afternoon guests also of her parents while here.

The apple orchards at St. Joe will be in full bloom this week. Although there are more blossoms this year than in many years past, they will not be as prominent for the reason that the green foliage is heavier because of the lateness of blossoming. Hundreds of people visit the orchards each spring.

Cas. Butler, a young man living southeast of Auburn, was taken into custody Thursday night by Sheriff Herbert N. Grimm on request of his father, Merritt Butler. Butler was arrested last August on a charge of driving while drunk on the Auburn-St. Joe road. Bond was furnished and the defendant was never tried. Butler's father notified the sheriff to get his son Thursday night and the officer found him intoxicated. Taken before Judge Endicott Friday afternoon, Butler entered a plea of not guilty and was remanded to jail under $500 bond.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER BANQUET HELD

The young ladies of the Spencerville and St. Joe Lutheran Churches gave a delightful "Mothers and Daughters" banquet last Friday night in the local Lutheran Church.

The main program was given in the church auditorium which was fragrant with a profusion of lilacs.

Miss Violette Pflaumer, the mistress of ceremonies, called on Miss Ethel Smith to conduct the meditation period. Miss Pflaumer then gave a clever welcome to "Mothers and others" and a gracious response was given by Mrs. Roscoe Walter. A vocal duet "That Wonderful Mother of Mine" by Mrs. Katherine Haller and Mrs. Gladys Shull next pleased the assembly.

It had been currently rumored that a pleasant surprise was in store on the program and at this time the secret was disclosed by the introduction of a small group of entertainers from Hicksville headed by Mrs. Emily White Hull, who is fine interpreter and instructor in dramatic art, voice and interpretative dancing.

Mrs. Hull has appeared on the programs of a number of social affairs at this place and has won many friends by the pleasure she has given in her splendid renditions of all that is highest and best in dramatic art and music.

Following was the feature program:

Greeting, a reading by Mrs. Hull "If I Knew You," by James Mac Dermid.

"Do you know my Garden" vocal solo, Mrs. Hull, by Haydn Wood.

The "un-wedding" by Anne Hamilton Dounell, rearranged by Emily White Hull, was given very effectively by a clever little reader, Virginia Lou Thiel. The story was splendidly told and she gave an unusually fine portrayal of characters.

The other little reader who so beautifully entertained was Margy Ann Boon, who in an excellent manner gave "Thersa tells the truth" by Blanch Hardendraff Smith.

The pleasing talent of the young misses was well received and was also a tribute to their instructor, Mrs. Hull.

The closing number of the little girls was a song and dance "The Good Ship Loli-Pop" and was much enjoyed by the audience.

Little Miss Frances Edson was to have assisted in the children's part of the program but she was ill and could not be present.

Additional selections and encores given by Mrs. Hull were:

"Old Fashioned Roses," a reading from James Whitcomb Riley.

"Sorta Miss You," vocal solo, Clay Smith.

"The Dinner Party," a reading, arranged by Emily White Hull.

"Little Mother of Mine," vocal solo, H. T. Burleigh.

"The Carnival," vocal solo, J. L. Molloy; "The Market Place," a reading, H. Johnson; "Mother," a reading, T. Morse; "Our Yesterdays," vocal solo, Howard Leslie.

The piano accompanist was Mrs. Ruth Boon, who contributed much to the successful program.

All of the ladies were then invited to the church basement where the banquet was served. Lilacs and tulips were used in attractive arrangements for the tables. Miss Pflaumer called on Miss Lucille Curie who gave a fine toast to "Mothers." When the tables were cleared after the first course the toast mistress called on Mrs. F. R. Bowman. She responded with a toast "To Our Daughters." Mrs. Bowman praised the daughters for their work and spirit of kindness shown to the mothers. She said in part:

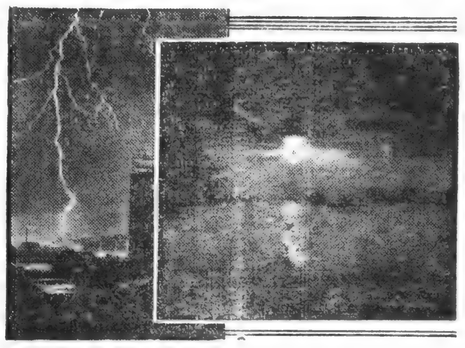
"We must all have our amusements—our games, our plays, our hobbies. But true happiness is a road side flower that grows in our hearts when we have done to others what we would have others do to us. Tonight we feel sure that, by way of your kindness to us, you daughters and your sponsors have found this road side flower, may it take root in your lives, may it continue to grow and blossom again and again in your hearts."

After the last course of the banquet a photo contest afforded much mirth. Pictures of the mothers and guests, taken in the heyday of their youth, had been surreptitiously obtained. They were numbered and passed up and down the tables for identification. Then forming a large circle the daughters, mothers and "others" joined hands and sang "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

At a late hour the sixty-one in attendance departed with many pleasant memories of the evening and with a deep sense of appreciation of the daughters of this parish and their teachers, Mrs. Flossie Rhoades and Mrs. Grace Dilley.

THE SNAPSHOT GUILD

SPRING LIGHTNING



AN EVIL WEED

By Charles Oluf Olson

When spring or summer draws you picnicking or camping and you find an innocent-looking, three-leaved glossy plant near where you plan to stop, you'd better move on. The chances are you've run onto poison ivy.

Poison ivy is known botanically as Toxicodendron—from a compound Greek word meaning "poison tree." It is easily told apart from other ivies because its leaves grow in clusters of three. It bears greenish-white flowers late in spring, followed by wax-white berries. It may grow as an upright, little bush, or as a vine which climbs rocks, trees, walls, and telegraph poles. It is found in nearly all woods from the great plains eastward. In Florida, in certain spots poison ivy vines with very thick stems are found.

The effect of a dose of poisoning from the toxic ivy is first an itching of the exposed skin, then redness, then swelling and blisters. How serious is the attack depends on how sensitive is the exposed person. Some people get poisoned by merely being in the vicinity of the ivy; some have to touch it; some have to get the juice of the ivy onto their skins before noting any ill effects. The smoke from burning poison ivy is very poisonous to certain persons.

For hundreds of years a remedy against poison ivy and a cure were unsuccessfully sought. Now a five per cent solution of ferric chloride in a half-and-half mixture of alcohol and water, or glycerin and water, is a modern, effective prevention against poisoning. If the hands and face are thoroughly bathed in the solution before or after exposure to the toxic ivy plant, ill effects will be avoided. The remedy is inexpensive and harmless. The materials ought to be available in any drug store and the mixing is very simple and takes no skill.

The poison ivy belongs to the botanical genus Rhus—in which class is also included our beautiful sumacs, the harmless, ornamental shrubs of eastern roadsides. There are three principal species of poison Rhus in the eastern part of the United States and one on the Pacific Coast. Of the eastern species is poison sumac, the most vicious member of the clan. The reason more persons do not fall foul to the poisonous sumac is that is grows only in bogs. Its leaves look a good deal like those of the innocent roadside sumac, but the fruit differs. Instead of being stiff, erect groups of brown or black seeds, they are drooping bunches of pallid berries whose very appearance ought to be a warning. As a rule, also, nonpoisonous sumac very seldom grows in bogs.

There is an old saying which runs: "Five fingers may handle five leaves." This is a fine adage to take along when camping or when going on a picnic. For the rest, if not in possession of a poison ivy remedy, wear gloves if doubtful of the vegetation of your chosen camp site or picnic place.

Remember, the poison ivy has three leaves in clusters.

Richard Arlen May Ride In Auto Race

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—A handsome adonis of the screen with a rough and ready disposition may ride the bricks in the annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway here May 30.

He is Richard Arlen, star of the movies and an expert on combustion motors in his own right.

Arlen has made a bid to ride as mechanic with his good friend Peter De Paolo, winner in 1925, who is attempting a come-back this year. DePaolo has accepted the application and Arlen must now pass muster before the A. A. A. Contest Board and receive permission from his studios.

Regardless of whether he rides or not, Arlen will be a member of the De Paolo pit crew and not for picture purposes because he is capable of jerking out a spark plug and analyzing the motor condition as well as any other member of Pete's mechanical family.

WALTER HAGEN WILL PLAY AUBURN COURSE

Walter Hagen, famous golf professional, will play in a foursome at the Auburn Country club Saturday afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock, Daylight Time. Mr. Hagen is coming to Auburn as a guest of the Auburn Auto Co., as he had expressed a desire when in Auburn last week to play the 18-hole Auburn course.

Mr. Hagen is without doubt the best known golf professional in the United States. He holds more championships than any three living golf players and will again compete in the national open championship which starts at Pittsburgh on June 7.

The famous golfer recenly purchased a new Auburn super-charged speedster.

The foursome for play Saturday afternoon will be composed of Mr. Hagen, a golf professional from some nearby club and two golfers from the Auburn club.

A large crowd is expected to attend not only from Auburn but from many nearby cities.

The following committee will be in charge of the event: George Hatchet, chairman; F. L. Griffith, Dr. D. M. Hines, A. H. McInnis, H. G. Hersh, B. O. Fink and Lloyd Hoodelmier.

MORTUARY

MARKLE

Sarah Roller Markle was born on May the 10th, 1856, in Mahoning County, Ohio. She departed this life on April 26, 1935, at her home in Harlan, at the age of 78 years, 11 months and 16 days. She was the daughter of James and Mary J. Roller.

At an early age she united with the Salem Lutheran Church of which she remained a faithful member until the day of her death. Her early life was spent as teacher in the schools of Allen county.

On May 8, 1912, she was united in marriage to Daniel Markle, who preceded her in death in March, of 1929. Remaining are one sister, Margaret J. Roller, a foster daughter, Mrs. May Hoffelder, and one grandchild. Also having six sisters and one brother who preceded her to the spirit world.

Services were conducted in St. Mark's Lutheran Church by the Rev. A. K. Mumma, her pastor and burial in the Scipio cemetery.

DARLING

Craton George, only son of Almon and Mary Darling, was born Dec. 24, 1881, in Milan Township. His entire life was spent near the place of his birth.

He was married to Miss Elsie Brunkhart, August 10, 1904. To them were born four children, three sons and one daughter. Two sons died in infancy. Othniel died at the age of four years.

After a long illness and much suffering he passed from this life May 1, 1935 at the age of 53 years, 4 months and 8 days, leaving his wife and daughter, Mrs. Thelma Madden, seven grandchildren, two sisters, Mrs. Ida Guiff and Mrs. Mae Yontz, with other relatives and friends to mourn his early departure.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. A. K. Mumma in the Harlan Christian Church and assisted by the Rev. Kenneth Timmons. Burial in the Harlan cemetery.

COVER

Peter Benton Cover was born in Milford Township, Defiance County, Ohio, April 8, 1863, and died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Louis Washler, near Spencerville, Ind., April 29, 1935, aged 72 years, and 21 days.

He was the fourth child born to Henry and Beulah Ann Cover. In 1886 he was married to Dora Elva Miller, who departed this life Dec. 12, 1912. To this union were born one son, who died in infancy and two daughters, Mrs. Bennett J. Lay, now residing in Hicksville, and Mrs. Washler.

Mr. Cover made a confession of faith about 33 years ago and united with the Church of Christ in Joplin, Mo., later removing his membership to the West Milford Church of Christ. He has been an active worker in the church at Hicksville and the Central Church of Detroit, Mich., but always considered the West Milford Church his "home" church.

He was a man, whom to know, was to love, so his friends were numbered by his acquaintances.

There remain to mourn their loss, the daughters, Mrs. Lay and Mrs. Washler, two granddaughters, Martha Lay and Donna Mae Washler, one grandson, Charles Washler, two sisters, Mrs. Olive Heller, of Clarkston, Mich., Miss Blanch Cover, of Hicksville, two brothers, Henry Francis, of Portland, Oregon, and David L., of Hicksville, and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral from the West Milford Church of Christ, interment in Edgerton cemetery, with Walter A. Coburn officiating.

WARNER

Alice Robertson Warner died Friday night, May 17, at midnight, at the home, 408 South Van Buren Street, Auburn, Indiana. She was in her 80th year, which she would have completed August 16.

Mrs. Warner was the youngest of two sisters, daughters of Henry and Jerusha Robertson, early settlers of DeKalb County, whose home was the property now owned and occupied by Abner Trostel.

In young womanhood she became the wife of Samuel Warner, and to them was born a daughter, Rusia, Mrs. Frank H. Langley, Auburn, whose homes and lives were closely and beautifully united until the end.

In early life she became a follower of Jesus and a member of the United Brethren Church, Newville, where her parents were communicants and where she worshipped for a long period of years. Soon after St. Joe was established the Warers became citizens there, where she was interested with the earlier religious groups of the town, and when the Christian Church was established she joined there, and has continued in that fellowship until her passing.

Mrs. Warner possessed the quality of friendliness to a rare degree, and through it she won and held a large number of true friends. In the time of her strength she was active and helpful everywhere. Since age limited her to the home circle she continued to be busy with interesting and helpful matters.

Rare and lovely,
Always true,
A beautiful life
We bid adieu.

The funeral was held from the Kinsey funeral home Sunday at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. N. Scholes with interment in K. of P. cemetery.

Among the out of town guests attending the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bishop and Russell Hathaway, Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. Nettie Baker, Catherine Mahoney, Mr. and Mrs. Sells and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Patterson, Fort Wayne; C. C. Andrews, Detroit, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway, Corunna; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Brown, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Neblung, Mrs. Everett Mavis, Auburn.

A. A. A. MODIFIES ITS ADJUSTMENT CONTRACTS

Modifications of the corn-hog production adjustment contract, permiting small producers with no hog production base or with a lower than average production from one litter during the base period to produce an adequate number of hogs for home use, have been announced by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Producers who agree under the 1935 corn-hog contract to hold their corn acreage within the contract limits but who do not have a hog production base will be permitted to produce one 1935 litter of pigs for home consumption. No hog payment, however, will be made to the producer taking advantage of this ruling.

It has also been ruled that 1935 contract signers, who have an average production record of six hogs or less for both market and slaughter during the 1932-33 period and who are receiving no hog payment under their contracts, may be permitted to slaughter for home consumption all pigs produced in 1935 in excess of the producer's market hog base, provided that only one litter is farrowed on the farming unit under contract. The number of pigs that may be produced for market under the contract is not changed by this ruling.

The 1935 contract does not require a producer with a market hog production average of 15 hogs or less for the base period to make any adjustment in 1935 farrowings, but until the new ruling was made, many small producers could not keep more 1935 pigs than the average number produced during the base period. For example, a producer who had a market hog base of only two hogs and a home slaughter base of three hogs could produce a total of no more than 5 hogs in 1935. Under the new ruling, this grower may not produce more than two hogs for market, but he may use for home consumption all the remaining pigs farrowed in one litter in 1935.

RADICAL CHANGE IN BASKETBALL MADE

A radical change in the method of conducting the Indiana State High School Basketball tournament has been announced by Arthur L. Trester, commissioner for the I. H. S. A. A.

The tournament will be spread over four weeks instead of three. There will be 64 sectionals, with 8 to 16 teams in each; 16 regionals, with four teams in each; 4 semi-final sectionals with four teams each; and the final tournament in which four survivors will compete.

Dates for the playing schedule in 1936 were set as follows: Sectionals, March 5, 6 and 7; regionals, March 14, semi-finals, March 21, finals, March 28.

The new tournament system was drafted after repeated complaints that the old manner of selecting the state champion was too strenuous on the youthful athletes.

Opponents protested that some of the boys were forced to compete in as many as three games in one day.

The new system was the majority recommendation made by principals of member schools in 16 sectional meetings April 11, Trester said.

HELD GUEST MISSIONARY MEETING

May 16, 1935 will be a day long remembered by all who attended the Guest Missionary meeting at the home of Mrs. Hollis Dilley, St. Joe. A good dinner, the contribution of Mrs. Dilley, was enjoyed by the large crowd.

The afternoon program consisted of hymns, and a devotional service conducted by Rev. H. A. Kunkle, S. T. M., of Albion. A helpful talk was given by Mrs. Kunkle, president of the Indiana Lutheran Synodical W. M. S. A vocal duet by Mrs. Wm. Staman and Mrs. Frank Curie, accompanied by Mrs. Dilley, "He Is My Saviour," was well rendered. Short talks were given by Mrs. Wm. Olds, of Hicksville, Ohio, Mrs. Briegel, of Butler, Rev. Kunkle and others. Mrs. Dilley, the president, of St. Joe W. F. M. S. conducted the meeting and Mrs. Jennie Sechler read an interesting report of the previous meeting.

The large gathering represented Butler, St. Joe, Spencerville, Albion and Hicksville. A rising vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Dilley for the fine and helpful meeting. The sentiment was to make this a quarterly event. "Blest be the Tie that Binds" was sung and the Lord's Prayer and Missionary Benediction were used in closing. May God bless the great work.

Those present were: Mrs. Geo. Beams, Mrs. Jennie Walter, Mrs. Will Erick, Loretta Funk, Mrs. Flossie Rhoades, Mrs. W. A. Sommer, Mrs. Pauline B. Baumgartner, Arminta Steward, of Spencerville; Mrs. R. J. Haynes, Mrs. Elizabeth Hersh, Mrs. E. Bryan, Mrs. Elica Fisher, Mrs. Ida Willson, Mrs. Olive Fetter, Mrs. Ida Miller, Mrs. C. L. Briegel, Mrs. Beckley Mrs. Knepper, of Butler; Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Coast Drivers are Sure To Have Duel

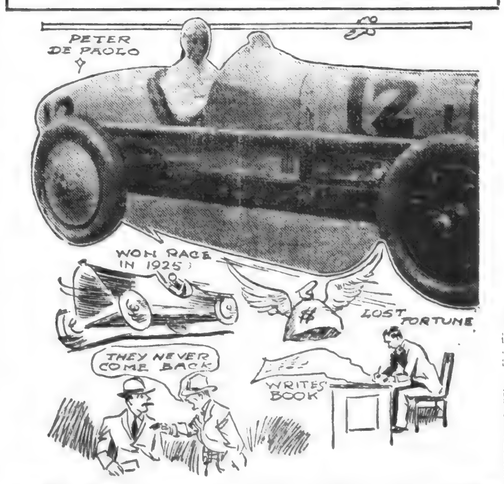
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Two "firecrackers" from the far west will put on a little race among themselves during the 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30.

For it won't make any difference in what spot either Al Gordon or Kelly Petillo may be running in the big event, they are certain to stage their own little contest all by themselves. Neither will stand for the other passing him.

Petillo shot his red charger about the 25-mile qualifying test at nearly 120 miles an hour last year to win the pole position and is back this year with a new car. Gordon also has a faster machine and the pair are certain to stage an interesting duel.

Peter De Paolo, 1925 Winner, Ready For Come-Back Try At 500-Mile Race



INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The toughest hill in the world is the comeback trail. But here's one exchampion who thinks he can take it in high all the way to the top.

He is Pete De Paolo, one time racing champion and 1925 winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile race, who is making his comeback this year in that classic on May 30.

The smiling, little Italian speedster, who crammed a century of excitement into a decade, earned a quarter of a million dollars and lost it, wrote a book of his thrilling life as a race driver and put away his goggles after a spectacular crash in which he nearly lost his life, wants another shot at fame whatever the odds.

Better than 100 to 1 are the odds against a successful comeback, authorities agree. Only to an exchampion this seems like a fair price. Dempsey and Benny Leonard failed, Jeffries couldn't make it. Joey Ray missed and so did Harold "Red" Grange among others.

"They never come back!" is a sports truism.

"Only they do — now and then." Pete insists. "Look at Babe Ruth and Gene Sarazen. The Babe was almost through and came back stronger than ever. Sarazen is a greater golfer now than he was when he first won the U. S. Open in 1922. And ten years later he went out and won both the American and British Open. But even if they hadn't done it, I think I can."

And there are a lot of Pete's friends who think he can. They point out that Pete is in the pink of physical perfection, a condition he owes largely to handball and regular gym work. He has, too, a first class mount this year—one of the team of 10 Ford V-8's which were entered by Harry Miller of Detroit.

TWO SHORT STORIES

Only work brings production;
Only production brings abundance;
Only abundance brings prosperity.

These three sentences of four words each are just as true as the statement that "two and two make four and no more." Yet the ponderous payroll propagandists at Washington are franking through the mails millions of words to induce the people to believe they can get something for nothing—they can have more by producing less—they can attain "the more abundant life" through the force of waste and extravagance. The complete answer to the endless propaganda from Washington may be stated in another short story of three sentences of less than four words each:

Idleness brings waste;
Waste brings destruction;
Destruction brings poverty.

SHARING

When a woman finds a delicious recipe she is most happy when she can share the good news with an intimate friend.

When a friendly merchant in a community gets a new value in stock he wouldn't be your friend if he didn't let you know about it.

Advertising of any goods or service is SHARING with you something another has which makes living more worth while.

To be sure, the butcher, the baker and the candlestickmaker who consistently, regularly, let people know what is new, what is convenient, what is helpful service, find that it is easier to stay in business, profitably.

Sensible, friendly folk, do not hold this against them. Profits in business are WAGES for services rendered.....and we must all live.

Life runs smoother when we live in a friendly, sharing mood.

Read The News ad columns and see what others have to share with you.

HOT WATER

CONSTANTLY DEPENDABLE

OUT in Yellowstone Park, where there are hundreds of geysers, one is pre-eminent because of the constancy with which it gushes forth steaming jets of hot water. Regularly, every three quarters of an hour, "Old Faithful" sends up a tower of hot water 100 to 150 feet high.

One family that we serve, delighted with the dependability of their Electric Water Heater, has christened it, "Old Faithful." Year in and year out, it supplies their hot water needs instantly. The temperature is automatically regulated, ample storage capacity is provided, and the thoroughly insulated tank keeps all of the heat in the water, so that you have all of the piping hot water you need.

Liberal trade-in allowance, amazingly small installments make it easy to own an Electric Water Heater.

HOME TOWN FOLKS YOU CAN DEPEND ON

by John Edwin Price

Though my wife plans the finest meals imaginable, says I'm the handsomest man in seven counties and kisses me seventy times seven times before I go to bed at night, yet if she is not loyal to me the rest means nothing.

Though a person boast of the beauties of his home town when he is away from home and argue for patriotism until he is black in the face yet DOES NOTHING to make his home town better, then his words are worse than sounding brass and clanging cymbals.

On the other hand you may be rich, or clever or good-looking yet if you give loyalty to whom loyalty is due our neighbors will overlook a lot and love you just the same.

Folks who are busy planning ways of being loyal to their home town haven't time to spread smut, knock the churches, lodges, clubs, or schools, or speak ill of their relatives.

Of course there are a lot of folks who are loyal but not in our particular way. They are different by nature, their training was different and their experiences incline their interests differently.

Line fifty of your friends up against a mental wall. Look them over as they stand there. In general you class them as dependable folks, loyal to the best interests of the town. Now place neat little black and white signs along that wall with one of the following words on each: Church, lodge, library, club, school, legion, scouts, "Y," beauty, miscellaneous. Now rearrange the lineup of your friends so they stand under the sign representing their predominant interests. Some express loyalty in so many ways that you will have a large group under miscellaneous.

We had to include BEAUTY for there now is a strong movement to clean up, paint up and rearrange our town with BEAUTY in mind. The service club in one town is planting lilacs wherever they will grow. In other ways towns are given a personality.

Strong loyalty may be expressed in doing all possible business in one's home town so that business and professional people may have a chance to earn more with which to do more for their towns.

Some folks hesitate to work for the home town for fear their efforts won't be appreciaed. It is better to be active in good works though not appreciated than to miss the joy which comes in the consciousness that you have done what you could to make the world a bit better for having lived in it a while.

Christ was practically alone when His crisis came because His hey-dey followers hadn't absorbed the truth that when put to the test "an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness." Home town folks you can depend on seem to have as their life theme song: Take My Life and Let It Be Lived in Loyalty to Thee.

REACH AGREEMENT IN FIGHT OVER WILL

By agreement of the parties, probate of the will of the late Mrs. Lizzie Joslin, of Newville, has been denied in the DeKalb circuit court.

The objectors were Maud, Waldo and Wallace May, Bertha Merrill and Ross Wilson, Seeley Dirrim, Lyle, Russell and Lena Platter and Mary Taylor, who alleged that Mrs. Joslin was of unsound mind. She devised $500 to the Christian Church of Butler, $100 to the Edgerton State Bank Co. and the residue of the estate to the children of her brothers and sisters

The heirs at law are three sisters, Maud May, of Butler, Bertha Wilson, of Auburn, and Lena Platter, of Hicksville, O., a niece, G'Neil Seeley, of Butler and Kent Seeley, of Apple Creek, Ohio. The estate consists of $600 in personal property and $3,500 in real estate. Mrs. Joslin died last March 15.

Waldo May was appointed administrator and filed $1,500 bond, with Maud and Edwin R. May sureties.

IT'S SURPRISING WHAT CHANCES PEOPLE TAKE

It's surprising what chances people will take with themselves and what care they will take of other personal property.

For instance, a man will call the veterinary when an animal is sick, or he will get his automobile repaired at the first signs of trouble, but he will go on indefinitely without glasses or with a pair he picked out of a basket of "specs" somewhere that will probably damage his eyes more than doing without glasses entirely. In other words, he cares nothing about his most valued possession, his eyesight.

Are you one of those who hasn't the time to take the steps to preserve this precious gift?

Do not delay longer. Have your eyes examined at "the store with the street clock," and know whether or not your eyes need help.

F. G. GETROST, Optometrist,

HAVE THIRTEEN NEW FISH HATCHING PONDS

Thirteen new hatchery ponds for the propagation of game fish have been completed and placed in operation this season. Addition of these hatchery units to those operated in the past by the department, is a part of the program for increased propagation of game fish to stock Indiana lakes and streams. The new ponds are almost equally distributed between the south and north sections of the state, six being south and seven north of Indianapolis. Last year more than twenty-two million game fish, produced by the Department of Conservation and the conservation clubs, were placed in Indiana lakes and streams.

RELIEF SHOWS A SLIGHT DECREASE

A decrease of more than 5,000 resident cases receiving unemployment relief in April over the number for March has been reported in the latest statistical information issued by the state statistician for the Governor's Commission on Unemployment Relief.

The total number for April is 123,749, as contrasted with 129,075 for the month of March. This evinces a steady decrease in the number of cases receiving relief, for the number in January was 131,810, while in February it was 131,709. Marion county has the largest load, with 21,532; Lake is second with 10,634; Vanderburg third with 6,620, and St. Joseph next with 6,258. Ohio county has the smallest load with only forty-two cases, while Scott county has but forty-nine.

Counties showing a slight increase in their case load are: Adams, Clay, Greene, Hendricks, Knox, Vermillion, Vigo, Warrick and Washington. Counties reporting no change in number are Perry and Scott. All other counties showed a decided decrease.

WILL HIRE FARMERS TO MOW RIGHT-OF-WAY ON STATE HIGHWAYS

Farmers living along state highways will be employed again this year to mow grass and weeds on the highway right-of-way. Arrangements for mowing highway right-of-way in each of the sub-districts of the highway system, will be handled by the sub-district superintendent in charge of maintenance.

During the past year approximately ten thousand dollars was paid by the maintenance department of the State Highway Commission to farmers employed in taking care of specified sections of highway right-of-way. The mowing is done under the supervision of the maintenance superintendent for the highway sub-district, the farmer being paid on an hourly basis for his labor and for his team and mower.

Indiana has established a reputation for the attractive condition in which the right-of-way as well as the traveled surface of the highway is maintained. This attractiveness is being increased through roadside plantings of trees and shrubs, sowing grass or sodding cuts and fills and widening the right-of-way. On some sections of state highways flowers have been planted around culvert heads and similar places where the plants will not interfere too much with the mowing operation.

Whiskers Will Flow Until He Wins Race

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — George "Doc" MacKenzie may be eligible for the baseball nine of the House of David before he wins a 500-mile race.

The Edington, Pa., flash has determined to let his whiskers grow in a Van Dyke beard until he captures the big prize of automobile competition and his whiskers will float in the summer breeze as he whisks about the Indianapolis Motor Speedway here on May 30.

MacKenzie has not fared so well in his starts in the big-time although he has been a worthy contender about the dirt tracks. He had a feature Californian race in his pocket until he ran out of gas a short distance from his goal but recently led a good field to victory at Reading, Pa.

Much in his favor, MacKenzie will have a capable car this year entered by Gil Pirrung of St. Louis, Mo.

Italians Strip for Action in Somaliland

ITALIAN troops are still being sent to the Abyssinian frontier, though the prospect of war has lessened. Here are seen some of them in Italian Somaliland dressed in the minimum of uniform and wearing their new tropical helmets, for the climate is exceedingly warm there.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

DANNY OVERHEARS SOME TALK

LITTLE by little the shakes left Danny Meadow Mouse. Not that Danny was no longer afraid. No, indeed! He was very much afraid. He still couldn't see anything for him but to starve or else furnish Billy Mink with a dinner, and of course he didn't want to do either of those things. Certainly not. But having had time to think a little he realized that for the time being he was quite safe. Billy Mink couldn't get at him because that knothole through which he had squeezed into that hollow log was too small for Billy to get even his head in. Had it been Shadow the Weasel instead of Billy Mink—well, it isn't pleasant to think what might have happened in that case. You know, Shadow is much smaller than Billy Mink.

"What Are You Watching for Here?" Continued Hooty.

So after awhile Danny stopped shaking. He began to wonder just where Billy Mink was. Billy hadn't made a sound for some time. He could shut his eyes and picture Billy hiding just within good jumping distance of that knothole. That ought to have been enough. But it wasn't. He wanted to know where Billy was. He stole a little nearer the knothole so as to peek out. He was very quiet about it. Yes, indeed, he was very quiet about it. He didn't make the tiniest sound.

Just as he got near enough to see out in the moonlight a little he heard a voice. It set that poor little heart of his to going pit-a-pat again. It was the voice of Hooty the Owl, and you know there is no one of whom Danny has greater fear than Hooty the Owl. From the sound Danny knew that Hooty was in the top of a tree very close by.

"Now, how did he know that I am in here?" thought Danny. "Seems as if everybody I fear knows I am somewhere around and is looking for me."

Of course this wasn't so, but it is no wonder Danny felt so after all he had been through. Hooty was talking in a low tone. He was talking to Mrs. Hooty. It didn't take Danny long to find that out. Danny listened. He listened with all his might.

"I've been all over the Green Meadows and didn't see a sign of Danny Meadow Mouse," said Hooty. Danny would have laughed at that had it not been for the memory of Billy Mink hiding somewhere just outside.

"What are you watching for here?" continued Hooty. "No one lives around here."

"Sh!" warned Mrs. Hooty. "It may be true that no one lives around here but unless my eyes are crossed and my ears are no longer to be trusted, I both caught a glimpse of and heard some one over near that old log just as I arrived a few minutes ago. When eyes and ears tell me the same thing I take notice. Some one is hidden right down there and I'm going to stay right here, until I find out who it is."

MINUTE MAKE-UPS By V. V.

When you remove mascara—and you should remove it before retiring—take a damp piece of cotton and with eyes open rub it gently upward on the upper lashes. Then rub the lower lashes downward. This keeps it from smearing over your eyes. Finish by oiling the lashes so that the drying effect of the mascara is counteracted.

QUESTION BOX by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

A friend of mine, who just came from Los Angeles, in an automobile, said he saw part of a railroad track under water when he was coming through Idaho. He said he heard a train whistle and he realized it was up to him to save the train so he waved a "clothes-pin" and when the engineer saw it he stopped the train. Sounds like applesauce to me, don't it to you?

Yours truly,
B. HAYVE.

Answer: I understand your friend thoroughly. The railroad track was under water, he waved a "clothes-pin" and the engineer stopped the train. Very simple—"clothes-pin" means a wash out on the line.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

We had an argument at our house last night about young men getting married. Some of the folks said that most of the boys who marry when they are very, very young, are usually dark haired. Is that true?

Yours truly,
JENNY RAYTOR.

Answer: It is not true. You will find that boys who marry when they are extremely young are generally all light headed.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I know a man who told me he was going to get married just for the fun of it. He did get married but got a divorce a year and a half later. What was the idea of that?

Truly yours,
AL. E. MONEE.

Answer: He told you he got married for the fun of it. He got married and then got a divorce. That's where the fun comes in.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

One of my neighbors has a son who is now about twenty-two years of age. For the past ten years he has been a lazy, shiftless boy. He ran away from home three weeks ago and yesterday his father got a letter from him saying he was in the movies and getting a salary of $2,000 a week. Can you imagine it?

Sincerely,
HEEZA BUM.

Answer: I can imagine it but I don't believe it.

UPON YOUR PRAYERS

By ANNE CAMPBELL

NOW in the turmoil of day,
Weary and fevered with cares,
I turn to my comfort and stay,
Leaning upon your prayers.

Often, surrounded by noise,
Hampered by worldly affairs,
I can taste of the spirit's joys,
Leaning upon your prayers.

Over the clang of the street,
The moon of your love for me fares,
And life is made suddenly sweet,
Leaning upon your prayers.

Mother's Cook Book

FOR THE CHEESE LOVER

WITH the numerous varieties of cheese on the market—to name them would take a column space, with a word about their composition—one may have something different for every day in the year.

A most tasty dish to serve when something a bit more nourishing than the plain scalloped eggs is required is a few tablespoonfuls of creamy cheese added to the hot eggs; stir until well mixed.

Serve the sweet, juicy early cabbage cooked whole, with the hard center removed, then cut into pie-shaped pieces on a chop plate; serve with a white sauce to which a cupful of finely minced cheese has been added. Be sure the cheese is well melted before serving. This makes a most tasty and attractive as well as a nourishing dish.

The cheese supper dish has been given so often that it seems as if every one should have the recipe, yet here it is again for those who have never seen it:

Cheese Supper Dish.

Spread stale bread with butter and place in a shallow baking dish as many slices as will be needed. Cover each slice thickly with finely minced rich cheese and when enough is prepared pour over a custard mixture, using two eggs and a pint of milk with salt to season. Bake in the oven at a low heat. The dish will be like a fluffy omelet, most attractive and appetizing. Serve hot.

Cheese Roll.

To one cake of cream cheese softened with cream add one cupful of good American cheese grated, a dash of red pepper, one-half cupful of chopped stuffed olives. Make into a roll and decorate with thin slices of stuffed olives. Serve on a dainty plate with a cheese knife.

In choosing cheese for cookery be sure that you buy a rich one that will melt without becoming stringy. Overcooking will make most cheese stringy, so great care should be used when heat is applied. To test cheese for richness take a bit in the mouth and press it with the tongue to the roof of the mouth. If it melts easily you may be sure it is well ripened and rich cheese.

American Federation of Labor

The American Federation of Labor was organized in 1881. Until 1886, it was known as the Federation of Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada. At that time there was no executive council and president as there was after 1886. There was a president and vice president of a legislative committee. Samuel Gompers served as president of this committee from 1881 to 1886. He was then elected president of the American Federation of Labor and remained its president until his death, with the exception of 1895.

COOLIDGE SHOWN AS SHREWD, BUT KINDLY HEARTED

A Calvin Coolidge who sold his cast-off clothing to a second-hand man, who chased a bootlegger out of his office, and who let a window sill burn in his house to warn his boys to be careful with candles, is revealed in an installment of Grace Coolidge's. "The Real Calvin Coolidge," in Goodhousekeeping Magazine.

John Coolidge confesses his indignation at finding a newspaper photograph of his father in shirt sleeves, with saw in hand, pretending to build a toy motor car.

"Father," John says, "was running for office, as was his custom in the fall of the year. A cameraman had induced the pose, but it was my car. I could scarcely believe my eyes."

George A. Dragon, Northampton barber, unwittingly gets back at John for telling tales on his father.

"One time," Dragon contributes, "I asked about his sons, who were in school at Mercersburg.

"'I guess they must be all right,' Mr. Coolidge replied, "they're always wanting something.'"

Ralph W. Hemenway, Coolidge's law-partner in Northampton for 18 years, who has never before given an interview or written about him, recalls that he once received the following note from President Coolidge from the White House:

"My Dear Mr. Hemenway:

"You have at Hampton safety deposit 2 Lib Bonds $50 each. See if any are due Sept. 15 current and if so have Tr. Co. collect them and credit my acct.

"Yours,
"Calvin Coolidge."

The interest due was $2.12.

Hemenway recalls another occasion, however, that brings out the late President's kind-heartedness and liberality. When Hemenway was in need of funds owing to the closing of a local bank Coolidge gave him a check for $5,000 and offered as much more as he might need.

War on Wild Boars

Hunting wild boars, a dangerous sport in any region, is a grim business to the ranchers of Neuquen territory in the Andean foothills, says the Montreal Herald. Wild boars by the hundreds are playing havoc with flocks of sheep and the ranchers have organized systematic hunts. Cornering the animals in a difficult business, however, because the wild pigs frequent the fastnesses of the foothills, not easy of access. Specially trained packs of hounds are used to trail the boars and bring them into the open to face the rifle fire of the massed ranchers. Added to the difficulties are the expenses of the hunt, casualties among the dogs run high. The area most affected is in the department of Los Lagos, the lake region on the Argentine side of the Andes, where great packs of hounds are constantly on patrol.

ATTRACTIVE IN ITS SIMPLICITY

PATTERN 2201

Here is a frock to make those numerous home chores pleasurable. Its nice simplicity applies not only to its making—which is easy in the extreme, as denoted by the sketch of the garment spread open—but also to the laundering problem. A run of the iron and it is again fresh and immaculate, doing its bit graciously to keep you in trim. Its lovely, freedom-giving design lends itself well to the new cottons in stripes, plaids, checks or floral prints—so well, in fact, that you'll likely repeat the pattern in many fabrics. The smart yoke which includes the sleeve effect is decidedly becoming.

Pattern 2201 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 36 takes 3¼ yards 35 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

Shirtwaist Wedding Gown Is Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

NEWS, thrilling news! Spring and summer brides-to-be will please take notice. It's about the white satin shirtwaist dress which is the very newest thing in wedding gowns. See this perfectly charming new fashion as worn by the lovely bride standing to the right in the picture.

More news! You would never guess unless you were told, namely, the shirtwaist and train are built in one and worn over a sleeveless evening gown of the identical satin. Which we think is a decidedly practical two-in-one costume proposition of which every style-seeking bride ought to know. As to looks, isn't it adorable?

After the nuptial day when the happy newlywed is invited to parties and formals she just leaves the white satin shirtwaist en train with the tulle veil en masse done up in their wrappings of tissue and sachet while she dons the sleeveless dress which served as the foundation of her wedding gown.

The captivating simplicity of this exquisite shirtwaist bridal gown is its big appeal. The trim row of neat little satin-covered buttons and the girlish wide turnover collar with its pleatings of satin about it and at the wrists are beguilingly youthful in aspect. From a coronet of pleated tulle falls a halo and short cape supplemented with yards and yards of tulle trailing out over the conventional long satin train.

The other bride in the picture yields to the lure of lace which is what most everybody in fashion's realm is doing this season. This lovely gown is most enchanting—an aristocrat among wedding gowns. The coronet of pearls and tulle pleatings is attached to one of the very new and smart long-back and short-front wedding veils.

We have been hearing a lot of late in regard to personality fashions. In other words the spirit of the times is to dress to type. This feeling for modes tuned to the individual is particularly evidenced in bridal array. So much so, designers are displaying a daring in originating wedding party ensembles.

We have in mind an away-from-tradition wedding group that goes in for color even to the bride's gown and veil. Her dress is fashioned of chiffon in a most delicate tint of blue and her tulle veil is in the same subtle blue. Her bouquet of pale bluish, almost white orchids together with lilies-of-the-valley is framed with a pleated ruffle of the pale blue tulle.

The four bridesmaids' costumes are of the same blue chiffon as the bride's dress. The high waistlines are accented with pink velvet ribbons such as also tie the pleated capes and trim the blue straw hats.

The maid-of-honor wears pink chiffon trimmed with blue velvet ribbon and her bouquet of pink butterfly roses and blue lace flowers is repeated in a wreath on her hat. The matron of honor wears a tunic dress of sapphire blue lace with a matching straw hat.

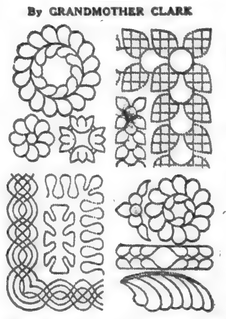
Make Selection for Your Quilt

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



Each patch work or applique quilt requires quilting, and a design should be selected that harmonizes with the design used in the patches. Space for quilting also varies, and the women who do this work should have quite an assortment of quilting designs on hand from which to make a selection. We have pictured three different sets of perforated quilting patterns in past issues.

The above twelve patterns are not perforated. They are, however, printed in dots on perforating bond paper and must be perforated with a pin, which can be done in about ten minutes for each pattern. The patterns are eight times as large as the illustrations above.

Package No. 31A contains these twelve patterns, with cotton and blue powder for stamping; also full instructions how to perforate and stamp them will be mailed to you postpaid upon receipt of 15c.

FOR TOWN WEAR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This brown and white printed jacket dress is smart for town wear. The dress has an interesting stitched-down scarf. The buttons on the tailored jacket alternate brown and white. The belt in brown and the brown and white boutonniere tune in with the color scheme.

Waistline Takes Lower Trend in Latest Styles

The latest trend to watch is the lower waistline favored by LeLong. This designer has skirts shirred four inches below the waist in back of evening gowns and wraps. Lanvin's most glamorous gowns also have low waists and low fullness. Many of her blouses of silk or cotton are worn over skirts and belted at the normal waistline.

Schiaparelli introduces new double belts twisted in back and fastened by large metal-studded plaques.

SOME HIGHLIGHTS IN STYLE PARADE

A word to the wise in the country where summers are hot and long, against the heavy man-tailored suit with its accompanying tweed topcoat. The casual lighter weight dressmaker type with or without a long coat will give better and longer service.

Don't forget that spring means new costume jewelry, and keep an eye out for necklaces.

Hats are with and without brims, up and down, out in front, and something less than nothing flat in the back.

For colors, blue seems to be in the lead, but gray, brown, yellow and the dusty pinks and sinnia tones are important.

Never in years have dainty feminine lingerie touches been more important.

Smart women are carefully studying their types and dressing them. Even the strictly tailored clothes must have a feminine touch.

Velvet is carrying on into summer. With lace daytime and evening clothes, wear little velvet capes, jackets and scarfs. They make the richest, the smartest and the most attractive combination.

Metal Lace Extensively Used in Spring Jewelry

Bracelets, earbobs and clips of metal lace are among the new feminine decorative jewelry notes for spring.

Very clever and something different are those do-dads in which lace designs, both in edging and insertion, have been impressed into metal in bright colors—pink, light blue, green, yellow and in brown, black and navy.

Some of the bracelets are an inch wide, others two inches. The clips resemble a cluster of lace and one design that is fan-shaped is especially clever. The earbobs took their inspiration from rosettes.

"Snow Top" Fur

The high spot in fur is a cape of "snow top fox," a new dye which "snows" the surface and leaves the fur dark underneath.

Rustling Silks to Please

Rustling silks and fluttering furs will be worn by ladies to please their sirs.

Ex-Coast Champ Plans Assault On Race Jinx

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Al Gordon, the careening Californian, a three-lap man in 1932, got his record up to 66 laps last year in the 500-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway classic. But this year he'll be back on Decoration Day with the idea of staying in for the finish.

The handsome, Pacific coast speedster, has smeared himself with California glory and victories for the past year or two and will bring back to the time worn bricks of the Indianapolis track, a more rounded and seasoned experience than when he made his debut in 1933.

Al had a little difficulty that year that put him out after three short turns around. He made the simple mistake of being on the outside at the turn when there were five cars abreast. Al forgot to remember there'd be only room for four and the outside man always runs out of track.

This year he will drive a car for a fellow Californian, Bill White, well known sportsman and a familiar figure at the big time in Indianapolis. Gordon was Pacific coast champion last yeär, qualified his car at 116 miles an hour and was running in second place at the end of 150 miles when he skidded into the wall and wrecked his steering rod and all chance for victory.

Builders of Our Country

The quotation below is taken from a recent speech before the House by John G. Cooper, Member of Congress from Ohio, on the Wheeler-Rayburn bill:

"No doubt every Member of the House has received many letters opposing the passage of this legislation. I will not deny that some of it has been inspired, but I believe I can truthfully say on my honor as a Member of this Congress that not 10 percent of the letters I have received, which run into several thousand, against this legislation, is in form letters. Most of them have been written by individuals, insurance companies, business houses, banks, and various kinds of industries. I have received letters from old people who have written them in long-hand, and you could see that they were well up in years, for their hand tottered when they wrote the letter.

"If these men and women who have invested their life savings in a utility as a protection for old age believe that the passage of this bill may destroy the securities which they have honestly bought, they have a perfect right to come to the Congress and protest against the passage of such a measure."

To Mobolize Hoosier Units

Indiana young men who have been enrolled previously in Civilian Conservation Corps camps are to be eligible for reselection and reenrollment in the forthcoming mobilization of Hoosier units which begins on June 15, it has been announced by officials of the Governor's Commission on Unemployment Relief.

A former ruling permitted men who had been enrolled for a period of five months and honorably discharged to be eligible for reenrollment. This now has been modified so that men within the proper age limits and otherwise well qualified who have served four consecutive months will be eligible. No one will be considered who has served more than thirteen months.

It has also been decided that men who served in the first enrollment period, from April to October, 1933, will be eligible for reinstatement, provided they completed that term of enrollment.

Plans now are being made by the Governor's Commission and the state employment service for the new enrollment in which 5,800 men are to be selected for the twenty-nine new Idiana camps.

Noticing the peculiar shape of one of the fish taken from Bass Lake during the seining of that lake to remove all coarse and predatory species, an examination revealed that the fish carried four and three-quarters pounds of eggs. The fish, after removal of the eggs, weighed but three and a quarter pounds. The high-fin or sucker, was among the thousands of pounds of predatory and coarse fish being taken from the lake with the expectation that fishing for the game fish will be improved.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JUNE 6, 1935 NUMBER 23

WITNESSED MOTOR SPEEDWAY RACES

Ye editor, with Fred Quance, Quentin Mavis, Everett Mavis and son, Everett, and a printer friend from Auburn, drove to Indianapolis Thursday, and witnessed the auto races for the first time. At the beginning everyone was full of excitement, the 1,000 piece band paraded the track for a mile and it was a beautiful sight. The day proved to be the best in the history of the races. The crowd and speed records attained, broke all records. The day was ideal but for a slight sprinkle on the east side of the track which slowed the race down during the last 50 miles. As the crowd milled about on the center of the grounds it presented a most colorful sight.

It is necessary for one to accompany one who had attended this event before, in order to know what is going on, because it is more difficult than attending a 5-ring circus, to know what it is all about. Additional thrills were furnished by the accidents, and while we were a half mile from the scene, we knew something had taken place, and in a half-hour the extra edition was being sold telling the story.

At noon we met and ate our lunch together and passed to the inside of the grounds by subway, then we were able to get to the northwest curve where the fatal accident happened. A large section of the cement wall was demolished and the car plunged over the bank.

The entire 500 miles was run in 4 hours and 25 minutes.

BOARD OF REVIEW NOW AT WORK

The board of review started its work Wednesday and will make adjustments in inividual assessments where found advisable and has the authority to make reductions or increases in different units in order to bring about an equalization. However, no such action is expected to be taken this year. The board also will approve mortgage exemptions.

The last day the board will be in session is July 2. Its members are County Assessor Chas. E. Miser, chairman; County Auditor Frank E. Lyon, County Treasurer Claude P. Fitch, Will Franks and Chas. A. Dohner.

Friday, June 14, St. Joe and Concord township.

Saturday, June 15, Spencerville, Spencer and Newville townships.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

"To remove fish or onion odor from dishes and cooking utensils, add a teaspoolful of baking soda to the dishwater."

"A good way to clean your brushes is to soak them in a diluted solution of ammonia—you can clean combs in the same way. Soap and water can always be used, but ammonia is more effective. When a brush is not in use, it is better to hang it up or to place it on its back, not on the bristles."

The Crothers reunion was held Saturday in the Franke Park at Fort Wayne. John Crothers and family were present. Garth Shull took charge of carrying the rural mail.

SURFACE TREATMENT BIDS ASKED FOR 500 MILES OF HIGHWAYS

Bids will be received on June 10, 11 and 12, for surface treatment of 500 miles of state highways in the Greenfield, Seymour Ft. Wayne and Vincennes districts, it was announced today by James D. Adams, chairman of the State Highway Commission. Bids have been received previously on the surface treatment of 338 miles of state highways in the Crawfordsville, LaPorte and Greenfield districts.

The improvement work on which bids are to be received will require approximately two million gallons of bituminous materials and nearly a hundred thousand tons of aggregate materials. Estimates on projects already submitted to bidders totaled nearly one and a half million gallons of bituminous materials and over 70,000 tons of aggregates.

Projects submitted for bids on June 10, 11 and 12, complete the state highway surface treatment program for the year. This work is being scheduled for completion as early as possible and with favorable working conditions will be completed before the normal heavy traffic of late summer and early fall months.

Surface treatment projects in this vicinity on which the state highway department will receive bids, is that of road 1, from the DeKalb-Allen Co. line to Leo, a distance of 5.06 miles, will be let on June 12, also from road 27 north of Garrett to road 6 at Corunna, known as road 327, a distance of 5.34 miles.

IT'S SURPRISING WHAT CHANCES PEOPLE TAKE

It's surprising what chances people will take with themselves and what care they will take of other personal property.

For instance, a man will call the veterinary when an animal is sick, or he will get his automobile repaired at the first signs of trouble, but he will go on indefinitely without glasses or with a pair he picked out of a basket of "specs" somewhere that will probably damage his eyes more than doing without glasses entirely. In other words, he cares nothing about his most valued possession, his eyesight.

Are you one of those who hasn't the time to take the steps to preserve this precious gift?

Do not delay longer. Have your eyes examined at "the store with the street clock," and know whether or not your eyes need help.

F. G. GETROST, Optometrist,

STEINER—KIMES

In a double ring ceremony at the parsonage of the Mennonite Church of Grabill, Saturday, June 1st, Miss Elvena Steiner, of near Leo, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Steiner, became the wife of Mr. Walter D. Kimes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kimes, of Spencerville.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jerry Sauder. The bride wore a charming gown of shell pink crepe, fashioned with a long full skirt. The large picture hat was of matching color. Her footwear was white kid. She carried a beautiful arm bouquet of calla lilies and white snapdragons.

The bride was attended by Miss Eunice Flagg, of Fort Wayne, as bridesmaid. Mr. Rawles Moudy, of Fort Wayne, served as best man. Miss Flagg wore a lovely gown of blue taffata, a picture hat of matching color and white footwear. She carried pink carnations and snapdragons.

At 1:00 o'clock a dinner was served at the bride's home to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kimes, of Spencerville, Mr. and Mrs. Mortie Widdifield, of Auburn, Mrs. Minnie Kimes and family, Robert, Rose Ann and Dona May, Miss Eunice Flagg, Mr. Rawles, all of Fort Wayne, Miss Sarah Gerig, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Steiner, of Leo, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kimes.

The couple will make their home in East Dearborn, Mich., where Mr. Kimes is employed by Ford Motor Co. The bride is a graduate of Leo High School with the class of '32.

HUNTING DOGS KILL SCORES OF RABBITS

Reports of the Department of Conservation during recent weeks show that scores of young rabbits are being killed by dogs of the hunting species which are allowed to run at large. These dogs trail the rabbits to the nest and kill the young cottontails.

Owners of dogs which belong to the hunting breeds should keep their dogs up for the next six to eight weeks, protecting the young rabbits and assuring themselves better sport next fall, it was pointed out in the reports.

Production of Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks will continue at peak schedules throughout June, and probably considerably longer. June output productions are higher than in June of last year, and full capacity of the manufacturing units and the company's 10 assembly plants will be required to carry out the program. This assures a wide spread of employment at a period when production normally begins to taper off.

Pleated Sleeve Gives Striking New Effect

PATTERN 2212

A pleated sleeve that forms an epaulet shoulder is new and creates a striking effect. (Note the back view, too.) Add to that, the center front buttoning that is so much the rage, soft gathers above the bust line, and a patch pocket, and you've a shirtmaker frock of unrivaled chic. It's a grand thing to jump into for that unexpected jaunt, and is smartly at home in practically any daytime environment. Make it in a new printed linen or cotton, or a cravat silk. It's stunning, too, in plaided or striped sports seersucker or cotton.

Pattern 2212 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3⅛ yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

AN ENEMY PROVES TO BE A FRIEND

The things we do and things we say,
('Tis true though hard to believe it so)
Affect the lives of other folk
More often than we ever know.

SO it is that friends often hurt each other and in the same way enemies help each other without the least idea of so doing. It is a funny world. It certainly is a funny world. You think only of yourself and straightway do the greatest possible kindness or an equally great harm to some one of whom you are not thinking at all, and never know anything about it.

Danny Overheard Mrs. Hooty Tell Hooty That She Had Seen and Heard Some One Moving Down Below.

Just take the case of Mrs. Hooty and Danny Meadow Mouse. Danny always thought of Mrs. Hooty, just as he did of Hooty, as one of the enemies he must always be on the watch for after dark, and Mrs. Hooty always thought of Danny Meadow Mouse simply as a good dinner if only she could catch him. The idea of doing Danny a good turn never in all her life had entered her head. Nor had the idea that she could do such a thing ever entered Danny's funny little head. Yet Mrs. Hooty did do Danny a good turn. In fact, all unknowingly she proved to be a friend.

You remember that Billy Mink had trapped Danny in a hollow log in the Green Forest. Billy couldn't get into that hollow log because the doorway was too small. So he promptly told Danny that he would keep watch until Danny starved to death inside or came out to be caught. Then Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty arrived in a tree close by and Danny overheard Mrs. Hooty tell Hooty that she had seen and heard some one moving down below and that she intended to stay right there until she found out who it was.

Danny at once thought that she was watching for him. But when he had had time to think a little he remembered that he hadn't so much as poked his nose outside that hollow log since the coming of Mrs. Hooty, so of course she couldn't have seen him. Could it have been Billy Mink she had seen? Danny at once became very much interested and crept a little nearer the doorway. He wanted very much to see what was going on outside.

For some time nothing happened. Then he heard Hooty's voice way off in the distance. He crept just a wee bit closer to the doorway and peeped up in the top of the tree where he had heard Mr. and Mrs. Hooty talking. He was just in time to see a great dark shadow sweep silently down. He heard a spiteful snarl and knew then that Mrs. Hooty had tried to catch Billy Mink and had missed him. And he knew, too, that, having escaped, Billy would waste no time hanging about there, but would seek a safer place.

Danny let a little sigh of relief escape. Mrs. Hooty had frightened Billy Mink away and did not herself know that Danny was there. He was no longer trapped. She who would gladly have eaten him had proved a friend by setting him free. Didn't I say that this is a funny world?

THE UNKNOWN

By ANNE CAMPBELL

I DO not know which way the road may lead
Tomorrow.
My soul may tremble like a broken reed
To sorrow;
But though unknown the dark untraveled way,
I have Today!

This day is steeped in joy! Each shining minute
Has gladness in it.
No black forebodings steal the skies' clear blue;
The sun shines through,
And golden lies the path that winds this hour
To love in flower.

I have Today! I face it gratefully,
Intending,
No matter where the road that's meant for me
Is wending
To walk it as the saints their hard way trod,
With faith in God!

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

In the past ten days I have read in the newspapers of thirty-four men committing crimes. I discovered, by keeping tabs on them, that twenty-eight of the thirty-four men ran away to Canada. How do you account for that?

C. KLUSIVE.

Answer: I am surprised, as I thought everybody knew that it was the only place "Toronto."

Dear Mr. Wynn:

A friend of mine has just returned from a trip through the South American tropics and he said that sometimes, while walking along, he would sink 10 and 12 inches in the ground. What struck me rather peculiar was his assertion that farmers lived there and cattle grazed all around. How could cattle exist in mud like that?

Yours truly,
E. QUATER.

Answer: Your friend is right. I have been where he speaks of and I have seen the mud so deep down there that the farmers had to jack the cows up to milk them.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Don't you think a man will succeed better in life if he goes by the following rule: "Live and let live"?

Truly yours,
HAMMOND EGGS.

Answer: That is a great rule for every one excepting a butcher.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have often heard that the worst blow one can receive is the kick of a mule. Do you think a mule can kick harder than a kangaroo?

Yours truly,
ANN TIPODES.

Answer: I have never been kicked by a kangaroo, but once a mule succeeded in kicking me, and for the following six months every time I sat down I left "foot-prints."

Mother's Cook Book

DELICIOUS FRUIT DRINKS

DURING the summer when much water is lost from the body by perspiration, more water should be taken in some form. The easiest drink one knows about is lemonade, refreshing, cooling and easy to take as well as make. Keep in the ice chest a jar of the lemon juice boiled with sugar and water to form a fruit sirup. A mixture of grapefruit juice, lemon and orange, is another drink well liked. Having a sugar sirup made to use for sweetening is a great convenience, as it sweetens at once and does not drop to the bottom like sugar and has to be stirred to be dissolved. Those who like honey use it often in preference to sugar, as it is the best sugar to give children, being easily digested.

When company drops in and needs quick refreshment on a hot day, try an orange ginger ale. For each person combine two-thirds of a cup of orange juice, one-third of a cup of ginger ale, pour over a glass of cracked ice and serve at once. For a delightful ice cream soda serve a glass two-thirds full of orange juice and add a ball of vanilla ice cream. Stir rapidly and serve. Orange juice with lemon juice is liked by many as a combination drink. Iced coffee served as an ice cream soda drink is most delicious. Drop in the ball of ice cream and serve at once. One should remember when serving these refreshing drinks that they are not only cooling to the body, delightful to the palate, but are supplying the body with needed minerals and vitamins for health.

Apple Straws.

Wash and grate a red-skinned apple. Place in sherbet glass and cover with the juice of an orange. Top with freshly grated coconut, chopped nuts and dates. Omit the topping for very young children and also remove the apple skin.

Wild Geese Can Be Confused

The directional sense of the wild goose, while incredibly accurate most of the time, is by no means infallible. Thick weather, wind storms and other natural hazards sometimes confuse whole flocks and lead them to destruction.

Fighting Fire With "Airfoam"

THIS is a scene at Feltham, England, during a demonstration of the "airfoam" apparatus which extinguishes fires in quick time with a smothering action. A mixture of 90 per cent air, 9.8 per cent water and 0.2 per cent soap produces a foam seven times lighter than water, which excludes air from the seat of combustion and can be pumped to great heights.

Chic Triple Sheer Print's the Thing

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE perfect costume for all-around practical daytime wear has arrived! See it pictured herewith. It's the dress with a jacket that is fashioned of the now-so-stylish triple sheer print. The smartest, the neatest, the most sensible and serviceable, the most attractive and best looking are befitting words when it comes to describing these jacket outfits.

There is not the slightest doubt about the wisdom of including one of the new ingeniously designed jacketed costumes in one's spring and summer wardrobe. It will prove an ever faithful standby ready for every daytime occasion. In the illustration we are showing three particularly good-looking models. They are types that women can live in from morning to night and always look well groomed.

These brand new jacket styles are in that famous fabric, triple sheer of bemberg, which is expensive in looks but not in cost. The material is pure dye, cool, washable, or dry-cleans perfectly, if you so prefer. Furthermore, it may be pressed with a hot iron without fear of pulling or slipping at the seams. And, oh, joy of joys, it is practically wrinkle proof and resistant to perspiration.

The extremely good-looking jacket suit to the right in the group is the sort that is ready to go places at a moment's notice. White pique spaghetti cordings and fastenings effectively trim the navy-with-white (other color combinations are available) sheer of bemberg material. Bandings of self-fabric are stitched row-and-row on a net foundation for the sleeves, the same also effectively used in the yoke of the dress. This treatment which has to do with appliques and stitched bandings and folds of the dress print on net backgrounds is one which is being played up by designers throughout current styling.

A flattering jacket costume in a new flower-patterned triple sheer with collar of organdie applique on a foundation of mousseline de soie is pictured to the left. Shirring accents shoulders, sleeves, and pockets. Shirring is very popular just now. It is the fashion to wear flowers, too, which is why this charming young woman has pinned a cluster of dainty posies at her throat.

What's more, fashion goes so far as to suggest "sets" of flowers. That is to say, a gardenia on one's hat is matched with a boutonniere of gardenias. More flower news is to the effect that the floral motif is to be changed to tune in with the mood and the color scheme of the costume. Pin violets on your hat today, wearing matching flowers on your coat lapel or on the bodice of your frock. Perhaps bright field flowers is choice for the day following, or if you would flaunt the favorite flower of the moment, it's the carnation.

As you can see, looking at the costume centered in the picture, a block print in triple sheer of bemberg has a heap o' swank about it. The brief jacket is styled in cape effect, and the yoke of the slim frock alternates narrow stripes of self-material spaced with the net foundation to which they are stitched. Her lovely summery chapeau has gone very feminine what with its flowers and ribbons and a big floppy brim.

We Shall Not Sleep

.. By Lieut. Col. Dr. John McCrae ..

"IN FLANDERS fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing fly,
Scarce heard amidst the guns below.

We are the dead;
Short days ago we lived,
Felt dawn,
Saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved,
And now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe;
To you from falling hands
We throw the torch—
Be yours to hold it high;
If ye break faith
With us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields."

Our Memorial Day

Memorial, Decoration Day

The terms Memorial and Decoration day seem to be used interchangeably. The law providing for this holiday for government employees says "Memorial or Decoration day." In the earlier days of this observance, the day on which flowers and flags were placed on the soldiers' graves, was called Decoration day, and the Sunday preceding was Memorial Sunday. The G. A. R. posts usually attended designated churches to hear memorial sermons.—Washington Star.

THE years have brought changes in Memorial day, but fundamentally it remains the same. When Gen. John A. Logan, as commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, asked a general observance of May 30 as Memorial day, a custom began that devoted its attention chiefly to decorating the graves of soldiers and sailors who had been killed in the war. Men and women of middle years remember how the veterans of that war, still stalwart and vigorous, slowed the pace of their Memorial day march to accommodate a few feeble survivors of the war with Mexico. All the Mexican war soldiers are gone. Seventy years after the surrender at Appomattox, the surviving soldiers of the Civil war stand in the same relationship as did their brothers in arms who enlisted for battle with Mexico. Out of the thousands of G. A. R. members who once took the lead in Memorial day plans, but few remain, and they have lived out the Scripture's allotted span of life. As the torch of freedom falls from their feebled hands, however, younger veterans grasp it and carry on. Thus the institution of Memorial day is perpetuated, and thus it will be observed as long as the nation remembers the debt it owes to men who dared to fight for what they thought was right.

As the goal of every war is peace, so the struggle for peace throughout the world becomes more significant on Memorial day. It is on this day more than any other that the toll of war is seen in the long rows of white-crossed graves at home and abroad, and where the little flags wave in cemeteries throughout America. On this Memorial day the nation yearns for the maintenance of an honorable peace with other nations, near and far. It views with dismay the race among competing nations for more powerful military establishments, and it renews its ancient pledge, to meet them round a conference table, so that war will be no more, and that justice and reason may rule where conflict once held sway.

Yanks' First Shot

THE Department of War says that, according to the information available, the first shot was fired at the enemy by an American-manned gun during the World war at 6:05 a. m., on October 23, 1917, near Barthlemont lea Bousemont, France, by Battery C, Sixth Field Artillery, First division. Sergt. Alex Arch of South Bend, Ind., was in command of the gun crew that fired the shot. The gun itself, a 75-mm. rifle, is now at the United States Military academy.

HERE'S AMERICAN OF THE FUTURE

As Depicted by Prominent Anthropologist.

Those of us who might be interested in science's quest to determine the exact nature of the typical American so far as his physical makeup is concerned, probably will find some small comfort in the theory of Professor Albert E. Jenks, a noted anthropologist of the University of Minnesota. The gist of Professor Jenks' opinion is that whatever the number of conflicting conceptions might exist at the moment as to the physical identity of the American, the time is not too far distant when he will have a definite and recognizable racial classification.

The typical American, according to Professor Jenks, will not be a tall blond person, as some might have supposed. He will be only "fairly tall," dark eyed, dark-haired and darker skinned than the present average. This, he asserts, will be the ultimate outcome of the interbreeding among the early and late arrivals on this continent. Upon the whole, if Professor Jenks' theory is well founded, the typical American will not be an unattractive person, assuming of course, that he incorporates a portion of the better physical qualities of each of the racial strain, that make him.

Man's concern over the question of what he is, as well as what he does, is not motivated solely by considerations of vanity. Curiosity also plays its part. In seeking the Helene of the classicist and the Roman of the Etruscan line he finds them not in the Greek and Italian of today. He becomes giddy, striving to follow the ancient medley of races that swarmed and intermingled on the Spanish peninsula. In striving to trace his family lineage he is dismayed by the multitude of his own ancestors, enough to populate a small city within a surprisingly few generations.

In any event, and whatever we of America might eventually become, there is comfort in the thought that we shall be a definite something. Since we are a nation, there is little reason why we should not also be a race; and i. must be acknowledged that there is some excellent material here.—Manchester (N. H.) Union.

GLAMOR OF LACE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Lace has been shown in beautiful creations at every Paris collection this season. This very choice formal is of salmon pink lace, the full transparent skirt showing the slim, color-matched slip beneath. The sash of velvet ribbon is also in the identical salmon pink. Three strands of graduated pearls, a rhinestone bracelet and a pearl bracelet are the complementing jewelry notes.

PLEATED SKIRTS IN CHIFFON NEW STYLE

The tidal wave that has brought in more width for skirts has also brought in pleats. This type of fuller skirt is available in daytime and evening fashions, although the evening skirt version is being seen more often at present. It is a fashion that may be said to have come out of the emphasis on floating chiffon skirts, for most of the pleated styles so far are done in chiffon.

There is a particular genre in chiffon and pleats that goes with sunburst pleats, entire skirts and bodices also pleated—very Grecian, and reminiscent of the sunburst evening skirts which Mainbocher and Louiseboulanger offered in evening frocks at their openings.

But there are other interpretations of the pleated idea, in front fullness or back fullness, in those concentrated panel godets that are used often for adding width this season.

Coarse Novelty Straws Take Lead in Millinery

It is the way of hats to be anything and everything but ordinary. One of the new lines—it's impossible to designate any one type as the newest—is the hat with a brim which projects forward. Beret types are draped that way.

Coarse novelty straws, some shiny, some rough, are everywhere, but so, too, are Milans. There are any number of stitched taffeta hats and unusual felts.

The long threatened return of trimming has come. Milliners have followed the lead of the couturiere and are trimming with flowers.

Formal Swagger Coat

The formal swagger coat is a piquant newcomer. Done in woolens that vary from black to palest blue, with full sleeves and soft collars, they flare and swing above the most elegant of afternoon dresses.

MORTUARY

WASHLER

Mrs. Christena Washler, daughter of Isaac and Mary Farver, was born at Spencerville, Indiana, August 21, 1859 and passed away to her reward May 22, 1935, aged 75 years, 9 months and 1 day.

At the age of five, she left Spencerville, moving with her parents to a farm near Rehoboth where she grew to womanhood.

May 10, 1877 she was united in marriage with C. A. Washler. To this union were born nine children. Mr. and Mrs. Washler resided in St. Joe a short time, moving from there to California, where they lived nine months. Returning to St. Joe they lived there for several years, then moved to their farm south of Newville in 1894. In later years they have resided east of the Newville U. B. Church.

Mrs. Washler was converted and united with the U. B. Church in 1898 under the ministry of Rev. C. E. Kriebel. She was also a member of the Aid Society and Sunday School and was a faithful attendant at all the services as long as health permitted. She had been ailing for some time, but her last illness was of short duration. The Grim Reaper, Death, claiming her at the end of a three day illness.

Two daughters preceded her in death. Those who remain to cherish her memory are the husband and following children: John, Estella, Cleve, Louis, Ida, Adrian, and Don. Also three brothers, John H. Farver, James L. Farver and J. L. Farver, besides nine grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Mrs. Washler was a devoted wife and mother, a good neighbor and true friend.

"There is mourning in our quiet home
For there is a vacant place;
A missing voice, and soft foot-fall,
And kind familiar face:
For from our transient sphere away,
She has passed to climes of endless day.

"She has gone to dwell with angel bands,
The happy and forgiven,
In the Father's 'house not made with hands
Eternal in the Heaven.'
There grief and pain shall enter not,
And earthly troubles are forgot."

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to all who assisted us during the sickness and death of our wife and mother. Especially the ladies of the church, the donors of the beautiful flowers and the ministers for their consoling words, and the singers for the music.

Describes Floods In Colorado Districts

Bert Hull Writes His Brother, Joseph Hull, of St. Joe, Concerning Heavy Rains and Floods

THE WORST IN MANY YEARS

Damage To Entire State Is Tremendous By Loss of Life and Property

Colorado Springs, Colo.
June 3, 1935.

Dear Brother and All:

Your letter mailed Saturday reached us today and were sure glad to hear from you again. Did not think of you being worried about us or would have written you at once. The reports of the A. P. and U. P. and radio have been greatly exaggerated as they always are.

After having one of the worst drouths that had ever been experienced it began raining here and snowing in the mountains about three weeks ago and continued giving us nice gentle rains since then until we had about 5½ inches, which had completely filled the ground, then it began to rain harder and had 2½ inches on Thursday in Colorado Springs and north of us, which flooded all the streams which flow into Monument Creek, which flows through Colorado Springs, and on to Pueblo. Monument Park lays along this stream on both sides and was about 2½ miles long and was almost ruined.

The Park ran north from the Rio Grande Depot. Two road bridges were washed out north of the Rio Grande viaduct, also two foot bridges in the park, two road bridges at Roswell at Rock Island yards, the creek bridge at the west end of viaduct at south side of Rio Grande depot, the Rio Grande railroad bridge across the creek on Manitou branch, the Midland railroad bridge just south of Rio Grande bridge, the South Tejou St. bridge on way to the Canyons and Broadmoor, the So. Nevada bridge just south of where Greenos lived and houses were taken out in the two blocks between where they lived and that large cement bridge which was taken out.

Greenos live over in the northeast part of town toward where Howard's live but further north. I stood on the Bijou Street viaduct just north of Rio Grande depot for about two hours and watched the water coming down through the park and under the Rio Grande Rock Island railroad bridge then under large cement bridge which is the west end of viaduct over tracks. It kept rising slowly until it was up to sills on bridge and was but a short time until the wave would strike it and throw water over the tracks, then began running over the rails all along the track at bridge and north of it. It began running down the tracks through the railroad yards and in a short time the bridge was taken down stream.

The creek was washed out about twice as wide as it was in many places and is several feet deeper. A flood here is not like a flood on St. Joe River, as it flows so fast and some of the waves or crests are 6 or 8 feet high and take every thing that is in the way. Saw large trees undermined and taken down stream like small sticks.

A young couple from Pueblo stopped on the road to watch the flood and Greeno tried to persuade the girl to let him carry her out, but they thought it would soon go down and stayed and finally got on top the car to get out of water, but it still rose and the car went off the road and they were both drowned and neither of them have been found.

A Mrs. Clark, a friend of ours, was drowned because she and another lady wanted to see the flood and drove the car across where water was running across street and car was taken off road and she was drowned and body was found about 8 miles south in driftwood. So far there has been two drowned here and the boy and girl from Pueblo. They tried every way to save them but no one dared venture in such a swift current. Tried to rescue them with ariel fire truck and it was wrecked. About 1500 houses were wrecked or damaged by flood and water.

The flood district is patrolled and only workers are allowed to go in that section, so have not seen much of it yet. Helen, Mary Lodise, Betty Arline and Carrie are planning on leaving Colorado Springs for Indiana about next Saturday, if weather and roads are O. K. Will stop at Lawrence for a day or so then on to Indiana. They are driving Howard's car. Guess I can not come this time as we con't both leave very well at one time, so will have to come later.

Would like to drop in and take a few meals with you as you no doubt are a good cook. I will have to do some cooking while they are gone or else go hungry. Have not done much cooking since I was on Rock Island.

Love to all from all. Bert.

"The St. Joe River Valley"

"And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was on the face of the deep."

It is easy for us to take things as we find them without much thought of the tremendous drama enacted in their making.

That the St. Joe River Valley produces fruits and vegetables of an unusually fine flavor and quality is proven by the fact that at the last competitive exhibit at the Fort Wayne Producers Market it captured nine of the fourteen awards for merit. The competition was from all other directions out of Fort Wayne.

The world's largest production on an acre, and the winners of the five acre corn production competition for several years have been St. Joe River Valley growers. Of course, the soil and climate are major factors in these results.

In making the St. Joe River Valley nature has ground up an entire mountain range, transported it thousands of miles and dumped it here for the benefit of those who are fortunate enough to share the Valley's products.

At the end of the Devonian or second of the six geological periods in the earth's development, about the time when fish first made their appearance, a convulsion of nature threw up a mountain range. Most of the mineral elements in the earth's crust were solidified by this time. This high range of mountains extended from Labrador to The Lake of The Woods and Northward to the Arctic Ocean.

The area in which the St. Joe River Valley lies was pushed up out of the sea, and as a consequence missed the influences at work in the next three geological periods of the earth's changes: Carboniferous, Reptilian and Tertiary.

The finishing period of this area is interesting and accounts for the superior quality of the native timber which grew in the St. Joe River Valley and of the fruits and vegetables now produced.

Changes in the flow of the warm Equatorial ocean streams put more and more moisture in the air of the Northern Hemisphere and increased the snow fall beyond comprehension. An ice field was formed in the Arctic region that became so heavy that by its own weight was squashed out, pushing it southward to about the latitude of Chicago and Cleveland, and even further in some places. This field of ice and snow was about a mile deep at its southern fringe, which now began to melt in the warmer climate.

The northern mountain range was completety leveled off by the grinding of this moving ice and the Granites of which it was formed was reduced to boulders, gravel, sand and dust. This conglomerate mass, rich in all the minerals of the earth's early formations was carried along, mixed with the ice and dumped to make the soil covering the Devonian rocks.

This overlay of ground up mountains is from eighty to two

Rev. L. C. Berry Called by Death

Former Soldiers Home Chaplin and Spanish War Veteran Expires

Rev. Delphos Lohr Berry, 58, Grand Rapids, Mich., chaplain at Michigan Soldiers Home in 1920 and 1921, former pastor of Joy Memorial Church and a veteran of the Spanish-American war, died Sunday night at his home, 148 Griggs St., S. W. He has been ill for some time.

Mr. Berry was born in DeKalb county, Indiana. He attended Western Reserve law college and was admitted to the practice of law in 1897. His legal career ended when he enlisted in the Spanish-American war. Subsequent to the war he attended the College of the Bible, being graduated in 1906 and being ordained in 1907.

Held Many Pastorates

He held pastorates at Cascade, Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Dowagiac, Mich; Buffalo, N. Y.; LaPorte, Ind.; and Ozark, Ark. He served Joy Memorial Methodist Church here shortly after the World War.

His first enlistment was on May 12, 1898, when he joined Company A, 19th United States infantry. He was transferred to the 8th cavalry and then to the hospital corps, in which he served in Cuba. In 1915 he was appointed provisional chaplain. In 1917 and 1918 he was in charge of conscientious objectors in Camp Travis, Texas, and Fort Sill, Oklahoma. He was commissioned to the reserve in 1922 with the rank of captain. From 1922 to 1928 he served as chaplain at Fort Leavenworth and at Milwaukee. In 1920 he was service secretary of the local Y. M. C. A.

He was a member of the Organized Reserve Officers association, a charter member of Guy V. Henry Camp, No. 3, United Spanish War Veterans, and a member of Hiram lodge, No. 68, F. & A. M., at Lawenworth, Kan.

Surviving are his widow, two daughters, Dorothy Lee, of Detroit, and Carolyn, of Grand Rapids; two sons, DeLohr, of Greenville and Lloyd, of Grand Rapids; his father, Winfield S. Berry, of St. Joe, Ind.; two sisters, four brothers and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Franklin Street Church of Christ. Burial in Woodlawn cemetery.

GARRETT LADY WRITES OF EDUCATIONAL CLASSES

It is with feelings of deep regret among a number of Garrett ladies, that the Educational Classes, conduced by Mrs. Ruth Butler, of Spencerville, are about to come to a close.

We know that Mrs. Butler is worthy of the greatest praise, in her efforts to make the classes enjoyable as well as beneficial. And the ladies who have so faithfully attended, feel their efforts in coming and taking part in the various lines of work taught, that they have been well repaid. Not only have they been benefited in learning but also the coming in contact with others and the interchanging of ideas and problems in round table talks have been of inestimable value. It has put new life and zest in some who had been utterly discouraged before, for you know that on the low wage many are receiving, pleasures and amusements, which even are at a minimum of cost are entirely taboo, and these evenings have afforded a happy diversion from the confining routine of home, without a cent of cost.

Some of the subjects studied were the different kinds of cloth, and their most economical use for the various purposes; plain and fancy sewing; child care and feeding and child management; meal planning; and budget making. Food budgets were made whereby $3.00 per week would sustain life for people.

One evening was given to rug making and some who never knew how to crochet before started their first rug. Remodeling was also one of the valuable lessons. The ladies bringing their old garments, ripping them apart and making new garments.

Dying also was one happy diversion the ladies actually dying different articles right in class. Crayon work was another craft which will make many a home brighter for its knowledge, especially for the busy housewife who finds so little time for leisure, for crayon work can be used in place of embroidery, and expensive painting, in decorating the home.

Away from the family, home, children? Yes, but why not? That in itself had its advantages, for it not only gave mother a necessary recreation but father, who probably never before took over the responsibility of the children, was called upon to take his share of the responsibility of the home for a few hours twice a week. This brought him in close contact with the children, brought out their love for each other and gave him a better incite into and appreciation of the home.

So looking back over the period of this Educational Program, one realizes the benefit received cannot be expressed and cannot be appriciated in so short a space of time for it is something that in its remembrance can be drawn upon for continual benefit throughout life.

Mrs. Eleanor Johnson.

Local People In Ball Commencement

The Ball Teachers College commencement held Wednesday, June 12, 1935 was of local interest due to the many young people of the community who have been and are at present enrolled there.

Those from this vicinity at present enrolled are: Parlia Hull, Virginia Shull, Lenore Laub, Violet May and Harriett Oberlin, the latter completed a Kindergarten Primary course this last term and graduated with the class of 1935.

Miss May will also have completed her six weeks course and following a short vacation will take up another six weeks course.

We are proud to learn that the name of Lenore Laub was listed as one of the two freshmen whose names appear on the honor roll for this year.

Promptly at 10:00 o'clock Wednesday morning the 315 graduates marched from the college auditorium to the platform erected on the campus for the commencement exercises.

Those receiving the M. A., B. A., and B. S. degrees wore black caps and gowns. Those completing the K. P. or I. G. courses wore white caps and gowns.

The program was as follows:

Processional
March from "Tannhauser" Wagner, College Band, Claude E. Palmer, Director
College Hymn, "Alma Mater" College Band
Invocation, Dr. J. W. G. Fast, High St., M. E. Church
Music, "In the Tavern," Op. 17 No. 10, Jensen, College Band
Address, Bishop Francis J. McConnell, M. E. Church, New York City
Soprano Solos, "I Attempt from Love's Sickness to Fly," Purcell; "Awake, My Love," Terry, by Ethel Green, Richard Carpenter, accompanist
Conferring of Degrees and Certificates
Recessional
"March Noble," Chr. Bach, College Band.

Those from this community who witnessed the commencement exercises were Mr. Miles Oberlin and daughter, Barbara Jo.

AND THE CAT WENT BACK

This time the cat went home instead of came home. Some weeks ago Frank Loftus was at South Bend and he brought home a yellow cat. It stayed about for a while and finally disappeared. About a month later word was received from South Bend friends that the cat came back. It was the same cat, because about 2 inches of the tail had been removed and the cat answered every mark of identification exactly.

Just a few more days like this and off will come the red flannels.

A nineteen-pound daughter was born recentlly to Mr. and Mrs. Everett Yates, farmers living near Henry, Arkansas. Both the mother and daughter are O. K.

The President's new scale of wages for relief work sets the minimum wage at $19 per month which is unsatisfactory for a married man in comparison with the $30 per month allowed CCC boys.

Six Lincoln ewes, belonging to Ralph Kline, Augusta, Illinois, sheared a total of 101 pounds of wool; nearly 17 pounds per head.

A moron, according to the dictionary, is an individual with a mind which never exceeds that of a normal 12-year-old child.

It will cost the government about $5,000,000 per month to feed the CCC boys this summer.

Making money has proved unprofitable for most of the 2,751 counterfeiters arrested in 1934 by the Federal Secret Service.

During the first five days in June many farmers in the Mid-West planted their corn in the mud and mowed their alfalfa with a scythe. These farmers are anything but optomistic about this year's prospects for a crop.

The Dionne quintuplets will be one year old on May 28th. At that time the children will be taken from the care of the Red Cross nurses and turned over to some Roman Catholic organization. And it is further understood that if the parents have their wishes, the good Dr. Allen Roy Dafoe will be discharged at that time.

The "bogy-boo" to automobile dealers is the trade-ins. On an average, for every new sale the car dealer must make 1,71 used car sales.

Thanks! Thanks, to the Columbia Broadcasting System. A new ruling by the CBS will limit commercial announcements to 15 per cent of total broadcasting time by day and 10 per cent after six o'clock in the evening.

Out of more than 900 different makes of automobiles which have been manufactured in the United States less than three dozen makes now survive.

ALFALFA THRIVING UNDER HEAVY RAINFALL

Due to the heavy rainfall of the last two months, many farmers have experienced difficulty in getting their crops planted. However, those who seeded alfalfa last year are smiling, because the rainfall has been exceptionally good on this hay crop.

For a good many years Indiana farmers have felt the need of increased alfalfa acreage, but the necessity of producing orops on every acre made this almost an impossibility until they were given the privilege of seeding alfalfa on the acres taken out of production under the AAA program. Last year the acreage of alfalfa doubled that of former years in this state. This increase will act in a two-fold purpose—an excellent hay crop, and restoration of fertility in some of the worn out acres.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

By ANN PAGE

MARKETING is pleasanter these days when so many foods are again reasonable in price. Meats while not appreciably lower, have apparently reached their peak for the time being. Most vegetables are cheap, some are moderate, very few high. Butter is one-third cheaper than it was a few weeks ago. Eggs have maintained price and quality but are reasonable. Seafood and fish of many kinds are plentiful and cheap.

A wide choice is possible in fruits as winter fruits linger and summer fruits are in market, including peaches, melons and berries, all reasonably priced.

Here are three menus made up from seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels.

Street Fair Sponsored By Firemen

St. Joe Will Have Four Big Days and Nights of Street Fair, June 26-27-28-29

Mr. E. Erbine and J. C. Smith, of New Haven, were in town Tuesday and made a contract with the local Fire Department to stage a big fair for four days and nights on June 26-27-28-29.

The midway will consist of Rides of all kinds, Shows, Concessions, Ferris Wheel, Merry-go-round, and the like.

Each night at 10:00 o'clock will be the big free act consisting of Latham's Trained Dogs and Monkeys, an act that will please everybody, and will be worth seeing.

Meet your friends in St. Joe on the above dates and enjoy yourself.

Remember this fair is sponsored by the St. Joe Firemen, the men who stand guard over your property at all times.

NEARLY 200 NEW LAWS NOW EFFECTIVE

Indiana's statutes gained 185 more chapters Monday afternoon as Governor Paul V. McNutt promulgated acts of the 1935 legislature.

While 325 laws were passed, many went into effect immediately by provision of their emergency clauses and others become effective on specified dates.

Major pieces of legislation such as the liquor control law, carried emergency clauses, but others became effective on promulgation of the acts.

The governor's action Monday followed completed distribution of copies of the session's acts to county clerks.

Of the acts going into effect Monday, one of widespread interest was the Nicholson "heart balm" act.

APPROVES FARM SALE

The sale by Frank M. Brandon, special representative of the state department of financial institutions in the liquidation of the St. Joe Valley bank, of 80 acres of land in section 23, Spencer township to Harley F. Saylor for $1,275 has been approved by Judge Endicott.

This farm is known as the Frank Scholes farm east of the Hadsell bridge a half mile.

Finest Quality Eggs Are Now Laid-to-Order

Controlled Feeding Makes Them Look and Taste Better

A revolutionary development resulting in vastly improved egg quality has been made possible in the past few years by two great factors in the poultry industry, according to Meade Summers of the poultry department of Purina Mills. One of these factors, he says, is the growing consumer demand for eggs that look better and taste better—eggs that are uniformly better than average in appearance, color, flavor, and keeping qualities. The other has been the willingness of the producer to recognize this inevitable consumer trend and to cooperate in the production of eggs that have all these quality features.

"It is this combination of circumstances", says Summers, "that has made absolute control of egg quality a definite achievement today and has brought laid-to-order eggs within easy reach of every producer and consumer. For today any poultry raiser, from the back yard flock owner to the big commercial operator can easily and economically get the finest of eggs, without variation, from his birds. Which means naturally that folks who use eggs can now purchase exactly the kind of eggs they prefer, anytime and anywhere—eggs which stand up well, with attractive light yellow yolks on thick firm whites, eggs which always have the same wholesome color and healthful flavor, eggs that always look and taste their best in every way they are prepared and served.

"The fascinating story of the successful development of quality egg control is all told in a bag of feed", Summers says. "It's a story that began 8 years ago in the research laboratory and experiment station. At that time Purina research men, observing the rapid growth of this quality egg market, began an intensive experimental program to make it easy to produce eggs made to order in all quality requirements. For six years, thousands of hens were used in a quality egg investigation which included a close study of breeding, feeding, care of eggs, housing, flock management, total egg production, cost of production, and the health and vigor of the birds—every factor that might effect egg quality.

Controlled feeding does this. Makes eggs that stand up well and always have the same appetizing color, flavor and appearance. Every egg looks better, tastes better, and is more wholesome and healthful. They do better in all egg recipes too!

"In the last analysis, feed is what makes eggs. The kind of feed used, the researchers decided, would undoubtedly have the most direct bearing on the kind of eggs produced. Accordingly, every practical combination of egg making ingredients was included in these feeding tests and results carefully observed. The eggs, produced, too, were checked in the laboratory as to size, shell texture, color of yolks, condition of whites, keeping qualities, taste, and food content.

"As a result of these years of experiments, we've found that a hen is almost 100% under the control of the feeder—that whatever is put into the beak comes out in the egg.

"Resulting from this experimental work is a single complete feed built from a proven egg making formula that never varies from bag to bag. It gives hens everything they need in feed for producing quality eggs. There is no chance for the hen to upset the formula. She can't pick and choose her feed to suit herself. Every bite she takes is the same—ever mouthful provides the same balanced quality egg making ingredients. Besides giving quality control, this feed has been found to promote higher sustained production, maintain body-weight and condition, and reduce hen mortality. Too, it has made feeding easier since there's nothing else needed but water.

"Controlled feeding has made quality eggs a household institution. There is no reason today for producer or consumer being satisfied with anything less than eggs which are uniformly the best in size, color, appearance, flavor, and food value, when such eggs are so easily produced and so available to every housewife."

Married In December

Friends are passing the word around stating that Hollis Akins and Josephine Bachtel were married on December 21, last and we can say they have done a good job keping it to themselves. Mrs. Akins is employed at the telephone central office and will continue her work for a couple months.

J. RAYMOND SCHUTZ AT ST. JOE

At a Tri-Township meeting of Sunday School executives a few weeks ago, plans were made for a big convention of all schools of Newville, Spencer and Concord Townships, and today the plans were definitely assured, when acceptance of J. Raymond Schutz, of North Manchester, Ind., was received and will be here on June 30, for afternoon and evening engagement.

The committee plans to make this the largest and best convention in years and full details of plans will be announced later.

Talk St. Joe Valley

"The St. Joe River Valley"

hundred feet thick and we know it as clay with deposits of sand, gravel and boulders scattered through it as they were dropped by the floods from the melting ice. The water supply of the area comes from the sand and gravel deposits and as a rule carry traces of Chalybeate, which has its origin in magnetic iron, testifying to the early origin of the sand and gravel from which it comes.

In addition to tearing down the mountains the scouring of the moving ice gouged out the basins of the great Lakes and the hundreds of smaller ones that dot Northeastern Indiana. While this gigantic movement was going on, the level of the water was two hundred and fifty feet or more above the present level of the Great Lakes. The Southern movement which scoured out the Erie Basin was deflected to the Southwest by a ridge in the hard underlying bed of rock and took a course through Fort Wayne and on down through what is now the Wabash Valley to an outlet in the Gulf of Mexico. This ridge cuts off what is now the St. Joe River Valley from the balance of the old Erie Basin.

With another change in the flow of the Equatorial ocean streams the climate changed again and the excessive snows stopped but as the great accumulated mass melted away, floods greater than we can imagine carried icebergs with loads of debris down the ancient waterways to the gulf.

With the lowering of the water-level, due to the diminishing supply, some of these bergs became grounded and dropped their load in the stream until the outlet to the gulf became stopped up and the water was all turned to the St. Lawrence outlet as at present.

The shore line of Lake Erie at one time was through Adrian, Michigan, into Ohio and through Fayette, Harmar, West Unity, Pulaski, Bryan, Farmer Center, Hicksville and into Indiana thru Fort Wayne. East of this line lay the flat lands of Northwestern Ohio once covered wih elm timber. The ridge to the west of this line kept the St. Joe River Basin from spilling over into the old Erie Basin and developed a soil of an entirely different kind which grew heavy hardwoods like Oak, Beech and Maple. This ridge runs from Hudson, Michigan through Pioneer, Montpelier, Edgerton and Southwest to Fort Wayne, forming the east side of the St. Joe River Valley, and is never more than three of four miles from the River.

The St. Mary's River, which drains a large part of the old abandoned Lake Erie Basin meets the St. Joe River at Fort Wayne and forms the Maumee, so the water from the St. Joe River Valley goes back into Lake Erie as when the Great Lakes were first made. The meeting of the St. Joe and St. Mary's at Fort Wayne is unlike the meeting of any other rivers anywhere in that they come together almost at right angles and the new river they form, the Maumee, flows backward between them.

After the drainage systems were established as they now are the flood waters of the St. Joe overflowing the adjacent lands deposited sand and gravel ground from the rocks brought down by the snow and ice and with the decaying vegetation of thousands of years has made a rich sandy loam in much of the Valley. In other places the sand deposits are so recent that the soil is sandy without mixture, while on the higher ground the soil is clay just as left by the snow and ice except for a thin layer of top soil from decaying vegetation.

Still another kind of soil can now be cultivated. Innumerable small lakes were gouged out by the ice and the later growth of vegetation filled them until they became muck swamps, with peat in the bottoms. Elaborate systems of drainage have unwatered these swamps until they are the richest of soils for crops to which they are adapted.

This story is told that you may know why the St. Joe River Valley with its soil of clay, sandy loam, sand and muck offers the wide variety of fruits and vegetables of the finest flavor. It is simply because these soils have in them the necessary food for their growth much of which is lacking in any soil not composed of all the elements found in the earth's earliest rock formations.

Another advantage when combined with the soil is in the fact that the summer winds carry a large amount of moisture from the lakes laying west, north and east and keep the air humid. Daily weather charts show a remarkbly large number of days as cloudy or part cloudy, in this area from Lake Michigan to the Southeast, all of which has its effect on the quality and flavor of the fruits and vegetables produced in the Valley.

The location of the St. Joe River Valley in the Southern part of the basin that is overlaid with glacial drift shortens the distance its products must be moved to consumers in Ohio and Indiana south and east of it as much as a hundred and fifty miles on a round trip for a truck, which often means the saving of a day.

The advertisers in this paper are all independent growers and should be addressed or called upon directly.

Research Farm Stops Costly Cow Troubles

Breeding, Calving, Udder Difficulties Done Away With

There's a phase of dairy research very much to the interest of every herd owner, according to C. R. Perdew, herdsman at the Purina Experimental Farm. It's the plain everyday side of dairying that deals with and successfully eliminates costly cow troubles which, if neglected or taken for granted, frequently ruin good cows, increase replacement expense, curtail milk production, and greatly reduce profits.

Above, left—udder with a bad quarter; right—good, healthy udder with all four working. Cow troubles can be avoided by proper feeding during the dry, freshening and milking period.

"In the light of recent developments," says Perdew, "it's no longer necessary to tolerate such common cow troubles as breeding failures, calving difficulties, congested udders, lost quarters, and similar ailments around the dairy barn. They are unnecessary evils that can almost be completely controlled and done away with by a practical method of handling cows. That has been demonstrated beyond question by the experience of many leading dairymen and our research work here at the Purina Experimental Farm, where a close study of these problems has been made for the past 7 years.

"Anyone looking in on the Purina Experiment Farm," Perdew says, "will find, not a fancy or show place, but a farm in many respects like the average dairy farm. The herd is made up of grade cows, and the milk is sold on the St. Louis market. Seven years ago the foundation stock for the present herd was purchased. The yearly average production of these cows was 6800 pounds of milk per head. By proper feeding and management this has been increased to 12,146 pounds. Last year the herd led its cow testing association with a yearly net profit of $57 per cow.

Exceptional Breeding Record

"Udder, calving, and breeding difficulties have gradually disappeared from the herd. The breeding records show how the plan of handling and feeding, developed and used by the farm, wards off costly cow troubles. Through the past 7 years we have records on 422 conceptions. The records show that 77.96% of the cows conceived on the first service; 14.45% conceived on the second service; 5.45% conceived on the third service; and 2.14% conceived after the third service. These figures total 100% and give the whole story.

"Udder trouble, another common cow complaint has been very conspicuous by its absence from the Purina dairy herd. Only 12 of the 208 cows in a four year test were sold on account of udder trouble. This was an average of only three cows per year. Two of these 12 cases of udder breakdown were injuries resulting from the udders being stepped on.

"It's this kind of everyday research work that has made it possible to develop feeds and a plan of feeding that can eliminate costly cow troubles from any herd, cut replacement costs, increase production, and step up the net profit of cows. Other leading dairy herds handled along similar lines have also been freed from these unprofitable factors, according to the records kept by their owners, whose reliability and knowledge of cows is unquestioned.

"The experience and information resulting from this dairy improvement work is now available to all dairymen in a booklet entitled 'Profitable Cows'," says Perdew. "The booklet can be had without obligation by writing to Purina Mills, Educational Division, St. Louis, Mo."

NEW BOOK ON DAIRY PROFITS

So that all may have access to the latest dairy developments there has been published an authoritative, well-timed bulletin "Profitable Cows" by Purina Mills. Here is presented a practical and helpful plan for cutting cow costs and building the dairy herd to a more profitable basis of production, through the proper handling of the cows during the dry, freshening, and milking periods. The methods described are practical ones which create in every cow the correct condition for her to do her best work all the year around. They give her the reserve and resistance to ward off dangerous inside tear-down which leads to disease.

Copies of the booklet "Profitable Cows" may be had free by writing to Purina Mills, Educational Division, St. Louis, Mo.

Attorneys for Noah Amstutz, age 52, a former Harlan banker, have filed a motion for a new trial in the Allen circuit court at Fort Wayne. Amstutz was found guilty of making a bank loan to an officer of the institution without written consent of the directors. Amstutz is liable to a sentence of 2 to 14 years in the Indiana state prison at Michigan City and a fine double the mount of $3,561.54 alleged to have been illegally borrowed by him from the bank. This would constitute a fine of $7,123.08, plus costs. Amstutz's attorneys plan to appeal to the supreme court in event the motion for new trial is overruled it was indicated.

NATURAL FORCES AID BUSINESS RECOVERY

By R. S. HECHT
President American Bankers Association

ALTHOUGH, as official studies of business conditions show, business is still far from having struck its full stride, nevertheless, I believe that it is undoubtedly true that the natural economical processes which have always brought the nation out of a slump are now and have been for some time steadily at work laying the foundations for more active and normal business conditions.

R. S. HECHT

I believe that there is growing a broader public perception that the people of this country must make their own prosperity and not wait for the Government at Washington to make it for them. In other words, normal economic vigor and vitality of the United States is slowly but inevitably bringing a return of natural business recovery.

The Fundamental Cure

Like a doctor, the administration can help nature. But the fundamental healing processes will come from natural causes and not from political remedies. Despite the slackening of business now apparent, despite expressions of disappointment we hear from various quarters, nevertheless I am confident that these fundamental healing processes, if not spectacular, are none the less surely at work.

Gradually our business leaders are showing greater confidence in the future and are assuming a more forward looking position. I firmly believe that if we will make up our minds to replace fear-psychology with confidence-psychology the results will fully justify such a new attitude.

BANKERS' ASSOCIATION STIMULATES ADVERTISING

The American Bankers Association's Advertising Department reports rapid progress of the use by banks of the informative bank newspaper advertising prepared by it for members to assist them in rebuilding public confidence and good will in their communities.

The central theme of this advertising service deals with the "essential line of economic and social service that all sound banking inherently renders the depositor and the public," the report says, showing that "it is not banking laws which make banking useful and safe, but that fundamentally it is honesty and skill in management under private initiative."

The Advertising Department is supplying about a thousand members of the association with newspaper and other advertising material. The newspaper material totals about 50,000 advertisements annually. The growth of the work of the department is shown by the following figures: On September 1, 1934, the number of banks being served regularly each month was 633. The total number on April 1, 1935, was 934, an increase of 301 regular subscribers, or 49 per cent in a period of seven months.

WARS ON BANK ROBBERS

National Bankers Association Pressing Active Steps to Protect Members—Losses Cut

Imprisonment or death of many desperate bank criminals the past year has brought no appreciable reduction in attacks on banks, James E. Baum, in charge of the American Bankers Association Protective Department, has reported to his organization.

In the six months ended February 28, 1935, he says, banks were targets for 169 daylight holdups and 40 night burglaries. He added that although banks that are not members number only about half those enrolled in the association, they suffered a far greater rate of attack, namely, 51 per cent of all the bank robberies committed during the period.

Losses Show Decrease

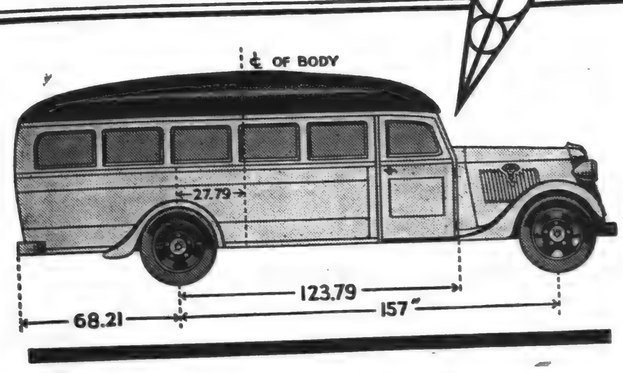
During the period under report, bank burglars and bandits exacted tribute amounting to $943,551 compared with losses totaling $1,357,000 a year ago, he said. This reduction in losses is attributed to the time-locking restrictions and other limitations in the exposure of surplus cash imposed last year by underwriters and several bank supervisory authorities.

The sharp reduction in the material loss of money and securities resulting from bank robbery this year was "overshadowed by the killing of 3 bank employees, one bystander and 5 arresting officers," and since last August bank robbery also cost the lives of 15 criminals and caused physical injuries to 10 bank employees, 13 bystanders, 9 arresting officers and 8 bandits, a total of 83 casualties.

Investigations by the association's agents resulted in the arrest of 36 forgers, 43 bandits and one burglar, or 79 of the 141 bank criminals reported as being apprehended during the period.

THE IDEAL CHASSIS FOR SCHOOL BUS BODIES

Ford



IT IS the duty of every school board . . . the duty of every school bus owner operating under contract . . . to provide equipment that offers the greatest SAFETY and COMFORT for the children. But the question of ECONOMY must not be ignored. • The Ford V-8 Chassis for Bus Bodies provides the safety of positive, quick-stopping brakes. It has reliable torque-tube drive, dependable full-floating rear axle and sturdy strength in every detail. It provides the comfort of a longer front spring and free-shackled semi-elliptic rear springs. And with these features it combines an 80-horsepower V-8 engine that owners have proved uses no more fuel than a "four." • Before you buy any bus this year . . . ask your Ford dealer for details of the Ford V-8 Chassis.

Street Fair Sponsored By Firemen

St. Joe Will Have Four Big Days and Nights of Street Fair, June 26-27-28-29

Mr. E. Erbine and J. C. Smith, of New Haven, were in town Tuesday and made a contract with the local Fire Department to stage a big fair for four days and nights on June 26-27-28-29.

The midway will consist of Rides of all kinds, Shows, Concessions, Ferris Wheel, Merry-go-round, and the like.

Each night at 10:00 o'clock will be the big free act consisting of Latham's Trained Dogs and Monkeys, an act that will please everybody, and will be worth seeing.

Meet your friends in St. Joe on the above dates and enjoy yourself.

Remember this fair is sponsored by the St. Joe Firemen, the men who stand guard over your property at all times.

HEMORRHAGES FATAL TO JAMES WYATT

James Wyatt, of 243 South Center Street, Auburn, died Monday morning a 6:45 o'clock after only a few hours illness from cerebral hemorrhages. According to members of his family he had six or seven convulsive attacks from about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon until his death.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt had gone to Ball Lake near Hamilton on Sunday so that Mr. Wyatt might fish. He felt unusually well before going on the lake. He apparently had his first stroke while in a boat as several men near Mr. Wyatt noticed that his boat was not being handled properly. He was helped to the shore where he fell to the sand. Mr. and Mrs. Holland Scherck, of Auburn, were some of those nearby at the time of Mr. Wyatt's first attack.

Mrs. Wyatt, who was at a cottage near the lake, was notified and she summoned the W. H. Loy ambulance from Auburn. On the way to his home Mr. Wyatt had a series of violent convulsions. Sunday night they continued.

The deceased, 72 years of age on January 10, was born in the vicinity of Concord in the southeast part of DeKalb county. He had been a resident of Auburn for twenty-one years. During this time he was employed by the Auburn Automobile company as a body finisher and glazer.

On August 10, 1934, his first wife died and on February 2 last, he was united in marriage with Mrs. Carrie Gill, also of Auburn. Besides the widow there survive four stepchildren, Mrs. Bertha Boren and Mrs. George Anderson, of Auburn; Raymond Hennessy, of Garrett, and Mrs. Wyatt's daughter, Mrs. J. H. Koons, of Jackson, Mich.

The funeral services were held from the late home at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with Rev. Joseph Ferguson officiating and burial in Roselawn cemetery.

TO START CHECKING CORN-HOG COMPLIANCE

Because of the fact that the work of checking compliance with corn-hog contracts is to begin shortly in DeKalb county, County Agent T. E. Myers has asked that all corn-hog producers who make applications for the 1935 corn-hog control contract permit the compliance officers to measure their farms, whether or not the final contract form has been signed.

By checking the compliance now this work can proceed much more rapidly than if it were put off until all the contracts are signed and a saving can be made which will reduce the total expenses of the county control association. All such savings that can be made, will add to the adjustment payment checks, which will start coming in as soon as possible after the contracts are signed and the compliance checking is completed.

In DeKalb county, 957 producers made application for the 1935 corn-hog contracts according to the records of the local control association.

TRAVEL 18 YEARS TO EQUAL DAILY MILEAGE ON STATE HIGHWAYS

Indianapolis, Ind., June 19.—If a motorist driving 50 miles per hour for 10 hours a day traveled for 18 years, he would approximate the number of vehicular miles traveled daily on the Indiana state highway system, it was stated today by James D. Adams, chairman of the State Highway Commission. Traffic records show an average daily travel of 7,751,265 miles on the state highway system, outside cities and towns.

Handling this growing flow of traffic by providing adequate highways over which it may move expediously yet with safety is a major problem and one bearing heavy responsibilities. Not only must the highway commission meet present-day problems created by this traffic but it must anticipate whenever possible, its needs of the future.

The widening of shoulders along the existing highways, the elimination of hazardous curves and grades, separation of highway and railroad intersections and the rerouting of highways are part of the attempt to anticipate future traffic development on Indiana's state highways. At this time plans are being prepared for a divided-lane highway, the first in Indian, on which traffic moving in the same direction will occupy one strip of pavement while several feet away will be a similar strip of pavement carrying all traffic in the opposite direction.

In planning extension of the state highway system and allocating funds for improvements on the highway system, every effort is made to anticipate the future demands which traffic will make on the highway. Traffic checks made recently show an increase of 12 per cent in traffic on the state highways with every indication that coming years may bring additional increases.

J. RAYMOND SCHUTZ AT ST. JOE

At a Tri-Township meeting of Sunday School executives a few weeks ago, plans were made for a big convention of all schools of Newville, Spencer and Concord Townships, and today the plans were definitely assured, when acceptance of J. Raymond Schutz, of North Manchester, Ind., was received and will be here on June 30, for afternoon and evening engagement.

At the meeting of the Township heads Tuesday evening, a program was outlined trying to enlist each school in the district on the program. It will possibly be in shape for next issue.

VERY STRANGE THINGS ARE DONE BY MANY PEOPLE

Did you ever stop to think that a man will exercise great care in selecting a family physician or surgeon; he will use utmost caution to prevent bringing animals on his farm carrying contagious diseases; he will be very careful in his choice of a mechanic to work on his automobile, but he will wear a pair of glasses that he picked out of a basket in some racket store, or a pair that were purchased many years ago?

In other words, the most valuable possession he has is usually neglected more than any other. He can buy a new car if necessary, but he can never buy a new pair of eyes.

Just give this a little thought and then come to "the store with the street clock" and have a thorough examination to prove that your eyes are not also being neglected.

DEKALB COUNTY RATED 100 PER CENT AGAIN THIS YEAR

DeKalb county was adjudged a gold crown and 100 per cent county again this year at the annual convention of the Indiana Council of Religious Education which met at Washington, Ind. This is the thirteenth consecutive year that DeKalb has had this distinction. Only one other county in the state, Randolph, had a 100 per cent record this year.

There were 1,725 full time registered delegates at the convention. The 1936 meeting will be held at Frankfort, Ind. Those attending were Miss Sadie Coy, the county secretary, Miss Rose Smith, Miss Ruth Hawk, Miss Thelma Grosh, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Friend, Rev. J. O. McKinley and Mrs. McKinley, and Walter Coburn.

J. Raymond Schutz, of North Manchester, will continue to serve as president of the state organization for the ensuing year. Few changes were made in the roster of officers of the organization. George E. Beugnot, of Auburn, was named a vice president; William P. Dearing, of Oakland City, Roger Mayhill, of Delphi, and Claude Newman, of Culver, representatives-at-large; A. O. Binford, of New Albany, G. A. Stephan, of Monticello, Charles Puckett, of Winchester, L. A. Ertsinger, of Huntington, and Edward R. Bartlett, of Greencastle, terriorial representatives.

DEKALB COUNTY STUDENTS GET INDIANA SCHOLARSHIP

St. Joe Boy and Garrett Girl Selected by University Committee

Bloomington, Ind., June 18.—John W. Kaellner, R. R. 1, St. Joe and Elizabeth Anne VanFleit, 210 East King Street, Garrett, have been named winners of the two DeKalb county scholarships to Indiana University, according to the announcement made today by the I. U. scholarship committee. The committee named 184 Indiana high school graduates as winners of the scholarships from the 92 counties of the state. The list has been approved by the university faculty and has gone to the board of trustees for final ratification.

Both DeKalb county students will enter Indiana University as freshmen next fall.

By an act of the Indiana general assembly at its 1935 session, Indiana University is authorized to grant two scholarships to graduates of the high schools of each county in the state. Prior to this year, the scholarship appointments were made by the county superintendents. The university officials were allowed to make the awards to high school graduates of this year and to former graduates now attending the university.

The scholarships call for the remission of all contingent fees for two semesters at the university. School superintendents and principals assisted the university in furnishing grades and reports of candidates in order that superior students might be selected for the scholarships.

PROTECT HORSES IN HOT WEATHER

Sudden hot weather in June usually brings reports of horses being lost from over heating. Good horsemen do not lose horses no matter how hot the weather may be.

Farmers may prevent overheating of their horses by taking a couple of barrels of water, on a wagon or stone-boat, to the field, and allowing the horses the opportunity of drinking at the end of each hour. Free access to salt when the horses are either on pasture or in the stables in addition to plenty of water will also eliminate much of the danger of hot weather while working horses.

A birthday party was held at the home of Mrs. Sam Hindman in Jackson township last Sunday in honor of her son, Don Hindman, who celebrated his 46th birthday. Friends from Bluffton, Harlan, Ft. Wayne, Newville, Orangeville, St. Joe, Spencerville, Wolf Lake, and Auburn and the neighbors in general were present. The day will long be remembered by all present.

Celebrated Her 84th Birthday

Last Sunday afternoon, friends to the number of eighteen, gathered at the home of Mrs. Jane Coburn, to celebrate her 84th birthday anniversary. Among those present, beside the immediate family now at home, were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Murphy, Hicksville, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Keesler and two children, Joy and DuWayne, of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Keesler, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keesler and three daughters, Ruth, Myra and Dawn, Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser and children, Rosemary and Donald and Mrs. Clay Coburn and son, Leroy, all of St. Joe.

A most beautiful birthday cake was presented Mrs. Coburn by her grandson and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Keesler; while Mrs. Henry Murphy submitted the following poem in memory of the pleasant years that have passed, and the regard for Aunt Jane as she was familiarly called.

"Dear Aunt Jane so tried and true,
I am writing this little ode to you.
Eighty-four years, what a long while
But you never have lost that kindly smile.

Memory will take you back today,
To the youthful hours of the far-a-way.
To the many changes that have come and gone,
To the friends that have lingered and then passed on.

To-day is the day of days this this year,
We hope it will lack e'en a secret tear.
We hope you may have only smiles today,
As the old year passes and flies away.

Loved ones are wishing more happy hours,
Kind thoughts came along, with these lovely flowers.
Each one is sending their very best,
Never a thought, that would spoil your rest.

Happiness beaming in every face,
Shows in their hearts, you have won a place.
Glad to be here with this fast aging crowd,
To be your friend, I know each one is proud.

Now we will say to the in-coming year,
Bring in your train, some Jolly good cheer,
Bring to this Aunt of ours, peace like a river,
Direct from the Throne, of our Bountiful Giver."

Toward evening guests departed wishing Mrs. Coburn many more happy birthdays.

Hoosiers Are Sceptical of Making Desert Bloom

Isaiah said, "The desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." Longfellow spoke of great men's sublime lives leaving footprints on the sands of time. Others pushed irrigation projects along the Nile and did what they could to make useful the sandy wastes of the Sahara.

Sand possibilities have been brought nearer home by experiments at Rutgers university, where agricultural experts say their efforts to grow roses, sweet peas and other flowers in ordinary sand have met with unqualified success, cites the Indianapolis News.

Professor Charles H. Connors, head of the ornamental horticultural department at Rutgers, says that seashore gardeners, by applying chemical nutrients to the sand, may be able to grow flowers to the very edge of the ocean. They regard sand as almost completely under control of the grower, providing it has been enriched with the proper ingredients, and say that roses grown in sand produce a better root system than those in ordinary soil.

Carnations also are said to do better in sand. Nature lovers have cultivated an affection for sand because it is sand and nothing else. They journey to see the dunes of northern Indiana as a vast waste space, shifting with the winds; never the same from day to day.

The charm of a beach comes from the play of sunlight on the sand, the soft and yielding texture under foot and the dazzling whiteness of the vista that is exactly as nature created it.

Growing flowers along the seashore or attempting such ventures in the Indiana dune region is not unlike painting the lily.

A country storekeeper from Missouri visited New York city recently. On his return, he was the center of attraction around the stove in his store the first evening. "New York is some town all right," he told his listeners. "Cars scootin' like lightnin' over yer head, dash-burned long trains a-divin' underground, buildin's so blamed high ye cain't see the tops of 'em, millions o' miles o' paved streets, an' autos a-chasin' ye all over the street. It's a big town, all right, as I say, but it'll never be a success. It's too fur away."

Summer Bride Is in Lace or Chiffon

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

LACE, most exquisite lace, or chiffon, lovely vaporous chiffon, classic in its simplicity—choose either for your wedding gown Miss Summer Bride-to-be and you win fashion's smile of approval. The endearing charms of each are breathtaking so we warn you it's going to be a difficult matter to decide.

There is no doubt about lace being definitely in the limelight for bridal gowns, in fact for the entire bridal party. For that matter, enthusiasm for lace whether as a medium for bridal array or for all occasion ranging from simplest sports and daytime clothes to high formals, knows no bounds this season.

With the importance of lace as their cue and inspiration, designers are doing wedding ensembles for this year's midsummer brides that simply baffle description. The gown to the left in the illustration, than which imagination can picture no lovelier, is entirely of imported Chantilly lace with wondrous lace-bordered train. It is cut on princess lines with a high ruffled neck and a tunic effect. The voluminous veil is draped over a coronet of orange blossoms.

Not all brides are so favored by fortune as to be married in such gorgeous lace raiment. However that need not at all discourage the bride-to-be who is lace-minded, for instead of being entirely of lace many of the most attractive wedding gowns designed this season have lace worked in for yokes, and sleeves and perhaps insets and numerous other intriguing ways.

As to lace for the bridesmaids, it is a story too long, too dramatic and romantic to be briefly told. Picture a bevy of lovely ladies clad in laces of delicate mesh whose colors take on the hues of the rainbow or a summertime garden of flowers. Lace hats they wear, and lace gloves and as like as not shoes of lace.

Chiffon for the wedding gown? That's another of fashion's most fascinating stories which should be told to brides who would wed in June or later in midsummertime. The flair for chiffon evening and party frocks started in Paris and the vogue has become so pronounced that the call of midsummer night fashions for chiffon resounds throughout the length and breadth of all fashionland. Which is merely the prologue to what we are about to say in regard to the chic, the charm and the importance of chiffon, especially quality-kind all silk chiffon, for not only the bride's gown but for outfitting her attendants even to the littlest flower girl.

In the exquisitely lovely wedding gown to the right in the picture, the poet finds inspiration for a sonnet, the painter for a picture and the bride the realization of dreams come true. The theme of this winsome bridal dress which so obviously plays up simplicity (a sophisticated simplicity, if you please) is white silk chiffon. Draped, it is, in classic Grecian lines, for the latest gesture in realms of formal fashion is the draping of diaphonous materials after the art of ancient Greek sculpturing. Now comes the touch-exquisite which climaxes the beauty and sweet simplicity of this chiffon rhapsody and will cause all who behold to say of her "the bride was a perfect picture"—she carries white violets for her bouquet.

BRIDESMAID IN LACE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Delicate white silk lace makes a frock which is perfect for the bridesmaid at a formal summer wedding, or for the bride who is being married informally. The ruffled bertha cape covers a complete evening gown. The little ruffled peasant cap is in line with the trend toward head coverings for formal wear, such as the Indian sari or Hindu thram scarf. The mitts of the silk lace have flaring elbow sleeves.

Fullness Is Fashionable

Fullness from the yoke or the collar line at back, above the waistline, and fullness at center front below the waistline, are much reflected in the late costume collections for the little dresses in the simpler modes.

SHIRTWAIST FROCK SLICK AND DASHING

There's a new and youthful shirtwaist frock that is arousing loud cheers from the bleachers.

It is a slick, slim affair in dotted foulard, with small boy collar, short sleeves, a belt and buttons all the way down the front, and it is about the most dashing and practical garment thus far evolved.

It comes in navy, black or brown, with red, yellow or white dots, and is a city version of the dotted linen frock that was the toast of the Palm Beach season.

Its only trimming is the stitched youthful collar and the stitched cuffs on its brief sleeves, and that perhaps is part of its charm. With it you may wear a bandana cap of the same material, very new and springlike, with a Cossack look.

Stockings Are Bursting Into Color in France

Here is news of another brand new mode! Stockings have burst into color in France. This is not nearly so startling as it sounds. The colors are soft, deep shades and will provide fascinating shoe-stocking combinations. In addition, many of them are held just under the knee by lastex band. They are ribbed, English fashion, like men's socks, in lisles and meshes, made sturdy for hard wear, and inexpensive.

After you get used to the idea, can't you picture them with tweeds and sports things? In the country, blue, green and maroon stockings will stride across the fields and over the links. In town, smart legs will shop and tea in navy blue.

White Capes

Long capes of soft white wool, tweeds, angoras and the like will be shown along with white coats for the summer season.

Dots Are Seen

Dots of one material are seen on backgrounds of different fabrics.

Ring Brings Misfortune; Is Returned to Egypt

A registered packet arrived for the premier of Egypt from Vancouver, and was found to contain a beautiful scarab ring accompanied by a letter, writes the Cairo correspondent of the London Sunday Observer.

The writer informed his excellency that the ring had been given by the khedive to his grandfather, who had been visiting Cairo and Alexandria with a theatrical company. His grandfather had died about sixty years ago, leaving the ring to his father, from whom the writer had inherited it some seven years later. Ever since the ring had come into his possession unaccountable misfortunes had befallen him every seventh year, and it was clear that possession of the ring carries with it some curse. In order to avoid further ill luck in 1935, a seventh year, he was returning the ring whence his family had received it.

WHEN LIVES ARE AT STAKE

You need the same protection that race drivers demand

KELLY PETILLO ON MAY 30, WON the 500-Mile Indianapolis Race on Firestone Tires, breaking the track record and driving the entire distance at a rate of 106.24 miles per hour.

This record is an outstanding demonstration of tire efficiency. To go 500 miles in less than five hours on this rough and bumpy 26-year-old brick track, without tire trouble of any kind, demonstrates the strength and blowout protection that Firestone builds into their Gum-Dipped Tires.

AB JENKINS ALSO RECENTLY demonstrated the stamina, efficiency, and blowout protection built into Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. He drove his 5000 pound car over the hot salt beds at Lake Bonneville, Utah, 3000 miles in 23½ hours. This was an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, and although temperatures were as high as 120°, he had no blowouts or tire trouble of any kind.

These records are made possible by special construction features built into Firestone Tires.

Take no chances—protect your life and the lives of others by letting us equip your car with Firestone Tires and give you the Safety and Blowout Protection that race drivers demand.

Before you buy new tires ask yourself these three questions

1—"Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

2—"Are they built to give me the greatest blowout protection?"

3—"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

ANSWER No. 1—Leading university tests show Firestone High Speed Tires stop your car 15% quicker than the best of all popular makes of tires.

ANSWER No. 2—Unequaled performance records for sixteen consecutive years prove that Gum-Dipping gives you the greatest blowout protection ever known.

ANSWER No. 3—Thousands of car owners report unequaled mileage records—evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

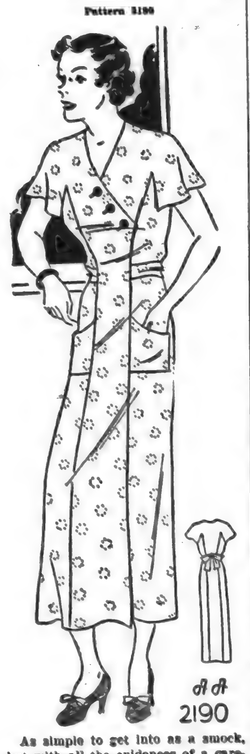
Winning Fashion for Home Wear

Pattern 2190



As simple to get into as a smock, but with all the evidences of a carefully throught-out house dress is this new model. The slightly flared cap sleeves, cut in one with shoulders, and front and back panels (which give slender lines) are attractive details. The diagonal buttoning lends further interest and the roomy pockets add a style note as well as being useful. You'll like it in printed lawn, swiss, gingham, muslin or a solid color cotton, such as broadcloth or percale. When a slightly heavier material is used, the necessity of petticoat is eliminated.

Pattern 2190 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 16 takes 4⅛ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

Smiles

EXPLAINING IT

"Yes, it is really remarkable," observed mother at the head of the table. "Clifford seems to eat twice as much chicken when we have visitors."

"Indeed!" exclaimed the lady visitor. "And, pray, why is that, Clifford?"

"'Cause that's the only time we have it!" replied the truthful lad.

Impressionism

"You ought to know a great deal of politics by this time."

"I try to pay attention," answered Senator Sorghum. "But I'm afraid I'm getting to be like a whole lot of people who are influenced not so much by what they know as by what they suspect."

Not Bad

Man—What's your idea of an ideal place for a vacation?

Friend—A place where the fish bite and the mosquitoes do not, and where neither the bees nor the hotel keepers sting you.

DANCE OF THE DEVILKIN

By THAYER WALDO

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

FIBERG slapped an open hand down upon the inlaid desk top.

"Listen!" he stormed; "this thing's gotta be stopped if we have to fire everyone on the lot—you hear me, Garrison?"

The slighter of the two men across from him grimaced wryly and said:

"Perfectly, J. L.; you're in good voice today. But I don't think canning people's gonna help much."

The producer gave him a belligerent glare.

"Oh! So maybe you've got some smarter ideas you're keeping secret?"

The third man squirmed impatiently forward in his chair. He was large and loose-limbed, with soft white hands that commenced to flutter as he spoke:

"For heaven's sake let's not waste time squabbling! Please remember that these dances that have been ravaged from me were creations of my very soul. I tell you it's frightful!"

"Nuts!" said Garrison, "that's just a lot of hot air, Cheval. What really counts is the fifty grand we've lost by having the stuff stolen."

Fiberg grumbled emphatic assent.

"Sure—now you're talking. Eight colossal sets for these dance numbers in the last three months, and what have we got? Ten reels of film in the ashcan. Phooey!"

Petulantly the dance director asked:

"But how do those vile Minsky brothers have the audacity to—"

"Never mind that," Garrison cut in. "The important point is that every one of those numbers came out in a Minsky show just before we were ready to release, which means that somebody at this end's playing a little double cross."

Fiberg eyed him shrewdy and inquired:

"Yes? So who?"

"If I had that answer," the publicity man snapped, "would we be sitting around here stewing our brains over it? I'm only trying to show you how we've got to tackle the thing."

Garrison rose, shoved his chair back, and walked to the door.

"Think I'll toddle along," he remarked laconically. "You gentlemen don't want me in on a private fight. See you later, J. L. If Cheval swoons, there's some smelling salts in my office."

He went across the lot toward sound stage 5. It was there that all the elaborate spectacles which never reached the screen—at least under the Zenith trademark—had been staged. The most recent of them, he knew, was now being rehearsed by Cheval's assistants, and some vague hunch urged him to pay a visit.

As he entered the building, a man he didn't know approached him, heading out.

The fellow wore a light overcoat, and beneath it something bulged. Seeing the publicity man, he attempted to slip hurriedly past. A furtiveness in the movement attracted Garrison's notice.

"Hey—just a minute," he said, grasping the other's arm; "let me see your pass, if you don't mind."

The man put on an offended air.

"Pass?" he echoed stiffly. "I'm sure I don't understand. I'm a guest here."

"Everybody who comes on the lot from outside," Garrison told him, "has to have one, unless he sneaks in. What's under your coat, by the way?"

Without replying, the fellow tried to jerk free. Garrison held on and pulled him toward the door. When they were outside he halted again and snapped:

"Now, listen; either you come clean on what you're doing here, or I turn you over to the studio police as a trespasser. Which'll it be?"

The man ceased struggling and smiled a trifle. "Very well; here you are. Nothing very desperate about this, is there?"

From the folds of his overcoat he withdrew a camera.

The publicity man gave a triumphant snort and seized it, exclaiming:

"Well, well! So you've been snapping yourself some pictures, eh? I suppose they're just for the family album?"

"Perhaps," he fellow replied blandly. He was still smiling, confidently, and seemed to be enjoying the situation.

"And of course," Garrison pursued, "you don't happen to be in the employ of Minsky brothers?"

The other nodded without hesitation. "Yes, I am; why?"

"Because then you're going to have the unique honor of a little interview with Mr. Joseph Fiberg. Won't that be nice?"

"Very. I'm at your service."

Fiberg and Cheval were in the throes of heated argument when Garrison threw open the producer's office door. Both men turned and their words died at the sight of the stranger. Then Garrison led him forward, saying:

"Here's something ought to interest you, J. L. Allow me to present Mr. X. I met him coming out of sound stage 5 with a hidden camera. He admits taking shots of the stuff and that he works for Minskys. How does that sound for a hot tip-off on our mystery?"

Before Fiberg could respond, the man in the overcoat was speaking.

"Ah—this is indeed a pleasure, Mr. Fiberg. And this other gentleman?—may I know—"

"Paul Cheval," cut in the dance director haughtily, "is it of any particular moment to you?"

"Most decidedly. I'm fortunate in finding you both together. I'd planned to seek separate appointments but our friend here seems to have helped matters along in a hurry."

"Say, just what is this?" Fiberg asked blankly.

"I'll come to the point at once. My name is Fletcher; I'm with the law firm that represents Minsky Brothers."

He pointed to the camera and went on:

"With these pictures as evidence, we purpose to file immediate suit against Zenith studios for one million dollars damages. I thought you'd like to know about it."

There was a second of stunned silence. Then Cheval, in a strained voice, cried:

"This is enough! I've listened to all the insane mouthings I can stand for one day."

He flung toward the door, but the man called Fletcher was there before him and blocked the way.

"One moment, please. Evidently this is a surprise to all but yourself. I'd thought it might be more complicated. You see, Mr. —— well, Cheval—the little lady who worked at Minsky's as a chorus girl and furnished you the details of their dances has made a complete statement."

To the producer, whose face was slowly deepening in hue, he added:

"According to my information, Mr. Fiberg, you've been rather badly duped. This man whom you've engaged as a dance director appears actually to be an ex-vaudeville hoofer named Izzy Montiovski, and the girl I spoke of his former partner."

Once more the room was momentarily soundless. Then the lawyer's voice, with a new tinge of amusement, said:

"What you do with him's not my affair, of course; but may I suggest discretion? After all, publicity about this might prove quite embarrassing—eh, Mr. Garrison?"

Finds Stars of Pleiades Group Move Independently

Proof that each star in the Pleiades cluster moves independently of other stars in that group has been established by Prof. Jan Schilt, head of the Columbia university department of astronomy. This contradicts previous observations indicating the Pleiades constitute a star cluster in which motions of individual members are exactly alike, according to a correspondent in the Chicago Tribune.

Professor Schilt compared recently completed photographs with similar views taken by the same photographic telescope 67 years ago. He and his assistants were able to measure up to 0.0003 of a second of arc per annum the velocities or motions of individual members of the Pleiades with respect to each other.

Although the theory that there is motion among individual stars of the Pleiades and similar groups, has existed for a long time, Professor Schilt explained, the motion was so silent that its existence has never been proved.

The accuracy of the Columbia calculations, he said, is a result of the long period of time over which the measurements extend.

In making those measurements, he pointed out, the university is carrying forward a project started in 1868 by Lewis Morris Rutherford, founder of the Columbia department of astronomy. He was the first astronomer to prove that positions of stars could be measured more accurately on a photographic plate than by the eye through the ordinary telescope.

Rutherford took more than 3,000 pictures of constellations with a photographic telescope which he built in 1868.

A Fippenny Bit

A fippenny bit was a Spanish half-real, a silver coin taken at 1-16 of a dollar. The term was used in Pennsylvania and adjacent states. Before an act of congress, February 21, 1857, caused the adoption of decimal coins and the withdrawal of foreign coinage from circulation, this coin passed currently for 6¼ cents, and was called in New England a fourpence ha-penny, or a fourpence; in New York a sixpence; in Philadelphia and Virginia a fip, and in Louisiana a picayune. A bit was a small silver coin with a value of about 12½ cents. The term was often used in referring to the Mexican real.

To Preserve Brushes

Good paint brushes deserve good treatment. Never leave your brushes in the paint pot. While painting sessions are on, keep the brushes in an old can filled with turpentine, but when the painting is finished, wash the brushes well in soap and water. Much of the paint can be squeezed out first with the hands, covered with newspaper. Very thorough washing is necessary; the hairs may have to be well worked or massaged in hot soapy water before all the paint is removed. Then brushes should be dried thoroughly.

Cheerful Walls Brighten Home

A housing expert points out that gloomy walls spoil the interior appearance of any home. It is possible very economically to repair, replace or cover the old walls. Paneling with wallboard or plywood in the living rooms, wainscoting in the dining room, kitchen or bathroom, plaster or wallboard in the bedrooms, will make the home look younger. In the attic and cellar new rooms may be added by a few partitions and by applying new materials over the unfinished wall surface.

Crocheted Scarf Is Easy for Beginner

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

There is nothing the needleworker can make that is more practical and useful than a scarf. Here is a scarf that is to be crocheted in the large filet stitch and when a number 5 steel crochet hook and number 15 cotton is used the scarf will measure about 12x34 inches when finished. Even the beginner will find the filet stitch easy and interesting to work, especially in the popular "Rose" design shown here. This scarf matches the Rose chair set shown a few weeks ago.

This package, No. 807, contains sufficient cream color Mountain Craft crochet cotton to complete this scarf, also instructions, black and white diagram for easy counting of meshes, and crochet hook.

Write our Crochet Department, inclosing 40 cents for complete package No. 807 or 10 cents for instructions and diagram sheet only.

Excessive Greed

Cupidity is a great desire for wealth, avarice.

Women Form Majority of Turkey's Population

Women form the majority of Turkey's population; they exceed men by not less than 7.9 per cent, according to official statistics.

In rural districts the percentage of women is even much higher, as in most of the larger cities the male element prevails.

The population of Istanbul with 709,000 inhabitants, against 1,100,000 under Ottoman empire, includes 138,000 married couples, while 333,000 persons are unmarried. There are 19,000 widowers, against 72,000 widows. The number of marriages has increased steadily from 1927, when 2,895 were registered, to 1932 with 4,813 marriages. The majority of the brides were between nineteen and twenty-four years old, while men mostly married between thirty and thirty-four.

More than 13,000,000 Turkish citizens profess the Mahometan faith; 100,906 are Greek Orthodox, 81,872 Isrealites; 77,433 Armenian-Gregorians; 39,511 Roman Catholics, and 24,307 Protestants. The rest of the population of 17,500,000 belong either to no religious community or their religion could not be established.

GOVERNMENT BANK UNSUITED TO U. S.

Would Serve Politics Rather Than Business Needs, Says R. S. Hecht, Citing Previous Experiences.

QUOTES PRESIDENT JACKSON

Extent and Diversity of This Country Presents Different Situation From Europe and Makes Regional Banking Necessary.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A refutation of arguments in favor of a government-owned central bank system for the United States is presented in a statement by R. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, based on exhaustive studies of European central banks. He also points out the disastrous consequences of previous central bank experiments in the United States.

"Our present regional Federal Reserve System under private ownership is infinitely better for this country than would be a government-owned and controlled central bank," Mr. Hecht says. "If history teaches us anything, it is that it is almost certain that a central bank so owned would be run to meet the varying exigencies of the government in power rather than to serve the commercial needs of the country."

Central banking has been tried twice in the United States, but was finally abolished because the credit control which the central banks exercised became objectionable and unpopular, he goes on to say.

What Andrew Jackson Said

"The continued existence of the Second Bank finally became a bitter political issue and President Jackson succeeded in abolishing it." Mr. Hecht says. "Permit me to quote from his farewell address: 'The immense capital and peculiar privileges bestowed upon it enabled it to exercise despotic away over the other banks in every part of the country. From its superior strength it could seriously injure, if not destroy, the business of any of them which might incur its resentment. . . . If you had not conquered, the government would have passed from the hands of the many to the hands of the few; and this organized money power, from its secret conclave, would have dictated the choice of your highest officers. . . The forms of your government might, for a time, have remained, but its living spirit would have departed from it.'"

When the Wilson Administration considered banking reform it carefully kept away from vesting central banking powers in a single institution and instead introduced the regional idea by creating twelve reserve banks located in different economic and geographical sections of the country, Mr. Hecht says, a plan that has worked exceedingly well because the separate banks are under the guidance of men chosen on account of their intimate acquaintance with the problems and needs of their respective territories. He continues:

"The great size and diversity of America tends to make a central bank undesirable. The central banks of Europe such as the Banks of England, France and Germany, cover areas not as large as some of our states. A central bank in the United States on the other hand would be called upon to administer the financial policies of an area larger than all of Europe, in which there are quite a number of central banks.

Subservient to Popular Demands

"Moreover, history has proven that any banking system entirely owned and dominated by the government usually demonstrates much greater ability in aiding expansion of credit than in putting on the brakes at the right time to prevent undue inflation by restraining and contracting credit. This is easy to understand because in times of depression everyone is urging the government to make money and credit easy and to encourage expansion.

"On the other hand, it always has been and always will be a difficult task for any government to call a halt in time of apparent prosperity because in the very nature of things the government would be very sensitive to public criticism and would hesitate to take any action which would tend to curtail business activity. It is such undue susceptibility to popular demands which makes government banking inherently weak.

"Our studies show that of all the central banks at present existing there are only four whose stock is owned by the government. The newest central bank is that of Canada, which opened its doors only a few months ago after a most exhaustive study had been made of the experience of all nations with the result that the stock of the Bank of Canada is privately owned."

The American Bankers Association, Mr. Hecht says, is convinced that a central bank would not be in the interest of the public or the banks. This position, he added, is "well understood by the President and the leaders in his Administration for we have been absolutely frank with them in all of our discussions and have missed no opportunity for emphasizing that in our opinion no banking system will, in the long run, be sound if it is dominated entirely by the ever-changing political administrations. We should do all we can to keep our banking mechanism as far removed from partisan politics as possible."

GOLD MEDAL COLT CLUB TO START THIS MONTH

Any person wishing to cooperate in the Gold Medal Colt Club project must nominate his colt during July. Any colt sired by a registered stallion and born since January 1, 1935, is eligible. The steps necessary to get lined up on this project are:

First: Have your spring colt weighed by two disinterested parties any time from July 1st to July 31st.

Second: Fill out a nomination card which will be sent to you and have it signed by the parties who weighed your colt, and then forward it with 50c to the County Agent's Office (this 50c makes you a member of the Indiana Livestock Breeders Association for one year.) You should nominate all your colts. The fee is 50c in case you enter one or a dozen.

Horses in this county are getting old and increased breeding must take place if we are to continue using horses. Horses have an increased purchasing power over last year. The good colts of this county if properly fed will add considerably to our farm income. A good brood mare is an attractive breeder's proposition for any one who likes horses and is equipped to care for colts.

Give your colt a chance. Nominate him in the Gold Medal Colt Project before July 31st.

THE CONSTITUTION, OUR GREATEST SAFEGUARD

The Senate has passed the Public Utility Act of 1935 (usually spoken of as the Wheeler-Rayburn bill) to eliminate most electric holding companies.

On June 4, a United States Congressman, writing to a worried investor who feared that his savings would be wiped out by this plan to destroy holding companies, said: "This legislation.... will protect the actual value and earning power of such properties now owned by thousands of investors..... It will not destroy values." The Congressman did not say what the investor could do with securities in a company destroyed by a federal law. When he tells worried citizens that a bill to destroy an industry "will not destroy values," he assumes a great responsibility.

Since the Supreme Court's decision on the NRA, upholding constitutional principles as to interstate commerce and powers of Congress, legal authorities are considering the effect of the decision on this unprecedented legislation to destroy property rights.

The bill gives political appointees absolute life and death power over companies worth billions of dollars, representing the savings and investments of hundreds of thousands of American citizens. It would give the same appointees power over most of the operating utilities of the country, to the exclusion of state utility commissions.

The great bulk of electricity is generated, distributed and used within a single state. The Public Utility Act does not differentiate between interstate and intrastate power, but attempts to subject it all to federal control.

In the light of the Supreme Court's remarks on intrastate commerce, the vital provisions of this bill seem brazenly unconstitutional. But the Senate has passed it and the House is under political pressure to pass it, while Congressmen tell investors "it will not destroy values."

Regardless of what Congress does, however, the rights of citizens will be guarded by the United States Supreme Court in interpreting that greatest of all guarantees of human happiness and property rights, the United States Constitution, which so far has stood impregnable against political anslaughts to curb its protective powers and destroy personal liberties.

ELECTRIC
A REAL CONVENIENCE

AN ABUNDANT supply of hot water at uniform temperature is a convenience that literally transforms a household. The moment you install an Electric Heater, you stop being janitor to your hot water supply. There is no bother starting your hot water or waiting for it to get hot, no more running downstairs to turn up the heater . . . no retracing your steps to turn it down.

Nothing is more aggravating than hot water faucets that run lukewarm or cold water. When, in the middle of the night, some one is taken ill, or hot water is needed to quiet the pain of an ailing child, an adequate, constant supply of piping hot water is instantly on tap with an Electric Water Heater.

GREAT SEASON AT WINONA LAKE IS PREDICTED

Activities Start Month Earlier Than Usual

All indications point to a season of great activity at Winona Lake. The season started nearly a whole month earlier than usual because of the meeting of the great Church of the Brethren Conference which brought many thousands of people from all sections of United States and Canada. The conference was followed by the Quadrennial General Conference of the Free Methodist Church, which will continue until June 27 and the annual meeting of the Indiana Presbyterian Synod and Synodical, for three days, June 17, 18 and 19. These church conferences, any one of which would be considered a big event in other cities and towns of the state, have come to Winona Lake to start the season off with a big bang.

The usual number of other conferences and gatherings are booked for Winona and an unusually good Chautauqua program has been arranged, to be followed by the Big Bible Conference, which will attract people from all parts of the world.

The Chautauqua season begins Sunday, June 30th, with the Winona School of Missions in charge of the morning session. Dr. J. Ruskin Howe will be the speaker. The A Capella Choir of the Methodist Church of Battle Creek, Mich., will present a sacred concert at 7:45. The first entertainment program will be the Kurkowski Xylophone Band, Monday, July 1, 3:00 and 8:00. The Chautauqua continues for six weeks. Concerts, entertainments, motion pictures, lectures comprise the splendid list of programs offered.

A special Fourth of July celebration has been planned. Contests of various kinds including Tug-O'War, Water Battle, Bicycle Race, Relay Race, etc. Ball Game, Band Concert and Sue Hastings Marionettes, afternoon and night.

Local Student at I. U.

Bloomington, Ind., June 26.—Eloise Bowman, of St. Joe, took a prominent part in extra-curricular activities while a student at Indiana University, according to the 1935 Arbutus, the university's yearbook which was released here shortly before commencement. The yearbook carries the pictures, student honors and activities of students who were graduated Monday night at the one hundred and sixth annual commencement of Indiana University.

The commencement exercises were held at twilight June 17 in the field house with Dr. John Finley, editor of The New York Times, giving the address. This year's class numbered approximately 1,000. Seven hundred and fifty-four of the class members received their diplomas at the commencement exercises. The remaining 250 will be granted their degrees at the end of the summer session; however, they will be counted as members of this year's class and they participated in the commencement activities.

Miss Bowman, who received the A. B. degree in English, was a member of the Sigma Kappa social sorority. She also belonged to the Panhellenic council, an organization of representatives of campus sororities, and in addition belonge to the English club, a group of students proficient in the study of English.

VERY STRANGE THINGS ARE DONE BY MANY PEOPLE

Did you ever stop to think that a man will exercise great care in selecting a family physician or surgeon; he will use utmost caution to prevent bringing animals on his farm carrying contagious diseases; he will be very careful in his choice of a mechanic to work on his automobile, but he will wear a pair of glasses that he picked out of a basket in some racket store, or a pair that were purchased many years ago?

In other words, the most valuable possession he has is usually neglected more than any other. He can buy a new car if necessary, but he can never buy a new pair of eyes.

Just give this a little thought and then come to "the store with the street clock" and have a thorough examination to prove that your eyes are not also being neglected.

Appeals to Those of Mature Figure

PATTERN 9342

Capes? Everybody loves them—they've descended upon fashion like April showers. All sorts of capes. In this charming dress the cape influence is minimized, but it is used to advantage. Joining in front like a ragian sleeve, and cut in one with the yoke in back, these cape sleeves give grace and proper proportioning to the mature figure. A small bow, adroitly placed, adds a winsome touch at the bodice. You'll find the cut of the skirt excellent, too. It's a grand dress to make up in a flower print or a solid sheer, or in voile or lawn for the heat waves to come. The capes may contrast.

Pattern 9342 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards 39 inch fabric.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York.

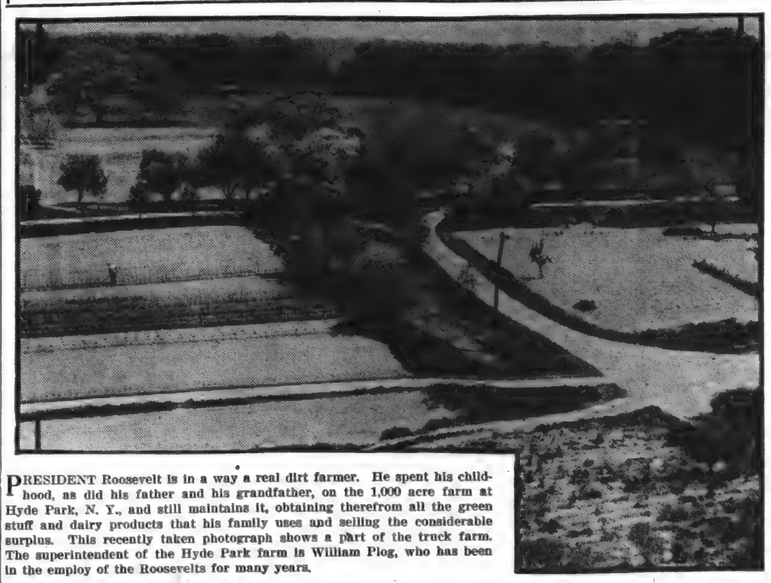
Where the President Does His Dirt Farming



PRESIDENT Roosevelt is in a way a real dirt farmer. He spent his childhood, as did his father and his grandfather, on the 1,000 acre farm at Hyde Park, N. Y., and still maintains it, obtaining therefrom all the green stuff and dairy products that his family uses and selling the considerable surplus. This recently taken photograph shows a part of the truck farm. The superintendent of the Hyde Park farm is William Plog, who has been in the employ of the Roosevelts for many years.

Bedtime Story for Children

BUSTER BEAR IS HUNGRY

BUSTER BEAR was hungry. There wasn't any doubt about that. Danny Meadow Mouse, watching from his hiding place under a little pile of brown leaves in the Green Forest, didn't have to be told that. He had only to watch Buster raking over the leaves on the ground, sniffing among them as he did so, to know that Buster was hungry. What he was hunting for Danny didn't know, but he did know that if a hungry Bear should find a fat Meadow Mouse, well, in about two winks that Bear would be a little less hungry. Knowing that didn't make Danny feel any more comfortable. No, siree, it didn't.

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear me! Whatever did I leave the Green Meadows for?" Danny asked himself over and over as one little chill chased another little chill all over him. "If I ever get back there I'll never, never, go so far away from home again. I never will, I never will," he repeated over and over to himself.

All the time he sat perfectly still. He wouldn't have breathed if he could have helped it, but of course he had to do that. And all the time he kept his bright little eyes fixed on the great black form of Buster Bear as Buster wandered this way and that way in the moonlight sifting down through the tree tops. Perhaps he would have felt a wee bit easier had he known what it was Buster was looking for among the brown leaves. Buster was hunting for beechnuts, of which he is very fond.

But Danny didn't know this. You see, Danny knew very little about Buster Bear. "He's looking for Mice. That's what he's looking for. He must have found out from Billy Mink or some one that I am over here, and he's looking for me," thought Danny, and the little chills chased each other all over him faster than ever. You see, he was so frightened that he didn't stop to really think.

Sometimes Buster would go off to one side until Danny couldn't see him among the trees, and he would begin to hope. But if he couldn't see Buster he could hear Buster's great claws raking and raking over the leaves, and it seemed to him the most awful sound he ever had heard. Then Buster would come back in his direction and the little chills would make Danny shake so that his teeth chattered. Danny Meadow Mouse was frightened. Yes, indeed, Danny Meadow Mouse was very much frightened.

At last, Buster Bear, having raked over all the leaves all about, looked straight at the little pile under which Danny was hiding and Danny felt sure that Buster was looking right at him. Then Buster began to walk straight toward that little pile of leaves and Danny Meadow Mouse.

The Kitchen Table

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SHE sits with heavy heart, and watchful eyes—
An angel banished from her Paradise.
The sale proceeds . . . Her treasures one by one.
Are purchased for a song by kindly neighbors.
She sees the couch go, where her oldest son
Lay till released from earth's purposeful labors.
There is a chair, a chest of drawers. . . . Unable
To buy, she longs most for the kitchen table.

For it was at the kitchen table she
Was blessed most by her home's tranquility;
Here she has bent, and rolled the flaky crust
For pies, and stirred up cakes and cookies . . . Here
Many a hasty luncheon has been thrust
Down eager throats . . . Speech, intimate and dear,
Took place around this table made of pine,
So homely was its use—but half divine!

For finer treasure cannot stir her thought
As this does . . . All the furniture she bought
Long, long ago is carried from the door.
She does not grieve for it. . . . Her dreams remain
Around a kitchen table, where once more
The children gather, doing sums again . . .
And she, engrossed in happy memory,
Smiles at her husband o'er a cup of tea.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My father gave me a new gun for my birthday. I want to use it right away as my vacation starts next week. I am thinking of going to the woods in Pennsylvania. Is the hunting good there?

Sincerely,
IKE N. SHOOT.

Answer: It sure is. In fact, it is better than the finding, but not as good as the voting.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am the father of a girl nineteen years of age, I do not permit her to stay out at night, but allow her to have her boy friends at home. There is one boy who comes to see her every night. For two months my gas bills have been very large, but this month the bill is very small. The same boy comes to see my daughter, so how do you account for the difference in bills?

Sincerely,
SIM PILLTON.

Answer: There're engaged now.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

This afternoon, as I was looking out my back window, I saw an old hen of mine eating a lot of tacks. What did she do that for and what shall I do about it?

Yours truly,
CHICK N. FEEDE.

Answer: Don't do anything about it; just watch her, maybe she is going to lay a carpet.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a boy eighteen years of age and my ambition is to be a detective. I am supposed to be rather homely, and my father says in order for me to be a detective I will have to have my face lifted and use all kinds of beauty creams. Can you tell me what he means by giving me such foolish advice?

Yours truly,
O. WATTAFACE.

Answer: Your father simply means that to be a detective you must be a "good looker."

SPRING DISHES

WITH the delicious rhubarb, fresh from the garden, one has the best of spring tonics. Cut it into half-inch lengths without peeling and put to bake in a baking dish with sugar to sweeten. Remove from the oven when tender and serve either hot or cold.

Rhubarb Vanity.

Wash and cut the rhubarb without peeling into half-inch pieces, place in a baking dish, adding one cupful of sugar to a pound of rhubarb. Cook covered, over low heat until the juices flow, then uncover and cook until thick. By adding the sugar after the rhubarb is nearly done it will save constant watching. Cool and fold in two well beaten egg whites and three-fourths of a cupful of freshly shredded coconut. Chill before serving with a thin custard, using the yolks of the eggs and one cupful of milk and sugar to sweeten.

Rhubarb Betty.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and add two cupfuls of bread crumbs, mix with one cupful of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, the grated rind of an orange and one cupful of fresh grated coconut or one package of coconut. Place the mixture in layers with three cupfuls of rhubarb, using the juice of the orange sprinkled over the fruit. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake 45 minutes closely covered. Uncover and brown. Serve plain or with a hard sauce or a foamy egg sauce.

Lace Goes Everywhere This Season

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IN THE progress of fashion there is ever one dominating note which gives impetus to the season's style trends. This spring and summer it's lace. What with the featuring of fashions this season which include everything from bathing suits, beach outfits, sports clothes and daytime tailleurs to fine millinery and gracious evening array made all of lace, and after that amazingly beautiful lace ball which was recently given in New York where everyone wore lace, the guests as well as those who took part in the gorgeous pageantry which was staged so picturesquely, we are coming to know more about lace than we have ever known before.

When all has been said and done, the present season will go down in history as an era in which lace really came into its own—as a period which marks the development of a new appreciation for lace, a new feeling, a new lace sense as it were. Up to now, in the minds of most of us lace had its limitations, was rather a luxury to be reserved for occasions of more or less dress-up tendency. Henceforth, with modern laces being that versatile they range from sturdiest sportsy cotton and hardy linen types to be used in a fabric way, to laces so delicate and of so fragile a beauty the traditional cobweb will have to look to its laurels, theories in regard to the restricted possibilities of lace have had to give way to lasting conviction that the practicability and the adaptability of lace to every phase of fashion, measures up 100 per cent to that of any other member in the fabric realm.

So it is we find lace going everywhere this season, no matter how formal or how informal the event. Than lace, either cotton or linen, you can choose nothing smarter for your tailored suit or your simple daytime frock.

A most fetching idea is to wear a blouse of monotone chiffon (chiffon is the rage for blouses) with your tailored-of-lace jacket suit. See centered in the picture this partnership of chiffon blouse and lace two-piece suit. Here we have an afternoon ensemble in brown lace in neat allover patterning. Pearl buttons and a peasant gathered neckline are contributing style features to the blouse of chiffon. You will find a costume such as this a perfect joy in the summer wardrobe, being cool and lovely and fairly bubbling over with swank. The hat is fashioned of the same lace as the suit, with a brown straw facing to accent its charm.

The stunning costume to the right in the group demonstrates how beautifully and appropriately lace can be used for spectator sports wear. It is of natural color cotton lace with a bright green silk tie. Which reminds, if you would trek along fashion's high-style path, wear vivid green accessories with your grege or your beige or your pure white costumes this summer. Notice the very good-looking hat which tops this spectator-sports outfit. It is made entirely of starched lace in the same pattern as that used for the suit with which it is worn.

A bit dressier, yet not too dressy for going about places during the daytime hours is that most attractive frock which the young woman seated is wearing. The lace is smart white linen with accents of blue in the sleeve and collar binding and the bows down the front also the tie-belt. A large blue straw hat completes the ensemble.

By the way, have you a lace cape in your summer collection of prettiest clothes? You really must not overlook this intriguing item of fashion. Border it with a double fold of net in matching color and finish the neck with a huge pleated ruch of the net. It is practical in black and in pastel colors—well, just try it out for yourself.

SUMMER COAT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A swagger coat worn over the summer frock is the last word in chic. Seems as if these swagger woolen coats were never so swagger as they are in the beautiful, soft textured fabrics of this year. These pastel coats in finger tip or three-quarter length are particularly in high fashion favor made of such fabrics as novelty rabbit woolens which are as smooth to the touch as a kitten's ear. These include shadow-checked weaves of featherweight but firm textured, also surfaced constructions that delineate striped, diagonal or chevron designs. The fabric used for the coat pictured is a fine herringbone patterned rabbit woolen of super-light weight. It is in a lovely pastel yellow.

HOSE ARE ADAPTED TO CUT-OUT SANDALS

Sandal shoppers who have been buying all the newest models in these most revealing trifles masquerading as summer footwear have possibly been more than a little troubled by the problem of proper stockings to wear with these high fashion slippers. But the hosiery designers have kept in step, and the last arrivals ready for sandal collectors are the semi-sandal hose.

As you may surmise, the extra thickness is distributed over the area where it will do the most good, but so cleverly restrained that even the most cut-out of sandals show only the sheerest part of the hose. Heel re-enforcements, as well as the toe sections and the long, very narrow panel under the foot, make them ideal numbers. Very sheer and not so sheer stockings in all the newest of summer tints, tones, and shades, with a flock of fancy new names, are now ready.

Lanvin-Designed Draperies Fall in Swirled Festoons

Lanvin, this season, designs draperies which fall in portiere-like drapes of swirled festoons. From three great gold rings at the front decollete of the evening gown she swings drapery of rich black silk crepe falling to the floor.

She makes a smoke gray crepe afternoon frock with a skirt whose criss-crossed folds swoop from the waist to the hem and back again, and fashions a long-sleeved green crepe evening gown with skirt panels worked in green and gold paillettes like an old mosaic.

Bags Like Cameras

The new bags of polished calf look like camera cases, for they are often deeper than they are wide. They come in rectangular pouches slung from a strap on the wrist and are a distinct departure from the flat "envelope" so long in vogue.

Obsession

By HELEN HADAKIN

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

ANDY couldn't have told when he first began to be worried about Nora. It might have begun that Fourth of July when so many cars went whizzing by. A lot of them stopped, it is true, and bought cold buttermilk and apple pie from Nora. She had to keep going across the road to the spring to get more buttermilk.

He said to her, "For Heaven's sake, Nora, will you look before you start back? They come down the hill so fast; that last one had to put on his brakes with you in the way."

Nora laughed at him. She said, "Why must you fuss when we are doing so well? Must you always have something to worry about? I'm not a child. Of course I look before I cross the road."

But she didn't. He could swear she didn't.

He spent a rainy afternoon laboriously lettering a sign to put at the top of the hill. It said, "DANGER! Steep Hill Ahead. Sharp Curve." But do you think the fools paid any attention to it? They must think he put the sign there for fun, because he didn't have anything better to do.

He spoke of moving the station across the road to the lawn in front of the house, even though the cars couldn't see it from the top of the hill. But Nora wouldn't let him.

He tried to get Nora to stay over at the house and let him manage the stand as well as the pumps.

"But what are you going to do when they begin to pile up on you?" she demanded. "You can't pump gas and hand out buttermilk, too. I don't see what's got into you.

He said, "To heck with them. If they can't wait, they can go on away."

She looked at him helplessly, "I don't understand you. You used to be sensible. Are you still worring about me crossing the road?"

He denied that. "It's just that you ought to be in the house; you have enough work to do there." And he pretended to be disgruntled with the cooking she did in the evening. "You can't make pies so late at night. No wonder they aren't any good."

In August it got terribly hot and the cars came thicker and faster than ever. All night long you heard the roar of them and all day the swish, swish they made against the air. The sound of the cars drowned out the song of the locusts and sent the little wild things scurrying madly into the bush. But nearly every morning he found a small, furry body on the road, lying stiff and still and staring at him with bright, dead eyes. He shuddered thinking of her lying like that looking at him with her brown eyes. And he was short with her and irritable with the customers.

But the bright, white heat of August gave way to the golden glow of September without anything happening to Nora. And he began to think he had been very foolish. After all, he thought, it isn't as if I weren't here to watch over her. He began kidding her again, as he used to do and she was happy once more, convinced that he liked the country and they could go on living here, just the two of them, laughing and kidding and working together.

And so Labor Day came. It was worse than Fourth of July. He got up at six in the morning and by noon he had gassed up more than fifty cars. Business had never been so good before.

He breathed a sigh of relief when by noon she had sold all her buttermilk. She wanted to stay and pump gas while he fixed flats, but he told her roughly to get on over to the house and stay there.

So she went back to the house, walking slowly across the road because she was hurt and mad at him. He held his breath until she was across, then he went on pumping gas. He was so happy he was singing to himself, "There's an old spinning wheel in the parlor. . . ."

He got so tired at the end of the day that he thought he'd drop. In another 15 minutes, he promised himself, he would close the gasoline station and go home. What a profound satisfaction it was that summer was over, Nora was safe, and he had made enough money to keep them comfortably through the winter.

When the fifteen minutes were up, he locked the pumps and the door of the little station. Waving away two cars that were slowing up, he waited for them to pass, then taking his lantern, started across the road.

When she saw the lantern she would put on the steak. Bless her, she was probably watching at the window now. He would be very tender and gentle with her tonight. He would try to make her see how he had felt all summer, because of the way she would run across the road without looking. That was why he had been so sharp with her. Because he loved her.

He noticed how thin and worn the macadam was on the road. They would have to be putting in a cement road soon with all that travel . . .

He didn't hear the roar of the big truck until it was almost upon him. He looked up just in time to see the driver jump for his hand brake. He jumped too, but not quite far enough. And then he felt a fearful blow and knew that he was down even before he saw the wheels, big, flat, rubber-tired, looming up over him, as he had seen them in the advertisements . . . as you might see them an instant before they had you.

Character in the Signature

One's Written Name Discloses Personality When Placed on Letter or Document; Legibility First Thing to Be Given Consideration.

There is one thing which every person who can read and write should learn to do well, and that is to write his, or her, signature clearly and attractively. It is worth while to experiment in writing the name until it can be done in the best possible way. Then, when once you are satisfied you have found the right way, keep practicing it until it becomes a habit to write this particular form. Then this becomes your signature. It represents your personality when signed to letter, deed, etc. It does not vary in form, although ink and pen may be different. Of course, every one writes best with the accustomed style of pen, but the form of the signature remains the same, whatever the pen or whatever the ink, or pencil.

The first thing to strive for is legibility. Be assured that whoever sees your signature knows immediately what it spells. Let it stand distinctly for you, and it acquires an element of individuality. It has distinction as well as being distinct. It represents personality.

After legibility is assured, grace in letter formation is a desirable addition. Try to have all letters slant in parallel way whether back-hand, forward or upright. See that they are firmly set, not uncertainly. The stroke may be broad, as is usual with a stub pen, or delicate, as is equally usual with a fine spencerian pen. But it is not a matter of size of stroke but of certainty, of precision. A wavering handwriting indicates fear, weakness, or frailty. A sick or aged person whose strength is small cannot avoid uncertainty of line. The well and strong should not show signs of weakness in signatures, and most assuredly one does not wish to betray weakness of character in his very handwriting.

Try to make an attractive signature of the letters and words comprising your name. It no longer requires flourishes, as in old-time beautiful writing of names. Flourishes are out of style. Legibility, fine formation of letters and words, and good spacing of words comprising one's name are criterions of fine signatures. Children learn to write, but it is adults who perfect their own signatures. Banks and other firms with whom you do constant business get to know the signatures of their depositors and clients. It is a protection to have a representative signature. The better it is in appearance the more pleasing a personality it betokens.

TIRES MAY LOOK ALIKE ON THE OUTSIDE ON THE INSIDE THEY ARE DIFFERENT

HEAT on the inside created by friction is the main cause of blowouts. Firestone Tires are different on the inside—they are built with the patented extra process of Gum-Dipping that soaks every cord and insulates every strand with pure liquid rubber, preventing internal friction and heat. No other make of tire is Gum-Dipped.

Firestone performance records again emphasize the undisputed evidence that Firestone Tires are not only blowout-proof, but give greatest protection against skidding. There are three questions and answers that will solve the problem of what tires to buy:

QUESTION 1—"Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

ANSWER—Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes. For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death. This is undisputed evidence that Firestone gives car owners greatest protection against skidding.

QUESTION 2—"Are they blowout-proof?"

ANSWER—Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Not one of the 33 drivers had any tire trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles at 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind. These are most amazing proofs of blowout protection ever known.

QUESTION 3—"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

ANSWER—Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile due to the tough, wear-resisting tread built with higher shoulders and a wider, flatter contour. This rugged tread is held securely to the Gum-Dipped cord body by Firestone's patented construction of two extra layers of cords under the tread, a special construction feature not used in any other tire. Unequaled mileage records by thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires

1 University tests show Firestone tires stop cars 15 to 25% quicker.
2 Gum-Dipped cords give greater blowout protection. Gum-Dipping is not used in other tires.
3 Wider, flatter tread gives more than 50% longer non-skid wear.

THE CARNIVAL IS ON FOR FOUR DAYS

Concession tents and the rides are now completed for the four gala days at St. Joe, under the auspices of the local Firemen.

As we sat by enjoying the Kiddies in their merriment, we thot back a few years ago in St. Joe when the old music box master and his black bear made his annual visit to St. Joe, and how we would enjoy the tricks. In front of the John Wineland home was a large tree that was always used for the bear climb.

Then we thought of the little shows that would always se upt up the Grill lot, across the road from the Sailer Blacksmith Shop. How the entire town would turn out for the two shows. The Kids would work hard to gain admission tickets and the shows were great.

Today the fair comes to us for four days and the enjoyment of the Kiddies is that much greater. Never mind, you were a child once, and you took in everything in your day, and that was no comparison to what you will get here.

Four big days.
